MINDEN, Nov. 19. (Staff)—There is no optimism in Minden today over the fate of a 24-year-old vacationer from Buffalo, missing since Thursday in the bush 15 miles southeast of here.

Twenty-four-year-old Dudley Stumm, ward of a Buffalo Roman Catholic orphanage, strolled into the bush last Thursday afternoon with one of the two priests who is accompanying him. Names of the priests were not revealed.

A Department of Lands and Forests aircraft was expected in Minden this afternoon to help OPP Constables Alex Edwards and Al Hardy in their search.

Last Resort

"It's pretty well our last resort," said Constable Edwards. Nearly two inches of snow has fallen since Stumm was first reported missing, and ice on water in the swales is an inch thick.

The constable told how Stumm and the priest had gone for a stroll in the bush, got separated, and how the priest had returned alone after briefly searching for Stumm.

Constables Hardy and Edwards organized a search party immediately, and the gang of men combed the thick bush and treacherous swamps until 3 o'clock Friday morning.

Later Friday morning, the search was taken up again, and more people were added to the crew who had sought the man vainly all night.

Rifle Battalion Goes To Europe

QUEBEC, Nov. 19 (CP)—The 27th Brigade's Rifle Battalion sailed today for Europe to join more than 2,300 men of the Canadian formation now established in the British sector of Western Germany.

The 763 soldiers, wearing the green berets of the rifle unit, started to board the 13,000-ton Columbia of the Greek Lines at 7 am EST.

The white ship, her rails crowded with troops, pulled away from Wolfe's Cove dock at 10:40 am EST. The band of the Royal 22nd Regiment, formed up at the edge of the wharf, played "Auld Lang Syne."

The weather was cold and grey and only a few relatives were on hand at the dockside. Two or three young women wept when the ship slid out into the harbor below the snowcovered hills of Quebec.

The Rifle Battalion is made up of companies of the Queen's Own Rifles—Col. Delamere's unit—the Victoria Rifles of Canada from Montreal, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and the Regina Rifle Regiment.

The battalion trained at Valcartier camp on the outskirts of Quebec and the departing troops were almost entirely from the Quebec area.

Just Wanted A Little Quiet For Winter Nap But Mr. Bruin Finds Banff Inhospitable

BANFF, Alta., Nov. 17 (CP)—All Bruin wanted was a little peace and quiet for his long winter's nap.

So he curled up in a comfortable ball outside the government liquor store and proceeded to doze off. Then some busybody came and chased him away. Bruin yawned and ambled up the street until he found a nice snug-looking porch, crawled under and went on with his hibernation plans.

But darn it all, some folks just won't let a fellow alone. The residents of the house decided a hibernating bear was no attraction for their place and called in the Park Warden Service.

Bruin by this time was tired of being chased from pillar to post, so to speak, when all he wanted was to sleep for a few months. So he refused to come out. The wardens insisted and backed up their demands with a smoke bomb. That brought Bruin out.

And it also brought out the fire department, the gas company, the power company, school children and half the residents of Banff. Someone who had seen the smoke turned in the fire alarm.

Thoroughly nettled, the bear retreated up a nearby tree. Next morning he had vanished without leaving his winter address.

5 Ministers At Whitehall Paid Visit By Claxton

LONDON, Nov. 19 — (CP) — Defence Minister Brooke Claxton of Canada today visited five government ministers at Whitehall, including Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Lord Ismay, Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations.

Tonight he planned to attend a special reception at the Grosvenor House Hotel for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh who have just returned from a tour of Canada.

Claxton arrived during the weekend and will go to Rotterdam Tuesday to meet contingents of the Canadian 27th Brigade Group. He will also go to Bonn, and Hanover, Germany, where advance forces of the brigade are stationed, before flying to Rome for meetings of the North Atlantic Treaty Council starting Saturday.

Claxton told a morning press conference that the 27th Brigade will use British-made Centurion tanks because they are "available" and because the Canadians will be integrated with British forces.

Claxton reviewed the progress of Canadian defence arrangements for the benefit of British correspondents. He said that in the 12 months after Korea, Canadian armed forces had been increased by 75 per cent.

Referring to the high cost of defence forces, Claxton estimated it costs $2,300 a year to maintain a Canadian soldier compared with about $600 for a continental soldier.

He said he hopes ultimately for an annual aircrew output from Canada of more than 3,000 a year, about 1,900 of whom would be Canadian and the rest Europeans trained in Canada.

Most Wheat In Alberta Still On Farm

Growers Clamoring For Cash Aid From Federal Gov't

EDMONTON, Nov. 19. (CP) — More than $450,000,000 worth of wheat, oats and barley is estimated to be lying under snow in Alberta and Saskatchewan, waiting until spring to be harvested.

Most of it eventually will be salvaged, but its value after a winter in the open is a question mark.

For a second straight year a late growing season and early winter have combined with marketing and transportation problems to frustrate the farmer's hopes for a bulging crop of top-quality grain, safely harvested and sold before winter.

As it is, nearly three-quarters of the prairie wheat crop still is on the farms—either unharvested, or threshed and in makeshift storage.

Without Cash

And the farmers are without the cash they customarily receive in the fall when they deliver their grain to the elevators. Those with threshed grain are unable to get rid of it because most elevators are clogged.

Farm organizations are clamoring for financial advances from the federal government to see the farmers through the winter. Business men are worried, too, because the entire western economy is slowed when the farmer's purchasing power drops.

Alberta, particularly its southern areas, has been hit hardest. Not only did early frost and snow cut the expected wheat yield by 19,000,000 bushels—slicing farm income by as much as $35,000,000—but the quality of the balance when the most recent snow just about finished the year's harvest work.

Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan has placed at $200,000,000 the value of wheat alone buried under snow in that province. Manitoba has been relatively fortunate, with more than 85 per cent of its grain crop threshed and only $8,000,000 worth of grain under snow.

Three Killed In Hotel Fire

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 (AP)—Fire swept a South Chicago residential hotel in 22 degree temperature early Sunday, killing three persons, injuring nine and leaving many homeless.

The spectacular blaze forced five residents to jump from top-floor windows of the four-storey Norwood Hotel. All were injured. The bodies of two men and a woman were found in their rooms in the south wing which was most severely damaged.

One hero of the fire was a British evangelist, the Rev. Leonard Ravenhill, 44, of Oldham, England, who rescued a 74-year-old fellow mission worker, Thomas Haire of Lisburn, Ireland. He dropped the semi-conscious Haire from a fourth floor window, then jumped, himself.

Cause of the fire which destroyed the possessions of many of the 213 persons registered in the hotel was not determined imediately.

New Interceptor Fleet Built By US Air Force

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP). —The United States Air Force is beginning to build toward a new interceptor fleet in which all fighter planes instead of only a few will have electronic eyes for hunting down enemy bombers in any kind of weather, day or night.

Discussing the trend toward the "all-weather" fighter force, one official commented today that it didn't seem to make sense to have interceptor planes which can work only in daylight and in good visual conditions.

Back of his comment was the fact that the best conditions for a modern bomber force, equipped with radar bomb sight, is in the blanketing protection of darkness and clouds.

The move toward a complete all-weather force started some time ago, but now is being accelerated in the USAF's new aircraft procurement program. Quantities of all-weather fighters are on order to add to planes already delivered.

Japanese Freighter Sinks In Pacific

TOKYO, Nov. 19—(AP)—The 6,669-ton Japanese freighter Kinugasa Maru, in trouble 10 days and abandoned by its crew, today sank in the mid-Pacific.

Maritime safety headquarters announced a report of the sinking was radioed by the patrol boat Daio, which had been standing by the derelict 1,000 miles east of Japan.

Safety headquarters said it believed the 42-man crew of the Kinugasa Maru was aboard the freighter Kamikawa Maru, which was accompanying her on a voyage from Vancouver.

The freighter, with a cargo of iron ore, sprang a leak Nov. 9. Heavy weather reopened the leak after it had been patched up and the Kamikawa Maru rushed to her aid.

Pet Gum-Chewing Deer Has Disappeared County Fears Bambi Victim Of Foul Play

WEST WILLINGTON, Conn., Nov. 19—(AP)—Bambi, a gum-chewing deer, has disappeared, apparently the victim of foul play, and the whole community is up in arms.

Bambi has been a member of the Earl Woodworth family for 17 months, ever since he was found in the woods a few hours after his birth.

He grew to be a 140-pound buck, slept in the Woodworth barn, played with the Woodworth dogs and three children, accompanied the Woodworths in their car.

He chewed gum like a nervous stenographer.

Yesterday, Bambi was gone—with a trail of blood leading from the barn to a road 200 feet away. The earth was roughed up as though Bambi had put up a fight.

Woodworth has offered a reward.

"We never thought anybody could be so low. They've broken my children's hearts."

Eden Opens Debate On Foreign Policy

LONDON, Nov. 19 (CP)—Foreign Minister Anthony Eden opened a full-dress foreign policy debate in the Commons today with a renewed offer to talk peace with Russia.

Eden said he remains ready to enter big power talks aimed at solving specific problems that are dividing the world.

"There now is virtually no diplomatic contact between East and West," he said.

The cardinal issue in international afairs now is "What are we going to do about it?" Eden expressed the view that Soviet rejection in Paris of the West's disarmament plan indicated Russian imperviousness to any shade of meaning except their own.

"I hope I was mistaken, but there did not appear to be a chink open anywhere, anyone prepared to listen and accept an appeal from others," he said, adding that an impasse like that between the East and West "has rarely existed in history before."

"Can the Kremlin regard the Atlantic Pact as aggressive in intention?" he asked. "Can anyone believe that countries like Denmark or Norway or Canada can liance designed for aggression?"

Eden said Yugoslavia had put forward a resolution in the UN asking the Soviet Union and its satellites to re-establish normal relations with Belgrade. He said if the Russians would agree to this, "by that one move they could reduce tension in Europe and the world."

Other points concerning Britain's foreign policy touched on by Eden:

Atlantic Pact: He hoped its operation would develop for "our betterment in every sphere" and promised to support development of a European community within "the constantly growing Atlantic community."

Italy: Britain would work for admission of Italy into the UN.

Germany: Germany should be more fully associated with the European community and Britain should transfer her repsonsibilities in Germany to the Germans themselves.

Korea: Britain has insisted that an agreement on armistice terms should precede the end of hostilities, lest the vital questions of arrangements for supervision and for exchange of war prisoners be left unsettled for an indefinite time.

Find Doctor Dead With Needle In Leg

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 (CP)—A man tentatively identified as Dr. Albert Glover, 55, formerly of Kingston, was found dead in his furnished room here Sunday night.

Police described the death as suicide and said the man was found with a hypodermic needle stuck in his leg.

They added that papers found in the room identified him as a native of Kingston who came to the United States in July, 1949.

A message instructed police to notify his uncle, Dr. W. R. Glover, a dentist, of Kingston, police said.

The hypodermic needle, containing a quantity of yellow fluid, had apparently been inserted into Glover's ankle. Part of its contents had been injected into the blood stream, police said.

An air rescue squadron was poised at Treviso Field in northeastern Italy and officials hoped to have a sizeable food-drop under way today if the weather permitted.

The squadron possibly will include British and American planes.

All Italy was opening its homes and pocketbooks to aid the flood victims. More than 1,000,000,000 lire ($1,600,000) has been subscribed in the last three days.

Captured Crooks Provincial Police

TORONTO, Nov. 19 — (CP) — Suburban Forest Hill police heard of a "hold-up" Friday, captured the "bandits"—and found they were three Ontario Provincial Police raiding a suspected bookmaker.

The story came out today when Police Chief Gordon Fraser of Forest Hill complained of methods used by provincials in gambling raids.

Forest Hill police would make no official statement but neighbors in the area told this story:

A man dressed as a messenger knocked on the door of a home then forced his way in. He was accompanied by two other men, one with a crowbar, the other with a sledgehammer.

A telephone lineman saw the incident and reported a hold-up. Forest Hill and York Township police were sent in cruiser cars. They rushed into the house, guns drawn, to discover the "burglars" were provincial police.

Because of the confusion, provincial police abandoned their search of the house for evidence of bookmaking.

All day Friday, Saturday and Sunday they tramped through the heavy brush in the district between Irondale and Furnace Falls, both on the CNR line that runs south of Minden.

Hampered In Search

The men were hampered in their search of Thursday by lack of snow on the hills. They could find no tracks. Early Friday morning, about an inch of snow fell, and in Friday's search, they again found no tracks of the missing man.

World Food Parley Under Way In Rome

ROME, Nov. 19 (AP)—Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi opened the sixth world conference of the United Nation Food and Agricultural Organization today, dedicating it to the creation of men "free from want and thus free from the passions of hate."

FAO thus is "one of the most powerful instruments in the world today for peace," De Gasperi said.

The flags of 65 countries flew overhead as the three-week session opened. The star of Communism was on only one of them—the flag of anti-Cominform Yugoslavia.

De Gasperi formally presented to the organization its new two-building world headquarters here, expanded from the marble palace Mussolini built as his ministry of African colonies.

Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner heads Canada's delegation at the conference.

Warm Reception In Korea For Cabinet Man

By WILLIAM BOSS

WEST SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 19 —(CP)—Fisheries Minister Mayhew got a warm reception on the Korean front Saturday—in fact, a mighty hot one.

He came under enemy shellfire several times. One cluster landed 25 yards away. When he goes back to Canada after a two-day visit to Canadian troops he'll carry a shrapnel splinter picked up by Brig. J. M. Rockingham, the Canadian commander.

Officers commented on the 71-year-old minister's cool manner under fire.

Mayhew arrived from Japan Saturday morning and had just finished lunch when the first shells landed.

"What? Only four?" he asked. "Surely they could give me a 21-gun salute!"

Accept Invitation

Before the day was out, they did.

Brig. Rockingham took Mayhew on a tour of the Canadian front. It included a visit to an observation post where the minister watched a duel between enemy guns and a mortar taken on by Commonwealth artillery.

A spotting aircraft reported one gun knocked out and two silenced temporarily while Mayhew was there.

At one point Mayhew, who showed keen eyesight and ability to judge distance, spotted a flash in the enemy lines. Before Brig. Rockingham—who hadn't seen it—could answer, the Princess Patricias had artillery beamed on it.

Mayhew's comments on the position of shell bursts in relation to the flash he saw were echoed took a severe beating. As of two weeks ago, the average grade of Alberta wheat was down to grade IV.

R. E. English, statistician of the Alberta Department of Agriculture, estimates at $262,000,000 the value of wheat, oats and barley still in the fields unharvested seconds later by corrections sent back to the Patricia's guns.

The enemy mortar he had spotted was finally silenced.

By the time he got to brigade headquarters, the battle barometer had risen sharply and shells were pouring in thick and fast—so fast that Brig. Rockingham suggested the minister stay at the brigade's rear headquarters.

Praised By Troops

Troops who had never before heard of Mayhew had unstinted praise for the mild-mannered minister's coolness.

"He's the first man I ever saw take the prone position under shellfire with a drink in his hand and never spill a drop," chuckled Capt. Geoffrey Cory of Vancouver. "He still had it when he got into the staff car eight shells later and drained it before he left."

Mayhew was accompanied on his visit here by Edward T. Applewhaite of Nelson, BC, Liberal MP for Skena. They travelled to Japan to negotiate a fisheries treaty.

Saturday's intensified gunfire was accompanied by hitherto-unknown Communist cheekiness in use of artillery. The Chinese guns are nearly 2,000 yards from the front, well dug in and camouflaged to make them difficult to spot, let alone engage.

They succeeded in making it almost as hot on the UN side of the front as UN artillery, mortars and air combined keep it on the Red side.

Later, Mayhew said he was to have attended a regimental mess dinner of the Royal 22nd Regiment in the forward positions but had to send his regrets when he was ordered back.

Frost Government Standing On Its Record—Goodfellow

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 19 — (ENS) — Northumberland Conservatives turned out in large numbers on Saturday night to hear an address by Attorney-General Dana Porter and one by Welfare Minister Hon. William A. Goodfellow in the Masonic Temple here.

Ralph J. Locke, president of the Campbellford Progressive Conservative Association, was chairman for the evening, and introduced Mr. Goodfellow, who in turn, introduced the Hon. Dana Porter.

Mr. Goodfellow spoke in favor of the present free enterprise system, under which we must look after only those people who are unable to look after themselves. His government, he said, had done a good job of this during the past few years, and pointed out the introduction of old-age pensions without the means test as an example.

He said he had received few criticisms from the people of Northumberland county, and regarded this as a sign that the people are satisfied with the present government. He said his aim was to do things for people and municipalities that they could not do for themselves, and that his government were making no rash promises, but were standing on their past record of achievements.

Lots of Frost

Speaking of the cold weather outside, Mr. Goodfellow said he wished the election could have been called in milder weather, but was sure of one thing: "We are going to have lots of 'Frost' after November 22."

Following his usual practise of refusing to mention his opposition in any way, the welfare minister did clear up many points in answer to charges levelled against him by the Liberals, especially in local circles.

Speaking of the School Area Bylaw recently put into effect in east Northumberland, Mr. Goodfellow said that certain individuals had brought much adverse publicity to Campbellford in the unfounded claims they had made regarding it. He said he would not attempt, and never has attempted, to kill any bylaw of any municipality or county council because these bodies knew best their own requirements and needs and he would not interfere with their legislation.

Grants Lower Taxes

"Queen's Park tries to make it possible for municipalites to do a better job for themselves through grants," he said. These grants, he contended, helped reduce local taxes and assisted in giving municipalities better hospitals, schools and other institutions that they could not hope to provide on their own. "My own four daughters were educated in Campbellford High School, and I would certainly not do anything to injure this town through a school area bylaw," said the minister.

Speaking of highways, he said that over $1,000,000 had been spent on Highway 30 since he took office.

"Don't forget," said Mr. Goodfellow, "all hospital and free insurance schemes cost money, and if your present government considered such plans feasible, they would have been instituted long ago." Ontario has no sales tax such as other provinces had, he said. He told also of the highways of the province, and the excellent repair in which they were kept. In contrast, he told of the highways of Manitoba, which he had recently travelled over, and said that the highways of our sister province were sadly lacking in comparison to ours.

Grants to the town of Campbellford alone have increased from slightly over $6,000 in 1944 to more than $62,000 in 1951. Hydro has also advanced greatly under the Frost regime, he said. In 1943 only 36 per cent or 3,000 rural users had hydro, while in 1951 86 per cent or 6,600 rural consumers used hydro facilities, in Northumberland county alone. This is indicative of the entire province.

Mr. Porter in his address, let go with both barrels at the Toronto Daily Star for their handling of the present election campaign on behalf of the Liberal party. "They did the same thing with the CCF a number of years back," he said. "The whole issue, as far as the Star is concerned, is the repeal of the Charitable Gifts Act."

A number of years ago when the CCF was the opposition party, they opposed this act and the Toronto Daily Star supported them. Later when the CCF realized that the act was a good piece of legislation, after the act had been passed, the Star dropped the CCF like a hot potato."

Mr. Porter said the Frost government has improved from year to year, and that the people will decide on November 22 whether they wish to see a continuance of this progressive party or whether they want to take a chance on a number of promises made by the opposition, many of which have already been tried by other provinces and have failed.

Continued Improvement

He pledged a continuance of improvements as finances warrant, taking into consideration the needs of the people.

Mr. Porter answered opposition charges that the present government was extravagant in their spending, by saying that the cost of government has increased in line with just about everything else in the province. Materials are higher in cost, and there is a greatly increased population during the past eight years.

The present government now pays about $100,000,000 per year in grants to municipalities, and this amount was just about the size of the entire budget in 1942. Half of this amount, $50,000,000, went for education grants.

Major Earl Drope of Harwood thanked the speaker, and said that Premier Leslie Frost was a man of great ability. He predicted a large majority for Mr. Goodfellow when the votes are counted on November 22.

Timber Rights Are Killing Ontario Forests—Thomson

By W. W. REID

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 19 — (ENS)—Walter C. Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, addressed a large crowd in Edgewater Park Pavilion Saturday afternoon, when he appeared here with the Liberal candidate for Northumberland, Charles E. Johnston of Cobourg.

Mr. Thomson was introduced by Dr. F. G. Robertson, who endorsed Mr. Thomson's leadership and told a little of the speaker's background.

"Coming to Campbellford is just coming home," said Mr. Thomson. He prophesied the November 22 election to be "one of the most shattering ones to the opposition's claims and promises."

The speaker had travelled more than 175,000 miles in attending about 150 meetings during the past two months. He has spoken in every riding in the province and has met more than a quarter of a million people. He appeared quite confident of victory.

Answering a number of charges and accusations levelled against him by the opposition, Mr. Thomson said: "They say I talk too much, and that I have my picture in the paper too often." He answered this by saying: "You have to keep yourself in the public eye if you want to sell yourself or your product to the people." He said his product in this case was Liberalism and he was certainly going all out to sell it.

Explains Planks

Mr. Thomson explained a number of the planks in his political platform including the hospital plan, the 1c a quart milk subsidy to farmers, the reduction of the present gasoline tax by 3c a gallon, tax free gasoline to farmers, better housing conditions and better facilities for the aged.

"There is a new hope for the people of this province through these changes—we will marshal the resources of the province to aid the people of the province," he said.

Mr. Thomson said the cost of social security in the province would be carried in part by the natural resources. He told of the spending of the Frost government, which he said was the "most extravagant in history.' He blasted the present government for the way the forests of the province are being destroyed through timber rights.

He said there was more timber being cut now than in 1943 and that timber companies were realizing much higher profits, about 474 per cent more. Stumpage on crown lands has remained the same since 1943 when the province made $3,000,000 out of its forests.

Made No Money

This year the province has made no money out of the forests, and a great deal of timber has been destroyed as well. Much of this could have been turned into lumber to relieve the housing shortage, he claimed. He predicted his government would realize an additional $15,000,000 annually from the forest resources of the province.

The speaker claimed he could reduce taxes and still carry on his social security program. He claimed people were overtaxed to the tune of $80,000,000 during the past eight years, and that the present government would have a surplus of $32,000,000 and possibly $50,000,000 by next spring.

He also said it was ridiculous for the Frost government to have 19 cabinet ministers, while Winston Churchill requires only 16 to run his cabinet, with 10 times the population. "We will do away with a lot of these ministers and their padded expense accounts and will have that extra money to help with the social security program," he said.

"The real election issue is social security and the reform party is the Liberal party," said Mr. Thomson. He also spoke regarding the building of new rural schools and providing small cottages for the aged, instead of putting these people into one large institution. The present institutions could be used as hospitals, he claimed.

William A. Hogle, president of the Northumberland Liberal Association thanked Mr. Thomson for his talk, and said that with Mr. Thomson as their leader, the Liberals would surely march to victory on November 22.

Mr. Hogle also introduced the Liberal candidate in the coming election, Charles Johnston of Cobourg.

Mr. Johnston said he was proud to be part of Liberalism, and that one of the first things he would do when he got to Queen's Park would be to set up an enquiry board to investigate the workings of the Municipal Board. He said the board had too much power and made slaves of the people to Queen's Park. The board, he claimed, dictated legislation to the municipalities and played petty politics. It was also unfair in its distribution of municipal grants.

The speaker endorsed Mr. Thomson's proposed hospital plan and said that the Liberals had been responsible for all the progress made in social security during the past number of years. The Liberals pioneered in old age pensions and could take credit for the present system, he said. Speaking of his party's program in relation to the farmer, Mr. Johnston said: "The farmers are being sold down the river by the Torys and the packing houses. It is time for a change—and we will make farming a profitable enterprize."

Forest Dennis, president of the Campbellford Liberal Association, thanked Mr. Johnston and told a little of his background.

Ontario Hydro's Debt

The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission seems to be in sound financial condition. Last year in the fourteen months ending December 31, 1950, it had a surplus of revenue over expenses in its three areas of operation (Southern Ontario, Thunder Bay and Northern Ontario) of $2,207,194. Actually the surplus in Southern Ontario and Thunder Bay amounted to $3,457,525, all but $93,061 of which was repaid to the municipalities, but the Northern Ontario system had a deficit of $1,250,331.

* * *

There is one startling figure which emerges from the Hydro Commission's annual report (for 1950) which might cause concern. Interest on its debts amounted to more than 25 cents of every dollar the Commission took in. In other words, a quarter of the total revenue goes to pay interest on its borrowings. This is more than the cost of maintenance and operation, more than the cost of power which the Commission buys outside its own resources. This large sum does not include provision for the sinking fund, depreciation, or provision for the frequency standardization.

* * *

In dollar totals the figures for the three wings of the system are: interest on the funded debt and provincial advances, for the fourteen months; $19,611,065; other interest charges (less interest earned on investments), $5,338,568. This makes total interest charges of $24,949,633. The cost of operation, including salaries, wages, regional and head office expenses during the same period was $25,069,702. In other words it is costing almost as much to float the Commission's debts as it costs to produce the power and administer the system.

* * *

Look at this in another way. Despite the huge size of Canada's National Debt, bearing interest charges which amounted last year to $439,816,334, the interest was 18 per cent of the national revenue (as estimated in the Budget). The interest charges on Hydro's debts were more than 25 per cent. of its revenue. Is a disproportionate amount of the price of Hydro power paid by households and factories gobbled up in interest charges? Of course, the huge expansion of Hydro, needed and unavoidable, cannot be made without incurring large capital outlays for which money has to be provided and interest charges thereon paid.

Peron Secures His Regime

Mr. Juan Peron, president, dictator, director and mouthpiece of Argentina, has been re-affirmed for another six years. His election was inevitable, and preordained by his own decrees and his police against the opposition. He was elected by a 2-to-1 majority. His wife, former night-club star, now deathly ill, helped his vote in her choked, hospital broadcasts.

There are two amazements. The first is that an American country can still be duped into fascism. The second is that the opposition to the regime can still be formidable. More than 2,100,000 votes were polled for the Radical Ricardo Balbin. We look forward now to the speedy 'liquidation' of M. Balbin.

That the Peron Argentina government exists and carries on is proof that western democracies' fences are not in good order.

Old Baby Bonus

Canada was the first country in the civilized world to institute a baby bonus, otherwise known as the family allowance. Hitler, anxious for the Herrenvolk, subsidized human fertility but this did not have the calm method of the Canadian enactment.

Several remarkable facts attended the gestation of the baby bonus. It was conceived and brought to life in the midst of a very heavy war when, in theory, all hearts and efforts were turned to winning the war and not to the encouragement of procreation. It was started under the Prime Ministry of a bachelor—the late Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, O.M.

Most remarkable in this country dedicated to free enterprise—where the enterprise of child-rearing is nominally the first and greatest private prerogative—is the general acceptance of the monthly Governmental cheque. True, there have been criticisms of the baby bonus based on high-falutin principles, and sometimes on exasperation when a Quebecois farmer with ten children will not work as hard as he used to for as little pay in doing jobs on a Montreal magnate's estate in the Laurentians. But we have never heard of anybody rejecting the monthly cheque. Even fathers who are able to grumble that it all comes out of the income tax, deposit the money in the child's bank account.

But the most remarkable fact of all is that Canada subsidized families as long ago as 1669. Every householder having ten—ten, mind you—legitimate children received an annual payment of 300 livres, with increasingly higher amounts for larger families. A livre was originally worth a pound of silver, but in the processes of inflation it was degraded to the value of 20 cents.

So hurrah! for the family allowance, even if it comes out of your income taxes. Bachelor Mackenzie King paid his taxes for it without a whimper.

Shot To London

It will soon be a luxury to travel slowly and on the surface of this globe. Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of the British Overseas Airways Corporation, promised a New York audience last week jet transportation for airline passengers by next March. Appropriately, the vehicle for this rapid transit through the ether will be a Comet-deHavilland jet plane. If a passenger feels he cannot afford to fly through the space between New York and London or Montreal and London so expensively fast; or if the present airliner cruisers with their hostesses and hot steak dinners are beyond their purse, a new tourist-class air passage will be available by next March. The fare, one way, may be about $265.

The jet plane service will begin first between London and Cairo. Shooting through space in this way is said to be less fatiguing than mere cruiser plane travel, because the jets go at twice the speed, and there is no vibration or noise. Undoubtedly hurried and harried business folk and film stars from New York, Los Angeles, and even Montrealers and Torontonians, may find the few hours to London soothing. (The man in the midway who is shot from a gun has a quiet journey between the exit and the landing.)

But there will always be old-fashioned people who prefer to dawdle on board a ship, look at the sea and sky for five days and get a whiff of the salt air through which they are travelling. Such a cruise, luxurious as it may seem now, may become a delicious rarity; a voyage on the Queen Elizabeth will be nostalgically comparable to a sleigh-ride: healthy, fresh, cozy and memorable, and slow enough for the dear delights of an amorous moon.

Vatican Appointment: Military Manoeuvre?

A recent report from Washington indicates that among the hardest workers seeking the appointment of General Mark Clark as Ambassador to the Vatican were President Truman's military advisers. The official reason for this is said to be that the Joint Chiefs of Staff regard the Vatican as the best listening post in Europe, and would therefore like to have a high military man there. The unofficial reason, according to this version of the appointment, is that these military advisers would like to see General Clark gently eased out of the U.S. Army.

If the report is accurate, the affair has two sides. General J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, has warmly backed General Clark for the Vatican appointment. General Clark, for his part, has been quietly enthusiastic about General Collins as a successor to General Eisenhower, presumably on the assumption that the latter will become a Presidential nominee. General Hoyt Vandenberg, Air Chief of Staff, would also be delighted if the title "Ambassador" were bestowed on General Clark, since the latter charged that the Air Force had failed to support ground troops in Korea.

Although Generals Clark and Collins were classmates at West Point, it is said to be common service knowledge that they have been rivals for years. They were about even in position at the beginning of the Second World War, but General Clark became better known to the public because of his service in the Italian campaign. Few heard of General Collins until he led the capture of Cherbourg; he dropped out of the limelight again after the war—but he returned to become Deputy Chief of Staff, from which post he was promoted to Chief of Staff. He is thus superior to General Clark who is commander of the Army field forces. The two men, it is said, have different ideas about how the Army should be run.

The report could be true. There's nothing new about individual rivalry in armed services. It now appears, however, that the generals may be compelled to learn how to get along together in the present posts, for Senator Tom Connally of Texas has declared he will not allow the Vatican appointment to get out of his committee, which would mean no Ambassador, for the present at least.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Straw can now be processed to make building board. So that little pig who had the unfortunate encounter with the wolf can try again, and perhaps hope for success.

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

EVERYBODY knows a snob, and the musical snob is just as tiresome as the social variety. In order to be "in the swim" he will affect a great interest in the works of some obscure Italian composer of the seventeenth century, while airily dismissing Beethoven as "corny". A few weeks later, and he will have found some new bogus enthusiasm. A good way of enhancing one's prestige as a m[illegible] without going to the trouble of study is to interlard one's criticisms of music with terms taken from other arts. Words such as chiaroscuro, palette, etc., are always effective, though musicians are shier of transferring terms from other arts than critics of painting. Here, for instance is a passage taken at random from a reputable book on Canadian painting: "The harmonies which she creates have the mellow and nostalgic sweetness of a tune remembered from childhood". Expressions such as colour orchestration and counterpoint are almost commonplace as applied to paintings.

FORTUNATELY we have few musical snobs here, but the inverted musical snob is very common. I refer to the type of people that glory in their Philistinism. In their reaction against artistic snobbery they have gone to the opposite extreme. They are completely ignorant of the fact that they are snobs at heart, and this gives them an assurance that is hard to undermine.

LAST week I was talking of the value of miniature scores to students, especially when listening to recordings and going to concerts. The publishers of the Penguin series of books, encouraged by the growing popularity of music that is not usually classified as "popular", has started a series of miniature scores of some of the better-known works of the orchestral repertoire. Designed to reach a larger public than ever before, these scores contain one important innovation: the parts of the transposing instruments are written exactly as they sound. Anybody who has ever tried his hand at reading an orchestral score will realize that the bugbear of the whole business is the transposing instruments. Due to some historical accident the custom has evolved whereby certain instruments have their parts written in different keys. This is, roughly speaking, how it started. In the case of the horn, for instance, before valves were invented, it was impossible to play a full chromatic scale, many of the notes, especially in the lower register, being missing altogether, and some of them only obtainable by inserting the fist in the bell of the instrument which gave quite a different and muffled tone to the notes concerned. It was necessary to build horns of various sizes according to the frequency of the good notes to be obtained. It meant in fact that the horn part was always written in the key of C. Later on extra lengths of tubing, called crooks, could be connected with the instrument, so that the key of the instrument could be changed to suit the music. Thus in a symphony or overture in D horns in D would be specified. The horn player would insert the D crook, and when playing C from his part the actual result would be D, one whole tone higher. The other notes were all raised too, D becoming E, E becoming F sharp, and so on. Nowadays, with valves, the horn in F is almost universally used. This means that C in the horn part actually sounds F, a perfect fifth below, and so on. The full score gives all the instruments, but usually the parts of the transposing instruments are given in their fictitious keys. This is a convenience to the fellow who copies out the parts for each player, who has only to write out the parts as he sees them, but it makes the full score something of a Chinese puzzle. Old customs die hard, and some who have already mastered the difficult art of reading full scores as they are usually printed today may regret the Penguin innovation, but I personally feel it is a step in the right direction of making great music accessible to a wider public. Incidentally the Penguin people are not the first in the field. The Russian composer Prokofief has for several years been writing the actual sounds in his scores, with one exception—owing to its deep compass the notes of the double bass are written an octave higher than the actual sounds in order to avoid a multiplicity of leger lines.

LAST Wednesday evening I listened to part of La Boheme broadcast by the CBC. Being none too familiar with this opera I listened to the music with my mind untrammelled by any considerations of the drama apart from a rather vague impression of the carefree life of artists in a Parisian garret tempered by tuberculosis (a modish way of disposing of operatic heroines on the stage). The music considered by itself seemed to be very thin stuff, though effectively enough written for the voice. I admit that I have never fallen for Puccini's style—it reminds me of cheap scent, and his melodies, however graceful in a languishing way, are, to me, completely spineless. My attention wandering, I grasped one of those convenient little books that give one the synopsis of the action of various operas, together with musical extracts, and using my mind's eye to conjure up the dramatic scene, I was instantly gripped by Puccini's unfailing [illegible]nse of the theatre; so much so, in fact, that I almost forgot the sickly taste of Puccini's chocolate-boxy style. All the same, Puccini's opera is far cry from Murger's novel, on which the opera is based. Mimi, far from being the central figure, is only one of the characters, and the Parisian atmosphere of the novel undergoes a marked Italianization in the opera.

❖ ❖ ❖

WHATEVER happened to Mimi, Rodolphe and their companions of the Left Bank, Puccini was far from dying in a garret. Coming of a poor family he achieved recognition at a comparatively early age for a composer, and his operatic successes made him extremely wealthy. He was a voluptuary at heart, and his wealth allowed him to indulge his tastes. His friends called him Monsieur Butterfly. Unlike Wagner, who sought to convey metaphysical ideas by means of his music, Puccini realized his limitations and strove to please the pleasure-loving, capricious audiences of Italian opera houses who are not afraid to boo and whistle at anything which displeases them. Not for them the churchy atmosphere of Bayreuth or the display of wealth and rank of the Met or Covent Garden, too polite to express vociferous disapproval. Italian opera, whatever its defects, is in Italy at least racy, of the soil, as popular as hockey or baseball. Puccini may not have been a great composer, but he was a great man of the theatre and knew what the public wanted. Admittedly the first performance of Madam Butterfly was a fiasco, but after a little revision it did not take long for the public to take it to its heart.

'SENTENCE—SIX MORE YEARS'

Imposts That Discourage Reading

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

THE recent demand of Mr. R. R. Knight, M.P. for Saskatoon, that the government remove the sales tax and tariff on books, has some support from the Massey Commission. In its report, the Commission said that "the federal government would do an important service to Canadian letters and to Canadian scholarship by abandoning the sales tax on books of every description." Such a tax, it agreed, "should not in a well-ordered society be applicable to books which are still, in spite of radio and films, the most important means of enlightenment."

But the commission did not recommend that the tariff on all foreign books should be removed. This measure would impose some hardship on the Canadian book publishing industry. And the Commission seems to have been persuaded that the progress of Canadian book publishing is an important condition to the development of Canadian literature.

Mr. Knight, on the other hand, seems prepared to risk possible hardship in the publishing business in return for what he believes are the best interests of the Canadian reading public—indeed, of the nation. His view is that, by cancelling taxes and tariffs on books, the government would permit the enlargement of this reading public.

There is much to be said for this view. Certainly, the price of books, whether they are published in or outside this country, is so high as to prevent many Canadians from forming or indulging in the book-reading habit. Those who can least comfortably bear the burden of the high cost of books—scholars and students to whom books are a necessity — are obliged to carry the largest share.

If, as the creation of the Royal Commission on National Development in the Arts, Letters and Sciences implied, the federal government is seriously intent on improving the cultural climate of this country, it cannot continue to discourage Canadians from buying books. In addition to a review of the restraints which the sales tax and the tariff impose on Canadian readers the government might consider a variety of reforms. A preferential postal rate for books, such as exists now in the United States and France, and is extended here to periodicals and newspapers, might be established. Moreover, the express charges on books might be lowered in order to permit their increased circulation through a large and thinly populated country.

The Canadian book publishing industry, for its part, might follow the lead of the other countries, in making available larger quantities of inexpensive, paperbound editions of its product.

Letters To The Editor

LOW POWER FROM UTILITIES

Sir, I would like to congratulate you in regard to your editorial in respect to the Utilities Commission. We are certainly not getting the power we are paying for. I have a flat water heater and for the last few months hot water has been but a memory in our house. I even went to the expense of having one of the best tanks on the market installed but with no better results. I had it tested with a voltmeter and it registered 100 volts so I agree with you, Mr. Editor, let the Utilities give us the facts or else reduce the charges.

POST OFFICE A BRIBE?

Sir: Now that Peterborough is rejoicing over its new City Hall the thoughts of its citizens naturally turn next to its need for the new Post Office, now promised to the city by the government for some time. What is the reason for the delay?

A horrible suspicion arises that the fulfillment of the promise is being held back to furnish a reason for the election of a man to add to the present government's numbers when the time comes. One would like to be assured that this suspicion has no foundation in fact and would be quite unworthy of the present government,—and further has no place in the mind of the prospective candidate whoever he may be. One can imagine that likely candidate coming forward and saying: "Only elect me and the new Post Office will be built tomorrow". What has the present member to say about this whole matter?

Whatever be our political creed no true citizen would like to think of the new Post Office coming to the city by way of a bribe.

However any such horrible suspicion could be speedily dispelled by the government getting busy at once and giving to Peterborough what it deserves with its growing population and growing importance as one of Canada's very assured industrial cities.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

O God, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee, my flesh longeth for thee in a dry and thirsty power and thy glory, so as I have seen thee in the sanctuary. Because thy lovingkindness is better than life, my lips shall praise thee . . .

My soul shall be satisfied as with marrow and fatness; and my mouth shall praise thee with joyful lips. (Ps. 63: 1-4, 5.)

Blessed is the man whom thou choosest, and causest to approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy courts: we shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of they holy temple. (Ps. 65: 4.)

For we know that if our earthy house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For in this we groan; earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven . . .

Now he that hath wrought us for the self-same thing is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit. Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord . . . We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord. (II Cor. 5: 1, 2, 5, 6, 8.)

Yo Ho Ho And A Gallon Of Wine!

(Montreal Star)

In spite of the mourning of latter-day pessimists who will have it that romance and colour have vanished from the sea and the seaman's calling, now and then something turns up in cold print that comforts us with assurance to the contrary. For instance, from that factual newspaper The Time of London we winnow what we believe to be a little-known fact: admirals of the British navy are, under statutory provisions, entitled to 1,200 gallons of duty-free wine a year. And that the admirals, or some of them (for the reputation of British admirals as a class, we hope a good many of them) are aware of their prerogative is borne out by the fact that their "total consumption of wine involves about £25,000 a year."

This arresting information came out at a meeting of the Public Accounts Committee of Parliament and apparently startled one hon. member who surmised that £25,000 duty must represent "a terrible lot of wine" which was met by the explanation that there are a lot of admirals.

What these doughty sea dogs do with all this wine did not come out. They may divide it up for the benefit of the navy; entertain guests or settle down to deal with it solo; which would work out at about three and a half gallons, or say roughly 15 or 20 bottles per day per admiral. Billy Bones at the "Admiral Benbow" boasted no such two-fisted thirst as this, although his tipple was rum.

For the preservation of these fine old naval traditions we should be very grateful were we an admiral or likely to become one. True, we doubt that any British admiral, living or dead, ever got through that amount of wine every day unaided. But it must be an inspiring and sustaining thought that one of the rewards for being an admiral is enough wine to sail your ship on.

Just trying to make conversation with an old-timer at a filling station out in an arid portion of the West, a tourist commented: "Looks like rain."

"I sure hope so," sighed the old-timer. "Not for myself," he hastened to explain, "but for my boy here. I've seen rain."

"In view of the splendid example set by Cabinet Ministers this week I'd like you to knock my salary in 'arf."

Jolliffe Sets Precedent By Appearing On TV Show

By The Canadian Press

The Ontario general election campaign is in its final lap in preparation for the voting Thursday. Premier Frost, campaigning for re-election for his Progressive Conservative administration, speaks today in his hometown of Lindsay and on a CBC Ontario network, campaigns in Toronto Tuesday and returns to Lindsay Wednesday, a day on which he has scheduled no speech.

Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, will wind up his campaign in his home riding of Ontario, in and around industrial Oshawa. He makes a province-wide broadcast tonight.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, who Sunday night set a Canadian political precedent by appearing on television with a campaign address over a Detroit station, speaks in Windsor today and makes a broadcast over a CBC Ontario network. Tuesday he campaigns in the Toronto district and Wednesday in Kitchener.

Premier Frost told a gathering in the Ottawa valley town of Pembroke Saturday night that explorations are being carried out for an iron ore development in Renfrew county. It would be concerned mainly with marginal ore, similar to the magnetite being developed at Marmora north of Belleville, and was made possible partly by the availability of Ottawa river hydro-electric power.

Try To Restore Forests

The Premier also said his government is working to restore the great pine forests which once covered the upper Ottawa valley.

He suggested that The Toronto Star prove its good faith toward the Charitable Gifts Act by distributing its capital stock among charities. He said it has option under the 1949 Act, which provides that charitable foundations which operate businesses must dispose of 90 per cent of the capital stock in the business by 1956.

The newspaper had campaigned against the Act during the Leeds provincial by-election in 1949 but now had reversed itself and said the Act should not be repealed but only amended.

Mr. Thomson promised in Peterborough that, if elected he will establish a civil service commossion that will stabilize the jobs of civil servants and prevent them from becoming what he called "a plaything of political whims."

Mr. Thomson also said at Newcastle he cannot see how the Progressive Conservatives can expect to form a government after Thursday. He predicted that Premier Frost will not have a clear majority.

"I don't care what the Gallup poll says, because it isn't collected on the basis of individual ridings. This election is going to be decided by the votes of the people who haven't expressed themselves to the pollsters."

Panel Discussion

Mr. Jolliffe's television appearance was on Detroit's station WWJ-TV, which has a radius of about 60 miles and claims 10,000 families as viewers in neighboring Windsor as well as others in surrounding sections of Western Ontario. He conducted a 15-minute panel discussion of his party's 12-point program with four Western Ontario CCF candidates—Gordon Ellis, William Riggs, Earl Watson and Arthur Last.

He promised that the CCF, if elected, will co-operate with the federal government for an early start on the St. Lawrence seaway and power project. He said it will grant a special municipal subsidy, introduce a provincial hospital insurance plan, set up an anti-racketeering board and establish a housing corporation.

He also pledged the party, if it wins power, to launching a scholarship plan for 3,000 would-be university students and to granting cost-of-living increases in old age and workmen's compensation pensions and in mothers' allowances.

PETERBOROUGH SCHOOLS CAPTURE TWO COSSA RUGBY TITLES

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor

Not only is first place in their OHA senior "B" group at stake tonight when Petes and Eagles clash here, but a lot of prestige is also at stake. It's gall and wormwood for either local club to be trailing the other—they don't take kindly to it at all. You can bet your bottom dollar (worth maybe 60 cents today) that the Ellis' outfit and the Vitarelli pack will stage a sizzling scrap, pulling no punches in this one. More than 1700 saw that redhot tilt Friday when Petes eked out a 5-4 verdict, and they'll be back, with their friends, to see what gives in the game tonight at Civic Arena. These Petes-Eagles' clashes are puck classics for hot action and close finishes. Plus plenty of bumps and bruises.

* * * * * *

National sport in Japan—if you'll podden us skipping lightly from Civic to Tokyo—is Sumo, a type of wrestling. Honored indeed are the rice-bloated characters who hold wrestling titles in the Orient. Even a Sumo champ's in-laws are subject to kowtows as they stroll about on the prowl for a yen. Well, four of the best, and beefiest, Sumo aces of Japan show here tomorrow night in an elimination semi-final of the pro mat card. In the area along the Rue Brock. Kimona-clad and top-knotted performers bearing the distinguished names of Maedayama, Yakatayama, Fujitayama and Oneumi. We'll spell em, but you'll have to do your own pronouncing.

* * * * * *

Maybe It's Wiki-Waki

The 300-pounders (one goes 365) warm up by stamping on the mat in what is caled "shiko". They rinse out their mouths and wipe off the bodies with paper, then sprinkle purifying salt in the ring. (Wouldn't Hi Lee love to have some salt handy in his bouts?) Then they salute each other and try to stare down rivals a moment in what is termed "chirichozu" or something. Maybe it's "shikiri"—anyway, we're sure it's not "hari kari" or "geisha foo". Then the fight starts and they grab opponent's loin cloth and push and heave in an effort to down the other. First winner goes into the semi-final, and the final follows, in short bouts. Main go of course has Zorra vs. Lou Newman, while prelim features at Flanagan and a guy named Mayslack. These four are not Japs, and they prefer mayhem to Sumo.

Bev Goulding's senior PCVS gridders came through in handsome fashion here Saturday to earn the COSSA senior "A" title over Stamford. Did it in convincing 22-1 manner against bigger and rougher opposition. A hefty, noisy crowd on a cold late autumn day, and a home victory, made it a sweet football finish for this semester. Local line and backfield turned in a solid performance—and Alex Londry can take some credit for teaching a lot of the boys grid fundamentals as juniors, too. Stamford tried to open it up late but Bob Craw knocked down four forward flips and intercepted another. Murray Grafstein, Warren Brown and Bryon Young shone throughout, and the whole team played like champs. Our congrats to them.

Another COSSA Title Here

Ditto with St. Peter's, who won their first COSSA title in the junior "B" final on the same field Saturday. Edged out Notre Dame of Welland 6-5 to maintain their unbroken string of wins for the year. Apart from nifty hoofing by Sandy Cox, the peninsula boys didn't show too much, and the score for Johnny Lynch's lads might well have been higher. SPS didn't play their best till the second half, but then they left no doubt with their large following the rest of the route. It was tied till well out in the fourth when a single wrapped up the contest. All the boys rate plenty of credit. These juniors have come a long way in the past two seasons, and can now rest on their laurels.

* * * * * *

Junior "B" Oddfellows, who are off to Belleville—and open here Friday—dropped a 7-4 tilt in Kingston on Saturday. First fray of the schedule and 'twas a tidy tussle, fast, clean and close. The IOOF-ers were a bit lost at first on the whopping large surface but later outplayed Vics, and they should beat 'em here. Promises to be a keen group race again. Johnny Godfrey's crew showed a lot of early-season class and might well be the team to beat ere it's over in late winter and early spring. Kingston has a grand Memorial Centre, one costing $625,000, with the federal government going for half of it through an agricultural grant. Seats 3,400 with 1,500 standing in addition, swell appointments, and larger ice surface than Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

St. Peter's High Squad Defeat Welland 6-5 For First Junior Title

By DON GRANT

St. Peter's High School made Ontario and Peterborough high school history Saturday afternoon when in Morrow Park its junior "B" football team defeated Notre Dame High of Welland 6-5 for the first Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association's junior "B" championship. Not only was it the first championship in that grouping which was formed officially this year, but it was also the first COSSA championship for St. Peter's.

Undefeated in six games this year in junior "B" play and having an average of less than two points a game scored upon them, the Saints proved that number 13 is not unlucky for everyone. For it was their 13th straight win in the 1950 and 1951 seasons.

PLUNGER DICK FOLEY

The Niagara peninsula team did not deserve to lose by such a close score. They were far below the calibre of the junior Saints but the Notre Dame line came through in the clutches and were rewarded when star punter Sandy Cox kicked the ball out of the danger zone.

Good Punting

In fact his punting kept Notre Dame in the game for the first half and even accounted largely for the touchdown that they did score. His long, low kicks, just over the heads of the St. Peter's players, were all that Welland had.

Meanwhile, the Saints, after the two-week layoff, waiting for the COSSA final, seemed rusty in their plunging, kicking and passing departments for the first half. Several times Dick Foley and Bob O'Rourke broke loose for long gains but the drives fell short.

Then at half-time Coach John Lynch took the Saints into the sheds at the end of the field. Whatever he said there or whatever he did won the game, for a vastly different team took to the field for the second half. And Notre Dame seemed to realize it.

The line's blocking and tackling which had been the weak point in the first half, tightened. Paul Byrne, Frank Gooley, Paul J. Hickson, Simmons and Hull, the centre of the line, began to grind into the Notre Dame line and St. Peter's were in charge.

Backfield Clicks

While the line was undergoing the change, the backfield also changed. Frank McGillen's punts, probably due to more time with the line now holding, sent Notre Dame back further and further. The plungers, Dick Foley, Murray Byrne, Bob O'Rourke, immediately took advantage of the holes. Besides plunging well, John Hickey, the 'quarterback, called the plays wisely.

The result was that St. Peter's carried the play and Notre Dame didn't threaten once in the second half.

Notre Dame had only one plunger who was effective at all. Their left half, Parent, several times squeezed through the Saints' defence for yards. He also grabbed three kicks by McGillen into the end zone, and every time he just managed to run the ball over the goal line, robbing the Saints of single points.

On the all-important single point kicks, St. Peter's almost had a costly injury. While trying to nail Parent in the end zone in the fourth quarter, backfielder Murray Byrne crashed into the goal standard, hurting his left shoulder. But as a true champion, he later returned to the game.

Sensing an easy victory, the Saints rolled up the field on plunges by O'Rourke, Foley and Hickey in the first quarter. But a lost down (too long in a huddle) cost them possession when they were forced to kick. McGillen's punt went far over the line but Parent broke loose and out to the Welland 15.

A kicking duel existed then between Cox and McGillen and lapped over into the second quarter. Then Cox looped a punt for 45 yards behind the Saints' line. Terry Fitzpatrick, with a blast of speed, just managed to get the ball out of danger.

But within minutes, Cox punted again and Murray Byrne allowed the slippery ball to escape and bounce deep into the end zone. There Notre Dame's Tom Thususka dropped on the ball for a touchdown which went unconverted.

Early in the second half the Saints again marched up the field but a fumble stopped it cold at the Welland 25. A short, hurried kick by Notre Dame gave the Saints possession two minutes later on the Welland 45.

There Foley and O'Rourke combined for 12 yards, followed by individual plunges by both. Then Welland was penalized for roughing and the ball placed at the 14-yard line. Foley carried to the three where John Hickey sneaked across. Although the pass for the point was complete, there was illegeal use of hands along the line and no point was allowed.

The score remained tied until late in the fourth when Parent fumbled on a McGillen kick at the Welland 10-yard line. Paul Hickson dropped on the ball and McGillen kicked the ball to the deadline for the championship.

A desperate last-minute passing attack by Welland died at centre field.

Lineups:

Batchelor with 16 points and Butcher with 18 provided the big drive for the winners, Cunningham clicking for nine, Galvin for five and Ryan two. Top snipers for Terriers were Cranfield with 13 points, Carleton 12, as Fowler got seven, Dewart four and Hurrel two. Teams:

COSSA CHAMPIONS — Peterborough teams made a clean sweep of the COSSA doubleheader at Morrow Park Saturday to win both the junior "B" and senior "A" championships. Dick Foley (extreme left, top left) grinds through the grime but seems doomed for destruction as Welland Notre Dame's line beats through. He broke away for a 57-yard run and later was the main ball carrier in the winning TD drive. Cheers, cheers and more cheers echoed throughout the city bus (top right) which carried the victorious PCVS team back to the school after they crushed Stamford 22-1 in the senior game. St. Peter's coach, John Lynch (middle photo), is lifted on the shoulders of his players about two seconds after they won the junior "B" COSSA 6-5. Off the target (lower photo) the ball sails three feet away from the receiver's hand as Welland tried desperate last-minute passes.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Vics Yank Out 7-4 Verdict Over IOOF In Junior Fray

Kingston Vics outscored Oddfellows 7-4 Saturday night as the Central Ontario Junior "B" hockey derby got under way in the giant Kingston Memorial Arena.

Wide-open hockey featured the hard struggle with the homsters more accustomed to the large ice surface in the early stages. But Johnny Godfrey's fighting lads put on a terrific third-period drive to almost salvage victory. It was a sizzling struggle and, once having adjusted their timing to suit the enlarged playing area, Oddfellows' passing plays were a treat to watch.

Even Play

Play opened fast with little to choose between the teams. Then Gord Coyle of the Lakefield line of Bill Twist (star softball centre-fieilder), and Kevin Heffernan broke from his own blue line to sail down on a brilliant individual thrust at 16:48 to foil Bob Senior with a 15-foot steamer.

Vics equalized a minute later as Don Senior snared a loose puck well inside and flipped to Wils Reid who scrambled one past Wasson close in. Ed Maracle gave Vics an edge [illegible] ing seconds on a nice solo.

Maurice Chevrefils sparked his team in the second with two goals after Ned Hagarty had notched one on a breakaway early in the period. The Godfrey band worked feverishly on their timing and stormed around Senior in the latter half of the second, but offsides nullified their efforts at times while at others the work of Senior proved a big factor. Territorially Oddfellows were on a par with their rivals but were definitely outlucked in the second.

IOOF Presses

The final stanza saw youth at its best as both teams flew around like birds on a wing and though Max Jackson's boys clicked first in a scoring way, Oddfellows began to work in and Heffernan, Bill Stewart and Brian Robinson all found the range on sparkling tallies. Vics' early margin stood them in good stead and so a good struggle ended.

The Robinson, Stewart, Buckton line clicked well for Oddfellows; Roger Wilson proved a standout on the rearguard and the Lakefield line looked possibly best of all; though every man gave his best. For Kingston, the first line went well with Maracle, Redmond, Vallier, Reid and Ned Hagarty good also. It was a clean game.

IOOF—Goal, Wasson; defence, Armstrong, Wilson; centre, Stewart; wings, B. Robinson, Buckton, alts., Coyle, Twist, Heffernan, Floyd, Morrow, Sullivan, Bigford, Church.

Stamford Collegiate Team Humbled By PCVS 22-1 For Senior Championship

By DON GRANT

It's back at PCVS again. Coach Bev Goulding's Garnet and Grey charges stomped through the highly-touted Stamford (Niagara Falls) Collegiate Orange and Black 22-1 Saturday at Morrow Park for the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association's senior "A" football championship. The victory for PCVS was sweet revenge for two reasons. After winning the COSSA decisively from Fort Erie, St. Catharines and Burlington in 1946, 1947 and 1948, PCVS were shellacked by St. Catharines in 1949 and 1950 in the final. This year PCVS proved they still remain supreme in the COSSA district.

The second reason was that they proved they were better than Stamford, who before the game, were considered second only to Hamilton Cathedral Gaels, in Ontario collegiate football. The Garnet and Grey is now second and, from their showing Saturday, are equal to Hamilton in all respects. Hamilton only beat Stamford 20-0.

Lost Only One

The win left PCVS with a record of eight wins in nine games this year, the only loss to Kirkland Lake in the Red Feather tournament, a game which they should never have lost. It also left them with an average of 25 points a game for and less than a touchdown against.

For the first quarter Saturday the Garnet and Grey seemed doomed to destruction, as the Orange and Black, which averaged 14.7 pounds more per man, flew over the ground. Stamford's McGowan and Ruish were punting for 50 and 60 yards. PCVS just couldn't get out of the end zone, and an intercepted pass didn't help matters.

But the Garnet and Grey sounded out the Stamford weakness, a poor centre along the line. They pounded through there and held the Orange and Black to only a point, a kick to deadline. That was the end for Stamford.

The visitors staved off a higher score only due to the punting of McGowan and Ruish. Twice in the fourth period their Negro backfield flash, Washington, went for long runs on shifty footwork. But the Garnet and Grey held.

The Line Stars

While the Stamford line's centre was weak, the PCVS line, coached jointly by Mr. Goulding and Howard Hempstead, former PCVS lineman and now teaacher at the Auburn School, played their best game this season. With a persistent, determined spirit they tackled and blocked the larger Niagara district players, holding them to only small gains and forcing Stamford to kick repeatedly.

Linemen like Paul Frise, Larry Forbes, Hugh Outram, Stan Facendi and Jim Telford broke open holes for PCVS plungers to tear through. Even when the alternates, who were as strong as the first stringers, were on, there was no difference in power.

Quarterback Bryan Young sighted the Stamford other weaknesses, poor tackling and blocking, when he used Murray Grafstein on the plunging power plays early in the second quarter. He repeatedly used Grafstein, then worked in Warren Brown and Buster Jensen as the Stamford machine failed to stop the advances. When they did, Young matched punts with McGowan and Ruish for his best performance in that department this year.

After the first quarter when Stamford realized that they were gradually losing, rough tactics appeared. Immediately Referee Jack Taylor, of Toronto, clamped down. They objected time and again, but only lost more yards.

The climax to this type of football came midway through the fourth after Stamford were penalized for roughing three times on three plays. Taylor immediately awarded the ball to PCVS on the Stamford six-yard line.

Then on PCVS' second play, Taylor stopped the game and warned Stamford again about the roughing and even threatened to throw every player off that appeared to be trying illegal tactics.

Ruish, after Stamford closed in, early in the first quarter, looped a lofty kick to deadline for the first point. A minute later an intercepted pass gave him another chance but Young escaped tacklers and carried the ball to the three-yard line.

From there PCVS began to plunge, using Grafstein repeatedly but when they reached midfield Young kicked and it was fumbled out of bounds at the Stamford 25.

McGowan and Young exchanged kicks until McGowan, early in the second, punted to the PCVS 25. Grafstein started the parade of plunges which also featured Young, Brown and Jensen. They went straight up the field, helped by a roughing penalty to Stamford, and Grafstein went over for a major score standing up. Young converted to make the score 6-1.

Get Field Goal

PCVS kicked off and Stamford fumbled at the 25-yard line in front of the goal standards. Paul Frise recovered for PCVS and Young split the posts neatly for a field goal and three more points.

Play until the half featured penalties to Stamford for roughing and illegal use of hands. Two penalties and a ruling of roughing the pass receiver gave PCVS the ball on the Stamford 25. There Young passed to Bob Craw over the line. But the officials ruled that he caught the ball out-of-bounds.

Early in the third Young kicked well behind the Stamford goal-line and McGowan was brought down for a point. Young ended the quarter with another kick for a point as McGowan was again brought down behind the line.

The trouble began early in the fourth for Stamford. After Young and Jensen had pushed play to the centre strips, Stamford took over, or perhaps the referee did. In three plays Referee Taylor carried the ball three times, each for Stamford roughing, and finally handed the ball to PCVS on the six-yard line. On the third attempt Grafstein scored his second major. Young addded the point for a 17-1 score.

Jensen a minute later intercepted a Stamford pass at centre. On the third down Young kicked, Stamford's Washington bobbled the ball over the goal line and Ken Pammett dropped on it for the final pointer. Stamford in the last seven minutes of play took to the air but flying wing Craw knocked down four of their forwards. It was all over then except the cheering.

Lineups:

Stamford—Flying wing, McGowan; halves, Farrell, Smith, Barratt; quarterback, Scobie; centre, Fedor; insides, Schankula, Rapelje; middles, Darch, Sawchuk; ends, Wilson, Cushman; alternates, Dickson, Ruish, Kozicki, Urquhart, Delaney, Maves, Sherren, Hughes, Washington, Gallen, Kudlac, Miller, Dell, Angle, Pollack.

PCVS—Flying wing, Craw; halves, Hope, Jensen, Brown; quarterback, Young; centre, Frise; insides, Forbes, Outram; middles, Facendi, Telford; ends, Clapper, Hayward; alternates, Sanders, Graham, Scriver, Grafstein, Pammett, King, Nicholls, Gilders, Milburn, Langhorne, Wilkinson.

Zorra To Test Former Marvel

Lou Newman, the unmasked Marvel, from Great Falls, Montana, will oppose Zorra, the muscular, well-built French Tarzan, in the feature wrestling bout at the Brock on Tuesday night. The rugged Newman, with his punishing delayed back-breaker specialty hold, figures to have plenty of trouble with Zorra's dizzying airplane spin and knock-out "savat", his French drop-kick with one foot, reported to be more damaging than a boxer's knock-out punch.

The four Sumo Japanese wrestlers, who have been an arena-packing sensation wherever they have appeared in Canada and the US, will be another feature, with their ancient, Oriental style of wrestling on the same card.

The first bout will be Stan Mayslack, 240-pounder from Minneapolis, against Flying Pat Flanagan of Toronto.

A record-breaking crowd is predicted.

Wings Down Rangers 5-2 As Toronto Leafs Bow To Black Hawks 1-0

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings, who have a habit of taking over the leadership in the National Hockey League early in the season and holding it until the final gun, today can boast of another record. They haven't lost a game away from home since the 1951-52 campaign started early in October. They kept their slate clean Sunday night with an easy 5-2 victory over the Rangers at New York, giving them a five-point edge in points over the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs who lost 1-0 at Chicago. Incidentally, the Leaf loss was their first away from Maple Leaf Gardens this season.

The Hawks capitalized on the victory, before a crowd of 10,221, to take over fifth position, one point up on the Rangers, who have won only five of their 15 games to date.

Five NHL games were played during the weekend and the results changed only the bottom-place positions.

Leafs gained a point in their 1-1 tie at home with Boston Bruins Saturday—the fourth straight drawn game for Joe Primeau's team. They haven't won a game since Nov. 2 when they beat the Hawks at Chicago 3-1.

The draw for the Bruins at Toronto and a 3-3 stalemate with the third-place Montreal Canadiens Sunday night at Boston left them in fourth place.

Get Most Points

Canadiens were the greatest point-gainers of the weekend, following up their 3-2 Saturday victory over Rangers at Montreal with the 3-3 deadlock at Boston.

The Leaf-Hawk Sunday game was goalkeeper Harry Lumley's first shutout of the season and also marked the debut of Pete Conacher, son of the great Charlie and nephew of Lionel, and the kid made good. He assisted on the goal scored by Jim McFadden late in the second period.

Detroit made no mistake against Rangers in its single weekend game. Gordie Howe and Red Kelly each scored a couple and Marcel Pronovost finished it off with less than two minutes to go.

Rookie Wally Hergesheimer and Don Raleigh netted the New York markers.

Canadiens split the goals in their weekend action. Saturday it was Bert Olmstead, Maurice Richard and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Sunday it was Geoffrion, Dick Gamble and Billy Reay.

Fleming Mackell scored Toronto's lone goal of the two nights at home. The veteran Milt Schmidt tied it up with less than 30 seconds to go.

Hamilton Cats Junior Champs

EDMONTON, Nov. 19 (CP). — For the fourth straight year, Hamilton Tiger-Cats are Canadian junior football champions.

Coach Fred Veale's lads trounced the Edmonton Maple Leafs 22-1 Saturday on Clarke Stadium's ice-covered gridiron as 6,000 fans watched.

After the game, Kent Phillips of Saskatoon presented Tiger-Cats with The Regina Leader-Post Trophy—Canada's "Little Grey Cup."

Halfback Frankie Dilks scooted for three touchdowns for Hamilton and Ed Walker recovered a blocked kick to score another. Quarterback Joe Kasaskowski booted one convert and Tiger-Cats got their other point on a rouge.

Edmonton's lone point was scored when Kosaskowski was stopped behind the Hamilton goal-line after receiving a kick from Syd Bercov of the Maple Leafs.

Hamilton tried 11 forwards and completed three for a net gain of 106 yards. Maple Leafs threw 30, completed nine and gained 119 yards. Tiger-Cats intercepted five Edmonton forwards while Edmonton intercepted two thrown by Hamilton.

The eastern champions who made 10 first downs, gained 180 yards rushing compared to 90 by Edmonton. Nate Shore's Leafs made nine first downs.

Ottawa Team Loses Bitowski For Game

OTTAWA, Nov. 19 (CP). — Ottawa Rough Riders have lost Bruno Bitkowski for Wednesday's eastern Canada football final against Sarnia Imperials and there is a chance Bob Simpson may not play either.

Bitkowski, an outside wing who was chosen Big Four rookie of the year, suffered a sprained ankle in the second quarter of Saturday's game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats and did not return to the game which Riders won 11-9. Officials hope he may get into action in the Grey Cup final next Saturday if Riders get by Sarnia.

Simpson was hit by a teammate's helmet while making a tackle early in the final quarter and suffered a bad shiner.

Galloping Ghosts Win 13-0 Take Intermediate Championship

COBOURG, Nov. 19 (CP).—Cobourg Galloping Ghosts blanked Sarnia Wildcats 13-0 Saturday in a sudden death game for the intermediate B championship in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, played in five quarters.

The unprecedented fifth quarter came about because head timer Alex Pratt was not aware the clock was not stopping on time outs in the third stanza. When the teams turned around for the fourth quarter with the Ghosts in the lead 7-0, Sarnia officials called a halt after a long and confusing conference between the team heads and officials, a fifth quarter of seven and a half minutes' duration was ruled. Sarnia officials claimed that the third period had ended that much too soon.

It was a boomerang for Wildcats, however, because Bob Cooper, Ghost quarterback and star of the game, intercepted a Sarnia pass on the Wildcat 25 and raced over for a touchdown which "Sure Shot" Art Jones converted with less than a minute remaining in the added playing time.

To add to the drama of the final, star quarter Tommy Harris of the Sarnia club was ejected from the game in the fourth for rough play after he had started to wrestle with and throw fists at Darch Campbell, Ghost half. In the fifth session, Clarke of Sarnia and Garvin of the Ghosts were thumbed off for two minutes for rough play.

Had Luck

Ghosts were favored by luck on both their touchdowns. The first came in the third stanza when Cooper kicked a long hoist from the Sarnia 50 that Wildcat half, McAulay caught behind the goal-line and then dropped with Ghosts' lineman McNally roaring in to fall on the ball for the major score. It was not converted.

The Sarnia desperation pass in the extra period was out on the flat, apparently in the clear, when Cooper came over fast to take it and sprint for the TD.

First Ghost point came in the second quarter, when a Jones placement try went wide of the posts, but into the end zone, where a Sarnia half did not even try to run it out, stepping into touch instead.

Early in the fourth the Ghosts got another single when Jones again tried a placement kick which missed the posts, but went to the deadline.

Willoughby Wins TCS 5-Mile Race

PORT HOPE, Nov. 19.—In the 55th running of the Oxford Cup, Doug Willoughby ploughed his way through mud and rain to win the annual five-mile Trinity College School cross-country race in the time of 29.7 minutes.

Taking the lead early in the race, Willoughby set a good pace and continued to put more ground between himself and the other runners until he crossed the finish line.

Durham and Atlantic City came second, with Brown from Hamilton following in third place. Molson of Vancouver, MacKinnon of Toronto, and last year's winner, Dolph, finished in that order in the field of 10.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Gordie Howe of Detroit climbed closer during the weekend to Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach of Montreal in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Howe scored a pair of goals on Sunday to move into sole possession of third place, only two points back of Lack and Richard who are still tied at the top.

Richard scored a goal to retain his lead with 11 and Lach assisted on one to head that department with 14. Howe with eight goals, is closest to Richard, his greatest rival last season.

MORE ABOUT—

Forest Department

we gradually learn their reality. We are all passing this way together. Life takes its toll in illness, accidents and misery. We hope to walk in health to the end of the journey, but how many do?"

Mr. Thomson said that possible economies in the Department of Lands and Forests were indicated in the report of Major-General Howard Kennedy of the royal commission that was appointed some years ago to enquire into the crown land forests of the province. He reported tremendous "almost incredible waste, resulting from the single-purpose operations of the pulp and paper people." Those industries picked out a few species such as spruce and balsam, and left the other timber to rot.

"I saw timber that would be of great use to loggers, left to waste. Most of the material taken out was pulpwood and raw pulp going to the United States."

New Ruling

Mr. Thomson said a Liberal government would require the operators to take out the birch, poplar and jackpine as well as the pulpwood, and double or more the department's revenue. He also mentioned the destruction caused in the timber by the bud worm, and said he had seen thousands of acres that had been destroyed by that enemy in the vicinity of Black Sturgeon Lake.

"Timber can be salvaged any time up to four years after it is first attacked by the bud worm. In that block of country where I walked through the bush, nothing was done to salvage that wood."

New revenue from these sources, Mr. Thomson said, would amount to an estimated $18,000,000, and with stumpage dues and the contributing payments, the hospitalization project could be carried out. He remarked that some of the operators have three times more timber holdings than they could ever cut.

In the four years from 1947 to 1950, the Ontario government had accepted only $10,000,000 of a total of $40,000,000 for hospital purposes made available by the Dominion government.

Had Money

"This was not a cumulative contribution. The province had to take $10,000,000 in a year and match it with an equal amount. If the government of Ontario had taken the full amount we would have $60,000,000 more for hospital services. Ontario had the money to pay their part, but they would rather build up multi-million surpluses.

"We propose to take every dollar the Dominion government offers us. I think I can get as good a deal at Ottawa as the Tories. I haven't any doubt that we can pay for our hospital plan. Where there's a will, there's a way."

Mr. Thomson also said that his plan for rehabilitating victims of tuberculosis would be carried out, enabling recuperating patients to be returned to useful service.

Urges Small Homes

He advocated the building of small homes for aged couples at a cost of two or three thousand dollars instead of housing them in house of refuge institutions.

"These senior citizens made our day possible for us, and they deserve what we can do for them. I noticed that the Peterborough Examiner, and I congratulate you on having such an excellent newspaper, referred to the new House of Refuge at Belleville. It cost $1,300,000 for the accommodation of 175 of our senior citizens. The Examiner calculated that 175 individual homes could have been built at $7,000 each for them, and have $75,000 left for furnishings. In private life they would have a fuller life and the freedom they have earned for their later years.

Briefly referring to the Department of Higways and its gasoline taxes, Mr. Thomson said: "They used $46,000,000 last year on highways, although they collected $87,000,000 from the gasoline tax. We propose to return half that surplus, about $20 million, and take off one quarter of the tax."

Mr. Thomson said he would certify municipalities and local transportation companies to buy gasoline without being taxed.

"In Brantford they have found that the deficit of their local bus transportation was equal to the tax they had to pay on gasoline.

They don't use the highways of the province. Why should they have to pay the tax? Removal of that tax is one way of keeping down the cost of transportation in the cities where it is a local necessity."

Mr. Thomson also said that municipalities, paying for the building and maintenance of their own roads, should not be asked to pay the Department's gasoline tax.

"These are some of the things which we propose to do for Ontario, but we can't do them unless you elect your candidate. No other party in Peterborough has a better man than Mr. Burke. He made his mark in the Army, in the Legion and in his employment with the CGE company."

Mr. Burke said he knew from his own experience the burden and worry of hospital costs. Referring to an illness of his son he said: "If it hadn't been for the grateful interest of Rotarians, Kinsmen and Shriners I'd be paying hospital bills until I was due for the old age pension." He said he could not make the round of the riding in the short time available.

Riding Well Organized

"I can only apologize to those I cannot see. I have visited around as much as possible, and I find that the riding is well organized. I hope the people will remember that their votes count, and often it is the last four or five votes that are important in deciding election or defeat. If all the Liberals turn out on the 22nd, I will be pleased to have the honor of representing them at Queen's Park. I am pledged to support the platform of our leader. I would like to mention that Labor takes a big part in all our affairs. It is concerned with nearly every phase of life. Its welfare is important to our farmers, just as all the rest of us are affected by the welfare of agriculture..."

P. D. Scollard was chairman of the meeting. Ralph Standish introduced Mr. Thomson, and the thanks of the meeting were expressed by Rork Ferguson of Norwood.

"I went to school with Mr. Thomson's older brother, and I knew his father and mother well. His father was the Rev. D. A. Thomson, who was Presbyterian minister at Hastings for upwards of 50 years. I believe that we'll be proud of Mr. Thomson as Premier. He certainly has the background to do it."

Mr. Ferguson said if Ontario was 'defrosted' on the 22nd, everybody would be happy.

Others on the platform were: Chas. E. Elliott, Eldon Purvis, Mrs. John Duignan, John Wolff, A. H. Lewis, and Herb Tucker of Apsley.

$40,000 Fire Sweeps Leather Plant

Defective Wiring Blamed; Discovered At 3 a.m.

PORT HOPE, Nov. 19 (ENS)—Fire that swept through the north wing of a leather factory here did $40,000 damage Sunday morning. Cause was thought to be defective wiring in the boiler room.

Alarm was turned in about 3 am by an unidentified man. Firemen battled the stubborn blaze for two hours before they controlled it and saved the William Hamilton Co. leather plant from complete destruction.

Three curing vats and some other equipment were destroyed in the fire. The factory employs 25 people, and it is expected no loss of employment will result. Roof of the wing was damaged, but did not collapse.

Parked Car Bumped In Crash

Three cars were involved in an accident at Monaghan Rd., and Lansdowne St., at 9:30 Saturday morning, resulting in damage estimated at over $300 to the three vehicles.

Roland N. Wheeler, Hunter St., Lakefield, told Constable William G. Scott who investigated that he was driving south on Monghan Rd. and did not see the stop sign at Lansdowne St. until he was practically into the intersection.

Jamming on his brakes Wheeler said he slid into Lansdowne St. and collided with an eastbound Lansdowne St. car driven by Elwood M. Johnston RR 3 Peterborough.

After colliding with Wheeler's station wagon the Johnston car continued in a south-easterly direction and collided with another car parked on Monaghan Rd., facing north.

The parked car was owned by Harold Johnston, RR 5, Peterborough (no relation).

Damage to the front end of Wheeler's station wagon was estimated at $75. Approximately $200 damage resulted to the front end of E. M. Johnston's car. The front fender of the parked car was crumpled, the damage being estimated at $55.

Girl Gets Phone Call From Fiance In Tokyo

LINDSAY, Nov. 19—A Lindsay girl received a telephone call from her fiance in Tokyo Friday night.

Miss Phyllis Hartwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Hartwick, Lindsay, was pleasantly surprised when she heard her fiance's voice on the phone at 10.20 p.m. Friday. Her fiance, John Smith of the United States field artillery now serving in Korea was calling from Tokyo while on a five-day leave.

The call was placed at 12.20 p.m. Saturday but as Tokyo is considerably ahead of our time the call came through Friday here.

Sgt. Smith is from Pittsburgh, Pa.

Timid Hero

PORT HOPE, Nov. 19. — (ENS)—Modesty is not the only thing that hides the identity of heroes and public-minded citizens. The man who, at 3 am, notified firemen of a blaze in a Port Hope leather plant, asked them to keep his name from the papers so his wife would not discover what time he got home Sunday morning.

Israel Building New Democracy B'nai B'rith Told

Democracy is raising a new temple in Israel, Herbert A. Mowat, Toronto, National Director of the Canada-Israel Association declared in an address here Sunday night.

The fledgling Jewish state in Palestine is founded on the principles of British parliamentary democracy and will never capitulate to a totalitarian system of the right or the left, Mr. Mowat.

A former assistant to the chairman of the World Committee for Palestine and an executive of the United Nations Association in Canada, Mr. Mowat spoke to an open meeting of the Peterborough B'nai B'rith Lodge in Beth Israel Community Hall.

Inspection Trip

Basing his remarks on a ten day inspection trip of Palestine last May in company with 14 Americans, Mr. Mowat also drew on his experiences at Lake Success when he was doing liason work for the UN Palestine Committee. He gave his listeners a behind-the-scenes outline of the part Canada played in the setting up of Israel as an independent Jewish state in the Holy Land and an up-to-date economic picture of Israel today as its people fight to establish "a citadel of freedom in the face of great difficulties."

He said his most striking impression "was the respect in which Canada is held in Israel." Mr. Mowat said this was primarily due to the key role which Minister of External Affairs "Mike" Pearson played in getting agreement between delegates of the USSR and the US in the deliberations of the UN Palestine committee.

Contrary to the Communists' claims that Canada is "a rubber stamp at Washington," Mr. Mowat said, foreign diplomats regard Canada as a country of high ranking importance by virtue of its influence at Washington and Downing Street.

"A backdrop of the stark tragedy that has overtaken the Jewish people in Europe in the last 10 years is the inheritance of everyone settling in Israel. Only a remnant is being saved by the new Jewish state but without it, it's 640,000 citizens would have had nothing to face after liberation but another concentration camp," he said.

Israel faces the problems faced by pioneering countries through the ages he said—"the lack of sufficient capital to maintain life and develop the country." Referring to the outside capital used to build railways in Canada 100 years ago, Mr. Mowat said "this is nothing new in a pioneering country."

Fair Share

In the face of shortages of food and materials, Mr. Mowat said that the Israeli government sees to it there are fair shares for everyone. "This is a great tribute to the competence and integrity of the civil service of Israel."

In a reference to what he termed "Arab fanatacism and the using of the instrument of assassination as a weapon of policy, Mr. Mowat said that the "unbridled intransigence being displayed by the Arabs in the Near East is an acute problem for West as well as Israel.

He said that while the Arab minority in Israel can attend Hebrew universities, Jews are refused entry to Arabic schools and colleges. "The infidel enters the Holy cities of Mecca and Medina only on pain of death," he added.

"People who have never enjoyed freedom in the past are today enjoying it and breathing the air of freedom in a democracy that has marked the flowering of the tradition of Judaism and Christianity which have always backed the claim of the individual to freedom against the claim of collective humanity to power."

Praising the energy and spirit of the people of Israel, Mr. Mowat said, "they realize they are at the beginning of an epoch....and have an opportunity for sanctuary and normalcy in an enterprise that is 2,000 years overdue."

The speaker was introduced by Isadore Black and thanked by Ben Swartz. After the close of the meeting, a light lunch was served.

Caring For Land In Four Ways Y's Men Told

The fourfold work of the Department of Lands and Forests—to protect, manage, improve and restore—was outlined Saturday night to members of the Peterborough Y's Men's Club and Y's Men from Ottawa, Orillia and Midland.

The Hon. Harold R. Scott, guest speaker, detailed some of the jobs done in looking after 85 per cent of Ontario, the portion of the province still vested in the crown.

He told them of efforts to bring the production of trees near to the demand. At present, five nurseries in Ontario produce 20,000,000 trees yearly for reforestation. Soon, the department expects its nurseries to produce 50,000,000 trees each year, and eventually 60 or 70,000,000.

They were needed to restore areas like the headwaters of the Ganaraska river, prevent damage from flash floods in the spring, and restore good fishing. A similar project is under way on the Moira River that flows through Belleville.

Experiments

Efforts by the department to make rain, to cross the fast-growing poplar with a commercially valuable timber, to bring back the beaver population, and to cut down tree diseases were mentioned.

"The department is putting back into the land all its revenue, and until we overcome the errors of mismanagement of the last 100 years, we must continue to put the revenue back," Mr. Scott declared.

The speaker was introduced by Charles Forsyth, and thanked by Al Austin.

District Y's Men governor Morley Witcher of Orillia spoke briefly on the need for growth of citizenship. After the dinner meeting, the group adjourned to the Peterborough Golf Club.

Drivers Skid On Ice Hit At Intersection

Icy pavement was blamed by both drivers for a two-car collision on Lock St., at Romaine St. at noon Sunday.

John B. Dossett, 560 Rose Ave., was driving north on Lock St. and as he neared Romaine St., he said he saw an approaching eastbound car, applied his brakes, but skidded into the intersection and the two cars collided.

The driver of the other car, Maitland Carter, 112 Stewart St., told police he saw the Dossett car approaching from the south and that he tried to avoid the collision but also struck a strip of ice. Seeing he would be unable to stop in time, he said he speeded up but was unable to get through the intersection in time.

Considerable damage resulted to the front end of the Dossett car which was swerved around facing east, after colliding with the right rear fender of Carter's car.

Constable W. A. Scott reported there are no stop signs at this intersection.

If it were only a joke, it was a poor one, he said, and if it were not a joke, it was a pretty mean trick.

Poplars and other soft woods in the bush along the CNR south of May's School have lost the last of their leaves and are stripped for the winter. But, the axe or those new McCulloch saws will probably clear it off one of these days, and the song birds of spring will have to move off farther to the west and south.

Small Car Wrecked In Crash At Corner

A late model English car was overturned and wrecked in a two-car collision on Burnham St. between Robinson and Sophia streets at 4.45 Saturday afternoon.

The driver, J. P. Gemmell, 333 Burnham St., was hauled from his badly smashed car by nearby residents who rushed to the scene. He escaped with slight lacerations to his right wrist and minor abrasions to his head.

Gemmell was swinging across from the west side of Burnham St. to pull into a lane on the far side of the street, just as another car driven by Kenneth C. Ferguson, 16 Cricket Place was approaching from the north, and the two cars collided.

The force of the impact turned the Gemmell car around and upset it damaging it to such an extent that it is considered a total wreck.

There was considerable damage to the right front fender of the Ferguson car.

Constable J. P. Gillis investigated.

YMCA Attends Church Service At Murray Street

The YMCA membership held its first annual church service Sunday to Murray St. Baptist Church as part of the YMCA centennial celebrations.

Charles Forsyth, general secretary said today that church parades have been held by various YMCA groups in the past, but as far as he knew Sunday's parade was the first of the complete membership.

Every organization including the Friday Night Club, the Y's Men's Club, Hi-Y clubs and others were represented.

The Rev. Ivan Morgan, Murray St. Baptist Church, spoke on Faith, emphasizing the similarity in the basis of the YMCA and the church.

Formed In 1851

The meeting at a Baptist church for the centennial celebration was appropriate because the YMCA was founded in 1851 in a Baptist church in Montreal. During November this year the YMCAs in Canada are holding the centennial groups and services.

The American YMCAs also are celebrating their centennial year this month. Their YMCA was first formed in Boston a month later than in Canada.

The Montreal celebration will be next weekend and a number from Peterborough including Mr. Forsyth and several board members are planning to attend. Mr. Forsyth as chairman of the committee for the training of YMCA secretaries will present the training program for next year.

Will Borrow Boxes For Vote

None of the city's ballot boxes will be appropriated for the provincial voting Thursday.

The two governments have their own separate stocks of the galvanized iron boxes, and the city has another pile of them. However, there is only a week or thereabouts between the provincial and municipal balloting—assuming that usual recourse at the municipal polls—so the city could not take a chance on letting out its cans.

Doug Lawrie will pick up 100 of them at the customs house. They are federal property but they will be on loan for provincial use. Eighty more are coming from the Ontario government stock in Toronto.

2 Visits To City To Charges In Police Court

A 22-year-old RCN seamen is probably convinced it's easier to dodge Chinese Red gunfire off the Korean coast than it is to navigate a car through Peterborough traffic.

Thomas Douglas, of 264 Somerset St., West Ottawa, returned to Canada recently after serving aboard HMCS Huron in Korean waters. He is now attached to HMCS Bytown in Ottawa and on two visits to Peterborough in the last couple of weeks he has paid unexpected visits to our local police court, as the result of traffic mishaps.

Today he pleaded guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. On November 12, he pleaded not guilty to the charge and was remanded until today on $200 bail.

Fined $35

At the request of Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, Douglas' driving permit was suspended for 60 days. He was also fined $35 and $5.50 in costs or one month in county jail. Douglas paid the fine.

Lieutenant Commander John M. Calver, officer commanding HMCS Bytown, was in court and Crown Attorney Bradshaw said that he had been assured that the suspension of the driver's licence would not interfere with the man's naval work.

On October 30, Douglas was involved in an accident at Aylmer and Lansdowne Streets with another car. He was charged with driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol, pleaded not guilty on October 31 and the charge was dismissed.

Shortly after midnight, on November 11, Constable Andre Dalton arrested Douglas in a George St. restaurant, and charged him with leaving the scene of an accident.

Today, Constable Dalton testified that after receiving information that a car had struck a parked car owned by Norman Nesbitt, 354 Charlotte St., he and Constable Harold Andrew located the car being driven by Douglas which answered the description of the car which had struck Nesbitt's car and then drove off.

Pieces Matched

Constable Dalton said that pieces of chrome found at the scene of the accident matched up with a broken chrome trimming on Douglas' car and that the left front fender of Douglas car was caved in.

When Douglas first appeared in court on October 31, he claimed he was chauffeur for Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence. However, it was learned today that he is a messenger in the defence department.

Car Slides Into Truck

Approximately $40 damage resulted when a car driven by Ivan Sweeting, RR 3 Lakefield, collided with a loaded sand truck at Chamberlain and Park Sts., at 8.30 Saturday morning.

Sweeting told Constable William G. Scott that he was going south on Park St., and was just turning east on to Chamberlain when his car slid into an eastbound truck.

The truck was driven by Harold A. Webb, 318 Rose Ave.

More Deer Shot Second Week

Hunting Season Ends For 1951; Number of Elk Shot

Deer hunters racked their guns for good on Saturday as the season closed in both north and south sections of Highway 7. Conservation officers were busy at road checking stations Friday afternoon, Saturday and Sunday as cars streamed south with evidence of much better hunting luck during the second week of the hunt than the first.

Rumors that the wide-spread elk herd in the northwest Oregon Trail section had been wiped out is not true, according to lands and forests officials at Lindsay. The animal population over a large area has been estimated at more than 300. A very small percentage have been killed this year, they say, because they will not respond to running by dogs.

Not a great many bears were taken during the deer season and probably no hunter had, or would like to have, the experience of Clinton Stewart of Peterborough.

Bear Charges

A member of George Vallance's camp near Madawaska, Clint was standing beside a hole in the ground near his watch station. A disturbed bear reared out of the opening in very bad mood on being disturbed from his first sleep of the season. He charged at the hunter who let him have a couple of rifle bursts. The bear fell, or scuttled back to his lair, but charged out again after Clint. The hunter was making fast tracks for camp trying to reload as he hurried along. Some of the shells were fumbled and fell to the ground but he managed to pump a bullet into the persistent bear which stopped and went away. Later, Clint with another camp companion found the bear dead near his winter quarters. It was estimated that the animal weighed about 300 pounds.

This was the only game the party shot because of deep snow and bad bush travelling. Beside Stewart, other members were Charles Stewart, Ralph Beavis, Bill Jessup, George Vallance and Carmen Sproule.

Counties Closed

A group of counties which planned open deer season on Dec. 3, 4 and 5 have petitioned the lands and forests department not to allow shooting this season. This has been complied with and involves the following counties:—Brant, Elgin, Essex, Haldimand, Halton, Huron, Kent, Lambton, Lincoln, Middlesex, Norfolk, Ontario, Oxford, Peel, Perth, Waterloo, Welland, Wellington, Wentworth and York. Deer season was also closed in the county of Durham and the township of South Monaghan in Northumberland.

Decision to close this short season was due to the apprehension of rural residents having deer hunters on private property.

Persons who bought deer licenses for use in these areas, and now find themselves unable to use them, may get refunds. Application forms may be obtained from department officers and license issuers. Each application must be signed by a conservation officer.

Lethbridge Shipbuilding Centre During Early Wild West Era

LETHBRIDGE, Alta—(CP)—This Alberta city, once in the heart of what was known as the wild west, was at one time a shipbuilding centre and port of embarkation too.

It built steamers and barges—to sell coal.

Lethbridge owes much of its prosperity to coal—it was originally known as Coal Bank—and to Sir Alexander Galt, one of the fathers of confederation, and Elliot Torrence Galt, who directed the Galt Enterprises that helped to open up this part of southern Alberta.

The Galts began developing the coal found on the west bank of the Oldman river by a Nicholas Sheran. Sheran had broken his own trails, found his own markets and hauled the coal by ox team 200 miles to Fort Benton, Montana.

Began Business

When the Galts started in the fuel business, though, the Canadian Pacific Railway was inching its way westward over the prairies.

The railway agreed in 1883 to take coal from the Northeast Coal and Navigation Company operating at Lethbridge.

The contract put the coal business on its feet and Lethbridge—as it became known in 1885 in tribute to the coal company's president William Lethbridge—on the map as a shipbuilding port.

The problem was to get the coal to the railway which was to take delivery at Medicine Hat, Alta.

Material for three steamers and 16 barges was brought by teams the 250 miles from the main C.P.R. terminus at Swift Current, Sask., to Lethbridge, and lumber was hauled 60 miles from the Porcupine hills to the shipyard.

Workers From Pittsburgh

Skilled shipbuilders were brought from Pittsburgh via the Missouri river and Fort Benson.

The first steamer, the Baroness, was lauched on June 1, 1883, amid great celebrations.

The navigation season was found to be too short, however, for the Baroness to make enough trips in the seven weeks of good water.

So by 1884, Lethbridge had turned out two more steamers and 16 barges to earn its long forgotten reputation as an inland port.

The original contract called for the steamer and barges to move 3,000 tons of coal via the Belly and south Saskatchewan rivers to Medicine Hat. The railway would then go about its business of putting the steamers out of business.

Not Too Successful

Old files available in Lethbridge indicate that the plan didn't work out too well.

The shipbuilders apparently didn't take into account the fact that the steamers had to get back to Lethbridge for more coal. They apparently used just as much coal getting back upriver as they had carried downriver.

The railway, pleased with the coal it was receiving, offered a long-term contract if a rail line was built connecting its terminus with the coal mine.

A narow guage-line was laid down in August 1885 and Lethbridge began to grow. It was then the terminus of another rail line running to Great Falls, Montana.

Political Corruption Criticized In US

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 (AP) The Roman Catholic cardinals, archbishops and bishops in the United States declared Saturday that "moral corruption" in public life threatens the country with the same decay that befell the Roman Empire.

The churchmen, in a statement concluding their three-day annual meeting, roundly condemned the principle that "anything goes" in politics, asserting that an official who prfits dishonestly from his post is no better than a common theif.

They said, too, in calling for a higher standard of political morality:

"Dishonesty, slander, detraction and defamation of character are as truly transgressing of God's commandements when resorted to by men in political life as they are for all other men."

UK Papers Welcome Elizabeth Home

LONDON, Nov. 19—(Reuters)—British Sunday newspapers pushed international news into second place Sunday to welcome Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip back from their six-week Canadian tour.

Front page headlines welcomed them with: "They're Home Again" and "There's No Place Like Home—Even In the Rain."

There were scores of picutres—two papers went so far as to produce special picture supplements, rarity in paper-short Britain.

The Daily Express turned out a 12-page edition with four full pages on the Canadian tour. The Sunday Pictorial supplement greeted the Royal couple with "Welcome Home—You've Done a Great Job."

Find Lester Pearson Lets Down Hair Sometimes

GORE BAY, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson, who represents this Northern Ontario riding of Algoma East in the federal parliament, likes to let down his hair at times for his constituents.

For example, in a a folksy letter to the editor in the current issue of the weekly Gore Bay Record, "The Honorable Mike"—as he is known to his constituents—discloses:

1. Andrei Gromyko doesn't seem to have his heart in his work any more.

2. Princess Elizabeth, at the square dance at the Governor-General's residence in Ottawa, had to show him once or twice "what to do and where to go."

3. There's a division of opinion at Ottawa about what should be done about the rising cost of living.

Took Precautions

The minister wrote that the Japanese peace treaty conference at San Francisco was successful because precautions had been taken that Gromyko, the Soviet Union delegate and "my old opponent at Lake Success," would not obstruct proceedings unduly.

"More important was the fact, I think, that Gromyko didn't seem somehow to have his heart in his work, and really didn't put up much of a fight," the letter said.

Commenting on the manner in which the old age pensions bill had been approved by the Commons, the minister said: "I wish we could be as unanimous about what should be done about the cost of living. But that would mean we had reached the millenium, and when we reach that era, we won't have to worry about costs of any kind."

Pope's Visions Of Virgin Said Authenticated

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 19—(Reuters) — The Roman Catholic world has received what amounts to official confirmation of reports that the Pope had a series of visions last year at the time he proclaimed the dogma of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary.

The Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano indicated that it had received confirmation of the statement on the visions a month ago by Cardinal Fedrico Tedeschini. The first report appeared to have taken most Vatican officials by surprise, but Saturday night's Osservatore Romano was regarded here as giving authoritative backing to it.

Two Photographs

The newspaper published two "rigorously authenticiated" photographs which it described as showing how the sun plunged across the sky spinning on itself during visions seen at Fatima, Portugal, in 1917 by three Portuguese children and by a wating crowd of 70,000 people.

The Vatican publication indicated that the Pope saw the sun behave in the same way while walking in the Vatican gardens last year on Oct. 30 and 31, and Nov. 1 and 8.

It was Nov. 1 that the Pope proclaimed the new dogma, making an article of faith the ancient belief that the Virgin Mary was assumed bodily into Heaven on her death.

The Osservatore Romano added "the intervention of the Most Blessed Virgin frequently occurs at the gravest periods of the history of the church, often in a manner directed personally at the successors of Peter" (the apostle and first pope).

Talkative Prince Charles Steals Show From Parents

LONDN, Nov. 19 (CP)—London gave a Royal welcome to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh Saturday—but a fair-haired 3-year-old boy stole the show. There was no holding Prince Charlie.

Back from their six-week tour of Canada, the Royal couple landed at Liverpool, then took a special train to London's Euston station.

Prince Charles, who celebrated his third birthday last week, was waiting before the train arrived. His grandmother, the Queen, had decided at the last minute to take him to the station.

While Dana Wilgress, Canadian high commissioner, chatted with the Queen and Princess Margaret, Charles headed off down the platform.

Checking Up

"Where's your sword?" he demanded of a stiffly correct colonel of the Guards. Barely moving, the colonel shifted his overcoat. The sword hilt appeared. Charles moved off again.

He didn't even look when a barrage of flash bulbs were fired off by photographers taking his picture.

His interest was with the station master and he fired question after equstion at him.

As the train bearing his mother and father approached, Charles became excited. He shifted from foot to foot and skipped around. His eyes gleamed and the questions came faster.

Given Hug

As the train pulled in, Charles raced down the platform. Princess Elizabeth kissed her mother, greeted her sister and then knelt to hug Charles.

Prince Philip, grinning in a manner now familiar to Canadians leaned over and ruffed his son's carefully brushed and parted hair.

The huge crowd in the station cheered, the VIP'S moved in, the official automobile drew up.

But Charles was a match for them. He got his father aside and asked about those four Canadian Mounties who stood near by being presented to Princess Margaret and the Queen.

Then the Royal party inspected the guard. Charles brought up the rear. Then he raced back to his father. All the time he didn't stop talking—or pointing.

He drew many laughs from the crowd, especially when he jumped into the air, startled, as the band crashed out the first notes of "God Save the King."

Marlies Crush Windsor 11-0 In Junior Circuit

By The Canadian Press.

Unless someone stops Toronto Marlboros soon the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series race will be just a battle for second place.

In 15 tries, teams in the Junior A circuit have not been able to defeat Reg Hamilton's high-flying Dukes.

The latese to try, Windsor Spitfires, weren't even in the game Sunday afternoon. The second game of the Sunday twin bill, between Toronto St. Michael's and Oshawa Generals, ended in a 1-1 deadlock.

Generals threw a scare into the Marlboros Saturday night, however, taking a 4-1 lead at the end of the second period in Oshawa. Marlboros eventually battled back and earned a 5-5 overtime tie to remain unbeaten.

In other Saturday night games St. Catharines Teepees downed Guelph Biltmores 8-2, Waterloo Hurricanes beat Windsor 6-3 and St. Michael's defeated Galt Black Hawks 5-2.

Tigers Keep Lead

In senior A action Saturday night, Hamilton Tigers maintained their league lead by edging Owen Sound Mercurys 7-5, Sarnia Sailors blanked Stratford Indians 5-0 and Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen trounced Brantford Redmen 6-1.

Marlboros' No. 1 line of Danny Nesterenko and Parker MacDonald led the winners, each clicking for two goals. Wally Maxwell also added a pair while singles went to Louis Bendo, Earl Balfour and Ron Ingram.

It was John Henderson's first shutout of the season.

Jim Logan's freakish goal, shot from behind the net and glancing in off goalie Bob Shropshire's pads, gave St. Michael's the draw and brought them into a third-place tie with Galt.

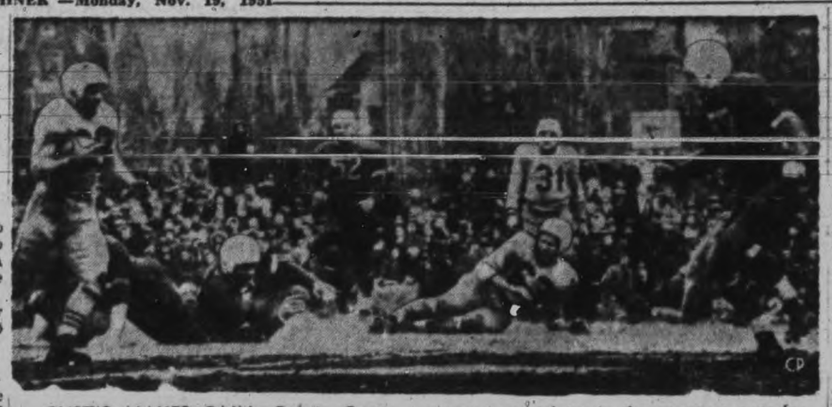
Defenceman Doug. Moore hit for Oshawa's tally in the second period, giving the Generals a short-lived lead.

Poland fired two goals in the last minute of play in the third period to send Saturday night's Marlboro-Oshawa game into overtime. Maxwell also scored two with Nesterenko adding the fifth. Oshawa scorers were Bob Attersley, with two, Bob Holden, Herve DeJordy and Fred Etcher.

Lead St. Mike's

Ron Wallace's two goals and Murray Costello's three assists paced St. Michael's in Galt. Butch Ratchford, Ed Plata and Bill Dineen added the others. Galt scorers were Ken Wharram and Tony Poeta.

The game marked the final appearance of Pete Conacher in a Galt uniform. The husky winger joined Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League on Sunday.



Bob Mader and Paul Oliver each scored twice to give Hurricanes their second win in three starts for new coach Bun Cooke. Rio Caron and Roger Maisonneuve blinked the light once each. Bob Brown scored a brace for the hapless Spits with Ron Craven adding the other.

A three-goal performance by Frank Martin paced the Teepees to a surprise 8-2 win over second-place Guelph Biltmores. Buddy Boone and Jim Robertson each chipped in with a pair with Wimpy Roberts scoring the final goal. Dean Prentice and Bill McCreary were Guelph marksmen.

Ralph Tattam racked up his first shutout at Sarnia. The Sailors got goals from Chuck Glaab, twice, Stu Cousins, Hil Fraser and Ted Garvin.

At Owen Sound, Frank Liscombe rattled in four goals to give the Hamilton squad its triumph. Bill Hammond, Gord Peebles and Murray Comfort were the other Hamilton goalgetters Tommy Burlington got three for Owen Sound, with Andy Grant and Doug Gillespie supplying the remainder.

There were no penalties in the game.

CUSTIS MAKES GAIN—Bernie Custis, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' brilliant quarterback, makes an end run in the second game of the total-point two-game Big Four playoff series at Ottawa's Lansdowne Park Saturday. A sell-out crowd of 17,000 saw the starry import later in the game go over for a touchdown which brought the under-dog Ticats within striking range of the Ottawa Rough Riders. Custis' kicking, plunging and passing made him a standout for the visitors.

Whooping It Up

Ottawa Wins Title, Edges Hamilton 11-9

OTTAWA, Nov. 19 — (CP).—Bring on the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

That was the happy chant heard in football circles today as this city let loose with a victorious war whoop for its own Riders, newly-crowned Big Four champions.

The Riders—Ottawa variety—wrapped up their first interprovincial title in three years on Saturday with a tense, last-quarter drive that knocked the leg-weary Hamilton Tiger-Cats out of the running with an 11-9 victory and a 28-16 bulge on the two-game total-points final series. Riders won the opener at Hamilton last Wednesday 17-7.

Ottawa now has a Wednesday afternoon date at Lansdowne Park with Sarnia Imperials for the Eastern Canada title and the right to advance to the Grey Cup final against the Western Canada champions. But football-happy fans here consider this nothing much more than a tune-up for their Riders.

The Imperials, Ontario Rugby Football Union titleholders and the only senior all-Canadian club in the country apart from the colleges, are primed for this one. But they don't figure in anybody's books to give the Big Four champs too much of a fight.

All-Round Power

The Ottawa-Hamilton final series was featured mainly by the all-round power of the Riders when the chips were down.

In the first game last Wednesday they uncorked a final six-minute drive that produced 16 points to turn a 7-1 deficit into a clean-cut 10-point lead. They carried that bulge into Saturday's game, saw it shrink to two points at the half and then blew the game wide open with a last-quarter onslaught for the triumph.

Riders had to squirm for both victories and the manner in which they subdued the Tiger-Cats stamped them as a club hard to beat in anybody's league. Their bench strength was superb, their tackling was hard and their all-round effectiveness— particularly in the second half—had the 17,000 fans whooping it up.

Tiger-Cats, physically beaten after a tough two-game semi-final series with Toronto Argonauts, showed remarkable power in the Rider battles. They ran out of gas in the final 15 minutes of each game and that was a big factor in their downfall.

In the Lead

On Saturday, the Tiger-Cats went ahead 9-2 at the three-quarter mark on a single by Tom Worthington, a placement by Bob McDonald, and a touchdown by quarter Bernie Custis. Bruce Cummings looked after the Ottawa scoring with a single in each of the first and third quarters.

The Rider powerhouse then went into high gear on the signal-calling of quarter Tom O'Malley who took to the air with a classy display of forward passing and mixed it up with off-tackle smashes and end plays. The Tiger-Cats folded under the steady pressure and the Riders were home free.

O'Malley tossed three passes that advanced the sticks from the Ottawa 54-yard line to the Hamilton one and then finished off the drive with a head-first dive over a mass of players for a touchdown. Bob Gain, hard-hitting middle and placement kicker booted the extra point and then gave Riders the verdict with a 30-yard placement.

O'Malley's touchdown was set up by Ted McLarty who intercepted a Hamilton pass and scurried 45 yards past five or six tacklers to the Ottawa 54.

Vince Mazza, one of the best players on the field, pounced on the loose ball after an Ottawa kick was blocked in the second quarter to pave the way for Hamilton's major. The Tiger-Cats went over on four ground plays from the Ottawa 17.

Lindsay Defeats Newmarket 7 to 4

LINDSAY, Nov. 19.—Lindsay Muskies finished up their five-game preseason series of exhibitions with a decisive 7-4 victory over Newmarket Spitfires here Saturday night. The win gave the local Barlett-Jackson intermediate "A" entry a 500 record prior to opening their Lakeshore League schedule in Port Hope on Wednesday.

Holding an edge in every period the Muskies' scoring drive was equalled only in the second period when the visitors notched three markers. Lindsay split their goal scoring seven ways, but centre Bill Harker with a goal and two assists led the point-getters. Mucker O'Connell starred in the winners' cage.

TVL Entry Uncertain From Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 19 — (ENS)—From the looks of the TVL hockey picture for the 1951-52 season, Campbellford will not ice a team unless they combine with some other team in the circuit, which would most likely be Stirling, if this comes about.

It is expected the loop will comprise about 10 teams and the executive is at present working out a schedule and details for the season.

Campbellford finds themselves short about 11 players this year. Many fo these have taken jobs in other towns and will play for these teams.

There was a good deal of discussion at a Batawa meeting concerning Peterborough players and an attempt will be made to split these up so that one team cannot monopolize their talents.

There is a rumor that if Campbellford does not ice a team for the coming season, the Peterborough Brintons might like to play their home games on Campbellford ice. If this works out it will enable Campbellford to adopt a team to root for and should do much to keep up the interest in TVL hockey locally.

There is room for four more rinks for the mixed rink bonspiel on Wednesday, Nov. 21.

The men's bonspiel on Saturday was not patronized as well as the committee had hoped. Maybe there were too many other attractions, and then maybe it's a little early for some of the boys.

The mixed rink bonspiel on Saturday night was a sell-out. It looks as if this is going to be the most popular event on the schedule. There were no less than 14 Mr. and Mrs. combinations in attendance.

Today the ladies begin the annual schedule for the Gibson Trophy.

The winning skips in Saturday's 'spiel were:

First, K. Bissett; second, G. Green; third, L. Moore; fourth, B. Ashmore; fifth, V. Brown.

The winning rinks in Saturday night's bonspiel were skipped by A. Ingram and J. Fanning.

Men's scores:

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Saskatchewan Roughriders, western Canada football champions, stopped off for almost an hour in Winnipeg Sunday night on their way to Toronto and the annual Grey Cup battle with the eastern Canada champions.

The contingent included a Chinese cook to dish up food for Riders during their stay.

The Rider crew will reach Toronto early Tuesday morning. Two special train loads of Regina fans will arrive Friday.

In Toronto a soccer game broke up in a riot Saturday. It was so hot that one player jumped over two fences and sped off in an automobile to escape irate fans.

The trouble started before Earlscourt Legion and Toronto White Eagles had played six minutes of the first half in their city league game.

Eagles' left back, Charlie Latocha, and Legions' halfback, Davey Cairns collided. The next thing the spectators saw was Latocha out cold, apparently from a punch by Cairns.

Legion officials claimed that Cairns had slung because of a "dirty foul" by Latocha. But the fans didn't wait to argue; they set after Cairns.

Cairns jumped the inner field fence, climbed the outer fence of the stadium and escaped in a passing automobile. Two other players were injured in the melee on the field behind him.

The second game of the series was called off.

At Chicago, Ben Hogan, United States open champion, Sunday was named golfer of the year for the third time in the four-year history of the Professional Golfers' Association annual poll of sports writers and broadcasters The little Texan's 164 votes represented 85 per cent of those cast in the poll. Hogan won the plaque in 1948 and 1950.

Runner-up in the 1951 poll was Lloyd Mangrum, followed by Skip Alexander, Cary Middlecoff and Jim Ferrier.

An error in the transmission of American Hockey League referees assignments Sunday night resulted in both Frank Udvari and Emerson (Red) Dunn reporting at Providence, RI for the Providence-Cincinnati game. Dunn was down to officiate in Indianapolis, where the start of the game was delayed until his absence was explained and linesman Harold Jackson assumed the referee's duties. Dunn was a spectator as the Reds and Mohawks battled to a 1-1 overtime tie.

At Lahore, Pakistan, England's Marlybone cricket tourists found their best batting form with a vengeance Sunday and scored 368 runs for one wicket to force a draw with Pakistan in the first unofficial test match between the two countries.

At Vancouver the general chairman of the British Empire games committee said Thursday the 1954 games in Vancouver will cost between $2,000,000 and $2,250,000.

Reporting to the final session of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, Stan Smith said the British Columbia and Federal governments will be asked for grants. He didn't specify what size. Smith said Vancouver had already promised $200,000 to be paid in four yearly payments of $50,000.

James Horrell, 36-year-old Toronto lawyer was elected president of the AAUC.

At Albany, NY, Eddie Waitkus, first baseman of Philadelphia Phillies, National League baseball club, and Carol Webel of Albany were married Saturday. Waitkus, 31, met his blonde, 23-year-old bride two years ago in Clearwater, Fla., where he was concalescing from a rifle-shot wound inflicted by a crazed girl in Chicago June 14, 1949.

Large Number At Anniversary Of Knox United

Large congregations heard the Rev. T. W. Hazelwood of Toronto preach the anniversary sermons at Knox United Church Sunday morning and evening.

As the Reverend Henry Graham Douglas, minister of Knox said in introducing the guest preacher, Mr. Hazelwood is no stranger to crowded churches. At his own, new Humbercrest United where he has been since 1935, Mr. Hazelwood must hold two complete services to accommodate the people.

It was the 41st anniversary of the building of Knox. H. J. McCannan, a member of the original building committee, was in the morning congregation.

Direct Preaching

At the morning service Mr. Hazelwood spoke with evangelical directness of "The Church We Need", illuminating doctrine with apt instances from his own pastoral experience.

"The church today is the greatest fact in history", the preacher said. "Crowns and thrones have perished but the Christian church goes on from strength to strength and the gates of hell shall not prevailed against it". His text was this last phrase of Matthew 16, verse 18.

Answering his homolitic questions on 'the church we need', Mr. Hazelwood said we need a deeper consecration ("we can all be better people than we are....a new power comes as we consecrate ourselves to God"); a church true to the teaching of God's word ("the Bible is the greatest book in the world ... we need to make it our guide book"); and a church that makes great demands on us. ("We need Jesus Christ our Lord, and to face up to the work He has for us to do".)

Mr. Hazelwood's illustrations were vivid and touching, his exhortations calmly forceful, particularly his plea to take "the word of God and read it". From it, courage and strength come—physically, mentally and spiritually.

Appropriate Music

The full choir, under the direction of William R. Potter, sang the anthem "O Light Eternal" by C. Austin Miles. Soloist at both services was the Baltic soprano, now resident in Peterborogh, Mrs. Lydia Picalis who sang in English at the morning service Gounod's 'Repentir' (O Divine Redeemer). The Junior Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Ross Williamson and gowned in surplices, sang an arrangement of a well-known 17th century tune to the words beginning "All Praise To Thee".

The friendly nature of the service was emphasized when the clergy moved to the vestibule after the recessional to shake hands and chat with people of the congregation. Half an hour after the service had ended people still lingered to talk and renew old acquaintances.

Evening Service

The preacher's theme in the evening was "Prayer Is Power" The congregation of St. James' United joined with that of Knox at this service, and its minister assisted.

Knox has just completed a renovation to its basement and Sunday School and administrative quarters. Special anniversary offerings were given to help meet these expenses.

Grace United Church Anniversary Service

A capacity attendance crowded Grace United Church, Howden Ave., on Sunday on the occasion of their third anniversary. Guest minister, the Rev. R. J. McCormack of St. James United Church, used as the text of his sermon "The unsearchable riches of Christ." The choir was under the direction of Mrs. William Turner and a solo was sung by Arthur Marshall.

The morning offering amounted to $300 and the total of all Sunday services was $475. This amount is to be used for a fund for enlargement of the present church building.

10,000 Letters Sent Out Contain Christmas Seals

Today, 10,000 letters containing Christmas seals will be received by residents of Peterborough city and county.

In each letter is enclosed $2 worth of Christmas seals, sent out by the Peterborough county tuberculosis association—an association which has since its reorganization in 1948 set as its objective, the elimination of TB in Peterborough county.

The steps taken so far include one mass x-ray survey of the county, an industrial and retail survey; by-monthly x-ray clinics at city hospitals for TB suspects and contacts and expectant mothers; pre-employment x-rays in business concerns; x-ray of all teachers, bus drivers, and other school help who are in contact with school children.

But the association has also taken on other aspects in this fight against TB, besides the preventative role.

30 In Sanitoria

At present, 30 people from the city and county are in sanitoria at London, Hamilton, Kingston, Toronto, Gravenhurst and Weston. The association is carrying out a program which not only makes their stay in the sanitoria more pleasant, but is outlined to rehabilitate them after discharge.

The association's executive secretary Mrs. R. J. Ward makes periodic visits during the year to the sans for discussion of problems. Other members of the association also make several visits a year.

In between visits the association helps the patients feel they have not been forgotten by sending parcels of fruit and other treats.

In the rehabilitative work, special grants from the association go towards the employment of rehabilitation worker at Weston san. Before a patient is discharged he talks over his future plans with members of the association. The association tries to find employment for him which he likes and which will not be injurious to his health.

Operating Table

This year the Peterborough association made another major contribution to the Weston san. —a $2,100 operating table which was formerly presented on Oct. 29.

It is for this work that the association is asking for public support in the Christmas seal campaign. Four groups in the city have already done their bit. City firemen the Mr. and Mrs. Club of George St. United Church, the Married Couples club of Murray St. Baptist Church and a ladies bridge club to which Mrs. Ward, executive secretary of the association belongs, have spent many hours folding seals and putting them in envelopes ready for mailing.

These seals, which are being received by residents of Peterborough city and county were folded by these two groups and Peterborough firemen and also a ladies' bridge club.—Parks Studio Photo.

My bed now ground-level and earth piled high around inside tent. Cheers." (He means his folding bed now is fitted into a tent-covered foxhole.)

First Wedding In 49 Years At Indian River Church

INDIAN RIVER, Nov. 19. — The little Baptist church at Indian River was setting for a lovely wedding Saturday afternoon, when Marie Veleta, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dunford of Indian River, became the bride of William Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Robertson of Lindsay.

Although built in 1902 this was the first marriage ceremony to be solemnized in the church. A white Bible was presented to the bride and groom in honor of the occasion. The Rev. W. J. Bingham performed the ceremony and the presentation.

The church was decorated with mauve and white 'mums, ferns, evergreens and roses. A cousin of the bride, Beverley Dunford, of Trent River, played the wedding music, and the bride's aunt, Mrs. George Elliott of Warsaw sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride's gown was of white satin, with roll collar faced with lace, fitted bodice with tiny satin covered buttons to waistline, and a full, gathered, lace edged peplum, falling in a graceful cascade over the skirt at the back. The long sleeves were finished with points over the hands. Her fingertip veil of silk net was beautifully appliqued with satin butterflies and flowers. Her tiara was of silver beads and pearls and she carried a bouquet of red roses. Mr. Dunford gave his daughter in marriage.

Maid of honor was Miss Verle Kidd of Peterborough, dressed in apple green taffeta with heart shaped matching headdress. She carried a bouquet of yellow 'mums.

Groomsman was Max Robertson of Lindsay, brother of the groom. The ushers were John Robertson of Lindsay and Lloyd Dunford of Peterborough, brothers of the bride and groom.

About 60 guests attended the ceremony and reception.

The bride's mother received at her home and she wore a dress of wine silk faille with white gardenia corsage, and black accessories. Assisting the groom's mother was dressed, in grey crepe with white gardenia corsage, and black accessories.

The couple left on a motor trip to New York. For travelling the bride wore a grey dress, navy blue coat and red accessories.

On return they will live on Aylmer St., Peterborough.

Guests attending were from Toronto, Lindsay, Lakefield, Campbellford, Trent River, Hastings, Norwood, Peterborough, Warsaw and Indian River.

Crystal Chapter Features 2 Draws At Tea and Bazaar

Ladies of Crystal Chapter No. 19, Peterborough, which is the High Order of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association, held their annual tea and bazaar on Saturday afternoon in the Green Room of the YWCA.

A delightful candy counter was operated by Mrs. A. Higgins, of Lakefield. Mrs. R. Maynard was in charge of the fancy work section and Mrs. M. Sproats, a member of the Grand Crystal Chapter, of British America attended the home baking table and also poured tea.

A doll dressed by Miss L. Elliotson was drawn for and won by Mrs. Sweeting. A feature of the bazaar was in the form of a grocery basket, managed by Mrs. L. Pickering, and won by Mrs. Hilda Legros, Water St.

Mrs. A. Smith of Lindsay received, while Mrs. F. Pilling and Miss R. Sexsmith poured tea. Dainty refreshments were served under the supervision of Mrs. A. Devall with Mrs. Gillespie and Mrs. Gibbs assisting.

The tea table was attractively laid with lace cloth and silver pieces and a centre bouquet of snapdragons and chrysanthemums was flanked by candalabrae.

A good attendance made the event a success and the Chapter will use proceeds to carry on their charitable work in the city. The convener in charge of all arrangements was Mrs. L. Burville.

Tickets were taken at the door by Mrs. O. Price.

Urge Employers Guard Welfare Of Women On Staff

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian industry might as well try to keep its women employees happy because it has a lot of them. And—as the government says—it probably will have more.

In the latest issue of its industrial health bulletin, the health department says that more than 1,100,000 women now work in Canadian industry. Further, "in all probability there will be more of them as national needs require a greater and greater industrial effort."

The department warns that women usually are more critical than men of workroom and sanitation conditions. They are ill more frequently and lose more time from work. On the other hand, their absences are shorter than those of men.

Women entering industry for the first time, says the article, often require a period of adjustment to the new environment. During this they may be subject to fatiguing mental stress.

Experience during the war showed that properly trained women were capable of performing almost all types of work except those involving excessive muscular work.

Avoid Long Hours

"Excessively long hours of work if maintained for any length of time have been shown to lead to a decrease in output, an increase in time lost because of sickness, an increase in absence without permission, an increase in spoiled work and an increase in accidents."

"Most authorities recommend a maximum work week of 48 hours for women and a reduced work week of 36 hours for those with heavy household duties," said the article. It added that married women appeared to have somewhat higher sickness rates than single women. This might be because married employees usually had more household duties than single women. This placed an extra strain on them and led to greater fatigues.

"Experience seems to indicate further that a rest interval of about 10 minutes in the middle of each four-hour shift increases output and reduces fatigue in both women and women workers," it said. "Minimum of 30 minutes is essential for the lunch period."

Canadian Girls Shorter Than Those In US

TORONTO (CP)—While "PCT" may mean "pretty cute trick" to the man with an eye for pulchritude, actualy it is a style label in the Canadian women's wear industry.

At Lou Larry's suit and coat factory in downtown Toronto it stands for "perfect Canadian type"—meaning a gal a shade over five feet three inches tall and weighing between 120 and 125 pounds.

Mr. Larry, a statistics-minded stylist, claims to have spent 15 years trying to develop sizes suitable for Canadian women—ever since his five-foot-four wife complained that she couldn't buy clothes to fit her.

Couldn't Get Clothes

Mrs. Larry found everything she tried on either too long in the skirt for her, too broad at the shoulders, or too snug at the waist and hips.

Husband Larry's investigations uncovered the fact that the Canadian Miss—or Mrs.—is approximately one inch shorter than her American cousin. In fact, she's far from being the tall, lean model of fashion magazines.

He discovered that six out of 10 Canadian women are from five to five feet four inches tall and weigh anywhere from 105 to 140 pounds.

He prescribes uncluttered vertical lines for increased stature; softly sculptured hips to whittle away waists; smaller, more restrained textile patterns.

Canadians Find Houseboat Cuts High Cost Of Living

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

MAIDENHEAD, England (CP)—For six smart girls from Ontario, a 40-foot motor-cruiser moored on the Thames river represents a solution to the high cost of living in London.

The Canadians, all in their early 20s, arrived in Britain two months ago, brimful of wanderlust. They found living accommodation so expensive that they looked around for something cheaper. Result: a houseboat with six bunks, cooking facilities, and a weekly rent of just under £6, split six ways.

"So far we've had a simply wonderful time," said plump, jolly Donalda McPhee of Mount Forest, Ont., "with plenty of good weather for sunning on deck."

Eye To Business

With an eye to business, however, the girls' first thought was to find jobs in this red-brick Berkshire market town, set in beautiful country 25 miles west of London. Now all are working in a local factory, helping to make linings for automobile bearings, at an average wage of £5 weekly.

"It's a wonderful way of getting to know people," said Toronto-borne Beverly Britt, with her film-star grin and a New York polish to her Canadian accent.

First thing that struck the enterprising travellers was the difference in living standards. They thought it wonderful to get a full meal at a good hotel for the equivalent of about $1.50—until they found out how long it took to make that much.

Troubles at Times

Life on the Thames has its troubles, too. Once the river rose three feet overnight and willowy Jeanne McLean, who comes from Toronto, stepped into cold water early one dark morning while starting for the factory.

The three-cabin cruiser is too small for more than one at a time to move around the "dining room" and kitchen. "So we draw lots for cooking and chores," said Sheila Jarrett, also of Toronto. In fact, the girls draw lots for everything, including weekend invitations, the four bicycles they bought here, and the food rations.

Sometimes the Thames is a little hard to take on damp November days, and some of the girls plan to take jobs in London soon. These include Toronto-born Margaret Hurd and Claire Watts of Burlington, Ont. The others remain at the factory until Christmas, taking rooms in town. They will then all meet in London.

The girls wear jeans on the boat and at work in this provincial residential area, and are wondering what it will feel like to wear a smart suit again. Ages range from 20 to 23 and there are three bachelors of arts, two teachers and one prospective medical student among them.

"Right now we have no plans other than to be on the continent by April," said spokesman Donalda. They hope to see as much of Europe as possible before they return to Canada.

Norwood WA Meet

NORWOOD, Nov. 19—(ENS)—The Women's Association of the United Church met in the Sunday School room with an attendance of 27. Mrs. Armar Weir read a short poem to open the meeting and then followed with a prayer.

Mrs. George Gardner and her group had charge of the program. Mrs. Fred Gardner led in prayer and Mrs. John Loughton read the Scripture. Miss Ruby Gardner favored with two violin solos. She was accompanied by Miss Shirley Hope.

Mrs. Percy Allin took the topic "The accomplishment of a single life" and Mrs. George Gardner gave a reading. The Mizpah Benediction brought the meeting to a close.

A young man takes a girl out for dinner and dancing.

WRONG: He carries a pocket comb which he takes out and runs through his hair in public.

RIGHT: He keeps the comb out of sight, never combing his hair in a public place.

MOVIE COLUMN

M. Monroe Hollywood's No. 1 Gal

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19 (AP)—Marilyn Monroe, the atomic blonde, is the No. 1 Cheesecake Gal of Hollywood. She occupies the hallowed position held previously by Jane Russell, Rita Hayworth, and Betty Grable.

Aside from her obvious attributes, Marilyn is a serious gal who reads philosophy as well as movie magazines. Asked if leg art interfered with her dramatic ambitions, she said:

"I think cheesecake helps call attention to you. Then you can follow through and prove yourself."

Pays Off

After a year of minor roles, she is coming into her own. In "Clash By Night," she will get star billing along with Barbara Stanwyck, Paul Douglas, and Robert Ryan.

Unlike some gals with dramatic leanings, Marilyn has no objection to cheesecake. In fact, she was disappointed when a national magazine ran a story about her and featured a photo of her in a high-necked evening gown.

"They said they couldn't run cheesecake because it was a family magazine," she said. "Goodness, I don't think it would have hurt the homes to have had a little more exciting picture."

2 Sisters Want Canadian Mates

LONDON — (CP) — Two Scottish sisters want to know how to go about getting a Canadian husband.

The girls, both in their 20s, wrote to officials of Ontario House in London asking for help.

They said they wanted to get in touch with a "nice gentleman" preferably Canadian, with a view to marriage. They expressed a preference for "strong and healthy men, with reasonable intelligence and a sense of humor."

The girls indentified themselves as J. Andrew, 21, and W. Andrew, 28, living at House O'Muir, Milton Bridge, Midlothian, Scotland. They said they have blue eyes and fair complexion.

"It's a sanity test—if a man doesn't like to play with this there's something wrong with him!"

DOROTHY DIX

Charm, Wit Will Be Found Poor Substitutes For Food

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: Here is my problem. Not long ago one of the girls in my office broke her engagement to Michael. She told us of his mean treatment of her because she didn't cater to him enough. Recently at a dance, I met Michael! He took a liking to me and we went out several times. Now I am in love with him! He doesn't know that his ex-fiancee is a friend of mine. He is all she said he was—indifferent towards peoples' impression of him, carefree, sarcastic. When I mention marriage in any connection, he turns the conversation with a brush-off. Yet he is scintillating and, above all, possesses such charm and wit that he is above anyone I know in this regard.

What shall I do? Do you think I should continue to see him and not tell him I know of his broken engagement? Should I tell his exfiance I know him? I think she still cares for him. JOYCE L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Charm and wit are poor substitutes for real food in the cupboard, warm clothing and a roof over your head. They will not be very helpful when you are ill and need care; troubled and need sympathy; discouraged and need uplifting. When you are completely fed up with charm and wit, as be assured you will be, friend husband will be very quick to take these qualities outside the home and turn on the scintillation for some other girl.

People possessed of no other worthy attributes but a vibrant personality are seldom satisfied with a one-woman audience.

You've Seen It Happen

With Michael, you have had an opportunity to see how fast his personality wore off with one girl. Even though she may still care for him, she is sufficiently cognizant of his instability to keep from further entanglements.

If you do, in spite of all warnings, continue to see Michael, it's only fair to all concerned to tell him and his ex-fiancee that you know them both. It will also save future trouble and complications for you. Eventually it will come out, possibly under embarrassing circumstances. Furthermore, the news might give you additional insight into Michael's character. He might resent the fact that you know more about him than he is aware, to date, and his reactions are likely to be very revealing.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a bride of five months, married to a truly wonderful man. Before I met him, I was engaged to another man. During the courtship, he gave me some beautiful pieces of jewelry, which he told me to keep after the engagement was broken. Now my husband insists that I should not wear the jewelry. What can I do? The gifts have no sentimental value and I wear them as I would anything I had bought for myself. MARGIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your husband's sensibilities in this matter are very understandable, and should be given consideration. Regardless of the value of the jewelry and how little sentiment you attach to it, he is going to have at least a slight pang of jealousy every time he sees you wear it. Why not pack it away, or give it to a friend? Don't stir up needless trouble by insisting on your own way.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going with a boy for the past four months, and my girl friend also has had a boy friend that long. We are now wondering if it would be appropriate, since their birthdays are both in December, if we should give them gifts, and also gifts on Christmas. My birthday is in December, too, and I do not want my boy friend to feel obligated to give me something if I give him a present first. JUDY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Attractive cards would be the best remembrance of the birthdays. If you have been going out with these boys very often, a small present at Christmas would be quite proper. Don't indulge in anything elaborate or expensive; if you knit, socks would be a splendid gift. Otherwise, a simple thing you are sure they will like (and note their conversation for a good idea) will be deeply appreciated. Cards for Christmas, too, of course.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Making Of Apple Pie For Perfectionists

I'm sure I've told you before of my cousin's uncle's sister-in-law in Chicago who makes an apple pie every afternoon for dinner the same night and has been doing it for 27 years now and the crust is as tough as leather. Her husband is slowly fading away from dyspesia, ennui and hopeless melancholy. Of course I wouldn't dream of saying that any of you would serve an apple pie every day—to say nothing of a tough-crusted one (even if you didn't read this column) but I know you are so eager for new recipes or to improve the old favorites that this is pure apple pi-ety.

Pastry For Apple Pie

Sift pastry flour. For one 9" pie measuring 2¼ cups and add ¾ teaspoon salt and sift into bowl. Add two-third cup best quality shortening or one-third cup best shortening and butter. Cut or blend this into the flour until it resembles coarse meal. Sprinkle 4 or 5 tablespoons ice water over and cut in quickly until flour mixture is barely moistened. Divide into halves and roll out one half on floured board to ⅛" thickness. Fit over deep pie plate and trime off edges. Fill with sliced apples (see below). Roll out top crust pricking it all over with tines of fork or slashing it a centre to allow steam to escape. Moisten edge of bottom crust when pie is filled with apples and sugar and spices and put on top crust sealing edges carefully. If desired, brush top with mixture of one tablespoon each sugar and milk. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for ten minutes then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. to finish baking—about another 35 or 40 minutes or until apples are tender when tested with a tooth pick.

Good Apples For Pies

There are only certain apples that are suitable for making pies. Others will remain wooden or else become too mushy in cooking. And if the apples are the wrong kind, no special treatment in the kitchen will reform them. The following is a list of excellent apples, for the four seasons of the year:

FALL: Maiden's Blush, Wealthy, Jonathan.

WINTER: Spitzenburg, Northern Spy, Rome Beauty, Rhode Island Greening, Baldwin.

SPRING: Yellow Newton.

SUMMER: Yellow Transparent, Gravenstein, Duchess of Oldenburg.

Pare, core and slice the apples at the last minute, so that there is no time for them to darken by standing. If they are cut in very thin slices, they are more likely to be cooked by the time the crust is baked. A pie pan eight inches in diameter and one inch deep will require about one quart of sliced apples. The amount of sugar may vary from ¼ of a cupful to one whole cupful or even more, per quart of apples. Sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg. Bake as instructed above.

Capitol Apple Pie

One cup sugar, one cup unsweetened pineapple juice (canned), 6 medium-sized tart apples, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 tablespoon butter. Put the sugar and pineapple juice on to boil. When mixture boils, add the apples, which have been pared, cored and cut in fourths. Cook slowly, uncovered, until the fruit is tender, moving the apples barely enough to keep them covered with the syrup. In this way the fruit is kept whole. Lift the apples out carefully with a spoon and lay them in a pie pan lined with unbaked pastry. Dissolve the cornstarch in a little cold water (about 2 teaspoons) and add to the syrup. Cook several minutes (about 5) or until the syrup thickens. Add the vanilla and butter and pour over the apples in the pastry-lined pan. Cover with criss-cross strips of dough. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes and at 350 deg. Fahr. for 35 minutes.

AND THE WIFE SAID—

"Well—of course, we might have changed to Mother Parker's long ago, but I thought you were satisfied with the tea I'd been getting."

"What did you say?"

"Well! I thought I was satisfied till we had some Mother Parker's at Clara's last week."

"And then you tasted a difference?"

"Oh gosh, yes, its quality and flavour are right out of this world."

"Yes, no wonder they say it's Ontario's fastest selling Tea."

Officer's Premonition Good One

Little Group Of RCR's Battles Chinese, Takes Heavy Toll

By RIAL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Nov. 19 (CP) — The young Toronto lieutenant had beer and a premonition on his 25th birthday—Friday, Nov. 2.

He decided to share both with his section leaders, and called them to his command post on the isolated outpost position, 600 yards ahead of the main defence line.

Ed Mastronardi of the 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment had seen an attack there once before by the Chinese and had wired and booby-trapped the area thoroughly after beating them off.

"Boys," he told his three section leaders as he handed each a quart of carefully-hoarded beer, "I have a feeling they're going to come in tonight, and in strength."

He outlined his plan of battle and the men went back to their sections.

No sooner were they back than the enemy attacked.

First —ves blew up on the mines. The Chinese used machettes to chop the barbed wire fence from its steel-peg moorings, then used dead and wounded comrades as gangplanks over the mines. Individual Chinese with bangalore torpedoes strapped to their bodies wriggled through the wire, reached the inner perimeter and detonated the torpedoes, blowing a gap "wide enough to drive two city buses abreast through it," said Maj. Dick Medland of Toronto, the company commander.

Tried Hard

Some of the wrigglers blew up with their torpedoes. Others were killed before they could detonate them. Altogether 14 bangalore men tried to get into the position.

Cpl. Jack Sargeant of Owen Sound reported them coming on his position in waves.

Mastronardi called down artill— and the first attack was broken off before the position was penetrated. "We threw toc-san (Japanese for 'very much') grenades—it was a grenade war," said the lieutenant afterward.

The second attack came in at 10.30. "They blew bugles and whistles and shot flares," said the young commander. "They blew gaps in the wire—but they never got through them. Our machine-guns were laying down so good a defensive fire that the attack broke up and again they pulled back."

There was sporadic fighting then until three in the morning—"when they came in under a terrific volume of fire." In support the Chinese had two tanks, medium machine-guns, light machine-guns, mortars and heavy artillery. At close quarters they used phosphorus grenades.

Heaviest Fire

"It was the heaviest fire I've ever experienced—and it was from the resulting shrapnel that I got most of my casualties," Mastronardi said. "By then we were out of grenades and almost out of ammunition. We had been fighting almost nine hours. And there were enemy on both sides and behind us.

"I ordered the forward Bren—its No. 1 was Pte. E. R. Bauer of Winnipeg—to pull back. By this time there was quite a pile of dead in front of its position, and also in front of Sargeant, who was using a Sten gun."

There was a particularly troublesome machinegun on the ridge behind the outpost. So Mastronardi and Sargeant scaled the slope shoulder to shoulder, the officer using a Burp gun he'd taken from a dying Chinese and Sargeant his Sten. They knocked the gun out of action, killing one of its crew and then returned to the platoon.

Sargeant was detailed to take five men and knock the remainder of the enemy off the ridge behind, so that the platoon could fight its way back.

Organizes Wounded

Pte. J. D. Sharp of Toronto, stretcher-bearer, organized the wounded in the middle of the formation. He checked the whole position for wounded first, then grouped them "and by sheer drive and nerve got them to help us fight our way out as well as take care of themselves."

While the platoon worked its way back Mastronardi, Pte. C. W. Baker of Lunenburg, NS, and a soldier who later was wounded, fought a rearguard action, kneeling down to fire on the advancing Chinese, then pulling back a few yards before firing again—across 600 yards of countryside including the ridge Sargeant's gang cleared for them.

Last man out of the position was Pte. R. D. Kirkpatrick of Saint John, NB, the officer's signaller.

To hold the enemy at bay Mastronardi called down a curtain of artillery fire which lowered as he moved, always falling within 75 yards of his little group.

Checks Platoon Through

As the gap opened in the wire for the men to go through, CSM James Yates of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., stood with the company roll.

In the middle of the battle, with all hell breaking loose, Yates checked the platoon through, checked with Mastronardi on casualties, then turned to Medland and said "all present or accounted for, sir."

Forty-three Chinese bodies were subsequently found in the position. Uncounted more were in the artillery's beaten zone ahead. And an air observer the next morning reported stretcher columns "miles long" evacuating the enemy's wounded.

Next morning Mastronardi and his 14 remaining fighters went out to take the position back. They did—without a shot being fired.

Three-Party Fight In County

Two veterans of provincial elections and one newcomer are battling for the provincial seat in Peterborough riding. The veterans are the Hon. Harold R. Scott, Progressive Conservative, Minister of Lands and Forests, and William C. Grant, CCF, reeve of Lakefield and twice a candidate for Ontario elections in Peterborough county. The third man is F. P. (Paddy) Burke, Liberal candidate, the pre-sident of the Canadian Legion here.

HAROLD R. SCOTT

Minister of Lands and Forests in the Ontario government since 1946, the Hon. Harold R. Scott is running for the fourth time in a provincial election. He was first elected in 1943, and re-elected in 1945 and 1948, serving under three Ontario Conservative premiers—George Drew, Thomas Kennedy, and Leslie Frost.

Mr. Scott was born in Shawbridge, Que., 57 years ago, and educated at Lindsay Collegiate and the Faculty of Education at the University of Toronto.

During the First World War, he served with the Forestry Corps, returning with the rank of lieutenant. Shortly after the war he married Lucy Ellen Gray of Lindsay.

Harold Scott started in the lumber business when he was 16, working in a sawmill at Coboconk. After the war, he went into his own lumber business, finally settling in Peterborough, where he still lives.

Before accepting his portfolio as Minister of Lands and Forests in 1946, he gave up his lumber firm in this city.

Since taking over the department, he has built up the department's private air force to a fleet of 40 aircraft, and has made many contributions to the field of conservation.

In the 1948 election, Mr. Scott was returned with 10,257 votes. Charles Elliott, the Liberal nominee, won 7,729 and CCF-er John Morton, 5,927 votes.

WILLIAM C. GRANT

A descendant of early settlers of the lakefront, William C. Grant was the son of Howard Grant and Evelyn Louisa Lockhart of Hope township. Mr. Grant was born in 1911.

Educated in Port Perry, he spent his final high school year at Brantford collegiate, and after graduation attended Victoria College at the University of Toronto. After U of T, he attended Osgoode Hall.

After graduating from Osgoode Hall, he was admitted to the Ontario bar and opened a practice in Georgetown. Toronto and Orillia were the next brief scenes of his practice, and in 1940, he came to Peterborough.

Since 1943, he has lived in Lakefield, where he has been reeve for the past six years. He is president of the Peterborough CCF Association.

In 1934 he ran in the riding of Toronto St. George's now held by the Hon. Dana Porter. In 1945, he was CCF candidate for Peterborough in the provincial elections, when he was defeated by the Hon. Harold Scott, and this year he is making his third bid for a provincial seat.

Bill Grant was campaign manager for the CCF in the 1937 election in Halton riding, and has served as campaign manager in other elections in Peterborough.

F. P. BURKE

F. P. Burke, commonly known as Paddy, was born in Douro township in 1898, and received his education in Lakefield.

At the age of 15, he enlisted and was on active service in France before he reached his 16th birthday. While overseas he served with the Second Canadian Division trench mortar group, and was discharged with the rank of gunner.

Returning from overseas and after his discharge, Paddy Burke joined the Canadian Legion, and, for the past five years, he has served as president. He is deputy district commander and representative for Eastern Ontario on the Provincial command trial board.

His interest was not altogether focussed on the Legion. In other years, he has served on the executive of the Boy Scouts Association, and as chairman of his school board.

For the past 33 years, he has been employed with the CGE in Peterborough and is now an assistant foreman in the motor and generator division. He is a member of the Quarter Century Club.

In this election, Paddy Burke is making his first bid for a seat in the provincial legislature. He is the Liberal candidate succeeding Charles Elliott, who ran against Harold R. Scott in the 1948 elections and was defeated.

Cold Wave Moves Across United States

CHICAGO, Nov. 19 —(AP)—Icy air gave most of the United States a numbing chill during the week end and some eastern states had heavy snowfalls to go along with the freezing weather.

Snow fell for 24 hours in some sections of Pennsylvania, dumping 18 inches at Kane, in Northwestern Pennsylvania. Heavy snow also smacked parts of Ohio, West Virginia and Maryland, with 15 inches reported near Cleveland.

Cold, numbing weather extended over a vast area. Florida, in the path of biting northwest winds, reported the coldest weather of the season today. The temperature at Miami was expected to go down to 38 to 40 degrees.

Temperatures hovered near the 32 mark Sunday in southern California.

Aerial Support For Roughriders

WINNIPEG, Nov. 19 (CP). — Saskatchewan Roughriders will have some aerial support from the city of Winnipeg when they go into the Grey Cup final in Toronto next Saturday.

Six Mustang fighters from the City of Winnipeg, 402 (Reserve) Fighter-Bomber Squadron, will attempt to break through Toronto's air defences prior to the game.

The planes, carrying the blue and gold colors of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, also will carry large letters underneath so that when they line up in formation the letters will spell Regina. A challenge was sent this weekend to numbers 400 and 411 Reserve Fighter Squadrons based in Toronto to intercept the raiders from Winnipeg. The Toronto squadrons are flying Vampire jet fighters.

Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg will send letters to the mayor of Toronto and to the mayor of either Sarnia or Ottawa, whichever team is playing against the west. These letters will be carried by the reserve officers from the Winnipeg squadron.

New Members Initiated To Friday Club

President Don Whittaker was in charge of the first part of the Friday Night Club meeting in the Y.M.C.A.

Dr. "Murn" Walker acted as master-at-arms. Plans were made concerning the Christmas Carol service to be held in the Collegiate auditorium on Dec. 9th.

The second part of the meeting was in charge of Charlie Forsyth, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and the initiation officers, Ron Watson, Bill King and Bob Cutmore, all of whom are past president of the club.

During the induction ceremony all the members pledged to make the club creed a living objective.

The members of the executive were then instructed in their duties and were officially installed.

The third part of the ceremony, the initiation of new members, was held by candle light in the Board Room.

The new members joining the club were Ken Colmer, Al Northcott, Dean Wilson, Ron Wallace, Mal Chambers and Bob Oliver. The initiating officers explained the meaning of the Red Triangle, symbol of the Y.M.C.A. The three points of the triangle represent the body, mind and spirit. This means that members of a Y.M.C.A. club should endeavour to have a healthy body, a wholesome attitude toward life and a willingness to serve God and man.

The president welcomed the new members to the club and gave each a club pin and a copy of the constitution. Mr. Forsyth also welcomed the new members and brought the meeting to a close.

Printers' Strike Ends But No Paris Papers

PARIS, Nov. 19 (AP). — A 24-hour, country-wide printers' strike ended today, but Paris and most of the country had no French-language paper to read during the day.

The Paris afternoon papers said they would be unable to appear until tomorrow. The end of the strike did permit the French news agency, "Agence France-Presse, to resume operations, however.

The capital's two English-language newspapers, the European edition of The New York Herald Tribune, and continental Daily Mail, were not affected by the stoppage.

The strike was called by the printers' union in the Communist-dominated Confederation General du Traveille in solidarity with the printers of Marseille, who have been on a wage strike since Oct. 31.

Beer-Dollar Racket Worked In Korea

By JOHN RANDOLPH.

SEOUL, Nov. 19 — (AP). — The British pound is worth $2.95 or less in the world's exchanges but it will fetch about $4 out here.

It works this way:

Most US soldiers like beer. But temperance organizations back home frown on it. So the US Army doesn't issue much beer.

The British soldier also likes beer. British temperance socities probably don't want British soldiers to drink beer either. But Britain's army isn't so sensitive about temperance societies.

When the supply situation is good, the British soldier gets eight to 10 bottles of beer a week.

Now US soldiers, if underpaid in beer, are well paid in dollars. The British soldier, while doing all right in beer, is one of the more poorly paid soldiers in Korea.

Natural Market

The British soldier is paid his pounds in "Bafs." This is the word for British Army Certificates—the British military script.

So there is a natural market between the beer-rich British soldier and the dollar-rich American soldier.

It is a beneficial exchange. But the British high command doesn't think so. They say it smacks too much of the black market.

So the command made it illegal for British soldiers to use US money.

Soooo....the British soldier has to resort to devious means to get the dollar he gets for his beer changed into Bafs.

This is a lot of work. Naturally he feels he should have some reasonable compensation for his trouble. His US comrade-at-arms is willing to be reasonable.

Wealthy Indians Decide Auction Off Jewel Hoards

By ADRIENNE FARRELL

NEW DELHI. — (Reuters) — Shortage of ready cash is inducing Indian landowners and princes to part with some of their jewels and gold, accumulated in treasuries and strongholds throughout the centuries.

The "samindars" or landowners, some as powerful and rich as rajahs, whose estates are being compulsorily bought up for redistribution by the government, will not get full compensation for their land for many years. So many of them are preparing to sell some of the hoarded family jewels.

In the same way the maharajahs and other princely rulers, depite the privy purses granted them by the government since their states were merged with the Indian Union, find themselves short of foreign currency.

The best way to finance a trip to Europe or America, they find, is to sell off a few of the family rubies or diamonds for dollars.

Solid Treasure

Many of the princes and landowners have jewels enough to keep their families in affluence for generations, for there has always been a tendency in India to invest money in solid treasure.

Most Indians, of whatever class, as soon as they have a little money to spare, put it into gold or diamonds—either gold sovereigns, a gold bar to bury in the earth to provide a dowry later for a daughter's wedding, or gold and diamond jewelry to decorate their wives.

Frozen Wealth

This is still the practice, particularly among the middle classes and country people, and is partly responsible for the shortage of investment money in India.

But the economic stringencies of the times are beginning to bring out from the coffers of the landed and princely rich some of this "frozen wealth."

No one quite knows just what the jewel wealth of India may be. Many rulers made lists of their jewellery when their states were merged. But it is not certain that even these were complete.

One of the few to provide a complete and clear list of private property was the meticulous Nizam of Hyderabad, richest man in India, who had decided to sell most of his $28,000,000 jewel treasure to form a family trust.

Not So Well Known

The value and quantity of the jewels of Baroda, next most famous after those of Hyderabad, are less certainly known. They include the finest pearl necklace in the world, formed of seven strings, each pearl being of immense size, and a diamond necklace with two enormous diamonds known as "Star of the South" and "Shake Akbar."

The Jodhpur jewel house contains gems estimated at $8,400,000, including one of the oddest items of jewellery on record—a pair of scintillating diamond eyebrows, held in place by hooks over the ears.

Open College For Officers

The college, Eisenhower's idea, will impart a common defence doctrine to the forces of the 12 pact nations.

Fifty officers and civilian "students" drawn from all services will take the first six-month course in a specially-detached wing of the Ecole Militaire in the heart of Paris.

Nations will itake turns in providing the college commandant and his instructors.

First commandant will be Admiral George Lemmonnier, 55-year-old French naval deputy to Eisenhower.

Woman Officer Leads Moonlight Attack

WEST SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 19 (CP)—A woman officer, her long black hair gleaming in the moonlight, led Chinese Communists on an assault of British-held positions Saturday.

Described as wearing a black uniform jacket and trousers, she was in command during the entire attack. The Communists took the objective from the King's Shropshire Light Infantry.

She was all business. In her right hand she carried a pistol.

Man Surrenders In Traffic Death

TORONTO, Nov. 19 (CP) — Gaston Blanchette, 24, of Toronto, Sunday night walked into a police station and said he is the truck driver sought by police in connection with the Saturday night traffic death of George McMullen, 58-year-old mental patient.

Blanchette was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and with dangerous driving.

He said he decided to go to police after he heard a broadcast appeal by Inspector Vernon Page of the police traffic division for the wanted driver to give himself up.

Police said McMullen, a trusted patient at the Ontario mental hospital in west-central Toronto was killed by a truck when he stepped off the curb during a stroll outside the hospital grounds. Police said the truck slowed down after striking him and then sped away.

Garbo, Photographer Fly Off To Paris

LONDON, Nov. 19 (AP)—Greta Garbo and society photographer Cecil Beaton flew off to Paris Sunday with the one-time film star still doggedly using the alias Miss Harriet Brown.

Garbo has been visiting Beaton at his Wiltshire home for the past six weeks. But Beaton won't confirm reports of a romance.

In fur boots, blue rubber raincoat and wearing large dark-green glasses, Garbo brushed off reporters with: "Please, I don't wish to speak to any one."

Beaton said he didn't know if Garbo would return to England and he didn't know, either, if the two were en route to Capri, where Garbo is said to have taken a two-year-lease on a large villa.

Former Japanese Military Officers Admitted To Police Reserve Staff

By DON HUTH

KURIHAMA, Japan, Nov. 19—(AP)—Japan is pouring its strongest military alloy into the training crucible producing its national police reserve—the 75,000-man force being formed to maintain domestic peace and order.

In the most significant move since the NPR was formed more than 14 months ago, 405 career officers of the former Imperial Japanese army and navy have been admitted to its staff officer training school.

Their task is to maintain internal security, but if another war comes they will form the nucleus of a new Japanese army to help defend the country.

Candidates selected for the training school are former Colonels, Lieutenant-Colonels and Majors in the Imperial army and naval officers of equivalent rank. Their military careers extend from seven to 22 years.

Weak On Leadership

The NPR has been basically weak in leadership with prior military experience to weld it into an effective organization.

The Japanese government decided to enlist the former officers only after careful deliberation. The move was approved by the occupation forces.

Socialists in the Japanese diet (parliament) questioned whether training the reserve in the use of bazookas, mortars and machine-guns violated article nine of the new constitution outlawing war. Communists immediately renewed cries the United States was rebuilding a Japanese army of aggression.

Lt.-Col. G. H. Murphy, American advisor to the staff school, said he was impressed with the manner in which the former officers have taken to their studies.

"They are quick to learn," he explained. "They have shown eagerness to absorb everything we tell them."

Japanese and American theories on military tactics often are in sharp conflict. Take the matter of retreat. The word never existed in the Japanese Imperial army. A soldier was given a battle position to hold. He held it or died in the attempt.

Retreats Necessary

American instructors explain that tactical retreats are necessary at times.

The thirst for knowledge by the Japanese seems unquenchable. They rarely miss a class. Night study periods are voluntary but attendance usually is 100 per cent. Army training films are more popular than a weekend pass.

Grounds, barracks, class rooms, hospital, kitchen and dining rooms are clean and orderly. Personal cleanliness with the men is a passion. Huge Japanese-style communal baths are crowded every evening.

For the men who served in the Imperial army during the Second World War it is a revelation. They remember flea-ridden barracks with mats instead of beds, arrogant officers, meagre food rations and thread-bare uniforms.

Turbulent Pool Attracts World Salmon Anglers

BANGOR, Me. — (AP)—It may be hard to believe that a stretch of wild water less than 300 yards long could bring world-wide fame to a city. It isn't a place where gold is washed from the sand, nor is the water a cure for human ills. Nothing like that. But it has long been a hot spot for sportsmen who seek fish with bamboo rods and feathered barbs.

This turbulent water is known as the Bangor salmon pool, which is created by the waterworks dam at the head of navigation of Maine's big Penobscot River.

It was more than 75 years ago when a sportsman whose name has been lost walked to the shore of that part of the river and cast his fly onto the rushing water.

Almost instantly the fly disappeared, the reel screamed, and the stout rod buckled.

He lifted the rod to set the hook, and a bulging-bellied Atlantic salmon of nearly 25 pounds leaped high into the sunlight.

The Penobecot Indians had speared salmon there many years before when only a barrier of boulders created the pool. Salmon coming up from the sea to spawn liked that place of fast, shallow water.

In the old days, Bangor was a two-fisted settlement of lumberjacks and those who hired them to harvest the great white pines that grew in the north. Saw mills whined day and night and ships from all parts of the world were jammed into this part of the river. Bangor was then the largest lumber port in the world.

Became Famous Spot

But the news that a salmon had been taken on the fly in that frothy stretch of water led to the gradual development of one of the great sea salmon sport fisheries in the world.

The pine was soon gone. The bonanza was just a memory, but the river remained. More and more fishermen came to the pool, taking the hard-fighting silvered aristocrats on the fly.

The salmon, from 10 to 30 pounds, swarmed up the river from the sea in great numbers in the early spring on their journey to the spawning beds 200 miles to the north.

At the Bangor pool they rested before leaping over the dam and continuing on to the headwaters.

And as they rested, hundreds of them were taken every year by men who rode the boisterous rapids in pea-pod boats of canvas and cedar, and others who fished from the rugged shores.

Spread Like Fire

The news of that wonderful fishing spread like a forest fire before the wind. Soon sportsmen from many parts of the United States and foreign countries, too, came to visit Bangor and enjoy the sport.

Finally a group of local sportsmen decided to send the first salmon taken from the pool each year to the president of the United States. That was well over a half-century ago. Nobody can seem to remember the year, or the name of the president who received the first fish.

Presidents still dine on the sweet, pink flesh of the first one of the season.

President Truman and friends feasted on a 12-pounder this year that was caught by a Bangor man on opening day, April 1.

On motion it was decided to send a donation of $8 to the diocesan secretary of Little Helpers, Toronto.

RCN Admits Hoax, Fires Doctor

Reveal False Dr. Cyr As Ex-Orderly From Massachusetts

OTTAWA, Nov. 20. (CP) — The Royal Canadian Navy admits it has been hoaxed — spectacularly. In a 150-word statement it announced Monday night that the man who was acclaimed for a series of "brilliant" operations while serving aboard the Canadian destroyer Cayuga is being discharged for misconduct.

The Navy said the man is Ferdinand Demara Jr., 29, formerly of Lawrence, Mass., and not Dr. Joseph Cyr of Edmunston, NB, as he had claimed to be and as the Navy had believed.

In his capacity as surgeon lieutenant abdard the Cayuga, Demara collapsed a lung, amputated limbs and removed a bullet from near the heart in operations on South Koreans. One of the successful operations was described by Demara as a "hundred-to-one chance."

In Lawrence, Mass., Monday night the young man's father said as far as he knew the only experience his son had in medicine was as an orderly at Massachusetts eye and ear infirmary in Boston.

Near Genius

He said that as a boy his son "was bright to the point of genius. Things came easily to him and he read constantly. There was nothing bad in him. He always wanted to help others—especially those who were suffering. I have no doubt this attitude led him to the trouble he is in".

Ferinand Demara Sr., a motion picture projectionist, left Lawrence last night for Ottawa where he wanted to give authorities first-hand knowledge of his son "so he might be straightened out."

The navy said Demara's misconduct was fraudulent entry and he will be discharged in "due course." He is at present at Esquimalt, BC.

He was brought back under naval escort, arriving in Victoria by air from the Korean war theatre last Tuesday. He was lodged at HMCS Naden's naval hospital, seeing no one but naval personnel.

The hoax was brought to light a month ago through Demara's fame. Publication of a story dealing with his surgery and identifying him as Dr. Joseph Cyr of Edmundston, NB, led to a wave of inquiries in New Brunswick. Subsequently it was found that the authentic Dr. Cyr now is practising at Grand Falls, NB. He reported to Royal Canadian Mounted Police that his certification documents had disappeared.

Rates Change Sunday

OTTAWA, Nov. 20. (CP)— Higher local and long-distance telephone charges in Ontario and Quebec become effective next Sunday. The Bell Telephone Company of Canada yesterday filed new tariff schedules with the Board of Transport commissioners, based on temporary boosts granted by the board last week. The new rates become effective on five days' notice, and will go into force on Nov. 25.

Immigrants Top 125,000 Mark In Nine Months

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 — (CP). — Canada accepted 129,885 immigrants in the first nine months this year, an increase of 75,635 over the same period of 1950, the Immigration Department said today.

The total included 21,935 from Britain, 6,015 from the United States, 45,834 from North European countries, and 56,101 from all other countries.

The total from the United Kingdom compared with 9,804 from the British Isles in the first nine months of 1950.

The 20,376 skilled workers among the immigrants made up the largest single occupation group. Agricultural workers totalled 19,844.

Biggest Proportion

Ontario took the biggest proportion of imimgrants—72,045. A total of 27,524 went to Quebec, 9,649 to British Columbia, 9,078 to Alberta, 5,868 to Manitoba, 2,948 to Saskatchewan, 1,373 to Nova Scotia, 1,036 to New Brunswick, 180 to Prince Edward Island, 163 to Newfoundland, and 21 to the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Immigration in September totalled 13,228; highest month in the nine-month period was May when 20254 immigrants came to Canada.

Immigration Minister Harris has predicted that the immigrant total will reach 150,000 by the end of the year. The flow has been boosted this year through a government-sponsored assisted-passage plan by which the immigrant puts up a minimum of $30, with the remainder of the passage cost borne by the government.

US Plane Lost Over Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Nov. 20 (CP). — The United States Embassy reported tonight an American plane was fired on twice by Hungarian and Romanian border guards and now is lost over Yugoslavia.

The plane is a military cargo craft which carried a crew of four.

The C-47 transport, en route from Bavaria, Germany, to Belgrade, vanished Monday. United States authorities in Frankfurt announced an air search had been organized to comb the Northern Adriatic Sea area where it had been reported.

A dispatch from Budapest, Hungary, said the plane was seen twice by Yugoslav border guards, once near the Romanian and once near the Hungarian borders. The Hungarian government said it knew nothing about any missing American plane.

It is believed here that the plane was sufficiently far north of its course when least heard from to cause concern that it might have strayed over the Hungarian border.

The American embassy here said it has received reports that a plane similar to the missing C-47 was identified flying over the Yugoslav-Romanian frontier yesterday afternoon.

Margaret In Paris For Four-Day Visit

PARIS Nov. 20—(AP)—Princess Margaret arrived by air today for a four-day private visit to the French capital. She was accompanied by the Duchess of Kent, her aunt.

The princess will meet some of the younger set at the British embassy at a small cocktail party tonight. She will attend a charity ball for the Hertford British Hospital Wednesday and is expected to lunch with Vincent Auriol, France's president.

Team Of Five Makes Toronto Raid

Bandits Disappear 10 Minutes After Robbery Starts

TORONTO, Nov. 20. (CP)— Five men today robbed a west-end branch of the Bank of Toronto of some $4,000. Witnesses said they carried out the robbery with "football-team precision."

The bank staff and four men and a woman customer were ordered to lie on the floor while the men scooped bills into two shopping bags.

Then the five robbers ran from the bank and disappeared. The holdup was over in 10 minutes.

The bank is at Roncesvalles and Dundas Streets in the West-end.

Police said they did not know definitely whether the bandits used a car in their escape.

Eye-witnesses said each of the bank's seemed to be working on carefully-prepared instructions, and knew exactly what he was supposed to do.

One Hid Face

Bank employees said three men entered the bank and two others stayed outside. One of the three inside tried to hide his features.

"He seemed to be the guy who was giving the orders, but he did not want any of us to see his face," a bank employee said.

Another employee said the men "worked like a football team after it has been given its signal by the quarterback."

Shoppers and residents around the bank knew nothing of the holdup until police arrived.

Two bandits leaped over the counter and scooped money into two shopping bags. The third kept the employees and customers covered..

The bank is a short distance north of the Wright and Roncesvalles branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce which was

Hope To Halt Plasma Strike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)— Mediators early today reached an agreement which they hope will halt a strike threatening to pinch off the flow of blood plasma to the armed forces.

Terms of the agreement still must be approved by members of the United Chemical Workers' Union (CIO), who had threatened to quit work at the Sharp and Dohme blood processing plant in West Point, Pa..

A vote will be taken at a meeting called for tonight in Philadelphia.

Terms were not announced.

The chemical workers authorized a strike by midnight tonight, if no settlement of a new contract is reached before then.

Britain Seeks Aid From US Under Security Pact

LONDON, Nov. 20. (Reuters)—Britain revealed today she has told the United States she wants a share of financial aid under the new American Mutual Security Act. The announcement was made by Richard A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in a written parliamentary statement to a Labor member's question. Cyril Bence asked: "What measures have been taken to secure an interim distribution of dollar aid before the end of the year?"

Butler replied that he assumed Bence meant the provision made by the United States under the Mutual Security Act to support North Atlantic defence.

Have Made Request

He added: "We have made it known to the United States authorities that the British government expects to receive its due share of any such support."

The British decision to seek aid has been dictated by a grave balance of payments position and increasing inability to pay dollars for imports.

Without prompt American help, the economic crisis could jeopardize Britain's defence program.

UN Soldiers Retake Hill

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 20 (AP)— Allied infantrymen recaptured a hill at dawn today, a few hours after losing it to 600 attacking Chinese.

The fight west of Yonchon was the only action reported on the western Korean front.

In the east, allied infantrymen hacked out gains of 800 yards as they pushed forward along the ridges northwest of the Punch Bowl.

In the Yonchon hill fight, an estimated Communist battalion charged up the slopes about 3 am Allied infantrymen pulled back slowly.

Two hours after the battle began, the United Nations infantrymen counterattacked. Most of the Reds got out of the way, and the allies soon were back in their positions.

Women Shop By Boat As Thames Floods

LONDON, Nov. 20 (Reuters)— Housewives went shopping by boat today in parts of the Thames valley flooded after heavy rains.

Though the rains held off during the night, the river rose several feet in many parts.

Businessmen living near Reding, Berkshire, were carried to their commuter trains by punt.

A 19-month-old baby was drowned in flood water near his home in Trotton, Sussex.

Flood water covered large areas of the King's grounds at Windsor Castle.

New Flood Threat Appears In North Italy

ROVIGO, Italy, Nov. 20 (AP)— Threats of new floods in the already-devastated Po River delta appeared today following heavy rains through northern Italy. More than 100 deaths already have been recorded.

At Turin, nearly 200 miles to the northeast, the level of Italy's mightiest river rose three feet last night. Many Po tributaries were approaching flood stage across the country.

Water was running in the streets of Gallarate, a town of 24,800 north of Turin. Damage to the electric power plant plunged the town into darkness last night.

Flooding rivers threatened to overflow Lake Lugano, along the Italian-Swiss border.

Rescue Force Works

In stricken Rovigo province and the Po River delta—scene of the greatest damage in the Po valley during the last 10 days—a huge rescue force continued to clear danger spots of remaining inhabitants.

A fleet of planes — British, American and Italian — supplied food and medicine to those marooned in the flood area.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi and his cabinet began deliberating on measures to care for the huge refugee population — estimated at 200,000—and to meet the staggering reconstruction bill.

Relief funds running into millions of lire already have been donated by Italians, along with tons of food, clothing and blankets.

Gloucesters Leave For Home

PUSAN, Korea, Nov. 20 (AP) —The glorious Gloucestershire Battalion, all that was left of it, left today for Britain and Christmas after more than a year of service in the Korean war.

The battalion was hardly the same one that landed here Nov. 7, 1950.

Of those returning, only 15 were survivors of last April's murderous battle of the Imjin, when the Gloucesters were trapped and almost wiped out in a hopeless two-day stand.

The rest of the original 600 officers and men—save for a few evacuees and wounded—are dead or missing.

Most of the officers and men who filled the battalion's ranks today are replacements poured in from Japan after the disaster. With the new men, the battalion reorganized and fought through the bloody fall offensive back across the Imjin.

The Gloucesters also carried with them the American distinguished unit citation conferred on the battalion by order of President Truman after the Imjin fight.

CCL Asks Action Against Fixed Retail Prices

OTTAWA, Nov. 20, (CP).—The 360,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor said today it favors elimination of resale price maintenance practices, but doubts the ban would bring much relief from high living costs.

In a 4,000-word brief presented to parliament's special committee on retail price-fixing, the Congress said it prefers to concentrate on price controls which it believes more effective in dealing with living costs.

But since the government and parliament had set "their faces like flint against public control of prices," the Congress would welcome action against retail price-fixing, which might lead to a "considerable number of small price reductions; a few drops of water in a thirsty land."

The Congress said resale price maintenance practices are an old story in Canada, and that a "whole string of reports under the Combines Inyestigation Act have noted its existence and condemned it."

There were reports as far back as in 1926 and 1927 which dealt with the Canadian drug trade, and there investigators had found clear cases of intention to fix resale prices. The Congress alleged there were other cases, such as in combines reports on dental supplies, optical goods, bread-making and matches, where the question of resale price maintenance showed up.

"Unmistakably, resale price maintenance limits competition," the Congress maintained. And anything which limits competition is on the face of it "at least suspect."

NATO Body Plans Defence Of West

ROME, Nov. 20 (AP) — The military committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met today to study further plans for defending the west.

As the aggregation of top military leaders of the western allies gathered, the Communist press unleashed an attack against the meeting. Signs in chalk blossomed on the streets during the night, saying "no to war."

The committee, made up of the chiefs of staff of 11 NATO countries and a civilian representative of Iceland, will pore over reports on the tentative plans for western defence.

The group will round up their findings on Friday for presentation to the NATO council, which meets here Saturday.

Porter's Legs Broken As Train Derailed

GILMAN, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)— The Illinois Central Railroad's Louisiana, 17-coach train from Memphis, Tenn., was derailed at Gilman today. A porter, the only person injured, suffered fractures of both legs.

Nine cars of the Chicago-bound train left the rails but all remained upright. Cause of the derailment was not determined immediately.

About 200 passengers were aboard.

Ridgway Reports Evidence 6,000 POW's Slain In Korea By Red Captors

TOKYO, Nov. 20. (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said tonight there is "considerable evidence" that Communists have killed about 6,000 Americans captured in the Korean war. A headquarters statement said the bodies of 365 victims of Red atrocities had been recovered. Of these, 254 have been identified and reported to next of kin as killed in action. The statement said the remaining 111 have not been identified. Public information officers declined comment on the report. Apparently it was issued to allay fears in the United States that there had been a sudden increase in American war deaths as the result of atrocities.

"Investigation has established no increase in the 16,805 total verified known dead as reported by the Defence Department in its November 14 casualty release," the statment said.

It continued:

Justifies Presumption

"Of the 10,836 persons (Americans) still carried as missing in action, there is no conclusive proof as to the number of dead, though there is considerable evidence to justify presumption of death by atrocity of a large number which may approximate 6,000.

"Neither the fact nor manner of death in idividual cases has yet been established."

A spokesman said the "persons" referred to as missing were Americans.

The statement backed up a recent report by Lt.-Col. James M. Handley of the War Crimes Section of the Eighth Army's Advocate-General (Legal) Department, stating that about 5,500 American prisoners had been slaughtered by the Communists since the beginning of the war.

Claims 13,000 Killed

In all, Handley said, about 13,000 United Nations' and South Korean soldiers had been killed by the Reds after being taken prisoner.

The Handley report caused a tremendous stir, coming as it did when UN and Red delegates were engaged in armistice discussions at Panmunjom, Korea.

The GHQ release contained a slight reprimand. It said:

Colonel Handley is chief of the War Crimes Section, Eighth Army, and is charged with the responsibility of compiling reports and investigating reported incidents involving violations of the laws of war, interrogating witnesses, collecting and preserving evidence, and maintaining records of war crimes indictments.

"His duties do not involve responsibilities for the reporting of casualties arising from the Korean operation."

Find Port Hope Ignores A-Bomb

NORT HOPE, Nov. 20 (ENS)— Port Hope was the target of a theoretical atomic attack Monday, but citizens went quietly about their business just as they had in "peace time."

In theory an atomic bomb exploded in deep water one quarter mile from Port Hape at 6:30 am, demolishing half the town, severely damaging another area and sending bewildered refugees pouring out along Highway No. 2.

The imaginary bombing was part of the second atomic warfare exercises carried out by the armed forces.

Port Hope was intended to represent Halifax and was called "Halihope" for purposes of the exercise.

Briefings to army personnel said: "unfriendly shipping" began leaving the harbor some days ago. The last ship dropped the bomb at the harbor mouth.

But as far as the citizens were concerned, it was just another peaceful day in town. There wasn't even a jeep to be seen.

Van Fleet Commends Work Of Canadian Army Surgeons

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (CP).—The 25th Canadian field surgical team, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, serving with the United Nations forces in Korea, has been commended by the commanding general, James A. Van Fleet, for resourcefulness and initiative.

Mentioned particularly in the letter from the Korean commander to Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of Canada's 25th Brigade, are medical officers Maj. Charles F. Egan, MBE, Kingston, Maj. G. G. Lippert, Kitchener, and Capt. William Crawford, London, Ont. Major Egan commands the unit.

Gen. Van Fleet wrote that the unit, which augmented the surgical section of mobile army surgical hospital of the 805th US army unit from May to August this year, came when work was unusually heavy.

Worked Tirelessly

"With the least possible delay this surgical unit showed resourcefulness and initiative in integrating themselves into the hospital, working tirelessly for extremely long hours in order that the wounded might receive prompt care."

He said that Maj. Egan Maj. Lippert and Capt. Crawford and the enlisted men of the unit had showed "the highest standard of professional ability and training and their unselfish contribution to the successful operation of the hospital as a whole was immeasurable."

"The zeal with which the unit entered into the active field operations and the tremendous constructive service which they performed on behalf of the allied wounded and in support of the common effort in Korea reflects the highest credit on themselves and the Royal Canadian Army Medical Service and exhibits the true spirit of the United Nations forces.

Britain, Russia Slow UN Debate

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP)—British and Russian jockeying for the star speaking position today forced a suspension of debate on western disarmament proposals before the United Nations' political committee.

Both the British minister of state, Selwyn Lloyd, and Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia want to speak last in the discussion opened Monday by State Secretary Dean Acheson of the US.

A British spokesman also said the "profound impression" created in the 60-member committee by Acheson made Vishinsky hesitate to answer too quickly. According to this view, the Russians do not want to appear before the world as spurning the western plan without considerable thought.

Despite pleas for speakers from committee chairman Finn Moe of Norway, the group adjourned until Wednesday.

Meanwhile unconfirmed rumors of small-power "mediation efforts" swept through the corridors of the Palais de Chaillot. Countries prominently mentioned as trying to find a way of breaking the east-west deadlock were Canada, Argentina, India and Israel.

(In New Delhi, sources close to the Indian foreign office said India, Canada and Israel were seeking a compromise disarmament formula, with India asking for abolition of the atomic bomb along with reduction of conventional disarmaments.)

Three Ottawa Fans Shiver For Tickets To Grey Cup

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (CP). — Three rugged football fans in sleeping bags and blankets spent the night on the pavement outside the ticket-window at Lansdowne Park.

The youths braved the freezing weather—temperatures dropped to 10 above—for tickets to the Grey Cup final in Toronto Saturday. The tickets were to go on sale at 9 am today.

The trios' attempt to get Grey Cup tickets is typical of the general frenzied demand in the capital.

But what about the Eastern Canada final Wednesday against Sarnia Imperials?

Ottawa Not Buying

Well, Rider coach Clem Crowe says he and his men have no thought of considering the game a walk-over. The fans, however—with the memory of the Riders 61-0 rout of Toronto Balmy Beach also of the ORFU, in a pre-season exhibition game—apparently do. Because they're not buying tickets.

Coach Red Douglas and his all-Canadian Imperials will arrive from Sarnia tonight but they are not scheduled to look over the Lansdowne Park gridiron until they move out there to play.

Coach Crowe waived a heavy workout Monday night because of the cold wind but Riders did go through loosening up exercises.

Unless the weather turns milder, Wednesday's game will be played on a hard field that may require the use of basketball shoes for some of the players.

Chief interest in the Rider camp is the condition of Bob Simpson and Bruno Bitkowski.

Eager To Play

Outside Simpson is eager to play although his left eye still is painfully bruised and swollen. He received a black eye in Saturday's game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Bitkowski with a twisted ankle is walking around and also anxious to play but he is likely to be given a few days rest with the hope that he may be in condition to take his defensive end position if and when Riders make the Grey Cup final.

Coach Crowe has linemen Gerry Lefebvre, Roy Battagello and Jack Morneau and backfielder Bernie Brennan to draw on if neither Simpson or Bitkowski is able to play.

Iran's Mossadegh Meets Egypt's Premier

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 20 (AP)— Two major foes of Britain's policy in the Middle East—Iran's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and Prime Minister Mustapha El Nahas Pasha of Egypt—met today for the first time.

Tens of thousands of Egyptians paraded with anti-British and anti-American slogans to welcome the aged Iranian, stopping here for a four-day official visit after a month in the United States.

Mossadegh's government already has kicked Britain's oil men out of Iran. Nahas Pasha's regime has ordered Britain out of the Suez Canal and the Sudan, but Britain's troops so far still hold military control of both.

Crowds at Farouk Airport shouted "Long live the enemy of the British" as Mossadegh arrived.

Federal Housing Plans Scored By Toronto MP

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (CP).—Government housing policies came under brisk fire in the Commons Monday night from Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton.)

He pointed to a 46 per cent drop in house construction starts in September—the fifth monthly drop in a row—and blamed it on government anti-inflationary policies which he asserted actually were anti-house-building measures.

He criticized the government for rescinding a provision, enacted by parliament in 1949, to extend an additional loan of one-sixth of building costs to private home-builders and said it thus had "torn to shreds" its promise in the 1949 general election campaign to stimulate home construction.

Hopeless Botch

Mr. Fleming clashed with Works Minister Fournier when he suggested that the government had made a "hopeless botch" of the building of the Prime Minister's residence. More than $600,000 had gone into the construction of one house.

Mr. Fournier, the Minister responsible for the residence, said the land had cost $140,000, the building itself $284,220, landscaping $56,978 and furnishings $108,937.

He asked whether Mr. Fleming was not proud that Canada's first citizen was to have an official residence and whether Mr. Fleming wanted the Prime Minister to pay for the furnishings out of his own pocket.

Mr. Fleming was one of a number of speakers joining in the continuing throne-speech debate.

H. H. W. Beyerstein (SC-Camrose) suggested the cropless farmers should receive federal compensation in the same way that assistance was given to the victims of last year's floods at Winnipeg and the fires at Rimouski and Cabano, Que.

Armand Dumas (L-Villeneuve) urged the government to continue its policy of assistance to gold mines through 1952.

Auguste Maltais (L-Charlevoix) felt domestic measures to fight inflation were of little value, since it was an international policy which should be tackled on that level.

Arthur Masse (Ind. L.-Kamouraska) proposed that the government take steps to control the spread between what the farmer gets for his product and what consumer have to pay. The farmer was not getting the profit.

Royal Meat Brings 75-90 Cents A Pound

TORONTO, Nov. 20 (CP). — Many Canadians will soon be able to get a taste of the Royal Winter Fair without leaving their home towns—when the beef and swine carcasses exhibited at the fair go on sale in butcher shops.

The carcasses were auctioned off today with the championship beef carcass bringing 75 cents a pound. The carcass was exhibited by J. W. Maus of Ayr, Ont.

Ninety cents a pound was paid for champion Wiltshire pork sides exhibited by Hugh Murray and Sons of Brampton, winner of the Brethour Trophy. Buyer was the first Co-operative Packers of Barrie.

Average price paid for the 24 dressed beef carcasses was slightly more than 60 cents a pound. Eighteen Wiltshire sides sold for an average of 48 cents a pound and 41 other pork carcasses brought an average of nearly 43 cents a pound.

VOTE TO RE-ELECT SCOTT

St. Laurent Cautions US Against Spreading Preventive War Doctrine

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (CP)—Canada's Prime Minister last night cautioned the United States against the doctrine of preventive war. Louis St. Laurent, in a speech before the Economic Club of New York which was later broadcast over the CBC's Dominion network, said: "There may be many who will say that . . . we should hit first before we are hit—that the best thing to do is to get the inevitable over with. The appeal of that kind of doctrine is likely to grow as the military strength of the free world grows," he said "In the next few years it may be that nothing will be so important as to remember that what we are doing is trying to prevent a third world war, not to win one."

Though convinced that the west would win if forced into war, St. Laurent said that even victory "will bring with it destruction, dislocation and desolation so great as to constitute a threat to civilization itself."

Warning that the democracies are faced "for many years to come" with living in the framework of a totalitarian system behind the Iron Curtain, St. Laurent said the only choice before North Americans is one "between the wise, patient and intelligent leadership of the free world by the United States" and a "rapid shrinkage of the circumference of the free world."

Supports US

St. Laurent strongly supported US leadership of the West. He said that while free countries may differ on tactics, they "cannot quarrel with the strategy of American leadership."

St. Laurent said that North America's importance in the world is not transitory. He added: "And though I have said North American, and though we like and expect to be consulted, we Canadians are realistic and we know that there has to be a proper relationship between power and responsibility; and that the US alone has the necessary power to support the required leadership."

To create a peaceful world it would be necessary to maintain military strength "perhaps for generations," the Prime Minister said. And this strength must be "too substantial to be challenged by any potential aggressor with any hope of final victory."

St. Laurent expressed the view that there could have been no North Atlantic alliance if American leadership had not been based "upon a consistent and clear-sighted foreign policy which has been pursued steadily . . . ever since the close of the war.

Urges Planning To Avoid Ruin

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 — (CP). — E. D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops), on Monday told the Commons that Canada may eventually be faced with bankruptcy unless plans are made now to finance social security measures and long-term defence expenditures.

Canada's defence and social security commitments now total $2,750,000,000 a year—nearly six times Federal expenditures in an average pre-war year.

"I am not talking blue ruin, and I hope that nobody will take it that I am doing so, or that I am advocating decreasing the present social security commitments of this country."

He suggested the problem could be met only by increasing the real wealth of the country—by developing natural resources.

Mr. Fulton said that with old-age pensions, unemployment insurance, veterans' pensions, and other social security measures, Canada is committed to annual expenditures of $1,020,000,000. The defence expenditures are estimated at $1,750,000,000 a year for at least the next five years. But no one could forecast how long the cold war will continue. It might be 15, 25 or 50 years.

Dysentery Rages Among Eskimos

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (CP). — An epidemic of dysentery or gastric influenza has swept a far-north Eskimo settlement, leaving one dead, a health department official said Monday.

An RCAF aircraft, probably from Goose Bay, Labrador, will fly medical supplies Wednesday to the embattled Eskimos fighting the disease.

The Health Department says it has scanty information of the exact situation in the Eskimo community of 28 on the Clyde river in the northeast part of Baffin Island.

A message had been received from a Dr. J. R. Judge at Pangnirtung on Baffin Island, 150 miles from the stricken settlement.

Dr. Judge, new both in government medical service and to the far north, had diagnosed the disease as a type of dysentery. Medical authorities here however think it is a gastro-intestinal type of influenza.

Truman Considering New Envoy To Russia

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP) —President Truman said today George F. Kennan is being considered for the post of ambassador to Russia.

Ambassador Alan G. Kirk has been anxious to give up the Moscow post. He has expressed a desire not to spend another severe winter in Russia.

Kennan, an expert on Russia, is a former head of the state department's policy planning staff. He now is on leave and serving with the Institute of Advance Studies at Princeton University.

Investigating Entry

The navy said Canadian immigration authorities are investigating the circumstances of Demara's entry into Canada.

He joined the RCN in March, 1951, using the birth certificate and medical credentials of Dr. Cyr.

"Although the entire background of Demara has not yet been ascertained, it is known that he has served in the United States navy on medical duties," the navy said.

"All the medical authorities in the United Nations forces in the Far East with whom Demara came in contact have testified as to the extensiveness of his knowledge of medicine and surgery and nothing has occurred to indicate either to the RCN authorities or to the authorities of other forces serving in Korea that he did not possess the competence of a fully qualified medical man."

Shortly before the shadow was cast on Demara's status, the navy had an article all set to go in its magazine, Crowsnest, dealing with the surgical exploits of the Cayuga surgeon. The article was yanked in time.

Two Candidates Will Run For Council

Two new aldermanic candidates entered the election field today. They are Grenville Lathangue, Mark St., and Bill Beggs, Woodbine Ave.

Mr. Lathangue was an unsuccessful candidate in the last election. He polled 1,713 votes and came 11th in a field of 12.

Mr. Beggs is the nominee of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL). He was endorsed as labor's candidate after he was appointed Monday night by a joint meeting of the council's executive committee and the municipal committee.

Mr. Beggs is president of local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), the bargaining agent for Quaker Oats production employees. His father, John Beggs, is also a member of the union and has often run for municipal office but was never elected.

He was in the RCAF during the Second World War and later played OHA hockey for the Legion intermediate team.

Mr. Lathangue is a toolmaker at the Western Clock Co. He is actively supported by young business men in the city. He is a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Two Aims

Today he pointed a finger at what he considered two vulnerable points in the civic administration.

"If elected I intend to see that civic expenditure is cut down," he said. "There's too much money being wasted."

Then he asked: "Is somebody getting the old city buildings for a song? Just what is being done with them? Is council keeping the whole business dark?"

He also said there should be some statement on whether or not the parents of children who damaged the empty city buildings are paying for the damage.

"The bill shouldn't be passed along to the ratepayer" said Mr. Lathangue.

Last year the labor council, representing CCL unions in the city, backed two aldermanic candidates. They were Alfred Barber and Orville Martin. Both were defeated.

This year the council decided to endorse only one candidate.

Churchill Won't Press Secret Session

LONDON, Nov. 20 (Reuters).—Prime Minister Churchill, bowing to Labor party critics, told the House of Commons today he would not press for a secret parliamentary session on defence if there was considerable opposition to the proposal.

Since Churchill announced Nov. 6 that he planned to hold a secret session—unprecedented in peacetime—the Labor opposition has objected strongly.

Refuses Statement On Atomic Proposal

LONDON, Nov. 20 (Reuters).—Prime Minister Churchill today refused to say whether he would seek assurances from President Truman that no decision for the use of atomic weapons in Korea would be taken without consultation with Britain.

Mrs. Barbara Castle, a left-wing Labor member, had urged him to do this.

Churchill said it would not be fitting for him to make a public statement now about matters on on which he hoped to have confidential discussions with Truman in Washington.

City Aldermen To Plant Trees.

Ten trees are to be planted on the city hall grounds Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, each by an alderman, as planned by City Clerk Outram, Years hence, he said last night, the members of this year's council may look upon them in their advancing maturity as souvenirs of a notably eventful term of office.

"Isn't there one for the Mayor," Ald Braund enquired.

"He's not in on this," said Mayor Swanston.

"Unless one of the alderman doesn't turn up," Ald. Young suggested.

"I think all the members should be present," said His Worship. "It will be a privilege to plant those trees."

No Friend

Ald. J. E. Gillespie touched off a burst of laughter with an obvious allusion to the group picture of the council taken at the city hall for the special edition of The Examiner for the occasion of the formal opening.

"I suppose our photographer friend will be there," he said.

"Did you say friend?" Ald. Doug Miller, presiding as chairman, interjected into the humor. "He's no friend of ours."

Two Small Fires

Firemen answered two minor alarms Monday.

Two hand pumps were used to extinguish a chimney fire at the residence of B. Mills 186 Edinburgh St. at 10.40 a.m.

At 3.28 in the afternoon an alarm was turned in when an oil heater became flooded at the home of R. Cannon 635 Union St. The heater was shut off and no further action was required.

There was no damage in either case.

held up last year in another example of team precision.

Suspect Escapes

Leonard Jackson, one of the men suspected in that robbery, was one of three men who escaped from the Don Jail November 4.

Another of the escapees was Edwin Boyd, 37, whom police regarded as a "master criminal." Boyd was arrested October 16, shortly after $12,800 was taken from a north-end bank.

Police charged him with seven Toronto-area bank holdups in the last two years. One of the banks was held up twice. A total of more than $30,000 was taken in the holdups.

After today's robbery, Boyd's description was broadcast to all police cars.

Swarm Roads

Police cruisers swarmed roads in nearby High Park, in case the robber changed cars or clothes along one of its wooded roads.

Further west, on the Queen Elizabeth Way, Provincial Police set up roadblocks

Police said that ever since the escape from Don Jail, they feared Boyd would stage a bank robbery to get enough money to flee the country.

Banks were given a description of the trio and warned to report immediately if anyone answering the descriptions was seen near a bank.

Chilly Weather Faces Voters On Thursday

TORONTO, Nov. 20. (CP) — Chilly weather is in prospect for voters in Thursday's Ontario election.

Fred Turnbull, chief forecaster at the Toronto public weather office, gave the following outlook today:

"Temperatures will slowly moderate today and Wednesday but a second cold wave will push southward across the province Thursday, bringing below-normal temperatures to most sections."

Plane Search Fails To Find Missing Tourist

MINDEN, Nov. 20—(Staff)—Little hope is held by members of the provincial police, Minden detachment, and the air branch of the Department of Lands and Forests, of finding a 24-year-old vacationer missing since last Thursday in the Irondale-Furnace Falls area.

An hour-long air search on Monday over the 16-square-mile beaver swale and swamp district revealed no signs to the searchers. District Forester George Philips, of Algonquin Park, in a departmental Beaver aircraft with Constables Alex Edwards and Al Hardy, of Minden, were of the opinion that a search on snowshoes when bush travelling conditions permit would be the only chance of finding some trace of the victim.

The missing man is Dudley Stumm, ward of a Buffalo Roman Catholic orphanage. He was vacationing near Minden with two priests, whose names were not revealed. Police said Stumm and one of the priests strolled into the bush last Thursday afternoon and became separated.

Rain Cuts Value Of Record Crop

TORONTO, Nov. 20 — (CP).— Rain and snow have discolored and lowered the grade of some Ontario grains this year, but there is more of it than ever before. The Ontario Department of Agriculture in its monthly crop report Monday estimated total grain production of grain at 219,085,000 bushels. The previous record was 218,000,000 bushels in 1918.

Average annual output for the period 1941-1950 is 155,214,000 bushels.

The report said about four-fifths of the sugar-beet crop has been delivered to factories in Chatham and Wallaceburg and to outside stations. Average yield was estimated at about 111 tons an acre.

It estimated the flue-cured tobacco crop at 137,500,440 pounds, an average yield of 1,295 pounds an acre for 106,260 acres.

Support Weakening On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 20 (CP) — Steadily weakening support today eased early afternoon stock market prices for their fourth consecutive decline.

Liquors drew firm support to form the market's strongest section. Foods, banks, textiles and retail stores held gains and losses in balance but utilities and constructions weakened. Papers, agricultures, steels, refining oils, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous industrials dipped sharply.

Western oils turned abruptly lower after a mixed, irregular opening.

Base metals weakened steadily. Consolidated Smelters dipped $3 while Hudson Bay and Noranda slipped $1.50. International Nickel and Quemont eased fractions. Barvue, East Sullivan, Fenimore Iron, Normetal and Tungsten lost pennies.

Senior golds sagged. Dome, Kerr Addison, Sigma, Hollinger and Wright-Hargreaves posted declines to about 25 cents. Secondary issues eased.

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 35c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Car Knocks Down Pole Near Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 20 — (ENS) — William Appleby of Hornepayne, Ontario, escaped serious injury Saturday night when his late model automobile went out of control after striking a bump on the Campbellford-Hastings road a short distance west of this town.

The car struck a guy wire and took out a pole, causing extensive damage. Many autos have come to grief on this section of roadway due to the rough surface.

Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine investigated.

Have Avoided Interfering Municipally—Goodfellow

COBOURG, Nov. 20 (ENS)—A fair-sized audience heard W. A. Goodfellow, minister of welfare in the Frost government and T. L. Kennedy, agricultural minister, speak on the achievements of the Frost government at a meeting held Monday night in the opera house. There was no wild cheering but the audience listened attentively. Chairman was H. O. Taylor.

Brief addresses were given by Ralph Locke and Mrs. Tatham of Campbellford, president respectively of the Men's and Women's Northumberland County Progressive Conservative Association and by Earl Drope of Harwood.

Mr. Goodfellow paid tribute to the party organization in the riding as the best in his experience. He declared that the Conservative candidates offered themselves for election with a record of performance behind them, not vague promises for the future. Government was not a magical drawing out of the hat but was simply a case of getting what you pay for.

There was a slight reduction in the dollar taken in taxes when given out in service as service costs money in its administration. Governments, he said, could spoil the people by giving them what they were able to supply themselves. Pointing out that his opponent had asserted that the government was interfering too much in municipal affairs, Mr. Goodfellow said that it had always been his own policy to interfere as little as possible with municipal government as it had been shown by experience that municipal governments did not like dictation from Queen's Park.

"We have tried as a government to do things which will help the people to do better jobs for themselves. We feel that we must avoid paternalism and must refrain from helping those who are in a position to do it themselves. But we have helped those who are infirm and a victim of circumstances under which they were unable to carry on.

"My opponent said out at Campbellford that if elected he would dissolve the school area. Now I wouldn't relish the thought of coming in and telling the counties council that they must dissolve a certain school area. As a matter of fact, the School Act provides the very means by which people concerned can have a school area abolished. The responsibility is that of the people. Now, Mr. Thomson says a lot of things which down in his heart he knows can't be done. Our budget was 240 millions but if we were to do all the things which he says should be done, it would be 640 millions," declared Mr. Goodfellow.

Colonel Kennedy praised the candidate as an "honest, sincere, farsighted man." He had more than once cut away red tape in order to help those seeking assistance from his Department of Welfare.

"Government does not mean spending a lot of time criticizing. You have heard the expression that the steam that blows the whistle never turns a wheel. Talk does not get things done," declared Mr. Kennedy.

In 1943 the government found a million chords of pulpwood going over to the United States but the situation was altered by making one half of that in Canada in the country's own paper mills because a cord of pulpwood sold for $30 whereas the equivalent in paper brought $81 in American money into the country. The speaker told of the good work being done for wayward boys at Brampton where 80 per cent never were repeaters. Schools were a great asset and the government had done much to assist the municipalities in that regard. The government had extended hydro until now 85 per cent of the farms had electricity and all that it brought.

The Decision Before Us

The election campaign which is now drawing to a close has been livelier than its issues would appear to justify. For there is no single large issue at stake: Mr. Frost's government stands firm upon its record of good government and invites the Ontario voters to endorse it once again; the C.C.F. under Mr. Jolliffe and the Liberals under Mr. Thomson challenge the government on grounds that it has been extravagant, and while promising to correct that extravagance they also promise new public benefits. Mr. Thomson, in particular, has promised a scheme of hospital care which would cover everybody in the province. There has been some sharp fighting: the Toronto Star has been accused of being in league with Mr. Thomson to procure the removal from Ontario law of the Charitable Gifts Act. Mr. Thomson, in fact, has been the chief butt of Conservative scorn, and so intense has this scorn become during the past fortnight that the impression has gained ground that the Conservative party is fearful that Mr. Thomson may either win the election or leave them with the hollow triumph of a party which cannot effectively carry on a government. But there have been, as we said, no large and clear-cut issues of the sort which everyone can understand, and about which everyone holds a clear opinion.

* * *

At least one such issue, we think, could have been found. For the past fifteen years Ontario governments—Conservative and Liberal alike—have taken powers from municipal government and kept them for Queen's Park. Municipal governments are now, to far too great an extent, choreboys for the government and beholden to the government for the privilege of spending their own money and carrying on their own business. Mr. Thomson has mentioned this matter in his campaign speeches, and has pledged to restore a proper balance. But in our opinion he has not said this loudly enough or explicitly enough. It is a good election issue, and it has been neglected. The Conservative party boasts that of its 90 candidates, no less than 54 have held municipal offices; this is supposed to fit them for work in the Legislature. Does it fit them, we should like to know, further to geld the municipalities of their powers? As the years go on, the provincial legislatures take on the appearance of glorified county councils. The passion for centralization of power leaves the municipal governments the privilege of collecting taxes and conducting routine business, but robs them of important autonomous powers. And the result is a stereotype Ontario city and town, repeated all over the province, and modelled after the wishes of the Queen's Park bureaucracy.

* * *

As always, we hope for a good turnout at the polls on Thursday. Everybody prates about democracy these days, but democracy is a shadow unless we make the fullest use of the democratic privileges which we have; the greatest of these is the ballot, and the citizen who has a vote and does not use it forfeits any moral right to complain of governmental conduct. It looks as though this might be a closely contested election, and every vote will count. There is no duty or pleasure on Thursday which takes precedence over attendance at the polls.

Engulfing Po

The rivers of Italy are unstable in their tempers. Even the narrow ditch which is the Rubicon can become a dangerous torrent in autumn. The greatest Italian river, the Po, flowing through the lush and beautiful Lombardy Plains, has now taken on the autumnal anger which thousands of Canadians have experienced from smaller rivers down the same coast.

Seven years ago this month the Eighth Army campaign up the Adriatic was brought to a standstill when these rivers flooded and the rains came, making lakes of fields and rivers of streets. When a great river like the Po misbehaves, the misery is multiplied a thousand times. It assumes the proportions of a national disaster. It is a national disaster which has now befallen.

There will be widespread sympathy in Canada for the tens of thousands made homeless; a sympathy sharpened by Canadian experience of grievous flooding in Manitoba and British Columbia in the last two years, and by personal knowledge which thousands of veterans of the Italian war have of smaller rivers in flood.

Armstice In Korea?

Hopes are now high that the fighting and firing in Korea may be stopped. It is indicated that tomorrow the Chinese answer to the American-U.N. armistice proposal will be given, and that it will be favourable. The main points of the American terms are: 1. Hostilities to continue until an armistice is signed; 2. The present battle-line to be a provisional cease-fire line; 3. This line to become final if a full armistice is reached within thirty days. These terms circumvent the contentious problem of a neutral zone between the two sides, where it would be and how large. It has been this, and the wrangle over final lines, which have blocked the armistice talks thus far.

We must not be deluded into believing that an armistice will end the Korean War. "Armistice" means what it says, a cessation from arms, a short truce. Because the Armistice of November 11th, 1918, brought about the end of the Great War does not mean that an armistice of November 1951 in Korea will be followed by a peace conference and a peaceful settlement of all difficulties. There are very many and great issues to be determined before peace will come to Korea. But an armistice would provide the quiet in which these problems could be discussed. The war in Korea is one of the most futile wars of the last hundred years; certainly Canadians have never before taken part in one as cruelly unnecessary. It is to be hoped that an armistice can be established and that this armistice will be followed by peace.

Will He Do It?

Before Mr. Churchill was elected to head the government of Britain he promised that, if returned to power, he would restore the university seats in the House of Commons. These seats were established in 1603 by King James I; Oxford and Cambridge were given the right to return two members each, and with the passing of time other British universities have been granted seats until there were twelve university members in the Commons. It was objected that this gave university graduates two votes—one at home and one at the university—and that this was undemocratic, and on these grounds the Labour Government abolished the university seats in 1948.

This, we felt, was short-sighted. The university members were, as a usual thing, Independents, and they were in virtually all cases men of unusual capabilities. What is more, they were men who would not have run for Parliament anywhere but at a university, nor would they have had much chance of election anywhere but at a university. Francis Bacon and Sir Isaac Newton—a philosopher and a physicist—were surely men whose presence in a legislative chamber would add to its wisdom, but they were not the kind of men who appeal to most constituencies. A. P. Herbert was certainly one of the ablest M.P.s of the last 25 years, but he could scarcely have been elected in Newcastle or Glasgow. The Commons is the poorer without such men.

It is undemocratic, in one sense, for university graduates to have two votes; strict democracy says that the philosopher and the man who just escapes disqualification as a moron, should each have one vote. But democracy also decrees that an election is a kind of popularity contest, and a man who is popular with university voters will not be popular with all voters; he is elected almost entirely on his brilliance of intellect; of how many other Commons members can this be said without sly smiles? We cannot see any violence to democracy if certain people vote for one man as a party man, and vote again for another man as a brilliant independent member.

Indeed, we have recommended before this that the system of university members be introduced in Canada. Nobody will insist that our Commons could not be made a more intellectually brilliant body than it is; nobody denies that the average popularity contest called an election returns some very odd types to Ottawa. A few university members would do the Commons a world of good. But we must first see what Mr. Churchill will do with the problem.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A young person in Hollywood claims to be "the youngest six-times-married girl in the world." Only four more times and she will have a ring for every finger.

In Britain's new Cabinet, the minister of state for Scotland is the Earl of Home, which is the trickiest way of giving Scotland Home rule that we can imagine.

A fellow named Waxey Gordon is on trial in New York on a narcotics charge. He is 63, and has been a criminal for 46 years. Probably a smooth customer, brilliant but slippery.

A hunter has been wounded because somebody mistook him for a partridge. Well, we don't dispute it, as we know a few men who look cocky and several others who look owlish.

Iron Curtain Is Mined

By
G. E. R. GEDGE
(in Vienna)

AMONG the advertised achievements of the Communist regime in Hungary, the one Hungarian achievement which is really unique does not appear. Other Communist countries (such as Czechoslovakia) prevent the escape of political refugees by the traditional methods of patrols of savage dogs and frontier guards who shoot at sight. It has been left to Hungary to imprison its subjects behind a physical frontier barrier.

This iron curtain stretches unbroken along the 250 miles of the Hungarian frontier with Austria. First of all, to allow the Hungarian secret police, the A.V.H., a clear field of fire, thousands of trees were felled along the frontier. Then wire was erected in two parallel belts, each twelve feet high and nine feet across.

BETWEEN the belts there is a chain of heavy mines. Every strand of horizontal wire is attached to a mine, and as the mine is exploded, a rocket with parachute flares should also shoot up, though this does not always work. Along the barrier are frequent patrols of armed men and police dogs. Austrian peasants living near the frontier tell me that the Hungarians are now laying a new belt of concealed mines deeper inside the Hungarian frontier to make it impossible for anyone even to approach and inspect the wire. The Communists say, of course, that the barrier is a protection against the intrusion of "fascist agents".

On the Austrian side of this frontier lies the province of Burgenland, an eighteen-mile strip of territory which in theory belongs to Austria but where in fact the writ of the freely-elected Austrian government does not run, since the strip is occupied by the Russians. In particular, the Austrian writ does not run in the matter of political refugees, in violation both of the Control Agreement between the Allies (including Russia) and Austria, and of the Geneva Convention.

THE Russians oblige the Austrian gendarmerie to arrest all fugitives and to notify the Russians, who then hand back these pitiful creatures to the terror of the A.V.H. The A.V.H. have no right to be on Austrian soil at all, but they are allowed by the Russians to roam their zone at will, looking for escapees.

Last month the A.V.H. even made an attempt to kidnap a Hungarian refugee outside the Russian officers' mess in the Hofburg, in the very heart of Vienna. A quick response to his cries by Austrian passers-by saved him; his assailants drove off in a Russian car. This incident led to the disclosure by a Hungarian mason, who escaped a week later to Salzburg, that he and other Hungarians had been working from July to October constructing cells beneath the Hungarian legation in Vienna under the supervision of the Hungarian secret police. They were not allowed outside the legation without escort. The Hungarian Minister has declined to comment on this report.

OF those who try to escape from Hungary in spite of the wire curtain nine out of ten fail to reach Austrian soil. Of the successful ten per cent who reach Russian Austria a further 15 per cent are picked up and returned to Hungary. Three weeks ago the curtain claimed its 50th victim since it was erected 18 months ago. He was, that is, the fiftieth victim to have been seen hanging on the wire by the Austrian frontier guards; probably at least three times that number have died on the wire without being spotted, apart from the thousands caught before reaching it.

Hungary has closed the area near its frontier to all non-residents; would-be escapees have therefore to manufacture excuses to get near the wire. One Budapest merchant, for example, having got into training by tramping unlit roads night after night for a month, arranged to have an action started against himself in the courts of a frontier town. Two days before the case came up he travelled down there openly, contacted an escape group and got out safely.

ANOTHER escapee, a young woman, obtained permission to rest for a week with a peasant family near the frontier. There she met two other women, each with a child of five.

"One day we discovered that we all had the same dream; to get out. We thought we kept our secret well, but one night my host said abruptly, 'You'll never make it alone. Escaping is a man's job. Can you all go tomorrow?'"

Some mines deteriorate with time. Others are blown by deer, hares or cats and dogs. Observant peasants notice when a route seems almost safe, and this woman's host was one of them. They went out, the man touched off a couple of mines with a long pole, levered up the wire and they all crawled through.

FOR most people, who are without local friends or knowledge, escaping is more expensive. For years certain Russians—running double-cross organizations—have made money by taking out wealthy fugitives in Russian cars. One member of the Red Army General Staff has now set up a secret escape organization in Vienna.

Then, of course, there are the double-double-cross organizations. A Hungarian was arrested recently who was running one of these from the American sector of Vienna. His racket was first of all to betray rich fugitives to the Hungarian secret police for "plucking", then to "rescue" them from the secret police for further cash, and lastly to take them through the wire or sell them back to the Hungarians again, whichever paid him better.

These are the sort of desperate hazards that refugees are prepared to risk on the off chance that they will reach the straw sacking and the three blankets of the British-run quarantine camp. After the escape, if it is successful, they can look forward to little better than the drudgery of an Austrian farm, hard work in an Austrian labour battalion or to the short but well-paid life of a French Foreign Legionary in Indo-China. Only the luckiest reach their goal of Canada, Australia or the United States. Yet the refugees still come—fifty or sixty survivors a month of the A.V.H. and the death-traps among the wire.

(Special to the Peterborough Examiner from the London Observer.)

NOT FUR-LINED

A fellow was shaving in the open air when one of his friends came along.

"Do you always shave outside?" the friend inquired.

"Of course," the chap answered, "do you think I'm fur-lined?"

"WHY DON'T YOU PLAY BALL WITH HIM?"

The Butler's Place

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

A RECENT statement on unemployment in Great Britain says that positions for butlers have now become very rare. An effort is being made to direct butlers to some other form of employment.

This statement brings curious reflections to the mind. It is somehow hard to picture the butler—imperturbable, aloof, and serene—as being readily absorbed into other less decorous occupations.

Readers of P. G. Wodehouse will remember the incomparable dignity of Jeeves. "There was another ring at the front door. Jeeves shimmered out and came back with a telegram." It is not easy to see how the art of shimmering (acquired by long and devoted practice) would be regarded as an occupational skill of general usefulness.

Nor is the impeturbable butler merely a figure out of fiction. An anecdote about just such a butler appears in The Autobiography of Sir Patrick Hastings, the English barrister. Once Sir Patrick went to a dinner party, at which Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree was present. A dispute arose as to the correct manner of depicting the death of Hamlet. Some of those present favoured a painful and gymnastic death. Others (including Tree himself) were more inclined towards grace and elegance. In the end the guests supported their arguments with demonstrations. As the result, they were all lying around the table as dying Hamlets.

At that moment the butler brought in the fish. Neither his face nor manner betrayed the slightest astonishment at the strange spectacle that met his eyes. He stepped over the recumbent forms in turn, continuing his duties, and left the fish upon the table until such time as any weary Prince of Denmark might care to resume his seat and dinner.

It has been suggested that some butlers might find suitable employment as floor walkers. Possibly, but surely only in elegant establishments. It is difficult to imagine even Jeeves shimmering out of a crowd of bargain hunters.

Alas! the poor butler. Having long developed the art of knowing his place, his place now knows him no more.

How Old Are You?

(BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR)

THIS newspaper has pointed out repeatedly that the doctrinaire notion that a man is too old, after 45 or thereabouts, to do a good job of work is a stupid and dangerous fallacy. It has acknowledged some of the reasons for this belief and some of the impediments to the employing of men of middle age. These obstacles include some pensions and insurance schemes—and some trades union requirements in the matter of seniority rights and so forth.

Still, when all the lesser points are disposed of, the plain fact remains that many men in their forties and fifties are at the prime of their usefulness to employers. By virtue of acquired experience, maturity and steadiness alone they are often worth more than younger employees.

Shortly after the British election, it was remarked in these columns that Mr. Churchill was not "too old" at 77 and that most of the members of his ministry were well into middle age if not older.

The Reader's Digest, by coincidence, now pursues the same line of argument. It agrees that, in the business and professional worlds, the emphasis is increasingly on youth. A man over 50, suddenly out of work, finds virtually no job opportunities capable of utilizing the ability and experience he may possess. Life expectancy today is greater than ever in recorded history, yet the age of 55 has become, for thousands, the point for retirement.

Dr. Martin Gumpert, writing in The New York Times Magazine, from which The Digest makes its condensation, challenges this idea of putting still able individuals on the shelf.

On a recent trip to Europe, the doctor visited a number of "oldsters"—and found them far from decrepit or ready to "call it a day".

He found Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, former premier of Italy and one of the Big Four at Versailles, an active member of the Italian Senate, head of a law firm, and professor in the University of Rome. Signor Orlando is 91.

Dr. Raffaele Bastianelli, internationally famous surgeon, operates three times weekly, has daily consulting hours, drives his own car and, until five years ago, flew his own plane. He is 87. Benedetto Croce, widely known philosopher, lectures and writes through a 10-hour working day. Of course he is only 85. Bernhard Berenson, art historian, has just published a book. He, too, is 85. He wishes, he says, that he could "stand on a corner with his hat and beg people to throw him their wasted hours."

George Santayana, former Harvard professor and one of the greatest of modern philosophers, now resident in Rome, still writes steadily and lucidly at 87. Edouard Herriot of France presides at the National Assembly three days a week and drives to Lyons every Saturday; he is mayor of that city. His age? A mere 79.

Another active oldster, who is old in years only, is Lord Russell, by his own preference and almost exclusively known as Bertrand Russell. Despite some narrow-minded detractors (including those who appear to resent his inclusion in some of the better CBC programs), he is, in the estimation of many competent appraisers, the world's greatest living philosopher, and certainly one of the most versatile and active. He is 79. Need more be said? Yes—and by the quasi-experts and short-sighted theorists in industry and elsewhere who cling so foolishly and so unjustly to the too-old-at-45 superstition.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

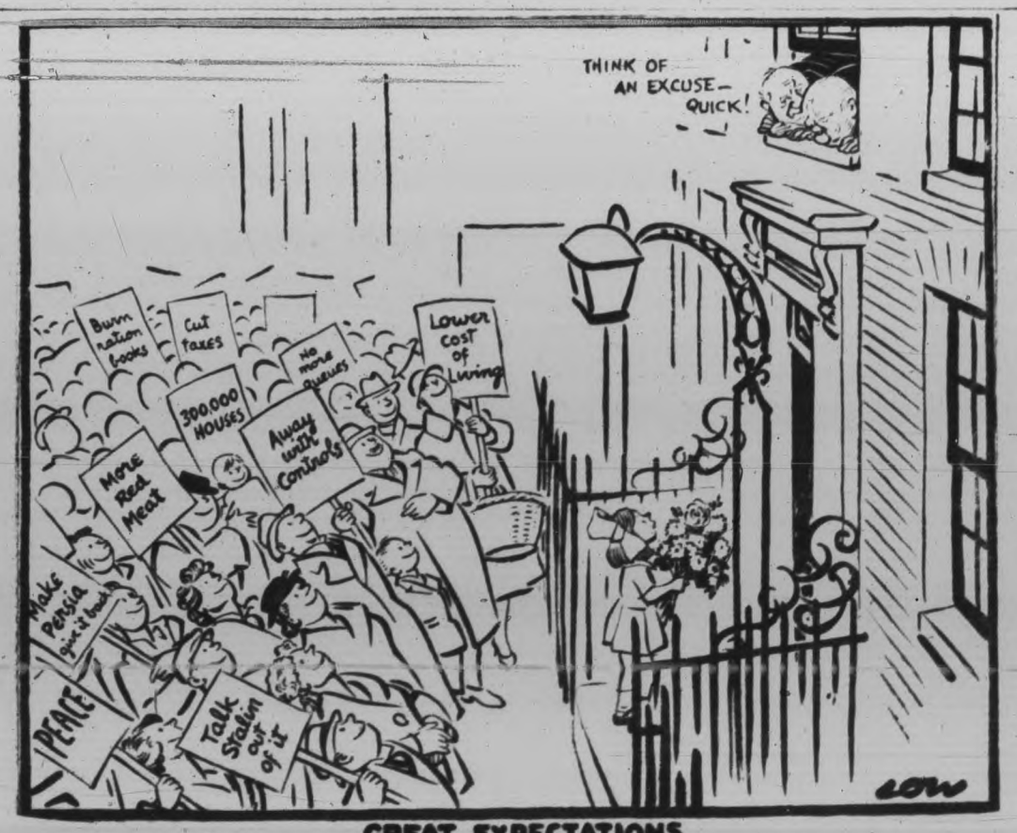
God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things . . . For in him we live and move and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring. (Acts 17: 24, 25, 28.)

✧ ✧ ✧

As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God . . .

Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God. (Ps. 42: 1, 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧



My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord: my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God . . . Blessed are they that dwell in thy house; they will be still praising thee. Selah . . .

For the Lord God is a sun and shield: the Lord will give grace and glory: no good thing will be withhold from them that walk uprightly. (Ps. 84: 2, 4, 11.)

Ill-Paid Clergy

(London New Statesman and Nation)

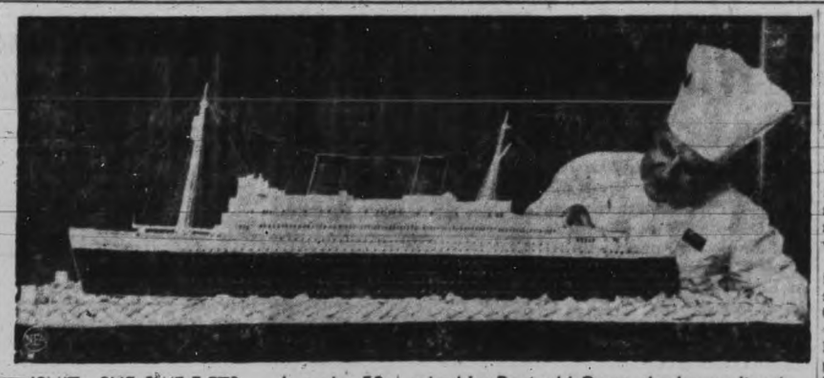
In a recent publication issued by Church House, figures are given showing the annual stipends of the clergy. The average net income of 12,000 incumbents (after deductions for administrative expenses, postages, telephone and travelling, and a dilapidation charge for repairs to parsonage and glebe) is given as £465 (about $1,400 Canadian). Some 2,500 curates receive on an average a salary of £300 (about $900 Canadian). Since 1938, while the value of the pound has been halved and the average wage for the country as a whole more than doubled, the rise in clerical stipends has been 12½ per cent. In other words, the clergy are now receiving the value of little more than half their pre-war stipends, and these by middle-class standards were low. In the circumstances, it is not surprising to learn that the number of clergy is diminishing and continues to diminish. In 1914, when the population was less by a quarter than it is today, there were 21,000 Anglican clergymen of all ranks working in the British Isles. Between the two wars, while the population of England increased by over 4,000,000, the number of clergy decreased by 3,000. In 1938 the number was 17,000 odd; it is now less than 15,000. The membership of the Church of England has also declined: 3,390,000 in 1939, today it is under 3,000,000.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Granton Boy 17, Wins Guineas

TORONTO, Nov. 20 — (CP) — Robert Hern, 17, of Granton, Ont., won the King's Guineas award Monday at the Royal Winter Fair.

His Hereford baby beef steer took the King's Fifty Guineas and the Honorable T. L. Kennedy Challenge Trophy in competition with 98 entries of three breeds—Shorthorns, Aberdeen Angus and Hereford.



Another Hereford baby beef steer—reserve champion in his own breed—owned by 17-year-old Robert Kinsman, of Kippen, Ont., was named reserve winner in the event.

The Fifty Guineas—part of a fund set up by the late King Edward VII when he was Prince of Wales and held in trust by the Ontario Department of Agriculture— are converted into Canadian money, amounting to $250.

All exhibitors in the competition were between the ages of 14 and 21 and members of Ontario boys' or girls' clubs. Hern is a member of the Exeter Calf Club.

Two girls were winners in the Shorthorn class. Merrybrook Fashion, owned by Katherine Merry, of Oakville, was declared grand champion. Reserve champion Shorthorn was owned by Aileen Easton, of Gormley, Ont.

Champion Aberdeen Angus baby beef steer was owned by Bill Arkinstall, of Newmarket. Reserve champion was owned by A. J. McNeill, of Alvinston.

Ottawa Prepares For Canadian Seaway

OTTAWA — (CP). — Engineering plans for the St. Lawrence seaway-power project are being redrafted to route part of the huge navigation works through Canadian territory if Canada builds the waterway alone.

The revised routing, which would add $35,000,000 to the estimated cost of a joint Canada-United States undertaking, would shift the 27-foot navigation channel from US territory on two stretches of the International Rapids section of the river between Cornwall and Prescott, opposite Ogdensburg, NY.

Draw Up Plan

The special projects branch of Canada's Department of Transport is drawing up the all-Canadian plan in the light of Congressional delay on a joint scheme—favored both by Canada and the US administration—and the possibility this country may launch the big job without US Federal participation.

As the over-all Federal agency for handling the navigation end of an all-Canadian waterway, the Federal government has proposed in the Commons the creation of a "St. Lawrence seaway authority" with power to build and operate it and set tolls for shipping. It would be authorized to borrow up to $300,000,000, enough to cover the navigation expenditure under present cost estimates.

Early this fall President Truman told the Canadian government that, unless Congress acts soon, he will give his sanction to Canada going ahead alone. He set no specific time, but belief in some government quarters here is that early 1952 is indicated as the deadline.

Will Take Time

Canadian authorities say there is no telling what time might elapse between Mr. Truman's sanction and the actual start of work. Proceedings could drag on for months, perhaps a couple of years before the International Joint Commission, the US Federal Power Commission, and, possibly, the US Supreme Court.

The Canadian government has several times made known its willingness to tackle the project alone if necessady. Once the US barriers are cleared away and the IJC has given permission, work can be started almost immediately, according to officials here.

At this moment, materials and manpower would be a problem. But Canadian authorities are confident that by the time the digging of the big ditch starts, Canadian and US production and available manpower will be ample.

Need 15,000 Men

The estimate here is that it will take an average of 15,000 men to do the job, with somewhat more than that needed in the final stages. Full output of 2,200,000 horse-power of electricity might be expected in four years from the start of construction, with the navigation end of the waterway taking two years longer.

On the financial side, the latest official estimate of the over-all cost, with the locks running through the Canadian side of the international section, is $652,000,000. Of that $400,000,000 would be for power development.

Division Of Cost

The power cost and the power —would be split between the province of Ontario and whatever US authority may be designated to handle it. Ontario has said it is willing to put up $200,000,000.

That leaves $250,000,000 to be spent by the Canadian government for a 27-foot channel and locks from Montreal into Lake Erie, which is as far as this government intends to go with the "all-Canadian waterway". Above that, the remaining work consists of about $88,000,000 worth of channel-deepening to get ships through the upper lakes and to the lakehead. The US administration has been engaged in this work continuously for years and can continue it.

The cost estimates are Canadian government figures based on prices last December. Officials say that between seven and 10 per cent would be added to them now to cover cost rises in the interval.

The Canadian government's proposed change from the original joint plan for the international section consists of three canal locks on the Canadian shore, instead of three on the US side, to bring shipping past the proposed Hydro Electric development in the rapids.

The upriver lock would cut across Iroquois Point, Ont., instead of at Point Rockway, NY, a little to the southeast. About 30 miles downriver, a double lock just west of Cornwall would form the other entry to the rapids section, which is to be deepened by a series of dams controlling the river level for power. The twin lock at Cornwall would take the place of two locks a few miles to the southwest, at Robinson Bay and Grass River on the New York side.

US Companies Out Of Canada Gas Market

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Federal Power Commssion said Monday Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. has withdrawn its proposal for a $47,403,000 construction program for delivery of natural gas to markets in the province of Ontario.

The company had planned to increase capacity of its pipeline system in order to deliver 115,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas daily to Niagara Gas Transmission Ltd., a newly formed Ontario corporation controlled by Consumers Gas Co., of Toronto.

The gas would be delivered through a line from Buffalo, NY, to a point on the US-Canadian border near Niagara Falls, for resale to Consumers Gas Co. for distribution in Toronto and for resale to other markets in Ontario.

The company said it is not yet prepared to submit the detailed information required under commission rules. The commission granted the withdrawal without prejudice to a later filing by the company of an application for authority to building facilities to accomplish the same or similar purposes.

Planning Expansion Of Bancroft Public Library

BANCROFT, Nov. 20—(ENS)—Plans for enlarging, renovating and rejuvenating its present facilities occupied the majority of the time at a regular meeting of the board of Bancroft Public Library in the library quarters of the community hall Thursday night.

With a gross circulation of 8,179 from 166 children and 135 adult borrowers in 1950 the board and librarian, Miss Alice Mullett, unanimously decided that now was the time to enlarge the present libray room. This conclusion was not a spur of the moment decision but the result of an intensive survey of the situation during the past two or three years. It was noted that since the library was established in its present quarters in 1920 Bancroft's population has increased from less than a thousand to nearly fifteen hundred.

Previous to the meeting Reeve Theodore Tyron had notified the organization that they would be able to use the room that was formerly the village jail. Since the provincial police headquarters on Flint St. has been completed, the jail in this building is being used by the local municipal police. A committee of Mrs. Robert Stringer, Mrs. Emerson Laundry and Mrs. J. W. C. Hutton was appointed to handle the details of the expansion program that is hoped to include renovating the present premises besides converting the added space to a combined book and reading room.

Besides the village of Bancroft the local library services the townships of Faraday, Dungannon and Herschel-Monteagle, and many borrowers from other points in North Hastings. Among its regular customers are many rural school teachers from the ungraded schools of this area.

A review of the t 's financial position for the ear was given by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. J. W. C. Hutton. The chairman for the evening was the president, Mrs. Emerson Laundry.

Besides the above-named the present library board consists of Miss Margaret Mitchell, Harry Strudwick, Mrs. T. Kavagh, Mrs. Duncan Grant, P. J. Stringer, J. J. Bronson, and John Bleecker.

Eagles Take Over Top Spot By Beating Petes 7-4 In Rugged Senior Contest

The Eagles swept into undisputed possession of first place in their OHA senior "B" group race here last night by beating the Petes 7-4 before a good-sized and noisy crowd. The fussin' and feudin' which has featured their games in other seasons broke out again in this game, an exciting, rugged joust marked by two fist fights, several more near battles, a threatened free-for-all and plenty of bumping and slashing. The Petes drew 10 of the 18 penalties, but Eagles drew two majors to their rivals' one. Eagles and Petes each tallied twice in the first period, Eagles then outscoring the others 3-1 in the second and 2-1 in the third, to earn the verdict.

Old Enemies

The first fight broke out in the middle stanza between Bill Crowley and Ray Harding, two feuding enemies from away back. Referee Louis Lecompte gave Crowley a major for starting it and handed Harding a minor. This nearly broke up the game as Eagles argued bitterly and held up play several minutes before resuming. The other battle came in the third between Keith Montgomery and Earl Leonard and it took both refs plenty of hard work to pull them apart. Monty tried again to get at Earl in the penalty box but was restrained.

Bob Parnall made his first appearance in the winners' lineup since he had his back broken in an RCAF plane crash last winter. He turned in a creditable showing. Both sides battled hard throughout in a fast, lively game, often quite scrambly. Some fine stope were made at each goal, and Jim Milne shone in the net when peppered for two minutes steady, once when Eagles were shy two players. Eagles' hustle and checking gave them an edge in the game.

Spread Around

No player scored more than one marker. The goals by the McGillis men were snared by Doug. Mortimer, George Brabin, Buck Legrow, Jim Munroe, Keith Montgomery, Wilson and Freddy Mortimer. The latter had two assists in a neat showing, one each going to Wootton, Wilson, Montgomery, Parnall, Legrow and Stewart. Petes' markers were by Earl Leonard, Curly Mason, Drake Jopling and Ron Horton. Two assists each went to Mason, Chum Fryia, Gus Leonard and one to Steele.

Horton drew the first penalty for charging followed by Legrow for tripping. Crowley went next for interference to leave them short two. Then Monty got a delayed penalty for boarding in rough going, and they were shy two players for two minutes. Milne made some fine stops as they peppered him, but Earl Leonard notched one from Steele to give the Petes a 1-0 lead. All were back when Mason got it for holding and Doug Mortimer cashed in with a hot angle shot, aided by Fred Mortimer and Stewart. Mason returned and Brabin put Eagles up on a close-in play with Legrow and Parnall, after Ray came out for one stop. Hill and Steele climbed the wall for roughing in a near fight, and Mason tied the count on a fine passing play right in with Gus Leonard and Fryia.

Stiff Checking

It was fast but scrambly in the second, with the Eagles having more of the play. Both goalies pulled some hard saves and the checking was stiff. Montgomery drew a tripping penalty, Fryia following for holding. One was back when Legrow cuffed the puck home in a scramble at the net side. Later, Garvey was gated for high-sticking, and then a fight broke out at the Petes' cage between Crowley and Harding. After considerable arguing and delay, play resumed with Steele serving Ray's penalty. Horton and Munroe almost mixed it, and then the latter—after Garvey returned—whipped in an angle drive, partly screened, from Montgomery. The latter got the thumb then for tripping, leaving his side shy two men, and Milne made a flock of swell saves before Jopling beat him, assisted by Mason and Fryia. Just before the close, Monty got through alone on a good dash to sink the disk and make it 5-3.

Eagles pressed to open the third and scored twice, Wilson got one in close from Freddy Mortimer, and then Freddy sank one on a tip-in of a corner passout, Wilson and Wootton starting the play. Fryia hit the trail for roughing, as he and Fred Mortimer nearly tangled. Montgomery and Earl Leonard went down on the ice fighting and both drew majors when finally parted. A police officer sat between them on the bench when Monty wanted to resume hostilities. Fryia drew a high-sticking penalty and just got back on the ice when waved over again for tripping. With all back, the Petes kept fighting and finally scored one more neatly, Horton getting it from Mason and Gus Leonard. Teams:

Petes—Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and E. Leonard; centre, Wade; wings, Steele and Wyatt; alternates, G. Leonard, Fryia, Mason, Horton, Dugan, Garvey, Collins and Floyd.

Eagles—Goal, Milne; defence, Montgomery and Munroe; centre, Hill; wings, Vitarelli and Legrow; alternates, F. Mortimer, Crowley, Brabin, D. Mortimer, Wootton, Parnall, Stewart and Wilson.

Pete Conacher Lasts Week With Chihawks

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (AP). — Young Pete Conacher's career with the Chicago Black Hawks as a National Hockey League player has been short-lived.

Pete, 19-year-old left winger who joined the Hawks last week from the amateur ranks of Galt, has been ordered home by his father, Charley.

Charley, former Black Hawks' manager, told Pete to come home and complete his schooling.

Meanwhile, the Hawks have brought up Sid Finney, a centre, from the St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A Frenchman, two Americans, a Canadian Irisher and four Japs lend an international flavor to the pro mat card at the Brock this eve. Zorra faces Lou Newman in the final, Pat Flanagan takes on Stan Mayslack in the prelim, while the semi-final is an elimination tourney featuring four Jap exponents of Sumo—their own particular brand of Oriental grappling. They are Maedayama, Yakatayama, Fujitayama and Oneumi (who must be no relation to the Yama family), and they scale from 365 pounds to about 2?0. They go in two short elimination bouts, survivor taking on the Japanese champ, Maedayama. Mat fans certainly can't complain of lack of variety on local cards.

As a one-time golf caddy, we view with alarm the trend toward caddy-carts. Teenage toters of clubs and seekers of lost balls should band together and form a union ere it's too late. The mechanical age threatens to clear our links of the once indispensable caddy. Last summer saw dozens of the two-wheeled carts being pushed around the Peterborough and Kawartha courses by golfers of either sex as a bunch of young lads looked glumly on from the clubhouse steps. No dough in that. Robot model cart sells for $42.50 with other models scaling down to a bit less than $25. Of course, most players just rent the caddy-carts for the afternoon.

Those Hawks Fly High

Undefeated in three starts this puck season, Belleville Hawks—having a tie-up with Chicago Hawks—make their first campaign appearance here tomorrow night. They play the Petes at 8.30 in Civic Arena, an OHA senior "B" fixture. Playing Coach Red Doran (former NHL-er) has his charges hustling plenty and many think Hawks are the outfit to beat for group laurels. Big Vern Goyer is hotter than the nether regions lately, averaging four or five goals a game to date. Belleville trimmed the Petes earlier on Quinte ice, so Jim Ellis's squad faces stiff opposition here on the morrow. It should be quite a hockey game.

Once again a hefty gallery viewed the Petes and Eagles in puck action last p.m., and again they were served a dandy dish. Piping hot. Scrambly hockey, yes, but fast, exciting and full of blood and thunder. The feudin' enemies of the ice lanes aren't waiting so long this season to start things—they got going last eve. Two fist fights, several more mighty close to being fights, high-sticking, boarding, bumping and threats. The old pattern. Neither side semed to like Referee Louis Lecompte too much, but then it's a thankless chore trying to handle a game when these local teams get their dander up. The 7-4 win put Eagles alone in top spot.

Eagles Swoop For Kill

They earned the decision on their dash up and back in this fray. Had a bit more hustle after the loose pucks, and they checked well. Besides getting some starry goaltending when shorthanded. Which they were often, several times having a couple of guys at once in the sin bin, Petes drew plenty of penalties, too. The losers kept battling right to the bitter finish, and scored the final goal of the game, but they were too far behind. Curly Mason and Freddy Mortimer were the leading snipers in this affair, but the scoring was well spread around with 11 Eagles in on the sheet, and seven of the Petes. Bob Parnall is back in action again for the Vitarelli squad. Eagles are idle now till Friday, while the Ellis crew have Hawks here tomorrow.

Red Doran's junior "B" Hawklets of Bella Villa finished strong on home ice last gloaming to capture a 5-2 OHA verdict o'er Johnny Godfrey's local Oddfellows. In a fast, rugged encounter, it was tied 2-2 out in the third when the homesters surged to the fore. IOOF-ers didn't think Referee Reason was too reasonable on penalty calls in this one, and they claim they'll take the Belleville boys in the junior opener here Friday. Sullivan scored first for the Links from Floyd, and Twist got the other from Coyle. The Lakefield line went good throughout. A typical slambang junior fray, and it promises to be a mighty keen race from here in. Lindsay are bolstering with players from the defunct Oshawa junior "B" club.

Dodgers' Boss Sees Busy Trading As Pickings Lean In Ball Draft

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20 (AP). — A brisk trading winter was predicted today as a result of Monday's "lean pickin's" in the annual major league draft that brought promotion to only 17 minor league players, the lowest number in years.

E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi, effervescent vice-president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, didn't bother to conceal his pleasure and relief over the termination of the draft.

"Maybe now we can settle down and so some business among ourselves," he sighed. "I look for one of the busiest trading seasons in years."

The personable Bavasi made no bones over the fact that he was looking for a starting pitcher or two. He blames the lack of sufficient good pitching down the stretch for the loss of the pennant.

Wants a Pitcher

The young Dodger official held several chin sessions with Gabe Paul, new Cincinnati general manager, in an effort to pry loose Ewell Blackwell, Howie Fox or Herm Wehmeier, all better than fair righthanders.

Paul was perfectly willing to let one of the trio go to Brooklyn but insisted upon one of the Dodgers' stalwart flychasers, with special emphasis upon Duke Snider. Buzzy's counter proposal of rookie shortstop Bobby Morgan and a second string outfielder was rejected by Paul Bavasi still hasn't given up hope of landing a Redleg hurler and at a late hour was attempting to work out a three-way transaction involving Philadelphia. It was believed that Bavasi had interested the Phillies in a deal for outfielder Del Ennis, who would be turned over to the Reds for one of their righthanders. The Dodgers also were making a strong bid for a Chicago Cub pitcher, supposedly righthander Bob Rush.

Losing Hope

A spokesman of the New York Yankees said the world champions had just about given up hopes of acquiring ace Ned Garver from the St. Louis Browns. He admitted the Browns had rejected a proposition that would have transferred five Yankees to the cellar dwellers.

"They (the Browns) simply want too much," he said. "We are not going to break up our club just to get one player, no matter how good he is."

Only 11 of the 16 big league clubs participated in the draft. The busiest bargain hunters were the Reds and Cubs who selected three players each. The biggest name of the lot was Floyd (Bill) Bevens, former star righthander of the Yankees.

Bevens, shunted to the minors in 1948 because of a "dead" arm, gave evidence of complete recovery with a 20-12 record at Salem (Ore.) in the Class B Western International League. He was picked by the Reds.

Quinte Hawks Defeat IOOF In Lively Junior "B" Game

Belleville Hawks staged a late third period rally to defeat Oddfellows on Monday night in a fast, rugged junior "B" hockey struggle before a large crowd of Quinte fans. It was Hawks' first game of the season and the Doran-coached crew will provide the opposition Friday night when Johnny Godfrey's boys play their first home game at Civic Arena.

Bill Strahan's goal on a scramble at the 12-minute mark in the third broke a 2-2 deadlock and started Hawks on the road to victory after the two hustling and evenly - matched squads had battled on even terms up to that point. Seconds earlier, Bill Stewart's backhander at close range missed by inches on a play that might have turned the tide but Hawks rushed back fast and Strahan sank Bob Wilson's pass in a mad scramble around Wasson to give his team an edge. It was 1-1 to end the first period as Les Sullivan scored from Floyd to equalize Jacklyn's tally. The score was 2-2 at the end of a hectic second chapter when Oddfellows again came from behind on a neat effort by the Lakefield line of Bill Twist, Gord Coyle and Kevin Heffernan, with the former potting the disc to offset Strahan's first goal early in the period from Hec Lalonde.

Play was fast and furious as the boys worked like demons and both goalies were kept busy turning aside shots from all angles. The work of Red Wasson was particularly good as he handled many more difficult shots than Barclay, particularly in the first two frames.

Scored First

Belleville opened the scoring in the first when the starting line of Lalonde, Strahan and Jacklyn swarmed in on Wasson at the five-minute mark and Jacklyn potted on a passout from Lalonde after several attempts to beat Wasson had failed. Oddfellows drive found reward as Leo Sullivan scored on a similar play with Kenny Floyd providing the assist, and this play drew a big hand from the crowd. Rugged play marked the balance of the frame but neither team could score further.

In the mid-frame the oustanding first line of Hawks again found the range as Bill Strahan tallied his first of two vital goals with Hec Lalonde again the playmaker from a circle face-off. Strahan let drive a 25-foot angle sizzler that found the target with Links a man short at the time. Play roughened up considerably and tempers flared but the referees were lenient despite the penalties meted out, 10 in all, of which Oddfellows drew six. Hawks were more fortunate on charging offences, tripping and interference on their appraisal by Referee Bill Reason. Bill Twist worked hard on a payoff with his line-mates at the three-quarter mark to tie up the score and bring the crowd to its feet with a clever thrust but Barclay held firm thereafter. Ted De Gray and Duke Doran tallied the final decisive marker for Hawks.

Jamieson Heads Hockey League

COBOURG, Nov. 20. — Jack (Pud) Jamieson, a local hockey star, and onetime football great was elected president of the Cobourg Church Hockey League here Monday. Jamieson, one of the youngest presidents ever to hold office in the loop, takes over in a year that promises to be a difficult one.

Last season's windup of the juvenile series ended with two players suspended and a game awarded as a result of a fracas that saw referee Al Fisher jostled and pushed by one of the combatants. It was alleged that the players in question had struck the official.

Although no definite statement was made at the meeting, the loop dropped the juvenile series for this season "in order to further the smaller groups midget, bantam and peewee."

Red Wings Leading Toronto By Five Points In NHL Race

MONTREAL, Nov. 20. (CP)—Detroit Red Wings, with two victories last week, increased from three to five points their lead over Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League race. Red Wings now have nine victories, two defeats and five deadlocks for a total of 23 points. They broadened the gap with victories over the lowly Chicago Black Hawks and the cellar-dwelling New York Rangers after a five-game series of deadlocks.

Toronto has six victories, five losses and six ties, holding on to second place with a single point lead over Montreal Canadiens. The Habs have a 7-7-3 count.

Two behind the Montreal club are Boston Bruins with 15 points in 15 starts—made up of an even 5-5-5—while Chicago follows with 12 points, one more than New York.

Detroit's Gordie Howe, right winger born in Floral, Sask., picked up three goals and an assist last week to move into third position in the individual scoring race.

With his eight goals and six assists, Howe is threatening to unseat two Montreal Canadiens who have held top spot for some weeks now.

Behind The Rocket

He is only two points behind Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Elmer Lach. Richard's 11 goals are a current mark, while Lach is setting the pace in the assists division with 14.

Al Rollins, Toronto net-minder, has had 28 goals scored against him in 17 games for a 1.65 average. He also boasts two shutouts Following him closely is Detroit's Terry Sawchuk who had 28 pucks past him in 16 games for a 1.75 average. Sawchuk is leading in the shutout department with three.

The two Canadian NHL teams are the most penalized ones in the League. Canadiens lost 188 minutes in penalties while Toronto lost 171.

Montreal's Richard finally has been unseated as most penalized player. During one game last week, Guy Kyle of Boston was banished for 11 minutes—one major and three minor penalties to bring his total to 37. Richard's 30 minutes had been a mark for some time.

Top US Net Stars Lose In Aussie Tournament

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 20—(AP)—Dick Savitt and Tony Trabert, two United States Davis Cup stars, were knocked out of the New South Wales tennis tournament today but two other Americans—Vic Seixas and Ted Schroeder—gained the semi-finals.

Seixas, of Philadelphia, ousted teammate Trabert, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5 in an upset. Savitt was eliminated by Mervyn Rose, Aussie Davis Cupper, 3-6, 6-1, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Schroeder, on the brink of defeat, had to stage a brilliant comeback to defeat Ken McGregor, another Aussie Cupper.

Schroeder dropped the first two sets of the match and then stormed back to take the next three and gain the semi-final round. The scores were 5-7, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5.

Australian ace Frank Sedgman also advanced to the semi-finals by beating Sweden's Sven Davidson, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

LAY GREY CUP CARPET—The $12,000 tarpaulin owned by the Canadian Rugby Union was laid for the first time at Toronto Varsity Stadium Friday. It will remain until the Dominion Football Championship Saturday, Nov. 24. The canvas was laid on ground damp from Friday rains and stadium officials said they may lift the canvas if weather cleared to permit the ground to dry. Then the tarpaulin will be replaced.

Tiger-Cats Grab Five Places On Big Four All-Star Team

By JACK SULLIVAN.

TORONTO, Nov. 20— (CP).—The over-all dominance of Ottawa Rough Riders, Hamilton-Tiger-Cats, and Toronto Argonauts in the 1951 Big Four Football Union is reflected in the Canadian Press all-star team announced today. The "Big Three" yielded only one spot to the also-ran Montreal Alouettes.

Tiger-Cats, who went down in a gallant two-game final series to the Riders, gained some satisfaction with a five-member representation on the team, chosen for CP by football writers, coaches and sportscasters. Ottawa and Toronto each placed three. Ray Cicia, Montreal inside who has been an all-star the last three seasons, was the lone Als choice.

As in recent years, since the Canadian Rugby Union allowed an increase in imports from five to seven a club, Americans again predominate the mythical dream team. But Canadians made some yards in this direction, sending three home-birds to all-stardom against only one in 1950 — Rod Pantages of the Als.

Not Returned

Pantages wasn't returned. His flying wing berth went to Bruce Cummings, former University of Toronto kicking and passing star now with the champion Riders. Outside Bob Simpson, a product of Windsor collegiate football, took an outside position and the Tiger-Cats' Eddie Bevan, from Hamilton, gained all-star recognition for an inside spot.

With the balloting weighted to give equal voting strength to each Big Four city, the selectors put the finger on four hold-overs from the 1950 all-stars — Cicia, Vince Mazza of the Tiger-Cats, and Toronto's Ulysses (Crazy Legs) Curtis and Ed (Buckets) Hirsch.

It was the first time since CP inaugurated the poll in 1932 that sportscasters were given a vote.

Three Americans made the grade in their freshman year in Canada.

Middle Bob Gain, University of Kentucky lineman, one of the best in US college football last season and now with the Riders; Bernie Custis, Tiger-Cats quarter and forward passer from Syracuse University, and Hal Waggoner, expatriate also with Tiger-Cats.

Gain, six-foot-four-inch who combines his line play with deadly convert and placement kicking, drew the most points in the ballot—210 of a possible 240.

The team:

Flying wing—Bruce Cummings, Ottawa.
Half—Hal Waggoner, Hamilton.
Half—Ulysses Curtis, Toronto.
Half—Billy Bass, Toronto.
Quarter—Bernie Custis, Hamilton.
Snap—Buckets Hirsch, Toronto
Inside—Ray Cicia, Montreal.
Inside—Eddie Bevan, Hamilton.
Middle—Bob Gain, Ottawa.
Middle—Jack Carpenter, Hamilton.
Outside—Vince Mazza, Hamilton.
Outside—Bob Simpson, Ottawa.

Trawick Missing

Missing from the team for the first time in five years is Herb Trawick, 252-pound Montreal middle from Pittsburgh who no longer is classed as an import.

Anr probably the biggest surprise is the absence of Tip Logan, rangy outside wing with Hamilton who finished the 12-game schedule as the league's leading scorer with 51 points, made up of two touchdowns, five placements and 26 converts.

A two-man race for the quarterback slot finished with Custis getting the nod over Tom O'Malley, a vital spark in Ottawa's drive to its first title since 1948.

George Ratterman, the high-priced import from New York Yankees who was tabbed to set the league on fire with his deadly passing for the Als, and Argonauts' Nobby Wirkowski didn't get a mention for the spot taken last year by Frankie Filchock when he called the signals for the Als.

Filchock went to Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada League this season.

Fear Test Case Threatens To Upset Lottery System

By J. C. GRAHAM

CHRISTCHURCH, NZ, Nov. 20. (CP)—A test case against a Christchurch tobacconist threatens to upset the whole system by which thousands of New Zealanders buy tickets in a horse race lottery conducted in Tasmania, Australia. In New Zealand it is illegal to lay odds on horse races although bookmakers thrive in every city and town. It is also illegal to buy tickets in sweepstakes, but a large proportion of New Zealanders for years have purchased tickets in the Tasmania lottery.

Newspapers regularly publish reports of big prize-winners from New Zealand in the Tasmania lottery run by Tattersall's, but they always refer to it as an "overseas" operation.

In something like the way tickets on big sweepstakes are distributed in Canada, New Zealanders have been buying tickets on the Tasmania lottery. For years they could send money direct to Hobart, Tasmania, getting around the New Zealand postal ban by addressing them to private addresses.

Exchange difficulties altered the position in recent years, but it was always possible to get tickets by paying money to persons in New Zealand, where the money was banked and used to pay prizewinners who first received their tickets from Tasmania.

The whole system was challenged by the test case here when the tobacconist was charged with using his premises as a common gaming house, and with displaying an advertisement inducing people to buy tickets in a lottery.

Many Customers

The crown prosecutor asserted the accused, Cyril David Edmonds, had built up a considerable business in the lottery. He maintained the fact the lottery was legal in Tasmania was not pertinent. It was not legal in New Zealand, and the mailing or correspondence in connection with a lottery was prohibited by the New Zealand post office.

Evidence was given that Edmonds had a neon sign in his window saying: "Be in to win—the lucky shop".

Defence counsel maintained that the organibers of the lottery, Tattersall's, were not illegal in New Zealand. In any event Edmonds was an agent for the purchasers, not for the lottery. It was admittedly unlawful to buy a ticket for a lottery in New Zealand, but the tickets were actually bought in Tasmania. He pointed out each ticket has the buyer's name and address on it when it arrived in Tasmania.

The defendant testified he had no direct connection with Tattersall's. He said he sent names to an individual in Tasmania and received back bundles of tickets with the names on them. He posted these to individual clients, and estimate between 60 and 70 persons bought tickets every day.

The competition was keen and posed a difficult task for the judges chosen from the five counties where the contestants came from.

Seated on the platform with Mrs. Birdsall were: Andrew Kemp, Castleton; R. J. Ross, Brighton; L. C. Sutherland, East Northumberland; K. O. Birkin, Peterborough; R. H. Macklem, IPS for Hastings County.

Changeover Of Patricias Made Quietly

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Nov. 20 (C)P — The changeover was made quietly.

A few maroon berets. . .

Then a few more. . .

And then almost before it was quite realized, the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry had been replaced by the 1st Battalion.

The Patricias of Kapyong were on their way home. Company by company they had been replaced by their parent unit, and the last to leave its Korean ridge was "A," under Maj. E. J. H. (Paddy) Kyall of Hamilton. It was relieved by a 1st Patricia company under Maj. C. O. Huggard of Halifax.

That was Nov. 11, six days after Gen. James Van Fleet, commander of the United States Eighth Army in Korea, had inspected the 2nd Patricias, the day of the formal turn-over to the 1st Battalion.

As he walked down the parade, the general turned to Lt.-Col. Jim Stone, the 2nd Patricias' commander, and said: "Do you mean to tell me that these men were in foxholes on the front yesterday?"

Smartly Turned Out

Smartly turned out and with the easy precision of veterans, they looked as though they'd rehearsed the ceremony for weeks. Stone replied: "No sir, most only left their foxholes this morning." They were the men of "B" company under Capt. W. P. (Paddy) Pines of Rivers, Man.

During their last two months in Korea, the 2nd Patricias had participated in actions which saw the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade group advance its front in the west central sector 12,000 yards.

That's by the map—overland it works out here to three times that much.

They had seen battlefield temperatures rise from complete absence of artillery and only sporadic mortar fire to shelling at the rate of 3,000 rounds an hour—the equivalent of anything seen in Europe during the Second World War.

They occupied, in September's "Operation Commando," part of the Chinese winter-line, and then sat tight while the Communists repeated the Kapyong tactics which saw the Patricias earn an American presidential citation. In efforts to recapture the lost ground, the enemy hurled his troops in waves only to see them mown down.

A 1st Patricia company commanded by Maj. Jack George of Edmonton, on its first night in the line, withstood just such an attack and next morning has 34 dead Chinese strung up on its wire, with uncounted others lying in the artillery's beaten zone ahead.

Gives Highlights

Recapitulating the 2nd Patricias' last two months in action, Lt.-Col. Stone said highlights were an early September attack by "C" company under Maj. Del Harrison of Calgary, a late September assault by "D" company under Maj. Bob Swinton of Vancouver, and a raid by "A" company of 1st Patricias, commanded by Major Geof Williams of Calgary, while under Stone's command.

Harrison's attack, he said, started within 200 yards of the enemy's positions atop a ridge. The company had laid up "under his nose" during the night, which was very dark.

The charge went in at 6 am, screened by mortar and artillery fire. The Patricias closed in at grenade range and cleared the enemy from the positions after a tough scrap. Thirty-eight Chinese bodies were counted after the engagement and three prisoners were taken.

Swinton's assault was with fixed bayonets uphill against opposition.

Tanks from the Lord Strathcona's Horse shot close over the Canadians' heads, carrying the men onto their objective, where they closed in with bayonets and grenades. Twenty Chinese were killed there.

Baptism of Fire

Williams' action was the 1st Patricias' baptism of fire in Korea. "They certainly did the job of well-trained troops," tributed Stone, "and showed steadiness in holding ground in no man's land."

The action was a raid ahead of the main UN defences west of the Imjin river.

The newcomers assaulted a difficul slope, encountering heavy Chinese mortar and rifle fire. But again the Lord Straths' tanks carried the day, shooting the infantrymen onto the objective, where they closed with the Communists.

Said Stone: "They inflicted considerable casualties on the enemy, stayed there until one in the afternoon, and then pulled back into the main line, leaving 16 dead Chinese right in the position."

The operation is completed, and the 2nd Patricias, who established a reputation for themselves "apart from the above" other units of the Eighth Army—so reads their presidential citation—are on their way home.

But the maroon regimental pennant still flies outside a Patricia headquarters, and its color has spilled over the Korean countryside in the cherry berets of its paratroop followers.

Gambling Increasing Say Churches

Deplore Display Of Raffle Prizes For Children To See

Gambling is increasing in Peterborough, according to the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church.

Ministers, Sunday school teachers and church leaders are being asked by the presbytery to "stress the underlying principles that compel us to oppose the practice of gambling."

The Rev. H. G. Knox, chairman of the presbytery, said today that there are more and more cars, boats, outboard motors and other prizes displayed on city streets to lure ticket buyers.

"We deplore the parading of these things before the eyes of young children," he said.

Bing Illegal

"I noticed in Alpha's column last week that it is illegal for churches to hold bingo games and award prizes," said Mr. Douglas. "These things are all forms of gambling and we are opposed to it."

Premier Frost of Ontario was commended by the presbytery for his stand against legalizing sweepstakes for hospitals or other charitable purposes. He is being urged by the presbytery and the United Church in general to continue in opposition.

The presbytery also want to see a tightening of the section of the Criminal Code dealing with drunken driving.

At present, a driver taken into custody and charged with drunken driving need not submit to a sobriety test. And if he doesn't the Crown is not permitted to bring this out in evidence.

The presbytery commend the federal government for amending the Code so the chemical analysis of a suspect's blood can be used in evidence but they feel that if he refuses a test this should be used in evidence as well.

"If the suspect is innocent a test won't do him any harm," said Mr. Douglas. "And if he's guilty, the test proves it. At present there is a loophole in the law."

To Give $30,000

The Peterborough Presbytery will be responsible for $30,000 of the $500,000 extension fund to be gathered by the United Church during the next five years. The fund is to replace old buildings or erect new ones.

The Home Missions committee also recommended that a new church building be erected to replace Grace United Church. Work on it should be started early in 1952. Congregations of Grace United and Stewart Hall United will be combined as a permanent two-point pastoral charge.

This recommendation will be forwarded to the Home Mission board.

Winter Market To Move To Barn

The outdoor market on George St. will probably be transferred to the sanitation department's brick barn on Townsend St. for the Christmas period.

The proposal was relayed from farmers by Ald. H. T. Rehill at the meeting of the finance committee of the council Monday night, and he and Aldermen Gillespie, Graham and Waddell were appointed a committee to consider arrangements for this temporary accommodation under cover.

The former horse barn of the sanitation department was converted this year into a building intended for ultimate use as a municipal garage. Resurfacing of the floor to remove the original layout for a stable has not been done, and there is no means of heating the building. Ald. Dewart suggested that the premises "should be checked by the Board of Health."

Mayor Swanston said there were two or three "big Saturdays at Christmas time and New Year's" that were of special advantage to some farmers who were wondering whether they could have the use of the barn.

150 Attend PC Rally In Norwood

NORWOOD, Nov. 20 (Staff)—As the provincial election campaign swung down the home stretch Monday evening, a crowd of over 150 attended a Progressive Conservative rally in Norwood Community Hall.

Hon. John Foote, Minister of Reform Institutions, and Gordon K. Fraser, MP, Peterborough West were on the speakers' platform and spoke in support of Hon. Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests.

Mr. Scott has represented Peterborough riding as a Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature since 1943 and he is campaigning for re-election on November 22.

"If it is squandering to build up better fire protection services, establish research stations to study destructive insects, and set up laboratories to study tree diseases, then I'm guilty of squandering," declared Mr. Scott.

In an address in Peterborough Saturday night, Liberal Leader Walter Thomson had charged that too much revenue from the Department of Lands and Forests was being used for other purposes.

More Aircraft

Mr. Scott said that the number of aircraft for rushing men and firefighting equipment to remote forest areas had been increased from 29 to 40, since he took over administration of the lands and forests department.

The number of fire towers has been increased and all towers, bases and airplanes are equipped with radios, continued Mr. Scott. Dry ice has been used to make rain over a forest fire and experiments have been conducted in water bombing bush fires. Bags containing water, are dropped from planes to curb the spread of the fire, until firefighters can be brought into the danger area.

The number of conservation officers has been increased from 85 to 200, the number of biologists employed by the department has been increased from two to 26, the lands and forests minister continued.

"Future generations will appreciate our 'squandering' money in the interests of conservation," he said.

Increased Hydro

"More than twice as much rural hydro has been put in, in the last five years than in the previous 40 years. Today, 85 per cent of rural Ontario is electrified. We won't be able to keep young people on the farm unless we give them all the conveniences."

Turning to Mr. Thomson's stand on school building, Mr. Scott quoted a Canadian Press report of a speech in which the Liberal Leader said he was opposed to building more schools.

"Why shouldn't we have the best?" asked Mr. Scott. Why should we have great marble mausoleums for city schools and leave towns and rural centres to have poorer schools?" He said that the policy of the provincial government was "the lower the assessment, the higher the grants." In a reference to sub-

FROM LAKE TITICACA, BOLIVIA, mission nurse Miss Mary Haddow, visiting with her mother, Mrs. Alexander Haddow of 45 McDonnel St., displays a native Indian craft doll and handsome shoulder bag. Bolivian born, Miss Haddow was educated in Canada and has returned for a year's furlough after five years work in the mission field. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Mary Haddow, Missionary In Bolivia Home For Holiday

Bolivia may sound like a warm, pleasant country. It's in South America, all right, but the Bolivia that mission nurse Mary Haddow knows is a cool country—no warmer than 60 above in summer, and as cold as 10 degrees below in winter. Miss Haddow is back in Canada for a year's furlough. She is the third of her family to do mission work in Bolivia for the Canadian Baptist church. Her mother and father, the Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Haddow, were there before her.

Mary Haddow was born in La Paz, capital of the South American country. "When I was born," she said, "La Paz was a little town, not very clean and not important.

"Today it is one of the most beautiful cities in the world. There are skyscrapers and parks, and by night it is wonderful."

However, Miss Haddow's interest is in Guatajata, a farm on the shores of Lake Titicaca, the highest navigable lake in the world. It is a body of water about the size of Lake Simcoe.

Once Huge Farm

Guatajata once was a huge farm in the highlands of Bolivia. In recent years, the Baptists have divided much of it among 42 Indian families, keeping a part of the land for mission purposes.

The mission has done successful work. Miss Haddow says that "when you drive up the road from La Paz to Guatajata, you can tell where our land begins. Buildings are better, yards are cleaner."

The Indians' trust in the Baptists has grown as well. They are most interested in what the misson offers them, Miss Haddow said, an they are willing to learn.

The effect of the mission is felt outside the relatively small circle of Christianized natives. The Aymaras — the Indians of the highlands, where Guatajata is located — are imitative, and when they see a neighbor improving his land, they want to do it themselves.

Nurse of 10 Schools

Miss Haddow's district takes in 10 schools, for which she is nurse. The farthest is 15 miles from Guatajata, an hour's drive in dry season by the dirt and gravel roads. In the wet season, the drive could take anywhere from one to four hours.

Mountain streams, which are dry all summer, are filled with torrents of water in spring and it is sometimes necessary to wait two hours beside one until the water goes down.

Where Miss Haddow has lived for the past five years is 12,800 feet above sea level, and "it's cold all year 'round" says Miss Haddow. Summer is one-sweater weather, and winter is two-sweater.

It was Bolivia's worst snow in September, and last August, a blizzard struck Lake Titicaca, blanketing the country around it with 20 inches of snow. The Indians, who wear open-work sandals instead of shoes, were kept hopping.

It was Bolivia's worst snow in 75 years. Normally, says Miss Haddow, there are only two to three inches of snow each winter.

As for fishing, Lake Titicaca was stocked several years ago with trout — Miss Haddow described them as salmon trout — and she was presented with one not long before she left for Canada.

She said it weighed 18 pounds. Anybody here for Bolivia?

Lions Offer To Build Wading Pool

Will Be Used By Youngsters In McKellar Area

Represented by Doug Anderson, Joseph Brown and Gordon Chown, Peterborough Lions Club volunteered to the finance committee of the council Monday night to build a wading pool in the McKellar residential section for its small children.

"We have not come to ask anything, but to give" Mr. Anderson said in introducing this new Lions Club project. "With the Riverside pools practically paid for, we don't want to stop now."

The location is in the vicinity of Hamilton, McKellar and St Catharine Streets. An area of about 180 to 200 feet square was reserved for playground purposes, and has been used as a tot-plot. The proposed pool would be either 40 or 50 feet square, a detail not yet decided in the proposal.

Mr. Anderson said the club was not prepared to provide a water filtering plant for the pool because it would cost too much.

Need Supervision

"We would like to supervise it ourselves, but we have a job on our hands at Riverside. The club would like to feel assured that there will be the best of supervision. The Recreation Commission has done an excellent job as far as they have gone, but there are a lot of children down there, and there have been several occasions when we have felt that the Commission's supervision was not adequate."

Mr. Anderson said the Lions desired to "work with the Commission, and if they'll get behind this, we'll construct a pool the city will be proud of."

Mayor Swanston said the Club should be complimented in their desire to do something in the new south end of the city. "When they get their plans prepared, the council should assist them in anything they need to go ahead with the pool."

Mr. Anderson said he did not consider dressing room necessary Ninety per cent of the children at the wading pool in Ashburnham went there from home in bathing suits.

Ald. J. A. Dewart said he would consult the Board of Health as to their approval of the project, and Ald. H. T. Rehill will take it up with the Recreation Commission.

When this department was taken over by the RCMP in 1932, he joined the force at Huntington, Que., where he was in charge of the detachment there.

He was also in charge of detachments at Beford, St. John's, Quebec, and for nine years was in charge of the Guelph detachment, being promoted in 1944 to corporal. He was transferred to Cobourg in 1949 as corporal in charge. The area included Peterborough.

Permit Jaycees Put Up Vote Slogan

Permission to the Junior Chamber of Commerce to suspend a "Vote As You Like, But Vote" slogan over the intersection of George and Charlotte Streets was given the council in finance committee last night.

Doug Vaisey, Ken Billings and Bruce Edwards presented the Jaycee idea in time for the municipal elections, and possibly for the provincial balloting Thursday.

It will be a metal screening with luminus paint to remind citizens of their responsibility of making use of their franchise.

Ald. E. C. Braund said he approved the interest of the Jaycees but the idea might be a traffic hazard.

Attention of car drivers might be distracted upward and away from the road in front of them.

"I move they be given permission," said Ald. P. J. Anglesey. His motion was seconded by Ald. H. F. Waddell.

Queen's Quits Hockey League

Queen's University's athletic directors announced today that the university's senior "B" hockey team, which is grouped with Kingston SAC, Peterborough Petes, the Peterborough Eagles and Belleville Hawks, will drop out of league play.

The announcement came after a meeting Monday of the athletic board of control to which Coach Johnny Carr-Harris reported that the team lacked players and strength to carry on in senior "B" hockey.

This year the team was composed entirely of students attending the university. Last year when the team was entered in the same grouping, Queen's had only half the players attending the university.

Opposed Entry

Before the season started the two Peterborough teams opposed the Queen's entry on the grounds that the university was not senior "B" calibre last year and that they suffered financially at the box offices.

But the Queen's team was entered. They were to play two home and home series with the Peterborough teams, each game to count four points in the league standing while they were to play Belleville and Kingston each eight times in two-point games.

So far Queen's have played only Belleville, Peterborough Petes and Eagles. In every game they played, Queen's were swamped each time, by such scores as 15-2 by Belleville, 11-3 by Eagles and 14-2 by the Petes.

Frank Buckland, a member of the OHA executive, said today that a weekend meeting will likely be held to re-arrange the schedule and to decide what to do with the games that have been played already.

If the games are thrown out, Belleville and the Eagles would be at the top of the pile with four points each ahead of the Petes with two and Kingston SAC none.

Perfect Presentation

Residents To Get Road Despite Weak Case

As speaker for a deputation of residents of Hazeldean St. at the meeting of the finance committee Monday night, Mr. A. L. Malby made virtually a perfect presentation of an inherently weak case.

Hazeldean is a new street, parallelling Monaghan Road, between Anne and Charlotte Streets. It lies in what has been called the Huffman subdivision.

The residents, owners of newly built houses, are asking the city to build them a road. That is a simple and common petition, but invariably the work is done under the local improvement act.

That Act divides the cost of road-making between the owner and the city. But, the Hazeldean home-owners can't get sufficiently signed petition. Various lots are still owned by the Huffman estate, it was mentioned in the discussion last night, each lot counts as a voting unit, and they fall into the group of non-petitioners.

Home Owners.

That was the difficulty confronting Mr. Malby as he reviewed the circumstances from typewritten reference. Other owners on the street are: D. A. Drynan, J. Watts, D. A. Lamont, S. C. Phillips, A. Cox, S. Csumrik, and H. Rehill.

The reply of the committee was that exception should not be made to the council's policy of charging such improvements both to the fronting property and the rest of the city.

Mayor Swanston explained that the council had caught up with the subdivisional technic of breaking up a property, selling lots and leaving to the owners the problem of getting necessary sidewalks, roads, etc., when they undertook to build.

The council decided on a procedure of reference to the Ontario Municipal Board. The same method was adopted in laying out street paving programs.

Blyaw Prepared.

A bylaw will be prepared authorizing the laying of a gravel road on Hazeldean St. It will be given two readings and will then be referred to the Municipal Board. As a condition to third reading, it is expected, the Board would hear any objections that might be raised against the project.

Presumably the finance committee expects that the Board would approve the bylaw and its supporting petition.

In his statement to the council, Mr. Malby said: "Prior to this year, four houses had been built on the street, and this year six more have been added. Three of the first four houses were built on the corner lots, and therefore were readily accessible from Charlotte St. or Anne St. However it was not until 1950 that the road was roughed in and gravel added from Anne St. to Mr. Watt's house. It is worth noting that this part of the road was snow plowed last winter, thus indicating that it was recognized as a city street.

"This gravelled section of the road was seriously damaged this year when the sewer and water connections were made, and now requires repairs."

The rest of the road has recently been "a sea of mud." Cars and trucks get stuck, manhole covers are high and sometimes scrape the underside of the cars. The road condition can be easily imagined, and besides that Ald. Norman Graham said he had a truck stuck there the other day, and had to be jacked out.

3 On Board Of Education To Run Again; Two Others May Seek Seats

Mrs. Paige Rowell, W. Craw, S. Adamson To Seek Re-Election; Rev. W. Gilling, A. Pitchford May Try

Three present members of the Board of Education said today they will stand for re-election. They are Mrs. Paige Rowell, G. Wilson Craw and Stanley R. Adamson. Five of the nine elected trustees complete their two-year term of office this year, including these three. Dr. Russell J. Morgan, who headed the polls in the 1950 elections, said today that he hadn't made up his mind whether to run again or not. But indications are that he will run if nominated.

The nomination meeting is Friday 6:30 pm in the city council chambers.

Murray D. Irwin, the fifth trustee whose term expires this year, has already announced that he will not stand for re-election. Mr. Irwin said that he could no longer find the time to properly look after the Board's business.

Arthur Pitchford, a trustee 1945-49, is seriously thinking of being a candidate. He was defeated two years ago but has continued on the advisory vocational committee of the Board.

There is some indication that the Rev. Walter Gilling, rector of St. Luke's Anglican Church might be a candidate. At press time he was not available for comment.

Senior Member

Mr. Craw is the senior member among the candidates. He has been a trustee for 12 years. If elected he will begin his seventh successive term of office.

He has been chairman of the accommodation committee since the extensive building campaign began during the Second World War. It was during the war years that the population of Peterborough began to increase sharply and new schools had to be found for the children.

Mr. Craw is also chairman of the finance committee.

Mrs. Rowell was elected to the board for the first time in 1950, together with Dr. Morgan, Mr. Irwin and Mr. Adamson—all completing their first term.

This year she has been active on the advisory vocational committee, as well as property, health, and the new teacher-board committee.

Spent Time Learning

"I think it is only fair to stay on for more than one term," said Mrs. Rowell. She said that much of a new trustee's time is spent learning the board's business, and his full effectiveness as a trustee comes later when he knows the ropes.

Mr. Adamson also said today he would stand.

"There are quite a few things to be done and I'd like to go back and help to do the work," said Mr. Adamson. This year he was chairman of the advisory vocational committee and also chairman of the special salary committee.

Dr. Morgan, who has till Friday to decide, is chairman of the health committee.

Young Worker Hurts Back In Fall At Plant

John Nesbitt, 19-year-old employee at the CGE is in Civic Hospital with back injuries received in a fall while at work early this morning.

Nesbitt, who lives at 178 Charlotte St., works in the wire department at the CGE. He was piling cardboard cartons when he fell and injured his back. He was admitted to hospital at 5 a.m.

Hospital officials report his condition as good.

Sewage Plant $10,000 Higher Than Estimates

At $625,000, the final cost of the sewage disposal plant will exceed the original estimate by about $10,000.

That prospect emerged to the finance committee of the council last night in conversation with J. G. Powell of Gore and Storrie, the engineer architects who designed and supervised the construction of the plant that "has been practically operating since last July."

There is still some painting to be done, a few minor finishing touches, and there is a steel bill from Dominion Bridge Co. still to come.

Mr. Powell was proposing that a completion certificate be issued to the George Hardy Construction Co., contractors, enabling them to obtain the agreed amount of the contracts at this stage.

Depends on Steel.

Mr. Powell said the overall total, including contractual cost, extras, engineer fees, and so on was $620,000 to $635,000, depending on the amount of the steel bill.

Ald. J. E. Gillespie recalled that the total cost originally expected by the council was $615,000, so the excess of cost would be "about $10,000."

Mr. Powell said aeration piping of the old plant was found to be extensively "rusted out." That replacement cost an additional $16,000. "If it had not been for that we would have been well under the original estimate."

Ald. Waddell suggested that Gore and Storrie submit a covering letter showing the ultimate cost.

Mr. Powell was accompanied by V. K. Mason of Hardy Construction, and R. J. Trethewey of Canadian Comstock Co., subcontractors in plumbing.

Duffy Boosts Hospitalization Plan At Bancroft Liberal Rally

BANCROFT, Nov. 20 (ENS)—"The cost of hospitalization is simply beyond the reach of the working man today and in a province as wealthy as Ontario there is no reason for people being harassed by theses costs", stated Angus Duffy, Liberal candidate for Hastings West at an open meeting in Bancroft's Canadian Legion Hall on Saturday night.

"Under the plan sponsored by provincial leader Walter Thomson and the Liberal party the total cost for a prepaid plan for the average family, of father, mother and children will be approximately $30 per year," said Mr. Duffy.

Reminding his audience to, "Think and vote Liberal," the candidate for Hastings West said that the voters should not be mesmerized by simple jobs and hysterical back-clapping by spokesmen for the present government. As an illustration he mentioned the newly-completed road between Madoc and Bancroft, stating that this job was started about 1932 and in the ordinary course of events should have been finished years ago.

"The present 11 cent per gallon tax on gasoline is unreasonable", announced Mr. Duffy, when speaking of the Liberal viewpoint on that subject. When the federal government dropped their tax of three cents per gallon the provincial government picked it up before it reached the ground. This present tax is unreasonable and it is reflected in the costs of countless everyday articles. Just think how it adds to the costs of delivering."

If he were elected as a member of the provincial legislature Mr. Duffy promised to keep in constant touch with his constituents. "My plan is to hold four metings a year in the riding," he said. "They will be held three months apart in Bancroft, Trenton, Marmora and Belleville. The first one will be held in Bancroft. At these meetings the people will bring their problems to me and I will explain the government legislation to them."

Too Much Publicity

There was too much ballyhoo and publicity about the government's policy of building new schools when it did not completely cover the situation was Mr. Duffy's conclusion. He stated that more building was necessary in many places and that "practically every urban school had at least one room in the basement."

"That road from Belleville to Foxboro to Marmora is up and down like a roller-coaster at a midway. I am amazed that the Hon. George Doucett is not collecting amusement tax from people who ride on it," said Don Carruthers, Liberal candidate for East Hastings.

He, Mr. Carruthers, also agreed that the road from Foxboro to Madoc should be improved and that it should have been taken over by the province of Ontario years ago.

Speaking of the policy of the Frost government on the hydro qestion he classed many of the present rates as enormous and criticized the administration for not yet releasing its financial statement for 1949-50. He maintained that hydro should be available to all before the government embarked upon an expensive program of converting from 25 cycle to 60 cycle in South-Western Ontario.

Frank F. Follwell, Liberal MP for South Hastings reiterated the opinions of the aspirants for the provincial house when he placed the hospitalization plan of provincial leader Walter Thomson at the top spot in the present Liberal platform.

Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have provincial hospital plans, yet there is not one in the wealthy province of Ontario, despite the enormous surplus of the present Progressive-Conservative government," he said. Mr. Follwell also praised Saskatchewan for introducing such a plan in spite of the fact that compared to Ontario Saskatchewan was a poor province and recent statistics showed that their population was decreasing instead of increasing.

Criticizes Lands Dept.

The present policy of the Department of Lands and Forests came under fire from the speaker. "In the eight years ince 1943 a number of the large pulp and paper companies have increased their dividends 475% yet they are still paying the same stumpage dues that they paid in 1943," he said.

"Many of these big companies cut holus bolus and thousands of large trees that should become logs are cut into pulp wood that is manufactured into paper, not in Ontario, but in United States," he continued. If this wood had been diverted from pulp wood to lumber it would have produced, since 1943, sufficient lumber to build 600,000 houses, announced the federal member from South Hastings.

Mr. Follwell stated that "all legislation for old age pensions had been started by Liberal governments." Starting in January 1952 the provincial government would be saving millions per year as the federal administration was absorbing all the cost of pensions for those over 70 and the Ontario government would just be paying 50% for the pensioners in the 65 to 69 age bracket.

"When you talk of co-operation Walter Thomson could do more in a few months than Mr. Frost could do in years," continued Mr. Follwell. "Mr. Frost started to co-operate with Ottawa when Ontario elected 58 Liberal members to the federal parliament in 1949. There certainly was no co-operation during the regime of the Drew government, especially evident during the Dominion-Provincial conference of 1945, and this same policy was continued by Mr. Frost until 1949."

Continuing on the co-operation theme and relating it to hospitalization plans he stated that "there was neither co-operation nor cohesion nor understanding among the members of the present administration," as the Hon. Dr. Vivian had promised a health plan when it had not been announced by the cabinet as a whole.

The speaker promised that a Liberal administration would review the powers and attitude of the present municipal board so that it would fulfiy its primary and intended purpose of advising and not dictating to municipal governments.

In conclusion, the present gasoline tax came under fire for the second time in the evening. "The Liberal party is pledged to take three cents off the present tax," said Mr. Folwell. "The ink was not dry on the repealing measure of the federal government before the provincial government picked it up. In 1950 Ontario collected $87,000,000 by this tax yet it spent only $45,000,000 of the total in road work."

All speakers, and the chairman, Walter Turner, urged and reminded the gathering to get out and vote and to pass this word along to all citizens of every political party.

Appeal Quashed

TORONTO, Nov. 20 (CP)—The Ontario appeal court Monday dismissed an appeal by Ivar Karvonen, 68-year-old Finnish farmer of Port Arthur who is under sentence to be hanged Dec. 4 for the murder of John Pursiainen. P. B. C. Pepper, counsel for Karvonen, said he will appeal to the minister of justice for clemency.

Canadian Oil Ouput Up 63,000 Barrels

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Bureau of Mines said today world production of crude petroleum last May — most recent month for which statistics are available — averaged 11,975,000 barrels daily, an increase of 302,000 barrels compared with the April daily rate.

The largest gains in daily average production over April were in Canada, the Middle East and the United States.

Canada's crude oil output rose 63,000 barrels daily as the first quantities of Alberta crude oil were moved by lake tanker from the pipeline terminal at Superior to refineries at Sarnia, the Bureau said.

Depression Said Not Necessary

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 — (CP) — Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt (L, Quebec) said Monday night there is a middle road between inflation and a depression.

Speaking in French in the Senate's debate on the speech from the throne, Senator Vaillancourt said it is not necessary for a depression to follow inflation.

Every war, he said, has brought on inflation. War production reduced production of consumer goods. The reduction in consumer goods boosted prices. But the threat of war alone was not the sole cause of the present inflation.

Some people wanted to work less and earn more. They produced less and had more time to play. They spent more on liquor and beer than they did on butter and milk. He said he knew that some people preferred to have beer in the house rather than milk.

Canada's population shift also contributed to inflation. About 70 per cent of the people now lived in cities and about 30 per cent in the country. It used to be the reverse.

Every effort should be made to encourage young men to stay on the farm.

Increases Don't Apply

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (CP) — Veterans Minister Lapointe said today in the Commons that the increases announced Friday in pensions to disabled war veterans do not apply to pensions paid dependent parents of veterans. He told Donald Fleming (PC-Toronto Eglinton) that the pensions paid to dependent parents are not paid as a matter of right. They are awarded by the pensions commission after investigation.

Make Final Radio Appeals In Ontario Election Talks

By The Canadian Press

With the campaign in Thursday's Ontario general election swiftly drawing to a close, Premier Frost Monday night invaded Liberal leader Walter Thomson's riding of Ontario and in an Oshawa speech attacked the Liberal party. Mr. Thomson, speaking 30 miles away at Uxbridge, scoffed at claims of a split between the federal and provincial Liberal parties and said he had the blessing of his "close friend," Prime Minister St. Laurent, in his campaign.

E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, said in Windsor that a vote for the Liberal is a vote for province-wide unemployment. He said the provincial Liberal party endorses the policies of the federal Liberal party, which has decided against applying price controls.

All three party leaders were heard on a CBC Ontario network in their final radio appeals of the campaign. CBC regulations prohibit election broadcasting for 48 hours before the voting.

Mr. Frost appealed for re-election on the record of his administration and said the Progressive Conservative party can give the strong government Ontario needs for the challenging years ahead.

"We have the ability, the knowledge and the experience to get things done. Our record is your guarantee of our ability to carry out our promises to preserve good government, for the betterment of our people and for the development and expansion of our province."

Only Major Issue

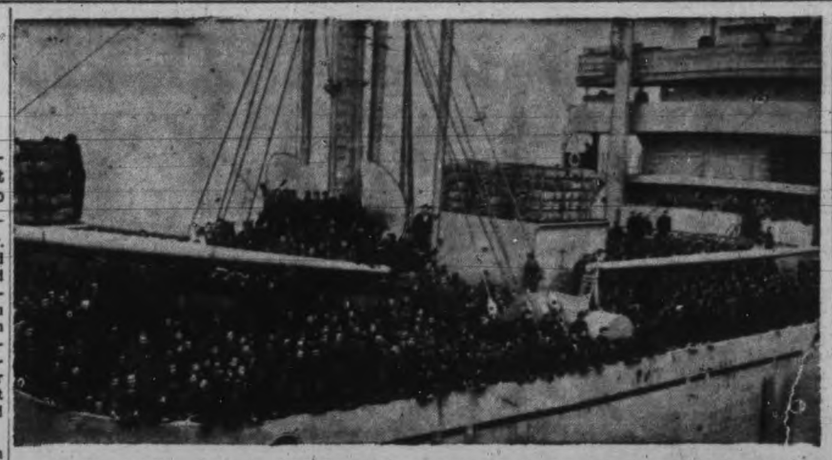
Mr. Thomson said his plan for a provincial hospital care program is the only major issue in the campaign.

"The test is for the voter to ask himself: 'Do I want a hospital plan or do I not? Do I want security from hospital bills or do I not? This is the No. 1 issue. The plan is possible. It can and will be done by the Liberal party."

Mr. Jolliffe discussed his party's 12-point platform and criticized both the federal and the Ontario governments for not taking a "firm stand" on the St. Lawrence seaway and power project. He said his party, if elected, will work to speed the development, in full co-operation with other governments. Unless the seaway were built, Ontario would soon face a shortage of electric power.

Mr. Frost, who Monday toured his home riding of Victoria and visited several factories in Lindsay, said in his Oshawa speech that the Liberal administration which the Progressive Conservatives succeeded in 1943 was "reactionary"—except for former Attorney-General Gordon Conant of Oshawa, who was "hampered by reactionaries."

The Liberal party had split in 1943 over the issue of recognizing the principle of collective bargaining in labor legislation. The present government's "great program and great series of accomplishments" had been made difficult by the inaction of the preceding Liberal administration.



Friendly to Labor

The Premier said his administration has always been friendly to labor.

Mr. Thomson, speaking at Uxbridge in the Muskoka-Ontario riding in which Provincial Secretary Welsh seeks re-election said:

"Those who say there is a split between the Federal and the Provincial Liberal parties do not tell the truth. I have the blessing of the prime minister. I can deal with Louis St. Laurent because he is one of my closest friends. And I can deal with Health Minister Martin because he graduated with me from Osgoode Hall. Yet people say Premier Frost can deal with Ottawa better than I can."

Ontario soldiers in Korea and Germany have already started voting. The results of their vote will be cabled home and added to the civilian totals in nthe compilation Thursday night.

General Motors Says 450 Workers Laid Off

OSHAWA, Nov. 20 (CP)—General Motors of Canada Monday announced there will be a five-per-cent layoff of employees at its plant here within a few weeks. The company statement blamed limits on the use of steel for consumer goods. Union officials estimate 9,000 persons are employed at the plant. The staff cut on that basis would be 450.

Modern Japan Theme At WMS Service

HAVELOCK, Nov. 20 (ENS)—"Japan Begins Anew" was the theme of an address, illustrated with lantern slides, delivered by the Rev. R. G. Newman in Havelock United Church on Sunday evening on the occasion of the annual Fall Thankoffering service of the Woman's Missionary Society.

The pictures gave a general idea of what the country looks like now showing colleges and other buildings which had come through the bombing raids without being damaged with photos of missionaries and other leaders.

The former Methodist college in Tokyo which has been taken over by the Church in Japan was shown, and here the largest enrolment of women in the world is to be found in the theological department. The college at Kobe, now also under the church of Japan, and supported by the Methodist Church in the USA and the United Church of Canada has 4,000 young men students. Schools have been started for rural pastors to instruct them how to improve the conditions under which the Japanese farmers are living. Until recent years the farmers lived under the feudal system whereby 50 to 60 per cent. of their income went to the landlord. General MacArthur changed this and now modern methods of agriculture as well as the co-operative system of buying and selling are being taught.

Mr. Newman who has served as a missionary in Japan for seven years also told of some of his experiences there. Mrs. Newman, who is a daughter of the late Dr. R. C. Armstrong, was born in Japan.

The service was conducted by Mrs. G. W. Chiles, president of the WMS. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. A. Anderson. Prayer was offered by the Rev. R. G. Newman and Mrs. Newman sang a solo in the Japanese language, "What A Friend We Have in Jesus."

The Thankoffering amounted to $73.60.

Organ Presented At Springville Honors Cathcarts

SPRINGVILLE, Nov. 20 (ENS)—Springville United Church was filled to capacity for the Sunday morning service. At this special service the new electric organ was dedicated.

This lovely new organ is a gift to the church from the Cathcart family: Manson, Donald and Harley Cathcart, of Springville, and Mrs. Lorne White, of Port Hope, and Mrs. Robert Bell, of Peterborough, in memory of their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cathcart.

David Penney, organist of Weston Baptist Church, Toronto, gave a piano recital prior to the opening of the service.

The Rev. A. E. Larke asked Mrs. Lorne White and Mrs. Robert Bell, the two daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cathcart, to unveil the new organ.

Mr. Penney presided at the organ throughout the evening.

The Rev. A. E. Larke, after his message on The Parable of the Talents, invited the congregation to worship as Mr. Penney played many familitar gospel hymns. During the service Robert Bell sang "There Were Ninety and Nine" as a solo and Mrs. A. E. Larke sang "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings." After the benediction, the congregation remained standing while the gifted organist played "The Hallelujah Chorus."

During their lifetime the late Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cathcart were very fond of organ music and were active church members.

Federal Backing Lacking—Porter

PORT COLBORNE, Nov. 20 — (CP).—Federal cabinet ministers are keeping out of the current Ontario general election campaign and giving little assistance to Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, Attorney-General Porter said Monday night.

"Where are the big guns from Ottawa?" he asked at a rally in the interests of Ellis Morningstar, Progressive Conservative candidate for Welland. He said Justice Minister Garson and Agriculture Minister Gardiner were in Toronto last week the night Mr. Thomson held a rally in Massey Hall but left for Ottawa without appearing at the gathering.

"Perhaps they did not want to be embarrassed by associating themselves with the promises made by Mr. Thomson. Many of the promises made by him were made many times by the Liberals at Ottawa and never kept."

Usually Liberal cabinet ministers from Ottawa gave full support to their provincial colleagues in an election campaign. This time however, the support from Ottawa had been "a mere trickle and very thin."

Graceful Big Fans Return To Fashion

LONDON—(CP)—The inclination of London and Paris dress designers to couple ostrich and lace fans with some of their more exotic gowns is causing British fashion writers to recall the "language of the fan".

In the old days the fan in a lady's hands spoke a language of its own. If she wished to communicate with a gentleman without speaking, she could do so by judicious use of the fan.

If she were annoyed at something, for instance, a twirl of the fan in the left hand meant "do not speak to me." A warmer message, "I love you," could be conveyed by pressing the tip of the shut fan, or its handle, to the heart.

Holding the half-open fan, or its handle, to the lips meant "you may kiss me." If the lady wishes to talk to the man, she would touch the tip of the fan with her fingers. And if he was neglecting her, she would fan herself with a short, quick motion.

Fashion writers note this could still be a useful method of silent telegraphy—providing the modern male takes the trouble to learn the code.

Rabbits on some western farms are leading frustrated lives these days. The succulent bark of their favorite fruit trees has been wrapped in aluminum foil, so now they can't get at it.

This was a new one on us. We had heard of dozens of uses for the foil we roll at Kingston, Ont., but never for frustrating rabbits. However, it just goes to illustrate why more people are using more aluminum and why we, as the most efficient producer of this modern metal, must go on expanding. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. New Swiss Discovery for Eczema, Boils, Psoriasis, Leg Ulcers

The discovery of one of the main causes of skin diseases is bringing new health and happiness to thousands of people. Science has established that the lack of highly unsaturated fatty acids in nutrition reduces the natural resistance of the body and leads to skin disease.

After 10 years of research a Swiss Chemist, Dr. W. Schmitz, succeeded in extracting from pure vegetable oils highly unsaturated fatty acids in a hitherto unattained purity of 99% and therefore named F "99". Only in this purity can it be so readily absorbed into the blood stream. F "99" is not a synthetic drug but a concentrate of natural and nutritive substances and is absolutely harmless. In severe cases medical advice should

English Girl Finds US Offers Little

DEAR MISS DIX: I am an English girl from London, and I am so homesick I don't know what to do, or where to turn for relief from the pain in my heart. Can you tell me from some past experience whether this will pass? I left a beautiful house and large gardens in the West End of London and am now living in a brick box with no garden at all. In England, I was always visiting theatres, dances and debates. Here, the cost of living is so high I never have a cent over after paying rent and groceries. I do try to adjust myself, but now have a daughter and really feel worse than ever. I can't bear to think of the horrible, narrow life she will have here. No pets, gardens, private schools, etc. Do you think I can get used to life in America?

MAUREEN.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Countless numbers of Europeans, English and otherwise, have got so used to life in American that they wouldn't go back to the old country for anything.

I thoroughly sympathtize with the homesickness you have for your family and your old home. Leaving everything you loved is no easy task. However, you certainly had an inkling of the fact that you would be homesick when you came here, so you can't put the blame for your misery entirely on us.

Look On Good Side

Instead of being resentful over the amount of money spent on groceries, consider the fact that you can at least buy any kind of food you want, in any quantity, and at prices that are not prohibitive, in spite of the high cost of living. If you can't manage a large garden, try window box gardening, and raising house plants. They may seem a poor substitute for acres of velvety lawn and myriads of bright flowers, but they have a charm of their own and will prove well worth cultivating.

Your little girl faces a narrow life only if you continually harp on the advantages (real or imaginary) you think she would have in London. Life here is very different, and it is up to you to make the most of its advantages for her. Bring her up to appreciate the greatness of your adopted country. Our schools are as fine as any in the world; don't belittle them.

I think you do need the companionship of your own countrywomen and for that I suggest you get in touch with the English Speaking Union in your city, through which you will contact many other young wives in your position. Comparing your problems with their will clear up many to your own dissatisfactions and show you the way to share in the rich, broad, exhilarating life of America.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What would you suggest in this dilemma? I find it necessary to come to town once a week, which brings me calling on my friends anywhere from 7:15 am to 7:30 am, then I spend a good part of the day with them. I come that early as I ride in with my husband who reports to work at 8:00 am. Several of these friends love to sleep in the morning so I feel a little guilty about breaking into their routine. Do you think I am being unreasonable to alternate my calls on my friends once a week?—NOLA.

ANSWER: Your certainly have as odd a visiting schedule as I have ever encountered. I thoroughly sympathize with your friends; having to be social and entertaining at 7:30 in the morning require fortitude. Even if they didn't sleep late, the morning routine of most households is hectic enough to make early visitors slightly less than uproariously welcome. Your system would take a prize any day in a contest on "How to Lose Friends".

Since you must be in the city so early, why not buy yourself a morning paper and find comfortable place for a second breakfast? That, and a short walk about town, would bring you to 9 am, which is about as early as I would advise a morning call—and much earlier than is socially customary.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Can you recommend a cure for nightmares? I am embarrassed no end about disturbing the household with my awful wailings. I don't overeat and retire early. What is it?—SOPHIE P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since you have removed the two most obvious causes for nightmare, too much food and too little rest, you probably have something on your mind that disturbs your rest. See a good doctor. If his treatment doesn't work, you have have to consult a psychiatrist.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Preparing Your Mincemeat For Your Christmas Pies

You are in a definite category if you belong to the era when all mincemeat contained meat. But—I like mincemeat without meat better.

I have discovered that some of you are experienced mincemeat makers. You do not hesitate to make it and store in in a crock in your cold cellar. Now my cold cellar in not that cold so I pour it into sterile jars and seal it. It's bound to ferment a little if it is stored in a crock and not kept cold enough.

Fruit Mincemeat

One pound currants, 1 lb. raisins, 1 lb. beef suet, ½ lb. mixed peel, 2 lbs. apples, 1½ lbs. brown sugar, 1 oz. mixed spices. Grated rind 3 lemons, grated rind 3 oranges, ½ cup hard cider or sherry, ½ lb. ground almonds, juice of 1 lemon, 1 lb. sultanas, juice of 1 orange. Clean and mince raisins, also suet, apples, peel and sultanas. Mix with the currants, spices, sugar, lemon and orange rind, the cider or sherry and juice of lemons and oranges. Remember to store in cold place or bring to boil and boil gently 20 minutes then pour into sterile jars and seal. Let mellow at least three weeks.

Uncooked Mincemeat

One cup each shortening, seeded raisins, currants, 1¾ cups dark brown sugar, 1½ cups seedless raisins, ¾ cup shaved citron, ¼ cup candied lemon peel, one-third cup candied orange peel, 4 teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon each cloves, alspice, nutmeg, salt, ½ teaspoon ginger, 3 lbs. cooking apples, chopped, ½ cup cider, 1 tablespoon vinegar. Combine brown sugar and shortening. Add other ingredients. Mix well. Pack in crock or hot sterilized jars. Keep in a cool place. If mixture bubbles it is merely ripening. This makes enough to fill 4 or 5 pies.

Old-Fashioned Perfection Mincemeat

Five lbs. chopped lean beef, 1 cup finely chopped suet 10 lbs. chopped apples, 3 quarts water, 1 cup vinegar, 1 quart cherry juice or cider or grape juice or any of these juices mixed or left-over juices from canned fruits such as cherries, raspberries, peaches, etc., 2 lbs. raisins or 1½ lbs., raisins and ½ lb. currants, 3 lbs. brown or white sugar or mixture of brown and white, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, freshly ground nutmeg, cloves, allspice and mace. Allspice and cloves are strong spices and you may wish to reduce them to ¼ or ½ teaspoon. Cook slowly over low heat for 3 hours, having asbestos pad under kettle. Stir very frequently. Pour into sterile pint jars and seal carefully. This makes at least 13 pints. I add chopped apples to this when I open 1 pint. I add enough to fill my large 9-inch pie plate and it needs no extra sugar.

The next recipe is most unusual, but some of you are so venturesome in your cooking that this is the type of thing you are always seeking.

Mayfair Mincemeat

Seed 1 lb. imported grapes and cut in quarters; add ½ cup shredded blanched almonds, 4 well-packed cups chopped Spy apples, 1 lb. seeded raisins, ¼ lb. fresh mixed peel, ¼ lb. chopped figs, ½ lb. clean seedless raisins, juice and grated rind 1 large lemon, 1 cup brown usgar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 freshly grated nutmeg. Mix all ingredients well. Store in clean crock in very cold place but do not freeze. This is ready to use in 2 weeks. It is better to make this in triple quantity for it is very popular. This small quantity is for your first trial batch.

MOVIE COLUMN

Gene Kelly Attacks "Snobism"

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20 (AP)—Gene Kelly today attacked "snobism," which he said kept some musicals and their stars from being given Academy Awards.

The issue arose when I suggested that Kelly and his latest picture might be up for Oscars next March. The actor-dancer-director said he doubted it.

"There is a strange sort of reasoning in Hollywood that musicals are less worthy of Academy consideration than dramas," he remarked. "It is a form of snobism, the same sort that perpetuates the idea that drama is more deserving of awards than comedy. But actually the kind of thing that Groucho Marx and Red Skelton do is 10 times as hard as straight drama.

No Favors

"No. I don't argue that musicals should be given a special category in Academy voting. I think musicals can and should stand on their own merit in competition with straight pictures. And I think perhaps next year or at least within 10 years, the movie musical will have progressed so far the Academy voters will not be able to overlook it.

"The same thing is true on the stage," he said. "The legitimate drama has stood still for about 20 years, while musicals produce the really exciting things in the theatre. Shows like 'Pal Joey,' 'Oklahoma,' and 'Carousel' are worlds apart from the operettas of the past.

"The culmination is in 'South Pacific,' which I think is the greatest show I have ever seen."

The actor feels the movie musical is progressing in the same direction.

What's Right?

You are applying for a job as secretary, and you happen to be chewing gum while en route to the interview.

WRONG: Keep right on chewing, hoping it will help ease the tension of the interview.

RIGHT: Dispose of your gum, realizing that it will surely hurt the "first impression" you make on your prospective employer.

Claim Christianity Losing With Indians

BANCROFT, Nov. 20—(ENS)—"The Indians living on reserves in Canada's more remote areas will revert back to their belief in witch doctors and medicine men unless the Christian church can provide more trained personnel who will do work in the fields," said Mrs. Alexander W. Smith at a meeting of the women of St. Paul's United Church in Bancroft on Monday night.

Mrs. Smith, a graduate of the United Church Training School, told of her experiences as a missionary on an Indian reserve in the Berens River district of Manitoba. She stressed the great need for health education and told of the heavy mortality due to the lack of application of health rules necessary to combat the communicable diseases, especially tuberculosis, to which these people are greatly susceptible. Throughout her speech she showed her warm feeling and regard for the descendants of Canada's original inhabitants.

This was followed by a travelogue of historical spots in Florida, enriched with colored slides, shown by Miss M. M. Willows and Miss A. Coultes, deaconesses of the United Church of Canada in the Maynooth mission field.

In introducing the speakers Mrs. Emerson Laundry told of a new United Church Training School for women workers, to be built in Toronto in 1952, and the campaign which will be launched to finance the project.

Trying To Make Every Pole Spare-Time Fighting Man

By THOMAS HARRIS.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 20 (Reuters). — Russian-born Marshal Rokossovsky, Poland's War Minister, is urging every able-bodied Pole to become a spare-time fighting man.

These part-time soldiers, reinforcing Poland's existing army of 500,000 men, are one of Russia's counters to western rearmament. They are making Poland the strongest Soviet satellite in East Europe and a serious threat to the West.

The men are being recruited "voluntarily" into the "Soldiers' League" and the "Airmen's League." These two leagues, modelled on the Russian "Dosarm" and "Dosav" organizations, train their recruits in every branch of modern warfare from sniping, radio transmission, and truck driving to combat flying.

Many men can be trained in war with little equipment and at small cost. The same rifle, radio set, truck or aircraft can be used by a large number of men training in shifts. And as the recruits work during the day, the state is not obliged to feed and lodge them, as it would have to do with regular soldiers.

Learn Details

Details of the two leagues are given by Polish newspapers reaching here and by carefully sifted and counter-checked accounts from the score of Polish refugees fleeing to Sweden every month.

Recruitment is by compulsion and cajolery.

Party officials tell young workers and students that it is their duty to join one of the leagues and hint that if they fail to do so they are indirectly supporting the Western "war camp."

At the same time, the defence department organizes "army weeks" or "air weeks" to glamorize military life.

All Rokossovsky's plans may, however, be spoiled by the human element.

Food and consumer goods are desperately short in Poland—as the press admits, although it blames saboteurs—and discontent is increasing.

No one dares revolt now, but in a war many "leaguers" might well turn their weapons against the Russians unless Rokossovsky can dilute them sufficiently with trusted Red army men.

Ontario's Conservation Program Envy Of North America-Scott

Ontario's Department of Lands and Forests has been carrying out a conservation program "which has made this province the envy of North Americans," Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests and Progressive Conservative candidate in Peterborough, said Monday in a radio broadcast.

The Government plans to carry out more reforestation, more propagation of fish and game, more stream development, he added.

"We hope—and expect—to repair a great deal of damage caused by mismanagement of the past 100 years. In that period of time we have seen vast areas of Ontario denuded of fish and game; our forests ruthlessly slashed and despoiled; our water courses and swamps destroyed so that flash floods have swept through many of our towns and cities, causing widespread damage."

Correcting Abuses

Mr. Scott said that the future program is aimed at correcting these abuses at restoring Ontario's fish and game areas, "ensuring that our citizens who depend on our renewal resources for recreation or a livelihood may find them in abundance."

Finances for the conservation program, said Mr. Scott, will be provided from "considerable extra revenue" which has been derived in the past two years from the fire protection charges against woods industries and increased timber dues.

"It has been long suggested that the revenue derived from fish and game in this province, mostly from the sale of licenses to visiting hunters and fishermen, should be returned to the propagation of fish and game."

The lands and forests minister explained that that course had been followed by the government. The revenue was spent on hatcheries, on increasing number of conservation officers, on biologists, wildlife specialists, on the establishment of fish sanctuaries and game preserves.

Mr. Scott emphasized that "the Progressive Conservative government is doing its utmost to overcome the mismanagement of the past."

"The forest is dedicated, with its resources to multiple use, the use of forest, water and soil for the purposes for which they are best fitted."

Mr. Scott said that there is more than 100,000,000 acres of forest land under the protection and supervision of the department.

Duncan Sinclair President Men Teachers

Duncan Sinclair, Norwood, was elected president of the Peterborough east branch of the Ontario Men eachers' Federation at the organization meeting in Lakefield Monday night.

The following officers were installed by District President of the Federation, W. L. McNeil; John Kilty, Keene, vice-president; Kenneth Trumpour, Norwood, secretary and committee chairmen H. Hunter, sickness benefit and insurance; M. Patterson, policy; R. Hawhiney, educational finance; E. Sloan, educational research; R. Hendren, superannuation; J. Lickley, legislation; and J. Lynden, publicity and courier.

In his installation remarks, Mr. McNeill outlined the six objects of the federation: to promote and advance the cause of education; to promote a high standard of professional ethics; to raise the status of the teaching profession; to promote, advance and safeguard the interests of the Ontario public school men teachers and to secure conditions which will make possible the best professional service; to arouse and increase public interest in educational affairs and to co-operate with other teachers' organizations having the same or like interests.

R. K. McKee, district representative to the provincial executive gave an interesting survey of federation affairs and conducted a discussion on superannuation, policy, insurance benefits and salary matters.

Those attending from Peterborough were: W. Patterson, N. Gainer, L. Corbett, J. Burns, D. Lawless, O. Anderson.

Tone Marriage Ends After Only 7 Weeks

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20 (AP).—The seven-week marriage of Franchot Tone and actress Barbara Payton is on the rocks, her lawyer said today.

The lawyer, Robert S. Feder, said the couple quarrelled bitterly Sunday night and separated Monday. He said he plans to file a divorce action soon, possibly next week.

Feder said he did not know what the quarrel was about.

Neither Tone nor Miss Payton could be reached for comment.

They were married Sept. 29 in Cloquet, Minn., shortly after Tone was released from a hospital here. He spent several days in bed recovering from a beating given him by actor Tom Neal in a dispute over the blonde actress' affections.

Alexander To Learn News From Farms At Winter Fair

TORONTO, Nov. 20 — (CP)— The Governor-General will learn what is new and best from the farms at the Royal Winter Fair today.

Viscount Alexander and Lady Alexander Monday night paid their fifth annual visit to the Horse Show. They planned today to tour some of the thousands of machinery and livestock exhibits at the Fair itself.

One of the stops will be at the flower show where some 15,000 roses are on display. A feature of this year's flower show is an exhibit titled "Roses in a Woman's Life." Multi-colored roses in corsages, bouquets and baskets show the steps in a woman's life from flower girl at a wedding, through engagement and marriage to 50th anniversary.

Presents Guineas

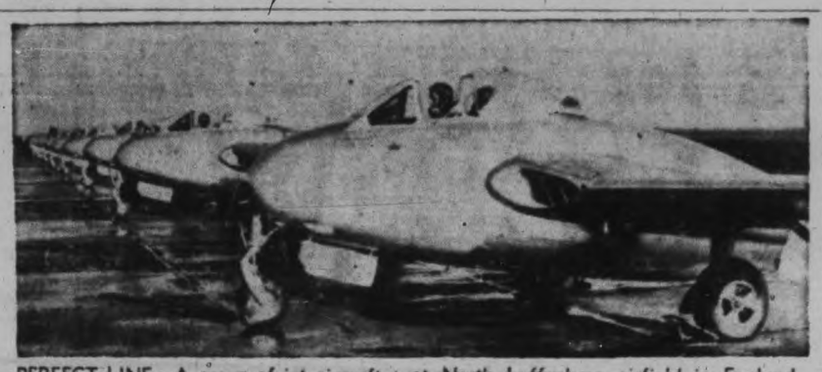
While at the Horse Show last night the Governor-General presented the award of the King's Guineas to 17-year-old Robert Hern of Granton, Ont. Bob took the award with the best baby beef steer in competition with 98 other members of Ontario boys' and girls' clubs. The prize-winning steer and reserve winner were Herefords.

With most judging of dairy cattle and breeding horses finished, the second to last day of the 23rd annual fair will be devoted to market cattle judging.

R. M. Demers of Lennoxville, Que., swings into action again today. Sporting the purple ribbon of the auctioneer for his first time at the fair, Mr. Demers has begged and bullied dealers into buying pure-bred show Hereford and Shorthorn cattle. He is no novice at the auction business, having worked for 15 years at the Sherbrooke Winter Fair.

First US Win

A United States rider brough that country its first victory in international jumping at the Royal Horse Show.



Arthur McCashin of Pluckmin, NJ, took first place in the international fault-and-out stakes riding Totilla. Mexican riders took second and third places, while two Canadians were in fourth and reserve places. Fifteen riders from Canada, United States, Mexico, Ireland, and Brazil competed in the event.

Results at the Horse Show included:

Harness tandem—1 Hayworthe Symphony and Dufferin Emperor, Dufferin Stock Farms, Downsview; 2 King Clancy and Scarboro Princess, Lawrum Farms, Durham.

Single roadster harness horse—1 Patricia Volo, Dr. E. E. Foster and son, Galt; 2 Yankie Doodle, W. S. Munro, Embro; 3 Miss Atomic, Cecil B. Stirling, Hannon.

Governor-General's Cup for half-bred mare or gelding — 1 Blue Brandy, L. F. Beattie, St. Catharines.

PERFECT LINE—A group of jet aircraft of the RCAF stands in perfect alignment at North Luffenham airfield in England. The air station has recently been turned over by the RAF to the Canadians.

Bancroft To Get Hydro In 1952 Sandercock Pledges

BANCROFT, Nov. 20. (ENS)—"Hydro will be available to almost every section of this district by next year," stated Elmer Sandercock, Conservative candidate for West Hastings in the current provincial election at a party rally in Bancroft Community Hall on Monday night.

He thanked the people and the municipal councils for their support and reminded them that improvements came when they requested them. Some examples of co-operative work accomplished by the government at Toronto and the local municipalities were the building of new schools at Birds Creek, Paudash, Coe Hill, Lake St. Peter and North Hastings High School in Bancroft, he said.

He congratulated the local department of highways for the splendid type of roads that they were building and said that the roads here were of the best types that could be built in a rocky country. Besides the work on Highway 62 Mr. Sandercock stated that the newly-improved road from the Belleville-Bancroft highway to Coe Hill had been carried on at practically no expense to the county of Hastings.

Always Available

"I am available at all times and people will not have to wait for three months to see me," announced the Conservative candidate, after he had mentioned a plan of Angus Duffy, Liberal standard bearer, when Mr. Duffy had stated that he would have regional meetings quarterly to consult the electors.

Reeve Theodore Tyron of Bancroft spoke of the benefits that Bancroft had received from the present government. Among them were grants for hospitalization, education and roads. He said that due to increased provincial grants the municipal requisition for public school purposes was 50 percent lower in 1951 than it was in 1947. The village council also receives a rebate of about $600 as a 50 percent grant on county roads within the boundaries of the municipality.

As a member of the municipal council and a former member of the county council J. J. Bronson of Bancroft paid tribute to the painstaking work of Mr. Sandercock both when he was superintendent of the county home for the aged and during his term as a member of the legislature.

In asking the audience to support the present member, Mr. Sandercock, the co-chairman of the meeting, Dr. Patrick Scott of Belleville, president of the Conservative riding association opened fire on Mr. Angus Duffy, the Liberal candidate, because, he stated, "the Liberals have not a candidate. Mr. Duffy was never in a Liberal meeting. He dropped in through the ceiling, took the convention, and went out through the ceiling. Why, he even ran [illegible] 4th vice-president of the Conservative association in the city of Belleville."

Criticizes Thomson

Dr. Scott then switched his fire to Liberal leader Walter Thomson and his proposed hospitalization plan and declared that it was unworkable. To support his contention he declared, "If everybody had coverage children would be going in with chicken pox. This plan would cost Belleville $3,000,000, and Bancroft would have to provide 50 extra beds in its hospital. There would have to be a crowd of people going from door to door to collect the rates. It is unthinkable and unworkable. It would take five years to get enough nurses and hospital assistants."

Quoting from editorials of the Globe and Mail and the Toronto Star, Mr. Joe Short of Belleville read extracts praising the Frost administration and criticising the promises of Liberal leader Thomson. He spoke of the handsome remuneration received by Mr. Thomson, saying "From Jan. 1947 till June 1951 he received $232,135, as fees for government work." Finishing his speech he read the Liberal platform, declaring that it was utterly impracticable and unworkable.

Mr. Jack Woods of Belleville spoke briefly to draw attention to the fact that Ontario was one of the few provinces that did not have a sales tax.

A former citizen of Bancroft and now retired in Belleville, Dr. A. T. Embury made a short and witty address that was one of the highlights. After reminiscing on political meetings in Bancroft 50 years ago he told the group "it's wonderful how much money elections cost. I know for I've run four of them."

Co-chairman for the evening were James Maxwell, president of the Bancroft Progressive Conservative Association and Dr. Patrick Scott of Belleville, president of the provincial riding association. Besides the speakers, Mr. Israel McKenzie, a long-time member of the local association, was seated on the platform. There was a dance sponsored by the riding association.

Abdullah Leaves For Bride-To-Be

DALLAS, Nov. 20 (AP)—With his divorce papers clutched in his hand, Sheppard W. (Abdullah) King left today for Egypt and his new bride-to-be, dancer Samia Gamal.

King's itinerary after leaving here today scheduled his arrival in Cairo Thursday. He and Samia plan to be married this weekend.

King, member of a wealthy Texas oil family, won the hand of the Egyptian dancer in a whirlwind Paris courtship. His mother, Mrs. Annie Ponney King, of Houston, however, threatened to disinherit him.

Abdullah—his Moslem name—flew home several weeks ago with the avowed intention of divorcing Gloria Jones King and arranging peace talks with his mother.

Apparently he was successful in both projects.

He got a "quickie" divorce from Gloria in Juarez, Mexico, and Monday night he said: "As far as I know I'm not disinherited. I'm a very, very happy man."

Want Grey Cup Ticket GoodBetBlueBombers

WINNIPEG, Nov. 20 — (CP)— Want a Grey Cup ticket?

A good bet is to be around Toronto's Royal York Hotel next Saturday morning—if you are in good standing with WWinnipeg Blue Bombers.

The West's share of tickets for the football classic is distributed among the four clubs. The Bombers this year instituted a new system for handling its quota.

It broke the applications into three categories—a club member-a season-ticket holder, and an advertiser in the Bomber program.

First preference is given to those qualifying in all three categories. The next best chance is being a club member and either a season ticket holder or an advertiser. The last hope is being one of the three.

After scanning the applications, the executive sent out cards telling the applicant how many tickets would be available at Bomber headquarters at the Royal York next Friday and Saturday.

But a deadline was set at 9 am Saturdaw for the pick-up. Any tickets not called for by that time will be sold to the public.

Visits Army In Korea To Learn Conditions

OTTAWA, Nov. 20 (CP).—Lt.-Col. E. M. D. McNaughton of Ottawa, officer commanding the 1st Regiment of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery at Camp Shilo, Man., has been visiting Canadian troops in Korea to determine warfare conditions there, it was learned here today.

Col. McNaughton, son of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian army overseas, is expected to lead his regiment to Korea next spring to relieve the 2nd Battalion, RCHA, which will be coming home on rotation leave.

Judge Will Conduct Inquiry On Aldermen

NORTH BAY, Nov. 20 (CP). — Judge J. A. S. Plouffe will conduct a judicial investigation into charges that some aldermen have misconducted city business.

The charges were made some time ago by Ald. Merle Dickerson, who said commissions had been paid to some aldermen by contracting and other firms. Ald. Dickerson repeated that charge at a council meeting Monday night.

Provincial Statutes specify that if such allegations are made, a council may apply to a district judge for an investigation. The statutes specify that in the investigation, the judge shall have all the powers conferred by the Public Commissioners Act.

Press Search For Hunter

CAPREOL, Nov. 20 (CP). — Searchers left Capreol early today to resume the hunt for 27-year-old Lawrence Fortier, lost since Sunday in swampy bush country in the Whistle Mine area, five miles north of here.

Fortier, a CNR employee, wore only light clothing and the temperature has been near zero. When last seen by his brother-in-law and hunting companion, 17-year-old Donald Yensen, Sunday afternoon he had on rubber boots, gabardine trousers, a sweater and cotton shirt.

Provincial police from the headquarters detachment joined the search Monday. A mobile loudspeaker unit owned by Bill Tyreman of Sudbury was used today in hope the lost hunter would hear it and make his own way out of the bush.

One party Monday reported hearing a single shot but no one in the party had a gun to fire acknowledgment.

Fortier, a former resident of Sudbury, moved to Capreol two months ago. He is unfamiliar with the area. When last seen he had 11 rounds of ammunition.

Vagrants Dismissed

Arrested at the south end of the city on Monaghan Rd., Monday night, Andrew Marcand, 27, Penetang, and Ronald Gravelle, 21, New Toronto, appeared in police court today, charged with vagrancy.

After hearing the evidence, Magistrate W. R. Philp dismissed the charges against the men with the warning to "get jobs or purse your travels."

Fined On Liquor Count

Charged with consuming liquor while on the interdicted list, Harry R. Jones, Lakefield Highway, pleaded guilty in police court today.

He was fined $10 and $2.50 costs or in default, ten days in county jail.

Carrier Boys Visit Niagara Falls

Thirty-eight carrier boys and one girl from the Peterborough Examiner and two bus loads of boys and girls from the Kingston Whig-Standard were given a trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, New York, over the weekend.

The Peterborough contingent left about 4 pm Friday and after dinner in Toronto journeyed on to the famous Foxhead Inn at Niagara Falls where they stayed Friday and Saturday nights.

Saturday morning presented the first of two main attractions for the boys and girls, a trip to Table Rock and the new platform at the falls. There each wore a rubber hat, raincoat and rubber boots as the water poured over within 10 feet of them.

They finished off the morning by visiting other points of interest in Niagara Falls.

Saturday afternoon presented the second attraction. Traffic was held up for them and under a sheriff's police escort, the buses moved across Rainbow bridge and into the United States to Buffalo and the zoo.

At the zoo a prank by a carrier boy finally ended in a shower for all. While visiting Eddie, the chimpanzee, a carrier boy "shot" Eddie with a water gun. The chimpanzee minutes later wandered to his drinking pool, took a mouthful of water, and promptly proceeded to shower the boys and girls.

Another highlight of the zoo visit was the feeding of the monkeys and the lions.

The afternoon period was concluded with a visit to a radio teentown broadcast, followed by games and a swim at the Buffalo YMCA. There they had dinner.

During the evening they finished the visit to the United States with a shopping tour of Niagara Falls, New York.

After a second night at the Foxhead Inn they boarded the buses for the return trip to Kingston and Peterborough.

sidies paid by the province to municipalities, Mr. Scott said that in 1943, the township of Asphodel received $4,844 and in 1950, $13,938, three times as much. Municipal road subsidies have doubled since we've been in power," he added.

The Highway Improvement Act, passed by the Frost government is said Mr. Scott "one piece of legislation in which I take particular pride."

He said he had urged that some arrangement should be worked out, whereby, the province would build roads in areas not suitable for timber operations or agriculture, and then turn them over to the townships to keep them in good condition and that the Highway Improvement Act was along the lines he had in mind.

As a result of this act, a road was built between Lakefield and the Nepthelene Mines, enabling the expansion of the mining industry at the head of Stony Lake. Lake fronts have been opened up and cottages built, increasing the tax revenue of these municipalities.

G. K. Fraser also criticized Mr. Thomson's recent speech in which he said we should go back to the little red schoolhouse.

"Canada is growing," said Mr. Fraser, "and we must grow with it. Harold Scott has given up his business interests to devote all his time to you and the province. A man who will do that is worth voting for."

Mr. Fraser predicted the Frost government would increase its strength to between "57 and 60 seats." He said that members of the federal government did not expect the Liberals to win more than 22 seats, with the CCF shrinking to eight and "ringing in" the two Toronto Communist members.

Warning against the "promises" of Liberal leader Thomson who "promises everything and that he will give out more and take in less," Hon. John Foote, said, "it can't be done and he knows it."

Legion Headaches

Mr. Foote, blamed the Liberal administration of Mitchell Hepburn for "introducing most of the headaches" in the liquor problem that the PC government has had to deal with. The Minister of Reform Institutions said that the Frost government has established "the first hospital for alcoholism in a penal institution in North America, staffed by medical, psychiatric and placement officers.

"People for whom there seemed to be no hope have been rehabilitated and are now back at work," he said in describing the work the Ontario government has done to treat alcoholics.

William G. Ovens, president of Peterborough County Progressive Conservative Association said that elections were a time for "stock taking" and gave "a progress report" of eight years of Progressive Conservative administration in the province, outlining the legislation that has been passed since 1943 in the fields of hydro, highways, housing, welfare and labor legislation.

Paul Thompson, president of Peterborough Young Progressive Conservative Association spoke briefly. Gordon Parker, of Norwood was chairman. After the meeting, a light lunch was served and a dance followed.

Fear Grain Storage Problem May Prove Bigger One In 1952

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG, Nov. 20. (CP) — Grain storage, a big problem this year and last, could provide grain men with an ever bigger headache in 1952.

Many elevators throughout the country, especially at Montreal, are reported to be plugged with last year's crop of frozen, low-grade wheat which is not being sold in sufficient volume to keep channels free.

It is difficult to put the finger on the real stopper in the grain movement. Farmers say their elevators are jammed because there are not sufficient box cars to move the grain. The railways claim the tie-up is at the Lakehead where elevators are jammed. Lakehead men say there are not enough boats to move the grain eastward. Shipping authorities report eastern elevators are loaded. The easterners say they can't get rid of the grain because the wheat board cannot find buyers at current prices.

It appears to be one big circle, with the weather man in the middle. Given a break in the weather, western farmers would have produced a bumper crop which probably would have found good markets.

But due to a late harvest—and in some cases such as in Alberta, little or no harvesting—70 per cent of the crop will be grade 3 and 4 Northern.

There was a carry-over of 112,200,000 bushels of wheat alone at July 31, 1950. It stood at 186,400,000 bushels July 31, 1951.

With three-quarters of the prairies wheat crop still on the farms, a greater carry-over is in prospect for 1952. And once again new crop grain next year would be held up.

However, one bright spot in the picture came in a recent report by W. C. McNamara, assistant chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board. He said sizeable quantities of Canadian feed wheat has been sold to the United States and prospects are that the US will clean up most of Canada's troublesome backlog of low-grade wheat.

When the cry went out in August that the hold-up in grain movement was due to lack of box cars and boats, Transport Minister Chevrier appointed Roy Wilfred Milner of Winnipeg as Canada's first peacetime transport controller.

It was his job to see the movement of the new grain crop was speeded up to avert a grain transportation crisis in the west. He received the co-operation of the railways and vessel owners in hastening the grain movement.

At one stage, some Saskatchewan grain was ordered shipped to Vancouver instead of to the lakehead, with the wheat board paying the additional one-cent-per-100-pounds freight differential. Saskatchewan has always been one of the biggest problems in regard to box cars due to its many branch lines.

Changed Quotas

The wheat board practically changed its delivery quotas daily as elevators cleared.

Some may ask: "why have a quota - delivery system? What good is it?"

The answer is simple: It protects the little farmer.

In the days before fixed price on grains, farmers would hold back on deliveries, hoping for a jump in prices.

Now, the farmer knows how much he will receive for his crop as soon as he delivers it to the elevator, and therefore wants to get it off his hands as soon as possible.

No country has enough elevators to take care of all the grain. In Canada, the wheat board issues quota deliveries of so much per acre for all areas, enabling the little man to get an even break with the big farmer.

Colleges Dispute Judge's Claim Of Sport 'Deals'

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP). — College athletic leaders were quick today to dispute New York judge's accusation that football and basketball are sordid big-business deals.

But a committee of seven college presidents, meeting in Washington, agreed "something must be done" to remove whatever evils are in the intercollegiate athletic program.

And in Chicago, Hugh Willett, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said a substantial majority of the organization's 320 members supports a 12-point program for tighter controls on college athletics.

Basketball and football came under the fire of Judge Saul S. Streit yesterday before the jurist sentenced a basketball fixer and five former players to prison and gave nine other former players suspended sentences.

Commercialism Rife

"Commercialism and over-emphasis in intercollegiate football and basketball are rampant throughout the country," said Judge Streit. He said the schools are courting an "atomic athletic scandal."

The jurist blamed college authorities, alumni and coaches—terming "despicable" the attitude of many big-time coaches. He advised the schools to clean house in a hurry or have Congress do it for them.

Streit singled out Oklahoma, Texas, Texas A. & M., Southern Methodist, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Maryland and Kentucky as examples of over-emphasis in football. Kentucky is the only one of the group involved in the basketball point-fixing scandal that has reached a referee and more than 30 players from seven schools.

P. Peel Hits A 353

Patricia Peel led the way in CYO bowling at the K of C this week with a nifty single of 353 and top three of 844. Queen's led teams with 2987, followed by Hearts with 2879, Jacks 2840, Aces 2755, Clubs 2704, Diamonds 2576 and Kings 2494.

Some keen competition was served up in this circuit, but P. Peel's mark was well out in front. She played for Jacks. Next in threesomes to her was P. Basciano of the Aces with 610, while D. Shaughnessy of the Hearts rolled 601 for the only other trundler to go over the 600 mark on the night's play. Some fair singles were shown, also.

Couldn't Do It

WINONA, Minn., Nov. 20 (AP) —The secretary of the Winona county draft board resigned on Monday, saying he couldn't send American boys to Korea "to be murdered in cold blood by Chinese Communists—who seem to be getting away with it." Frank J. Allen said his resignation was prompted by reports that Communists have murdered 13,400 United Nations' war prisoners.

Jailed 7 Days On Charge Of Drunk Driving

Convicted of drunk driving, Charles W. Baker, RR 2 Norwood, was sentenced to seven days in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court Monday.

Magistrate Philp also ordered that Baker's truck be impounded for 90 days.

Baker pleaded not guilty to the charge which was laid the night of November 10 after an accident on Aylmer St., in which Baker's truck collided with a parked car owned by Russell Boyd, 696 Park St., north.

Constable Gerald Emmonds testified that after the accident, Baker had to be assisted down the steps of 302 Aylmer St., where he had been taken after the accident. Constable Emmonds also said that Baker "seemed to be in a very drunken condition, his speech was very blurred and he smelled strongly of alcohol."

Baker admitted having "six or seven pints of beer" in a local hotel beverage room just previous to the accident. In answer to Constable Emmond's testimony that his breath smelled of alcohol, Baker said, "one smells as bad as 50."

Changed Story

Constable Emmonds also said that while Baker admitted he was driving the truck when first questioned, he later denied it on the way to the police station and changed his story several times.

In asking for an acquittal on the charge, defence counsel Robert Carley, claimed that the accused had staggered and needed assistance down the steps because of an old operation on one leg and a recent injury to the other. Mr. Carley said it was "a stupid thing" for Baker to change his story but he said the evidence did not indicate a sufficient degree of intoxication to warrant a conviction.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said that there were "uncontradicted evidence' 'that the accused had spent considerable time in a beverage room and that "all the evidence leaves no alternative but to find him guilty."

"In all drunk driving charges it is difficult to get away from the stereotyped evidence of one person's word against another," said Magistrate W. R. Philp. "Yet here is a man, taken to the police station and after a short drive shows indications of a condition of confusion in that he changed his story on one or more times," he added in finding Baker guilty on the evidence.

Drastic Blow At Crime

Quebec Police Stage Crime Cleanup

By KEN KELLY

MONTREAL, Nov. 20—(CP)—Crime, what sociologists call the cancer that destroys a nation's moral health, has undergone some drastic surgery in Quebec province; and the treatment isn't finished, police say.

Police are cutting at the roots of crime, in places where it might breed—betting houses, gambling joints and illegally-open night spots.

The most spectacular move was made last week when a squad of Quebec provincial police made a cloak and dagger raid 180 miles from their base. Their objective —Montreal's richest gambling joint where hundreds met nightly to enjoy French Canada's favorite dice game, barbotte.

The raid brought 203 persons before the courts, all arrested by the police squad which travelled here in buses from Quebec City on orders of the province's attorney-general, Premier Maurice Duplessis.

Still Pending

Most of the cases are still pending and the majority of those charged as found-ins are out on bail. But the two alleged keepers were refused bail on the premier's orders and, if convicted, may get the jail terms which he has asked instead of fines.

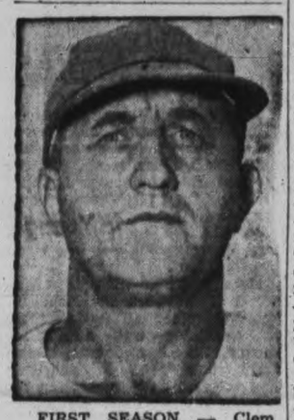
The raid on the barbotte just outside the city limits frightened off patrons of similar establishments within the city. Montreal newspapers reported one large barbotte closed up and only isolated games in betting parlors.

Close on the heels of the gambling raid came the closing of one of the city's night clubs for operating after 2 am closing hour set by provincial law.

The club automatically lost its liquor licence and its valuable stock of liquor in a raid by provincial police in the heart of nightclub row on downtown St. Catherine St.

Such raids aren't new in Montreal where it has always been possible to get a drink after hours. But there are two factors indicating that clubs once raided would stay closed this time.

The first is a petition now being circulated among Roman Catholic parishes in the province calling on the provincial government to enforce the liquor laws more rigidly. Priests in all churches in the Montreal archdiocese preached sermons last Sunday urging the faithful to sign the petition which will be sent to Premier Duplessis.



Spare No One

The second indication that this cleanup is final for those caught is the remarks of the premier to the Quebec Legislature in commenting on the petition.

He said the provincial police will spare no one who is brought to their attention as breaking the liquor laws or the laws against gambling. Such a promise, if broken, would give the opposition a good issue to bring into the campaign now going on in anticipation of an election next year.

The clean-up seemed to have spread to other cities in the province. From Quebec came reports of a police raid and seizure of 9,000 ticket stubs to be used in the drawing of an automobile at wrestling program.

Meanwhile, in Sherbrooke police made the first raid in 13 years on an alleged brothel and picked up two men and three women.

Omemee Club 96 Shippers

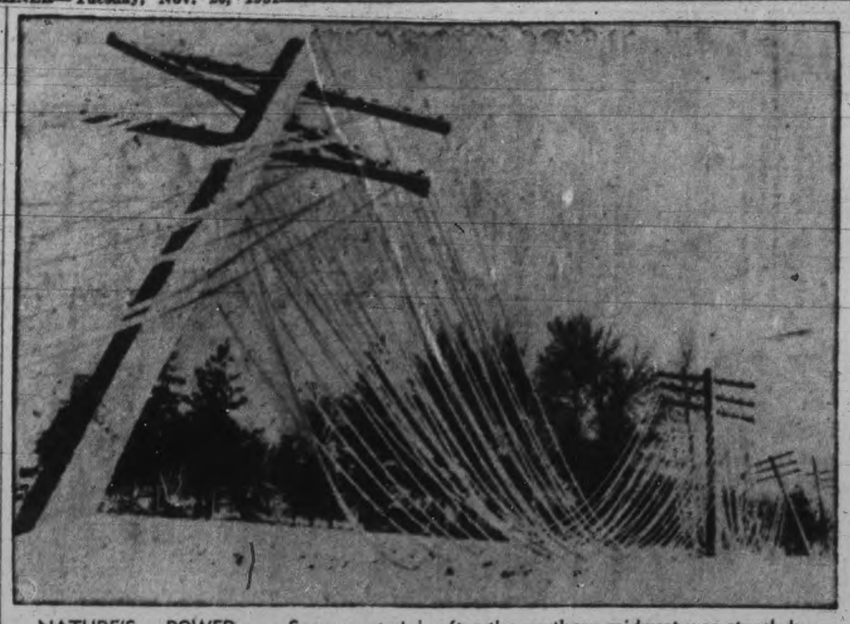
OMEMEE, Nov. 20—(ENS)—The Omemee Farmers' Club banquet in Coronation Hall Thursday evening was a revival of a custom established in the early years of the organization. These clubs were organized in 1918, Reaboro, Downyville and Omemee, with central office in Omemee, and all being served by the one skipper. Later, these three joined and have for more than 20 years operated as a single organization. This year, with 96 members, there president is R. P. Reeds, of Reaboro.

At the banquet Mr. Reeds, as master of ceremonies, proposed the toast to the King, and welcomed the members and their ladies. His inquiry revealed that there were seven present who were charter members of the original clubs. S.D. Vaughan, secretary of the club for the past 15 years and who was their skipper from 1922 to 1944, intrduced the out-of-town guests, R. M. Morrison, head of the UFO, R. M. Croft, cattle salesman, Toronto, Gordon Croft, hog salesman, Toronto, Gordon Marshall, hog buyer for Peterborough Canada Packers, and Mrs. Marshall. Mr. Marshall was born and educated in Omemée. Mr and Mrs. N. Joland, of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, were also guests, as was Mrs. Edith Brown, wife of the late William Brown who served for many years as treasurer of the club.

Mr. Morrison, the guest speaker, is the son of the late J .J. Morrison who was the instigator of the farmer movement for co-operative buying and selling and the organization of the UFO. He said that the commission house started operations in 1919 with four or five loads of stock a week. They were the first to specialize in selling individual cattle. Now it is the biggest commission house in Canada. In one year—September 1950 to September 1951 — their livestock business alone totalled more than $372,000,000. He pointed out the advantages of competitiev buying on the terminal market.

In speaking of the ups and downs of cattle marketing, he called attention to the lively market of the last three or four years since the U.S. market has been open. But this market, he said, is interested only in top grades and only a small percent of Canadian cattle are in that class. Farmers should be careful, he advised in their selection of feeders.

William Weir, the club shipper, was program convener and was in charge of the door prizes. Assisting in drawing the tickets and distributing of prizes were Bob Rieds. E. Mahoor, and J. Elliott.



The prizes which were donated by Omemee, Peterborough and Lindsay business men, included a station wagon coat won by Gib Jones, a fire extinguisher to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Perdue, a ham to Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hart, a trouble lamp to Mr. and Mrs. Burt Pogue, mtor oil to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Atwell and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Downey, fertilizer to Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wilson, laying mash to Mr. and Mrs. C. Lee, military brushes to J. Windrem, auto overnight heater to Mr. and Mrs. Joland, butter to Mr. and Mrs. E. Story, cups and saucers to Mr. and Mrs. V. Fee and Mr. and Mrs. O. Ruth, order for merchandise to Mr. and Mrs. A Pogue, chocolates to A. Clancy and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lang, Mr. and Mrs. H. Laidley, M. Houlihan, Mr. and Mrs. E. Ruth, Mr. and Mrs E. Mahood. A package of soap flakes to each lady and cigars and cigarettes to the men.

John Moore was soloist. For his first numbers he chose "Elderado", and a "Song of the Hebredes" and on his second appearance "Swing Low" and "The Road to Mandalay". He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. I. Connell who also played an instrumental solo. Community singing was led by Mr. Weir with Mrs. Connell accompanying. Mr. and Mrs. Weir sang two duets, the first a medley of sea songs and the other a comedy duet of their own composing, which they called "Ode to the Farmers' Club."

Jack Elliott moved and E. Mahood seconded a vote of thanks to the ladies who served supper, the entertainers and the speaker.

Churchill Enjoys Two Princesses

LONDON, Nov. 20 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill, flanked by two young and pretty Princesses, played up to the occasion Monday at London's reception for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Princess Elizabeth, a Maple Leaf brooch of diamonds against her olive green dress, sat on one side of the Prime Minister and Princess Margaret, in cerise, on the other.

Their chairs were at least a foot apart but each of the sisters, throwing royal restraint to the winds, leaned across in turn to talk animatedly to Churchill, who appeared to be at the top of his form.

Later, in his speech, Churchill acknowledged his happy position by saying:

"If all the tasks which fall upon a Prime Minister were as agreeable and inspiring as this, the competition for this particular office would be even less restrained than it is at present."

In proposing the toast to the Royal couple, Churchill bowed low to Elizabeth, then rose and clinked glasses with her, smiling broadly.

Woman Running Finances For East German Gov't

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN, Nov. 20—(AP)—The Russian zone of Germany is slowly getting accustomed to addressing all its money problems to "Dear Madame."

The Communist East German government, breaking with German tradition, leans on a woman to run its finances.

She is Mrs. Greta Kuckhoff who this year was given the top job of East German finances, President of the Deutsche Notenbank.

Mrs. Kuckoff is the dictator of funds for all banks in the East zone, for government budgeting, for taxes, for the nationalized "peoples'-owned" concerns and for what's left of private industry.

Whether the 49-year-old leftist leader is a wizard at financing or not is immaterial. The Communist leadership knows her political views and is satisfied with that.

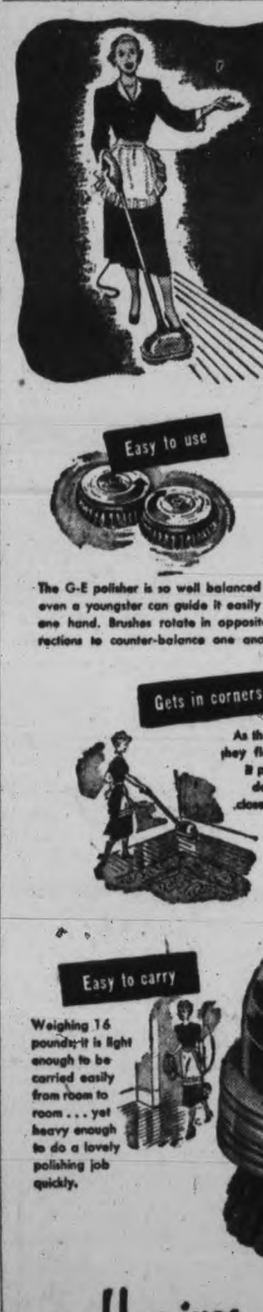
Strang Mixture

Few Germans know Mrs. Kuckhoff, a peculiar mixture of three lands. She was born in Germany, studied in the University of Wisconsin almost 30 years ago, and became steeped in Red belief in the Soviet Union.

Tough Communists who resisted the Nazis and lived through it call her "Comrade" but their numbers are few. She was one of the most able leaders of the old "Red Choir," the Communist underground that sniped at Hitler until his efficient Gestapo cracked down in 1943.

In that year, the Nazi dictatorship broke the back of the "Red Choir" by rounding up 75 men and women who formed its inner nucleus. Fifty-nine were hanged, including Adam Kuckhoff, novelist and husband of Greta.

She herself was sentenced to die, but managed to win a commutation to a prison term of 10 years. She was later liberated by the Soviets.



After the East zone Communist government was formed, she held high position in its "foreign ministry" and toward the end of last year was elevated to the presidency of the State Bank.

Buffalo Tourist Found Alive After Five Days In Bush

Rescue Crews Work By Armed Patrols In Italian Floods

ROME, Nov. 21. (Reuters)—Rigorous security measures were taken today by northern Italian authorities harassed by the growth of plundering and racketeering in areas flooded by the Po River. Strong armed patrols have been sent to the flood-bound area. Anyone found prowling around the abandoned homes of 200,000 flood victims risked being shot. Meanwhile, 30,000 rescuers worked feverishly in the grim knowledge that the mighty Po is threatening fresh disaster down its 375-mile course from the French Alps to the Adriatic. Already at least 100 persons have lost their lives.

In the northwest, three days of heavy rain have raised the Po almost 10 feet. Lakes Lugano and Maggiore, on the Swiss-Italian border, rose ominously. Scores of small rivers burst their banks.

10,000 Marooned

The evacuation of Adria, almost completely under water, continued all night under the glare of powerful floodlights. At least 10,000 of the town's 35,000 residents were believed still marooned there.

With many families clinging obstinately to their homes, it is impossible to assess accurately the number of deaths. Some estimates run into the thousands.

Rescue teams—including British and United States soldiers from Trieste—have had to drag some people away from their possessions.

In Rovigo Province, now four-fifths under water, one small boy was found clinging to a tree, almost dead with cold after three days. Unable to unclench his frozen hands, rescuers had to cut the whole branch away to move him.

In the midst of the confusion and tragedy, Communists and their opponents continue their political feud. There have been many allegations of Communist organizations creating confusion in rescue work, and one Communist mayor near Venice has been removed from his post for obstructing the authorities.

Italy's 2,500,000-member Communist party, strongest in Western Europe, hit back by accusing the government of sabotage and cold-blooded neglect.

Premier Alcide de Gasperie said last night flood damage has reached "terrifying figures." He said there had been talk of damage amounting to between 200,000,000,000 lire and 300,000,000,000 lire in Rovigo Province alone. What is equivalent to from $280,000,000 to $420,000,000.

UK Said Ready To Accept US Naval Chief

ROME, Nov. 21 (AP)—Britain today was reported ready to agree to the appointment of an American Admiral to command the west's naval forces in the Atlantic.

A qualified informant said British concurrence was made possible by agreement of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization military committee, meeting here, on the exact responsibilities of the Atlantic naval commander, and also on the establishment of a new English Channel commander under a British Admiral.

The Atlantic naval commander will operate under sharply-defined powers, the informant said, indicating that Britain will retain certain powers she considers vital.

Presumably these would include control of the western sea approaches to the British Isles.

The British previously had blocked appointment of an American to the post.

For Channel Defence

The new English Channel Command will be under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters and will direct western defences in the Channel and the southern part of the North Sea.

Though the military group has authority only to recommend, the NATO council was expected to approve quickly its recommendations on the commands during its session which opens here Saturday.

Meanwhile the West's top military men today studied just what and how much Eisenhower needs to carry out an accelerated build-up of his international army.

A top-secret listing of forces, airfields, equipment and other requirements was made for them by Eisenhower's chief of staff, Lt.-Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther.

Attending a closely-guarded meeting were the chiefs of staff of 11 member countries of the NATO—including Lt.-Gen chairman of the chiefs of staff committee, representing Canada, and a representatives of army-less Iceland.

16 Die In India Plane Crash

CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 21 — (Reuters) — A Deccan Airways DC-3 plunged into fogbound jungle and burst into flames three miles from here at dawn today, killing 16 persons. The sole survivor was taken to hospital.

Nearby villages, wakened by the explosion, said those aboard could be heard screaming for help. But would-be rescuers were driven back by flames which covered the plane from end to end.

Passengers who died in the crash included H. C. Hines, a courier of the United Kingdom High Commissioner's Office in India; Lala Deshbandu Gupta, 53, president of the All-Indian Newspaper Editors' Conference, and two other journalists of Indian papers.

Gupta was managing director of the Daily Tej and Indian News Chronicle.

310,000 Applications Sent In For Pensions

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 — (CP). — More than 310,000 applications for old-age security pensions have been received at the 10 regional offices of the Federal Welfare Department, it was announced today. This, the announcement said, is about 83 per cent of the estimated total of new applications expected.

Latest registration figures by provinces are: Newfoundland, 2,173; Prince Edward Island, 3,133; Nova Scotia, 13,141; New Brunswick, 7,523; Quebec, 64,002; Ontario, 131,671; Manitoba, 17,525; Saskatchewan, 18,296; Alberta, 16,310; British Columbia, 36,414; Yukon and the North-west Territories, 88.

Conciliation Failure

PARIS, Nov. 21 — (AP). — The United Nations' Palestine Conciliation Committee today announced its failure to settle the Arab-Israeli differences. The commission said it had called off the fruitless talks begun here on August 10 because neither party showed willingness to make concessions.

Heart-Breaking Decision

Parents To Let Son, 3, Die Of Cancer 'Soon As Possible'

ALAMEDA, Calif., Nov. 21 — (AP)—The distraught parents of three-year-old Rodney Gale have made a heart-breaking decision—to let him die of cancer as soon as possible.

It was one of the toughest decisions a parent could be called upon to make.

A hospital doctor told Mr. and Mrs. Leeroy Gale that a nitrogen-mustard compound might keep the spark of life alive in Rodney's pain-wracked body for two or three months more.

"We thought about it for a long time," said 29-year-old Mrs. Bonnie Gale last night.

Miserable Enough

"Then we decided against it. It would only prolong Rodney's misery. And he's miserable enough now."

Death may come at any time. Already Rodney has had his Christmas tree and toys. But he scarcely was able to know it.

He became ill last August. Doctors operated and found cancer cells were filling his body.

They told the parents there was nothing more they could do.

The 33-year-old father laid off work as a freight handler to be with his son.

Breathing for Rodney became laborious. He couldn't walk, scarcely could eat. All he wanted was to ride. His father took him daily—in cars loaned by neighbors.

Staying off work erased Gale's slim funds. Last Saturday the word of his plight got out to the newspapers.

The story brought an outpouring of generosity.

Callers brought hams, turkeys, home-canned delicacies, toys, and a decorated Christmas tree.

Dr. Luigi Luzzatti Tuesday offered the gift of medical aid—an offer to retard the growth of the cells with a drug. He made it clear that Rodney would die anyway — but perhaps not until Christmas was over.

Tearfully the Gales searched their hearts and came up with the answer they felt was best. It was "no."

Reds' Truce Proposals Near UN Plan

UN Officials Say Basic Differences Separate Documents

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Truce hopes brightened today when Communist negotiators submitted a cease-fire plan of their own that could open the way for a Korean armistice by Christmas.

It was similar to a United Nations' plan for creating a buffer zone along the present fighting line, to take effect if an armistice is signed within 30 days.

A UN command communique referred to the resemblance as superficial.

But the command's official spokesman, Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, said if the Red plan "means what we think it means . . . then I think we are very close to solution" of the buffer-zone question.

The point in doubt was whether the Communist proposal means "that troops will be withdrawn from the buffer zone after an armistice is signed," as the UN has proposed.

After the Communists submitted their counter-proposal Wednesday, allied negotiators tried to determine whether the Reds contemplated an immediate or delayed withdrawal from a buffer zone to be created along the present front.

To Present Revisions

At the close of the session Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, heading the UN sub-committee, told the Red delegates "we will present you with the necessary revisions to clear up this proposal" at Thursday's meeting. It is set for 11 am (9 pm EST Wednesday).

In submitting the Communist counter-proposal Maj.-Gen. Lee Song cho said:

"We agree in principle to your proposal. However, we consider the form not proper or suitable for final agreement. Also, we hold different views with respect to certain details."

Bank Suspect Caught In Hour

SMITH FALLS, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Police today arrested an unkempt, unshaven man carrying a .22-calibre rifle an hour after the Smith Falls branch of the Bank of Montreal was held up by a gunman who walked off with $959.

Police identified the man they nabbed unresisted in the rail yards at Perth, 10 miles from here, as Garnet William Burke, 30, of Cumberland county, Nova Scotia. They said he was carrying a .22-calibre rifle and had $959 in his pockets.

The man came into the bank about 10:15 am and strolled about for five minutes. Then he approached paying teller Berna Burchall, told her to "keep quiet and hand over all the money" in her till, and brandished the rifle through the bars of the teller's cage.

Dying Airman Sends Message

COLYTON, England, Nov. 21—(Reuters) — A Canadian flight-lieutenant in the RAF sent a message to his mother before he died of burns received in a plane crash near here Tuesday.

He and Sir William Stampe, famous British sportsman, were fatally injured when their light aircraft hit a tree and burst into flames just outside this Devon town.

The Canadian was taken to nearby Exeter where hospital authorities identified him as Flt Lt. William Brown, a navigator.

He was pulled from the blazing plane by the local vicar, the Rev. H. T. Hillier.

The minister said the airman "was simply magnificent." Although "terribly burned," he never gave a murmur.

"I told him I was a padre and he said to me simply, "Remember me to my mother and tell her not to grieve."

Claxton Pledges Canada To Foot Costs Of Four European Airfields

ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands, Nov. 21. (CP)—Brooke Claxton announced today that Canada will foot the bill for four or five new airdromes in western Europe to field an 11-squadron jet air division capable of providing tactical support for a full-fledged army. Claxton made the announcement simultaneously with the arrival of a 500-man contingent of Canada's 27th infantry brigade earmarked for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's North Atlantic army.

The Canadian defence minister told a press conference attended by 50 Canadian, American, British, Netherlands, French and other correspondents that Canada will be sending enough arms for another two European divisions — making a total of five.

The airdromes, he said, will cost in the vicinity of $100,000,000.

Claxton said the air division, which will be equipped entirely with F-86 Sabre jets, is a formation which normally supports an army consisting of two or more corps. It was not known yet where the dromes will be built.

Greets Brigade Men

Claxton arrived from The Hague to greet the second party of the brigade proper as they disembarked from the 11,678-ton Panamanian ship Fabres. He handed them over officially to Eisenhower, who flew in for the ceremony.

The contingent left Quebec City Nov. 12. An earlier body of 500, which left Canada Nov. 5, arrived a week ago in the SS Canberra.

Claxton told reporters that the production of Sabre jets at Montreal is the biggest phase of Canada's arms production. He said the Sabre can and does lick the Russian-built MIG-15 daily in Korea.

Claxton said he would like to see Western European rearmament moving faster but he was "astounded" at the progress in building a six-power single European army.

Canada had been working on two types of rifles of its own but had dropped them when both Britain and the United States were found to be developing new ones also.

Team Bolts, Farmer Tossed Off, Killed

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 21 (CP)—Earl Bird, 59-year-old bachelor farmer of Foxboro, six miles north of here, was killed Tuesday when thrown from a manure spreader as his team of horses bolted.

A nephew, Leo Wilson, found the body in a field a few hours later. The manure spreader was piled up against a nearby fence. The horses had broken loose and were browsing some distance away.

Five Countries Have Extra Food

ROME, Nov. 21 (AP) — Only five countries in the non-Communist world, Canada, the United States, Australia, New Zealand and Argentina, have more food than they need, the United Nations food and agriculture organization reported today.

The rest of the countries are getting hungrier, a survey before the organization's sixth world conference added.

The survey included neither Russia nor any of its satellites, which are not FAO members. All that is known of their food situation is that harvests this year have been reported above normal due to excellent weather.

Argentina, said the report, still has a good surplus to export though her production actually has decreased since the war. In the United States and Canada there have been large increases in food output, while Australia and New Zealand have maintained their surplus at pre-war levels and also have fed considerably increased populations of their own.

The other countries, with nine times as many people, not only lack surpluses but production is slightly below Second World War levels and food supplies per person, due to population increases, average only 90 per cent of the 1934-38 output.

The Middle East, however, shows "considerable improvement" in its agricultural production and "further improvement is anticipated."

Rare Whooping Crane Dies From Gunshot

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 21 (AP). — Howard the whooping crane died today of a gunshot wound.

His death makes another gap in the vanishing flock of 32, the only known whooping cranes in the world.

Howard came from the Far North November 3 to spend the winter on a sun-bathed island in the Gulf of Mexico near Corpus Christi, Tex.

Manager Julian Howard of the Arkansas Wildlife Refuge found Howard the crane unable to stand. One of his pipe-stem legs had been broken by a bullet.

Last Saturday the crane was bedded in a crate of hay, taken to San Antonio Zoo for treatment, but failed to respond.

Missing Man Survived Without Food

"Last Deep Sleep" Faced Him After Fall In Creek

MINDEN, Nov. 21. (Staff)—One of the most outstanding cases of bush survival, in the opinion of experts, is that of Dudley Stumm, 24, of Buffalo who lived for more than five days without food or fire. He was found Tuesday at 1:45 pm, by a posse of 22 men headed by Conservation Officer Wally Scott of Minden.

Mr. Stumm was lying on top of a knoll about half a mile from Wiley's Lake, or three miles from where he disappeared with a priest companion last Thursday. He was in fair condition and able to talk with his rescuers. They had apparently reached him just in time.

"I had finished my prayers," said Stumm, "and felt that I was going into a last deep sleep." He had dozed off several times.

Stumm had taken off his shirt and bound his hands with it to keep them from freezing at night. He was found less than 90 minutes before the search was supposed to end, and told searchers he lost hope Tuesday after sighting a search plane and being too weak to signal it.

Managing to make his way to a small creek on his hands and knees on Tuesday morning, Stumm was so weak he fell into the water. Thoroughly soaked and exposed after five days and nights of cold weather, he might have died soon had he not been found shortly after, the rescue party believed.

Rude Stretcher

A rude stretcher of poles thrust through sleeves of overcoats was improvised by the search party who carried Mr. Stumm (170 pounds, five feet nine inches) to the White Lake road, a mile-and-a-half away. He was driven first to St. Patrick's parish hall, Kinmount, by Charles Allan of Galway township.

Dr. Malcolm Ranney gave him a hypo and cup of coffee and accompanied Mr. Stumm to Ross Memorial Hospital in an ambulance driven by Frank Welch of Minden. Hospital authorities report today that his condition is good. He is being attended by Dr. M. E. Gorman.

Stumm, ward of a Buffalo Roman Catholic orphanage, was lost, exposed to the weather without fire or food, for exactly five days, somewhere in the 16-square mile beaver swamp and swale area between Irondale and Furnace Falls.

With two priests, Stumm was on vacation from the Roman Catholic Working Boys' Home in Buffalo. The priests are the Revs. Franklin Kelleher, and Howard Schwartz. Stumm went into the bush last Thursday with one of the priests, they became separated and Stumm was lost.

Navy Drums Out False Dr. Cyr

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 — (CP) — Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr., who joined the navy as Dr. Joseph Cyr and performed operations aboard the destroyed Cayuga, is to be discharged from the navy at Esquimalt today, naval headquarters announced.

The navy said he would be dishonorably discharged from the service. He is entitled to transportation back to the point in Canada where he enlisted—Saint John, NB.

Meanwhile, immigration officials have opened an investigation as to how the mysterious 29-year-old American from Lawrence, Mass., got into Canada. If he has no legal status here he will be shipped back to the United States.

Aboard the Cayuga he held the rank of surgeon lieutenant and was credited with performing "brilliant" operations on South Koreans under trying conditions aboard the destroyer off Korea. He is said to have collapsed a lung, removed a bullet from near the heart and amputated a limb.

The man he impersonated on joining the navy is Dr. Joseph Cyr, of Edmunston, NB, now practising in Grand Falls, NB.

Pearson Proposes UN Agencies For Arms Survey

PARIS, Nov. 21. (CP)—Canada's External Affairs Minister, L. B. Pearson, said today a way must be found to break "the vicious circle of fear" holding back east-west disarmament. Pearson, Canada's chief delegate to the United Nations, told the UN's 60-member political committee in the debate on the western disarmament proposal that the only way to cut through the circle is by establishment of UN agencies for international arms inspection.

His statement put Canada behind the proposal presented by the United States, France and Britain. But, he added, their suggestions are not necessarily the only ones which could be devised, and he is anxious to hear any others.

Hon. L. B. Pearson's speech was free from the harsh anti-Soviet words which characterized his general debate address, but nevertheless struck at the arguments advanced by Andrei Vishinsky, Russian Foreign Minister, against the western plan. All western UN statements have been free of invective since last week's moderately-worded address by Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary.

Await Russia's Answer

Western delegates awaited Vishinsky's answer to the west—expected to set the tone for the rest of the session.

Pearson said the question of confidence lies at the root of effective disarmament. Therefore a paper agreement without guarantees—as suggested by Russia—was not enough.

"We must begin by putting trust, not in each other—which for the time being is impossible—but in UN agencies which we hope to set up," he said.

He said east-west confidence could grow if both advance step by step in the proposed stages of the western disarmament plan.

Rejecting Russian charges that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is aggressive, Pearson said there is nothing inconsistent in NATO's military build-up and the western disarmament proposals.

He said the confidence the west is gaining in the NATO defence build-up should make it easier for the west to negotiate with Russia, and thus make some NATO strength unnecessary.

Ottawa Leads Sarnia 19-1 At End Of Half

Sarnia Imperials were definite under-dogs today as they took to the gridiron in Ottawa against Roughriders in the Eastern Canada football final. The score at the end of the half stood at 19-1. The amateur Oilers were given no chance by the grid experts against the professionalized winners of the Big Four, the latter figuring it would be just a good workout for the Grey Cup final at Varsity Saturday. The game was scouted by members of Regina Riders, Canadian finalists from the west.

However, Coach Hugh Douglas of the Imps predicted that his squad would give Clem Crowe's import-studded Roughriders a stiff test before it was over. Ottawa ousted Hamilton for the Interprovincial title, while Sarnia erased Balmy Beach to take the ORFU senior crown.

The game was only five minutes old when Hatfield took a blooper pass from O'Malley to go over for a touchdown, Cain kicking the convert. Apart from two Sarnia kicks over the centre strip, all play in the first quarter was in the Imperials' territory. The kicking was generally short on both sides, and Ottawa's aerial attempts were knocked down except for the one touchdown pass. It was 6-0 for Riders as the quarter ended.

Car, Train Crash 5 Persons Die

DRYDEN, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Five persons were killed Tuesday night about 11 miles east of here, when the motor car in which they were riding was in collision with a 100-car freight train.

The dead: Mrs. Rose Franklin, 26, of Winnipeg; Anne Marcoux, 19, of Richer, Man., Adrien Aubin, 19, of Quebec; Roger Lebell, 22, of Quebec and James George Atkinson, 28, of Winnipeg. Ida Marcoux, 17, of Richer, was the only survivor. The car was driven by Aubin.

The engineer of the train said the car, travelling north, raced the Canadian Pacific Railway freight to the crossing, and was hit by the front of the locomotive, ripping the cow catcher off the engine. The car was carried a half-mile before the train was stopped.

New Bread Spread

TORONTO, Nov. 21. (CP) —A new spread for bread, said to taste like butter and have a price like margarine, Tuesday was sampled by the Ontario Cream Producers' Association. They liked it. The spread, developed at the Ontario Research Foundation by Elizabeth Kirby in a search for a milk-made answer to margarine, will not be ready for market until certain disadvantages are removed.

ANTI-BRITISH BANNERS are held aloft by irate Egyptians in Ismailia Square, which was the centre of a large-scale demonstration. Authorities said nearly a million persons took part, bringing the whole of Cairo to a standstill.

Eisenhower, Claxton Greet First Canadian Troops Earmarked For NATO Army

ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands, Nov. 21. (CP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower took Canada's 27th Brigade under his wing today and welcomed its red-capped troops as a symbol of the fact that "Canada is with us in the area of danger." Canada's Defence Minister, Brooke Claxton, turned the Brigade over to the leader of the Atlantic Pact army in Europe in a brilliant ceremony in a cobbled square before Rotterdam's city hall. A crowd of 25,000 silent Netherlanders watched the ceremony.

As 1,200 Canadians, just off the ship from home, stood in a light drizzle, Eisenhower spoke with emphasis and conviction that he was proud and glad to meet Canadian infantry anywhere.

But, he said, every Allied soldier in Europe will welcome the brigade not only because of Canada's battle record but because the brigade's arrival means that "Canada is not only with us in the production and other fields, but actually in the area where danger occurs."

Make Up Battalion.

The troops arriving today made up practically all of the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion. Previously an advance party had arrived to prepare for the main body of the brigade. A second contingent, made up of miscellaneous groups, arrived last week. A fourth contingent is at sea and a fifth group will leave Canada on Monday.

The ceremony of handing over command was a spectacle of color and pomp enacted in this city where the liberating Canadians marched in May, 1945, and where fine tall buildings now alternate with gaping wounds from the mass German bombing of 1940.

SPOILS OF WAR—When Chinese Communist troops retreated after an attack on Royal Canadian Regiment positions in Korea, they left behind considerable equipment. Pte. E. J. Paquette of McFarland Lake, Ont., and Pt. Bill Brayley of Rothesay, NB, in front, hold two 7.62 mm Degtyarev Russian-type light machine guns. The other RCR's hold Russian-built "burp guns," the PPS 7.62 mm machine carbine. Centre row, left to right, are: Pte. Raymond Schiedel, Waterloo, Ont., Pte. Cliff Bertram, Toronto, and L.-Cpl. Ernie Lounsby of Hillsborough, NB. Back row are: Pte. Arthur Sheppard, left, of Grand Falls, Nfld., and Pte. John Sternastik of Fort William.

Charge Plane Violates Border

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 21—(AP)—Hungary and Romania complained officially today that a United States army cargo plane—still missing after being fired on by the satellite border guards Monday—crossed over their territories illegally.

Notes were presented to the American missions in Budapest and Bucharest even as US planes prepared to search over Yugoslovia for the missing C-47 transport. The plane disappeared Monday with four crew members and diplomatic cargo aboard.

The notes were presented after American inquiries were made concerning the whereabouts of the plane, whose pilot had radioed his base at Munich Monday that he been fired upon by the border patrols of the two countries and had turned back westward.

Four-Day Decline Checked On Market

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (CP). — Early afternoon stock market prices today edged upward after a firm opening. Industrials rallied slowly late Tuesday to check a four-day decline.

Papers and liquors drew most support to form the market's strongest sections. Steels and retail stores weakened.

Base metals turned sharply lower after a mixed opening. Consolidated Smelters slipped $2 while Quemont eased fractions. Barvue, Cobalt Lode, Osisko, Ranwick and United Asbestos weakened. Estella climbed strongly while East Sullivan, Golden Manitou and Quebec Manitou added pennies.

Western oils traded irregularly. Del Rio, Jupiter, Okalha, Scurry, Security Free, Long Island Petroleum and Mid-continent strengthened while Central Explorers, Devon-Leduc, Federated Petroleum, Kroy and New British Dominions weakened.

Senior golds were mixed. Lake Shore and Wright-Hargreaves edged upward while Hollinger, Kerr Addison and Malartic eased. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Floods Cover Streets In Southeast France

PARIS, Nov. 21 (CP).—Flood waters today covered streets and highways in several towns of Southeastern France. Rains continued to swell the Rhone, Soane and Loire Rivers. One person was drowned and much livestock was killed.

The city of Montelimar, near the Rhone River, was hit by the worst flood it has seen since 1935. Automobiles were abandoned and their occupants rescued by boats.

Boats also had to be used to supply food to several other towns.

The Rhone and its tributaries overflowed into one vast lake in the Avignon plain.

One-quarter of Vaucluse department was reported under water.

The suburbs of Marseille were ankle-deep in water.

The Rhone stormed into Bollene Tuesday, smashed a canal wall and swept through the streets.

Plasma Workers Halt Philadelphia Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21 (AP)—Blood plasma workers voted on Tuesday night to call off their scheduled midnight strike and accepted an agreement that will maintain the flood of the vital fluid to Korea.

Announcement of the settlement was made jointly by officials of Local 86, United Chemical Workers (CIO), and Sharp & Dohme.

The company-union announcement said the new contract includes an immediate 4.4 per cent wage increase. This makes a total increase of 12.8 per cent in wages granted by the company since January.

Dollar Down

MONTREAL, Nov. 21 — (CP) — The United States dollar today opened at 4 9/32 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 1/32 from Tuesday's close. That is, it took $1.04 9/32 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.92, down 1/16 from Tuesday.

MORE ABOUT—

Reds' Truce

Both sides agree:

1. A cease-fire line fixed along the present battle line would become the permanent military demarcation line if an armistice is reached within 30 days.
2. It would be the centre of a 2½-mile-wide buffer zone.
3. Fighting will continue until an armistice is signed.

But:

1. The UN proposal repeatedly uses the word "provisional" in referring to a truce line set in advance of a full armistice. The Red plan does not say the line would be "provisional."

2. The Reds propose "both sides withdraw—from this line." Their plan didn't say when. The Allied plan would make the demilitarized zone "effective in any armistice agreement signed within 30 days."

3. If an armistice is not reached within 30 days the Communist plan would revise the original cease-fire line "in accordance with changes" in the battle line. The UN plan would have the entire line re-determined.

The Communist plan specifies that the sub-committee handling the present negotiations would set up the original military demarcation line. The Allied plan doesn't state who would do it.

Phraseology of the two plans is entirely different. Nevertheless the two sides appeared closer together than at any time since armistice delegations tackled the thorny buffer-zone question July 27.

Cafe Closes Had To Vacate

Blue Bird restaurant at 374 George St., in the block north of Simcoe St., went out of business Monday. On an order to vacate the premises, the proprietor disposed by auction of the stock of food and a lot of the equipment. Several of the staff of Chinese have been in Peterborough 25 years or more.

With the closing of the Blue Bird, the Churchill restaurant is providing a breakfast service until 11 am Wednesdays. This is an accommodation for the early morning crowd, especially from shortly after 5 o'clock to nine.

"When the Blue Bird was opening at 6 o'clock, our customers had some place to go," said N. Douros of Churchill. "We could not leave them without a place for breakfast, and I said I'd open if I had to come down myself."

Probably, that was nothing more than a challenge to his associates and staff, because the senior member of Churchill has been relegated largely to semi-retirement role. If Mr. Douros was just bluffing, it certainly worked because he hasn't had to turn out at 5 am on either Wednesday since the morning service began.

"When you think of the cost, may be we lose a few dollars, but when you see the people depend on you, then you have to do something for them, because we've been here a long time."

Pearson Proposes

Pearson, who is also chairman of the North Atlantic Council, argued that the west has to negotiate through strength for peace until Russia's threats to peace are withdrawn.

He denied that the pact's purpose is to build up armed strength with which to threaten the Soviet Union or anybody else.

"We have no intention of diverting anything like the manpower or resources which would be needed for such a mad purpose," Pearson said.

The Canadian delegation believes determination to build strength for defence and readiness to consider disarmament plans are "two parts of the same policy."

Might Seem Unrealistic

He said it might seem "unrealistic to the point of absurdity" to discuss disarmament when "fighting is actually going on against aggression and banditry in more than one part of the world."

Nevertheless, if agreement can be reached on how to put disarmament into practice it will make an effective contribution to the "easing of political tensions," he said.

Pearson said the proposed disarmament commission could also study the question of air bases possessed by one country in the territory of another with the agreement of both.

He is prepared to have American bases in Canada investigated, and similarly Soviet bases in Czechoslovakia and Poland could be investigated.

If mere declarations of good faith and intent to disarm sufficed, Pearson said, "there would not be any swollen armaments which required reduction. We would have reached the millenium."

Commons Votes Approval Of New CBC Plan

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 —(CP)—A new plan for financing operations of the publicly-owned CBC was approved in principle Tuesday by the Commons.

Members gave second reading to a bill authorizing a grant of $6,250,000 in each of the next five years to the financially-harrassed CBC. The measure, providing also for several amendments to the Canadian Broadcasting Act, was referred to the radio committee of the Commons for detailed study.

Revenue Minister McCann, who reports to parliament for the CBC, said the statutory grants along with revenues from licence fees and commercial programs will provide the corporation with about $14,000,000 annually, or approximately $1 per capita of population.

Massey Recommendation

That, he said, was the amount the Massey Commission on Arts and Sciences recommended the CBC have to conduct operations.

Although there was criticism of the financing plan at earlier stages — notably by Progressive Conservatives—the bill was given the second reading without a dissenting voice.

In the CBC debate, Dr. McCann said some Progressive Conservative members appear to be in a "great hurry to see some private operators get television broadcasting licences."

There are, he said, things "much more important than the establishment of monopoly positions of television channels by private interests, from which they might hope to make a good deal of money in the future."

Missing Man

Immediately a search party was organized. They combed the bush until 3 am Friday and started again, night and day, over the weekend.

As last resort, a Department of Lands and Forests plane, piloted by district forester and park superintendent George Phillips conducted an hour of air search. Phillips was accompanied by provincial constables Alex Edwards and Al Hardy. They saw nothing and, in the opinion of all ground and air searchers, the case was hopeless.

However, a posse of 22 men under conservation officer Scott started out for the last time Tuesday and succeeded in finding Stumm.

It was learned by them that Stumm had one match with him. He had attempted to light a fire to keep himself warm. Due to his fatigue and to wet fuel, he was unable to keep the small blaze going. They found the evidence in a small pile of grey ash, enough to fill a cup, they said.

Block Kick

Two minutes after the second quarter opened, Cain blocked a Sarnia kick and Lotay recovered for Roughriders on the Imps' nine-yard chalk. A pass from O'Malley to Anthony was good for another major, Cain boosting the convert to make it 12-0. A try a trifle later by Karpuk was called back for offside, after Ratfield intercepted a forward by Sarnia and tossed to Karpuk. Cain then tried a placement, which missed, but it was good for a point and the score read 13-0. Sarnia finally got rolling, a long run by Barr taking the ball to the Ottawa 30. An attempted placement by Brennan missed, but went for a point, making it 13-1. On the last play of the half, O'Malley threw a pass to Karpuk on a sleeper play at Sarnia's 43, and the latter raced for a try, Cain converting to make it 18-1. Don Crowe was an Ottawa absentee, owing to the sudden death of his father in Toronto.

Reds Return Wounded POW Unharmed To Own Lines

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Nov. 21 (CP)—A British soldier, wounded in action several days ago with the King's Shropshire Light Infantry and subsequently captured, was returned by the Chinese to the United Nations line Tuesday.

Pte. Peter Smith of Kent was told by the Communists: "We will leave you in front of the Canadians' wire in the morning. Don't attract attention before the first light. Tell those who come to help you they may go safely but if they go further they will be shot at."

The Princess Patricias manning the front in that sector reported a movement at 3 am. At dawn Sgt. Ted Shaw of Calgary reported seeing a large sign with black letters on a white background reading: "Take your own buddy back."

Cpl. Jim Remmer accompanied Shaw toward that area near which they heard Smith calling "Hello Canada, hello Canada." They found Smith lying on a stretcher and were greeted with "Gee, I'm glad to see you guys."

He told a story of having his slit trench blown in during a Chinese attack and finding shelter in a dugout with five other men from his regiment. They were taken prisoner and en route to the Chinese lines shelling from United Nations guns wounded many of the group, including Smith and some of the Chinese.

Smith said he was given good care, cigarettes and chocolate bars.

Stretcher-bearers under Pte. John Ross of Emerson, Man., carried Smith to a regimental aid post. The medical officer, Capt. David Whittingham of Toronto, said Smith had "excellent treatment, apparently from a qualified medical officer."

Smith was clad in his own British battle dress tunic and padded Chinese winter trousers which had been given him to replace his own. His own trousers had been damaged when he was wounded in both ankles, hip and arm by the United Nations shelling.

Thomson States DVA Earnings Totalled $90,000

PICKERING, Ont., Nov. 21 — (CPP)—Liberal Leader Walter Thomson said Tuesday that for 5½ years' work as a solicitor for the Veterans Affairs Department he earned $90,000, paid $33,000 in income tax and took home $57,000.

Mr. Thomson's political opponents have repeatedly demanded that the Liberal leader state how much he kept of the $347,000 paid by the federal government for his services.

In a statement Tuesday, Mr. Thomson said the operating expenses of offices he had to maintain for DVA work used about three-quarters of the gross federal payment.

"I personally had $90,000," said Mr. Thomson. "Of that, $33,000 went for income tax; and I had $57,000 left."

Mr. Thomson said he took the DVA job when no other Toronto lawyer would touch it because the rate of payment was low.

"I wouldn't do it again for all the rice in China," he said. "I went back to a naked practice, an empty office. I had to go to Florida to recuperate after it."

Deathbed Confession

In Toronto Attorney-General Porter said he is not satisfied with Liberal Leader Thomson's accounting of $347,000 received from the federal government for legal services.

"I am sure the people would like to see more of the books and less words," he said in an printed statement issued in connection with Thursday's Ontario general election.

He said Mr. Thomson's disclosures of how much of the money he retained was "a death-bed confession."

US Casualties Surpass 100,000 Mark

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP) —The 100,000th American has been killed or wounded or is missing in Korea.

This mark is recorded and passed in the Defence Department's weekly summary of combat casualties due to be issued today. The report, which runs about two weeks behind the battle action, covers 16 months of fighting.

On Nov. 9 the U.S. army estimated total enemy casualties in Korea through Oct. 31 at 1,442,844.

The summary said the latest total of United Nations' casualties as 313,711.

(Canadian casualties total 484 — including 96 dead, 348 wounded, 38 injured in action and two missing—at the latest count.)

United States families have been told of some 22,000 casualties among their men since Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway first offered to talk about an armistice last June 30.

About seven of every 10 American battle losses have been suffered since the Chinese Communists poured across the Manchurian border a little more than a year ago.

Include Missions

The 70,000 U.S. casualties reported since the Chinese entered the war include nearly 8,000 of 12,500 Americans listed at one time or anther as missing in action. This missing figure has been reduced to a current total of about 10,800. Among these are the some 5,500 Americans reported by Lt.-col. James M. Hanley, Chief of the War Crimes Section of the U.S. Eighth Army in Korea, to have been killed by their captors.

Ridgay said in a report early today there was "considerable evidence" that approximately 6,000 U.S. soldiers captured by the Communists were victims of "death by atrocity." He said there was no "conclusive evidence" of the number of atrocity deaths, and that 254 victims had been identified and their families notified.

Approximately one-half of all U.S. casualties have occurred since the bitter retreats and withdrawls of last winter and during the series of Red spring offensives and U.N. counter-blows which have moved the battle line back to the centre of Korea.

For the army and the navy, the Korean conflict has been the fourth costliest in U.S. history, ranking in human casualties after the Second World War, the Civil War and the First World War.

Marine Corps losses of more than 16,000 make it more costly than all the wars, campaigns and expeditions which Marines fought from the Civil War until the start of the Second World War.

Did More, Got Less For It Than Porter Says Thompson

COBOURG, Nov. 21—(ENS)—Walter Thompson Liberal leader, declaring that he had been needled long enough by the Frost government and its attorney-general, last night told a Liberal rally here that he did more and got less than the attorney general and that the veterans of this country would back up his statement.

"They have been talking on and on about what I made working for the veterans and I let them talk until I finally have stepped in to put them aright. Last night I went a bit off the the beam after being needled so long by Mr. Porter and told them some facts. I did my job well and I am not ashamed of it. War veterans have come up to me in this campaign and shaken my hand and thanked me for getting them into their homes so quickly.

"The war veterans of this country are not the one who are doing the kicking. Why should some attorney general criticize when the facts are that I got less per year doing a great deal than he gets for doing nothing. I have got veterans into their own homes in 21 days, something that has never been done before or since.

"I paid my own way, my own staff, paid rent, bought office equipment in the days when you had to pay through the nose for it. I paid for registration of deeds and so on and out of the $340,000 received in five years my take home pay was $58,000, and for three and a half years I worked from eight in the morning until 12 at night and sometimes slept on the office couch for the night.

"Law firms in Toronto didn't want the job. Their younger lawyers were in the army and the older ones were too busy to take on the extra work. I got $15 a transaction.

Charged $25

"There was one deal for $100,000 that took nine months and I only charged $25 for it when another lawyer could charge $10,000 for handling a job like that. I did it because it was one way of serving my country and all my bills were taxed at Ottawa by a taxing officer who had been named by R. B. Bennett. I took all the risks and didn't get even ordinary legal wages for it" declared the Liberal leader in lashing tones.

"We have seen the Liberal party elevated from what was not a party to a real challenge that has the Tory government staggering on the ropes.

"The little province of Newfoundland is building homes but wealthy Ontario under a Tory government has done nothing. It has yet to build a single house, but in eight years enough timber and pulpwood have been shipped out to the United States to build 600,000 homes," Walter Thompson asserted.

"In 1943 the ratio of hospital beds was 4.1 per thousand and in 1951 it was only 4.26 per thousand, indicative of the little progress made in hospitilization by the Conservative government," the speaker said. There was available the sum of $40,000,000 in federal grants but only $10,000,000 of that amount had been used. The Minister of Health had said that 35 per cent of the mental hospital patients need not have gone there if there had been adequate preventative medicine.

"I ask you, why not?" why wasn't this preventative care provided?" the speaker demanded.

"I have pledged that if our Liberal hospitalization plan is not in operation within a year after we are elected, then I will resign as premier of this province" he said.

"The Liberals will reduce the cost of government and taxes. They will take three cents of the gas tax per gallon, will pay a one cent subsidy on milk sold for fluid consumption and subsidize cheese, hogs and beef," he said.

"In your candidate, Charlie Johnston you have a man who has risen from the ranks of labour, who understands the people and their needs. You need not worry about losing a cabinet minister because you may gain one in Charlie Johnston", the Liberal leader said.

Other speakers were the candidate, Mayor Jack Burnet, Bob Love and others.

Describes Trip To Vancouver

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 21—(ENS)—Rotarian Fred M. Rutherford was the guest speaker at the Monday noon luncheon of the Rotary Club here. He described his recent motor trip to Western Canada.

Mr. Rutherford motored west early in September. He described crossing Lake Michigan by boat along with 950 other people and 120 automobiles. Travelling during the day and stopping at motels in the evening for supper helped reduce expenses of the trip considerably. He said that in Minnesota there are many lakes, good fishing and an abundance of ducks and antelope to attract the hunter.

They saw the Bad Lands of the middle west. He said it was not unusual to seem a small 'plane near the farm buildings, used by the rancher to look over his land.

The speaker visited Grand Couley dam and told of the areas of farm lands near it. The Wenatchee Valley of Washington, which was also visited, is a continuation of the Okanagan Valley of BC. Both are noted for fruit growing.

During his visit to Vancouver and Victoria he encountered many places of interest, including Stanley Park, a number of lumber mills and other industries.

Mr. Rutherford advised against returning via the Sault, as he did, until further work is done on the Trans-Canada Highway.

President Franklin Linton thanked the speaker.

Canadians And The European Army

An apparent contradiction is coming out of Paris this week. At the General Assembly of U.N., Britain, France and the United States are proposing disarmament and the American Secretary of State has asked that a U.N. twelve-country disarmament commission be set up. Canada's Minister of External Affairs, Mr. Pearson, is party to these proposals. In Paris, also, negotiations are advancing for the creation of a European Army, and the NATO forces under General Eisenhower are being built up. Canada's Minister of National Defence, Mr. Claxton, has a hand in these matters, and the Minister of Finance, Mr. Abbott, was questioned last week-end in Paris by the special sub-committee of U.N. (the "Three Wise Men") on the state of Canada's defence effort in the defence plans of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Canada's Chief of Staff, Lt.-Gen. Foulkes was with him.

* * *

There is no real contradiction between the disarmament proposals and the tremendous surge of military activity and organization in Paris. The European Army and the united defence effort of NATO are a pooling of military resources, and thus a limiting of separate national re-armament. The NATO countries are not vying with each other. It is a common defence effort to protect themselves against Russian and Communist arms. Should any significant degree of disarmament be achieved, the European army would be an indigenous police force, to keep the peace, not to threaten it, and non-European troops in General Eisenhower's NATO command could go home.

* * *

The proposed European Army would be a separate organization from the British-American forces to join which Canada's 27th Brigade is now going overseas. (The first troopship is being met in Rotterdam by Mr. Claxton.) The European Army would be composed of troops of France, Italy, Germany, Belgium and Holland. It is not a NATO army, but supplementary to it.

* * *

Last week the Foreign Minister of the "Pleven Plan States" went into session in Paris to try to settle questions of political control, economic division of labour and of finance in connection with the European Army. It seems that this Army will shortly take definite shape. On Saturday the North Atlantic Treaty Council (which held its first session in Ottawa in September) goes into conference in Rome. The disposition of military effort of the twelve NATO nations, and the creation of the European Army will be on the agenda.

* * *

Canada has been questioned on her military contributions and the state of her preparedness. What is a proper number of troops and airmen for Canada to supply and send to Europe? The European Army will make this question easier to answer. There is a surplus of men in Europe. It is cheaper to maintain European soldiers there than it is to send forces from this side. Canada's primary role in European defence is not to field a large force in Europe now, but to have them available and trained in Canada, and to help equip the European soldiers serving in the European Army. That is the economic way to do it, and, politically, the less explosive. North American troops are intruders in Europe; the men on guard in the field should be, as much as possible, men of the countries requiring their guard: France, Italy, Germany, Belgium and Holland. Mr. Claxton made the economic fact plain when he said in London yesterday that it costs $2,300 a year to maintain a Canadian soldier, compared with $600 for a continental soldier.

A-Bomb Creates New Town?

Very mysterious things can happen, even remote from the actual scene, when scientists and military men muck about with radium, A-bombs and assorted gadgets. Take, for instance, what happened to Port Hope on Monday.

That neighbour of Peterborough was subjected to theoretical atomic attack on Monday. Mind you, it was only theoretical. Nobody actually dropped real live A-bombs down people's drains. It was an exercise. Our news report said that Port Hope people gave it no heed. They went about their daily chores as if nothing were happening when, in theory, an atomic bomb exploded in the deep water of Lake Ontario, a quarter of a mile from the harbour, and when, in theory, thousands of refugees crowded Highway 2. But something did happen. Port Hope disappeared, and a new town took its place. We can prove it; it said so in the paper. Our story about the atomic attack on Port Hope—the late Port Hope—had the date line "NORT HOPE".

Some Port Hope people may not believe that their town has been replaced by Nort Hope. Some of our readers may be unkind enough to think that the Examiner was in error. We do not claim to be infallible, but, even if a new town of Nort Hope was not created in the twinkling of an imaginary atomic explosion, the emanations from that theoretical explosion were powerful enough to upset our type, 25 miles away. Which proves that there is a mysterious cosmic force even in make-believe atomic energy. It is dangerous stuff to play with . . . "NORT HOPE, Nov. 20. (ENS)". It is lucky that the theoretical bomb was not dropped at Random, destroying that lovely coastal town. What happened to Port Hope was bad enough.

Ten Trees By City Fathers

We are relieved to note that trees are to be planted on the new city hall grounds. These will replace those which were cut down a couple of months ago, leaving the site naked. A small ceremony of tree-planting is to take place on Saturday morning, and each of the ten aldermen will plant a tree. Presumably there is a definite landscaping plan, for no eleventh tree is scheduled for the Mayor's shovel. However, Mayor Swanston will be able to get even, should he think fit to ordain as a retiring gesture, that a Christmas tree be set up in front of the new building for the last fortnight of December. A great big one, to dwarf the infants being planted Saturday morning. He might ask that even two Christmas trees be put up, for good measure.

The city Parks Department has made an impressively speedy business of landscaping the new city hall. A fortnight before the formal opening the plot was barren gravel and muck. By opening day lawns were laid out, shrubs set in, and even a hedge—all full-grown and looking as if they belonged to the place.

Another good example of official speed was the laying of the walks in front of the city hall. Workmen were at the job all night before the opening ceremony, but by 2:30 p.m. of the next day—lo! there was the paving. The co-operation of the various departments in working to get building and site ready in time was an encouraging indication of municipal accord and efficiency.

While we are on the city hall plot, we should also mention with approval the setting-back of the Water Street sidewalk, giving wider road space. It will be needed in that busy block and the city engineer's department showed commendable foresight in getting the work done with such despatch, doing it, too, in rough, snow-cold weather.

Oil Costs For The British

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh of Persia has gone home after a month in Washington when American State Department officials visited his bedside almost daily to try to persuade him and his government into a change of heart on the Iranian oil question. They had no success. Dr. Mossadegh wants the British technicians to run the refineries, but wants them to be under the control of his Government. He will not allow the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company to come back to its properties. He has tried to bait the United States with implications that the Russians might force their way into control of the Persian oil if the United States does not side with him against the British.

Actually, both Britain and Iran are suffering from the closing down of the refineries. Dr. Mossadegh is being feted in Egypt as a valiant Arab nationalist, a courageous ouster of Britain. But when he leaves the acclaim of Cairo and gets back to Iran, he will find the people glum because nationalization of the oil has not brought manna. He will find the national treasury, largely dependent on oil royalties, empty.

As for Britain, dollar-short Britain, it is having to pay more than a million dollars (in dollars) a day to make up for the lost supply of Iranian oil. This is a heavy burden on Britain's finances. It was only two weeks ago that the new Chancellor of the Exchequer, R. A. Butler, announced that Britain must cut her imports by ten per cent—amounting to about a billion dollars. The British hope is that the Mossadegh Government will fall and that a more tolerant one will replace it. However, if chaos develops, the country would be ready for Communist exploitation. Persian oil is a prize that Russia would dearly love to get.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The British Sunbathing Association is petitioning for a law which would ban the use of bathing-suits at public swimming pools. Those who argue that the effect would be lascivious might better reflect that it would prove overwhelmingly humorous.

A former Toronto school teacher, now being held for deportation in Chicago, faked his own murder in order that he might live illicitly with a woman. Obviously the poor fellow was ruined by crime comics he confiscated from his class.

Mr. Eden's Fresh Start

By ELIZABETH PARKER

MR. EDEN, when he made his first speech to the sixth Assembly of the United Nations, made a characteristically British contribution to its work. He did not announce any striking change in British policy, resulting from the change of Government, nor foreshadow any shift in the policy of the Western Powers. But he made a sincere and strenuous effort to bring a fresh spirit into the Assembly, or perhaps rather to bring back an old spirit—the spirit of restraint, moderation, tolerance and courtesy.

He coupled this attempt with an equally characteristic appeal for a practical, step-by-step approach to the vital problem of easing world tension. According to all accounts, most of the delegates to the Assembly—possibly including Mr. Vishinsky—were deeply impressed by Mr. Eden's speech, precisely because of its restraint and moderation. These are qualities which belong to the best type of democratic diplomacy, in the true sense of these words, and which are in complete contrast to the methods of totalitarian diplomacy, such as Mr. Vishinsky had employed in addressing the Assembly a few days earlier.

IT is a curious and depressing sign of the present time that it now requires a certain courage to declare in an international assembly, as Mr. Eden did, that all men are fallible, or that in no dispute is one party completely a black villain and the other snow white. These are, of course, simple and self-evident truths in the British way of thinking. But one of the evils of totalitarian diplomacy is that it tends, or deliberately attempts, to force its own methods on its supposed adversaries. Because its own chief method is a kind of totalitarian offensive in the fields of diplomacy and propaganda, it forces its supposed adversaries in the direction of a kind of totalitarian defence which, however unaggressive, is inevitably somewhat rigid and monopolithic.

There is then the danger that there may be such a hardening of the two opposing diplomatic fronts that no single international problem can be treated or solved on its own merits, but each becomes indissolubly welded into a world-wide pattern of conflict between Russia and the West. If once this stage is reached, then there will in the end be only two ways out: either world war or one single comprehensive settlement of all outstanding problems. And by that time the second alternative would be most difficult to achieve, even with the wisest of statesmanship and the most genuine good will on both sides.

MR. EDEN'S plea for a "fresh start" is therefore of considerable importance. After calling for an end to polemical disputes, to name-calling and angry words, he said that the way forward was to start from small issues and work to great issues; to grasp definite and limited problems and work for their practical solution. "That" he said "is the real road to peace". Mr. Eden also made it clear that, in the British view, work of this kind was an essential preparation before any top level meeting between the two sides could usefully be held. He thereby dispelled, as Mr. Churchill himself has also done, any misunderstanding of Mr. Churchill's hope of an eventual big three meeting. Neither Mr. Churchill nor Mr. Eden, it is obvious, believes in any easy short cut to genuine peace, but they, like the overwhelming majority of their fellow countrymen, believe in working towards such peace by every practicable method.

Mr. Eden proved the essentially practical nature of his "fresh start" by citing a number of individual problems which urgently call for solution by the great powers, either inside or outside the United Nations framework. One positive achievement, he said, would do more to help than all the eloquence that the world's oratory can command.

THE most urgent of these outstanding problems, though far from the smallest, is, of course, Korea. Recently, after long delays and many difficulties, some progress has been made in the truce talks in Korea, but Mr. Vishinsky's opening speech in the Assembly, in which he returned to the old and impracticable Communist demand for withdrawal to the 38th parallel, raised fresh doubts about the prospects of an armistice. Mr. Eden, however, refused to admit discouragement and called for the pacification and unification of Korea, irrespective of ideological considerations. In other words, he asked that the Korean problem should be handled as an individual problem on its own merits.

It is, of course, true that if Soviet Russia were to join with the other powers in approaching the problem in this spirit, a cease-fire could easily be brought about and there would then be no insuperable obstacle in the way of unifying Korea under United Nations auspices. And, apart from enormous benefit to the Korean people, such a solution would do a great deal to ease international tension and to make further progress possible.

TWO other individual problems which Mr. Eden mentioned were Germany and Austria. Unfortunately, in the case of Germany, there seems at present little chance that Soviet Russia will discuss constructively the Western Powers' proposal for an international commission to investigate the possibility of holding elections in East and West Germany. Nevertheless, Mr. Vishinsky's present attitude does not necessarily mean that Moscow may not, at some later stage, be ready to consider the Western proposal more constructively.

Over Austria there is not yet any clear sign that Moscow is now ready to make progress towards a treaty settlement which would at least end the occupation regime. But the Western Powers will continue to press in this direction. Equally, they will continue their efforts to induce Russia to consider the question of Italy's admission to the United Nations, not as a matter for bargaining, but purely on the merits of the case. And, whatever their initial lack of success, the Western Powers may in the end be able to find an "individual problem" on which Soviet Russia is genuinely ready to negotiate. After that, progress might then be made with other problems.

IT was in this framework of ideas that Mr. Eden set the disarmament proposals of the three Western Powers. He showed that the essence of these proposals was that they could be carried out step by step, by gradual and successive stages. For, in disarmament as in political problems, each step forward, even if not a great one, creates the international confidence needed for a further greater step. The Western disarmament proposals are therefore very much in harmony with the whole method and spirit of the work which Mr. Eden advocated. And if the United Nations go ahead and work them out in detail, Soviet Russia may at some stage see their value and decide to co-operate in this work.

Why No Backing For Canadian Drama?

(CALGARY HERALD)

THE most dramatic thing which a Canadian drama group could do would be to earn enough money to support itself. Since this rarely, if ever, occurs, the professional theatre is moribund in Canada. Except in a few big cities, facilities for advanced theatrical training are non-existent, and there is no such thing as a national theatre.

The Massey Report considered in detail these sad facts and, in order to help the theatre as well as other arts in Canada, recommended a Canada Arts Council to encourage and promote such arts as drama. The people of the theatre were the first to insist that they did not want to be supported by government handouts; they wanted encouragement and some means of offsetting the expense incurred in travelling in this vast country.

The example of the Dominion Drama Festival in privately helping to develop theatre in Canada was warmly cited before the Massey commission. The festival organization has never received assistance from the federal government since it was formed in 1933. The funds, which it uses for sponsoring regional and Dominion festivals, for helping amateur groups to travel to festival centres and for paying adjudicators from other countries, have been raised by private subscription. After the tremendously successful festival which was held in Calgary in 1950, the festival was placed on a full-time, year-round basis, so that theatrical activity could be better encouraged in this nation. It was felt that Canadian drama groups had developed to such a maturity and the interest of the play-going public was at such a peak, that a permanent drama league should be formed.

We feel this was a wise decision and we would like to see such an organization grow more and more successful. Unfortunately, such a league requires more money than before and it is not getting it. Richard MacDonald, secretary of the Dominion Festival, said in Calgary that the financial situation is serious. The organization had relied upon the thirteen regions to name honorary governors who would patronize the festival activities. But they had not lived up to expectations. A large proportion of festival funds comes from private donations. If these were not forthcoming, the regional adjudications would have to be eliminated and the financial aid to theatre groups travelling to the festival would be cut off.

This would indeed be a blow to Canadian theatre. It could lead either to the death of that growing theatre by a sort of galloping consumption or the succumbing of its participants to full-blown federal support and the likely loss of its present expressive individuality. Either development would be a most unfortunate one. If Canadians really believe in supporting their own cultural fields and really do not want to be bottle-fed by the state, the cause of the Dominion Drama Festival should appeal to them. We sincerely hope it does, for we would hate to see one of this nation's most vigorous arts neglected and mummified by default on the part of our affluent citizens.

'King Of Europe'

(Sir Louis Rieu in London Times)

The following incident was told me by an Italian lady:

A few days ago she was travelling by train in Piedmont when two peasants entered her compartment and carried on an animated conversation in dialect, in the course of which the name Giorgio recurred.

Being herself a Piedmontese, she soon realized that they were discussing the King of England's illness. One of them concluded by saying: "I hope he will recover; we have no king now; Giorgio is the last of the kings; I feel that he is King of Europe."

SAFE ENOUGH

An insurance agent was trying to induce a business man to insure his office furniture and fittings against burglary.

"I'll insure everything except the clock," the man told him.

"Isn't it worth insuring?" the agent asked.

"It's worth it all right. In fact it's the best bit of furniture in the office."

"Then why not insure it?" asked the agent.

"It would be a waste of money," the business man replied. "It's impossible to steal it. The staff never take their eyes off it."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servant whom I have chosen: that ye may know and believe me, and understand that I am he: before me there was no God formed, neither shall there be after me.... I am the Lord, your Holy One, the creator of Israel, your King.... This people have I formed for myself, they shall shew forth my praise. (Isa. 43: 10, 15, 21.)

❖ ❖ ❖

For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God. (I Cor. 2: 11.)

❖ ❖ ❖

What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's. (I Cor. 6: 19, 20.)

❖ ❖ ❖

For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God. For which cause we faint not; but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is renewed day by day. (II Cor. 4: 15, 16.)

Letter To The Editor

AN EXPLANATION IS DUE

Sir: Your article on the H.E.P.C. is timely. The public that pays for its services should no longer be kept "in the dark" figuratively or otherwise. If there is a shortage of hydro-electric power at this season it should be said so, and consumers will understand if they are given reasons. If there is no shortage an explanation of recent difficulties should be forthcoming. In this household, for instance, our electric water heater is frequently not performing as efficiently as it should.

One of Ontario's main "talking points" as a centre of industrial development is the abundant and cheap supply of hydro-electric power. Coming as I did three years ago from an austerity-ridden Britain I was much impressed by the signs of plenty here, but I was surprised to find regular daily interruptions in hydro-electric power. Later on I understood that when new stations had been built the shortage would disappear. Has the increased demand for electricity already absorbed the extra power available?

If the situation is explained frankly the public should be urged to co-operate in economizing. There is a lot of waste, and an example should be set at the top level. For example the flood-lighting of the new city building, effective though it is, would be discontinued owing to the shortage. Different ways of economizing in the home should be publicized.

Finally, if cuts are necessary, why should the public pay for something that they do not receive? The giving of short measure in stores is a punishable offence. Is not some reduction in the hydro rates indicated under these circumstances?

Yours faithfully,
C. GLEDHILL.

REALLY MEAN

A man notorious for his meanness had stayed the weekend with friends. As he was saying good-bye to his hostess, she said: "I thought you might be embarrassed about the servants, so I tipped them each five dollars and said it was from you."

"Why didn't you make it ten?" the guest said, as he entered his car. "I don't want your servants to think I'm stingy!"

Two Charges Both Dismissed Over Accident

Charged with careless driving, and leaving the scene of an accident, Frederick Rathburn, 299 King St., pleaded not guilty to both charges in police court on Tuesday. Rathburn was acquitted on the charges.

The charges were laid Oct. 30 as the result of a complaint by William McCollom, 91 Haslam St., Toronto, who said a truck sideswiped his transport as he was driving east on Highway 7A.

McCollom said his tarpaulin was torn in two places and the racks were splintered. He told OPP Constable Thomas Fitzpatrick that the truck was loaded with scrap metal.

In court Tuesday, Constable Fitzpatrick said he obtained a statement written by Rathburn after he was questioned about the accident, "after the usual warning in the section under the charge had been read to him."

Defence Objects

Robert Carley defended Rathburn and objected to the statement being admitted on the charge of leaving the scene of an accident, because it was taken in connection with the careless driving charge.

Mr. Carley cited the precedent of the murder trial of Mrs. Evelyn Dick in Hamilton some years ago to back up his claim that the evidence was not admissable. In this trial, a statement taken on a vagrancy charge was not admitted when Mrs. Dick was charged with murder, on ruling of an appeal court. Mr. Carley also referred to the recent Thompson murder trial here to bolster his argument.

"It is ridiculous if officers have to decide what subsection an accused is going to be charged under before they can take a statement," declared crown attorney John A. Bradshaw.

"I doubt very much if police officers are expected to know as much as the crown, who gets the information and decides what charge is going to be laid," said Magistrate W. R. Philp in admitting the statement. The charges are of the same relative importance, there is little difference as far as penalties are concerned, he added.

Felt Jar

Rathburn had admitted feeling "a jar" as he passed the truck. He said he did not know the two vehicles had come in contact with each other.

Mr. Carley consented to letting the evidence apply to both charges. Magistrate W. R. Philp said he did not think there was sufficient degree of carelessness to warrant a conviction on the careless driving charge. Both charges were dismissed.

Wading Pool Wins Approval

The Recreation Commission Tuesday night approved in principle the Lions' wading pool in the McKellar area but added that the building and design will be subject to the approval of the commission.

On Monday night the Lions Club volunteered to the finance committee of the city council to build a wading pool in the McKellar residential section for its small children.

Alex Sinclair, recreation director, said, "The wading pool is badly needed in that vicinity. There isn't a thing down there for the small children."

"It's admirable on the part of the Peterborough Lions Club," said Wilfred Langan, vice-chairman.

Ald. Harold Rehill questioned whether the McKellar totlot was large enough for both the children's playground and wading pool.

Mr. Sinclair said that the playground equipment could be "much better grouped than it is now."

More Playground

He then added that the boys' and girls' playground for the past several years at Confederation will be moved closer to the McKellar area next summer. He explained that the parks board plan the playground next year at the property, given to the city by the Nashua Paper Company. This area is just east of the factory.

Mr. Sinclair emphasized that the McKellar playground will remain as a totlot for children under 12 years.

When the offer was made, club representative, Douglas Anderson, said that he did not think that a dressing room was necessary, that 90 per cent of the children at the wading pool in Ashburnan went there from home in their bathing suits.

But Mr. Sinclair pointed out that the Board of Health, more than a year ago, recommended rest room facilities at McKellar totlot.

"We skipped by it this year," he added.

Nurses Hear Lecture On Trip To Europe

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 21 — (ENS) — The Campbellford and district nurses met this week at the home of Mrs. V. Lockwood. Dr. Charlotte M. Horner was the guest speaker, and gave an illustrated talk on her trip to Europe this summer. The colored pictures Dr. Horner took on her trip were picturesque. Refreshments were served by Mrs. T. Little and Mrs. C. Milne. Mrs. J. Archer poured tea.

A discussion followed, at which it was decided to have a bridge party on December 4. Mrs. Tatham has offered her home for this event and Mrs. Lockwood will take reservations, assisted by Mrs. J. Archer. Mrs. L. Richardson and Mrs. C. Milne were appointed a committee to look after the affair. The receipts will help the nurses provide a CHS scholarship for a student nurse.

Mrs. Hall thanked the hostess for opening her house for the meeting.

Court Dismisses Traffic Charges

Two charges of violations under the Highway Traffic Act against John Patrick Kelly, 1164 Clonsilla Ave., were dismissed in police court Tuesday.

Charged with careless driving and leaving the scene of an accident, Kelly pleaded not guilty to both charges, which were laid against him following an accident on the Clydesdale Road, shortly after midnight, October 7.

Joseph Mahoney, RR 1, Apsley, the driver of the other car involved in the accident, said he was travelling east and as he broke over a rise in the road, saw an approaching car. He said the care sideswiped his car, but kept on going. After turning around and going back over the road, Mahoney said he saw the car in the ditch about 500 yards west of the scene of the collision.

Said Forced Off

Kelly testified his brother had been driving the car, and that the Mahoney car had forced them off the road and that his brother pulled the car into the ditch at the scene of the accident. He said he and his brother remained in the car the rest of the night. Kelly said he reported the accident to OPP District Headquarters in Peterborough on Sunday night.

"One of these men is under serious mis apprehensions as to what happened," said Magistrate W. R. Philp in dismissing the charge.

On the careless driving charge, Kelly agreed to let the evidence on the first charge apply to the second and pleaded not guilty.

His brother, Private James Kelly, RCA, Picton, said that he was driving and "went into the ditch to avoid an accident."

Magistrate Philp said there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction and dismissed the charge but assessed Kelly $15 in court costs.

UK Would Spurn Europe's Union

STRASBOURG, France, Nov. 21 (AP).—Robert Boothby, British Conservative, said Tuesday his country would turn its back on European federation.

Boothby spoke after American congressmen, in a joint session with delegates of the European Consultative Assembly, had prodded him for a clear expression from Prime Minister Churchill's new Government.

"England cannot join a purely European political federation," Boothby said. "Western Europe cannot be made an effective unit in the modern world. It cannot feed itself, nor provide itself with strategic raw materials."

Instead, he urged formation of a central political authority or democratic union grouping together Western Europe, Britain and its Commonwealth and the United States. Britain is the only power belonging to all three—Europe, the English - speaking world and the Commonwealth, he added.

Choose Commonwealth

"In a choice between Europe and the Commonwealth, 90 per cent. of our people would choose the Commonwealth. Our ultimate aim is an Atlantic community rather than an European federation."

The consultative assembly is made up of delegates chosen by the parliaments of 15 European countries, but who speak only for themselves. It invited a 14-man bi-partisan delegation from the US Congress to this joint session as a gesture of co-operation.

It was Representative Howard W. Smith (Dem., Va.) and Representative Kenneth Keating (Rep., NY) who urged Boothby to say whether the British Government and people would back European federation. Churchill has been a leading advocate of European unity.

Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium and Paul Reynaud of France suggested that the US pay "unity bonuses" to countries joining a European federation. Two Americans, Senator Brien McMahon (Dem., Conn.) and Representative Walter Judd (Rep., Minn.), also said greater American aid should be given countries willing to federate.

McMahon recalled this idea had been rejected in the early days of the Marshall plan because American leaders were afraid of what Soviet propaganda might say.

Truman Anticipates Lies, Smears In 1952

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 (AP).—President Truman, in a speech reminiscent of his 1948 "give-'em-hell" style, said Tuesday night that the Democrats won't take lying down the "lies and smears" he anticipates from Republicans and "special interests" in the 1952 presidential campaign.

Truman told party members he thinks more money will be spent "in trying to defeat the Democratic party next year than has ever before been spent in any election in the history of the country."

This brought from Republicans a reiteration of "corruption" charges. Truman did not mention in his speech any of the charges of wrong-doing which have been alleged against his administration.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Belleville Hawks are undefeated to date in their OHA senior "B" race, and they're pretty cocky at present. That may be fixed up here tonight when they tackle the Petes at 8.30 in Civic. The Ellis men know the Hawks are no setups, as the Quinte crew beat 'em in Belleville earlier this season, but Hawks may find the smaller ice surface tougher to take, Playing Coach Red Doran has a pretty potent pack—with huge Vern Goyer his ace sniper—but we rather expect the Petes to grab off a win on home ice to dump Belleville down the ladder a bit and climb into a top-place tie with Eagles. It should be a fine senior puck fray.

Six minor hockey games are on tap tomorrow eve in the Arena, commencing at six bells. They go in this order: Trojan bantams vs. the Otonabee Wolves; Trojan midgets vs. Snowbirds; the juvenile Trojans vs. Marines; St. Peter's vs. Lions bantams; SPS midgets v. Martin-Hewitt, and Lakefield vs. the juvenile Oddfellows. Refs from six to nine are Leggett and McNamara, with Romhanyi and Menzies tooting the whistles then till midnight. The PMHA-ers started off with a bang last week, and will go each Thursday night till Spring. Lots of lively puck action served up in all brackets.

Dressed-Up Shinny, Eh?

Hockey trend may be indicated in this London item: "While TV and poor teams are generally being blamed for falling gates at Chicago, New York, Boston and Detroit, maybe that isn't the answer. We wonder if hockey's bigwigs ever wonder whether today's helter-skelter hockey has had anything to do with the cooling-off in interest? Hockey was made a major sport in the States on the strength of its skilful presentation and robust action. Now the game is little more than dressed-up shinny. Pro promoters have sneered at this kind of criticism, pointing to filled rinks to prove their style of game was popular. They aren't fighting to get in the rinks now, boys. Maybe it's time some stock-taking was done. The NHL can no more afford to lose Chicago than the American Baseball League could afford to lose the Yankees. The Chicago flop, if not corrected, could be the forerunner of other failures."

Word came through yesterday from Kingston that Queen's had dropped out of OHA senior "B" contention in our group. That leaves Petes, Eagles, Kingston SAC and Belleville, but where does it leave the standing? Also where does it leave the Petes financially, as they're the only squad to have travelled to Kingston this season to play Queen's — and that costs more than two hundred bucks? Queen's played three games and lost by big margins to Eagles, Petes and Belleville. With a squad below senior "B" calibre, and faced with mighty small home gates at the Harty Arena, they decided to fold up. And that's all to the good, as they weren't a drawing card around the circuit last winter nor so far this semester. But a ruling will have to be made as to how wins over Queen's to date affect the standing, if at all.

Guess Rice Is Fattening

Hectic mat action at the Brock last p.m., including a hot prelim which saw Pat Flanagan awarded the bout over Stan Mayslack, and a bloodied Zorra chasing Newman from the place after the final. Both were disqualified by Referee Sam Gotter—who looked helpless all evening—after he was slugged by both. Zorra had to get patched up later in hospital, and was he ever burned up at rough Lou Newman! The semi-final elimination Sumo bouts by the Japs were rather interesting, though they'll never sell their style over here. The paunchy Orientals (who are quite proud of their bay windows) go in for straight wrestling, pushing, tugging and trying to get a guy off-balance for the quick fall. A lot of warming-up and polite ritual first, and a lot of noise by matmen and ref during the tilt.

Bill Fry of the ORFU has announced that Bill Huntley of our Orfuns and Jimmy Loreno of Oshawa Raiders are joint winners this football season of the Johnny Black Trophy as most valuable and sportsmanlike players in ORFU intermediate ranks. Trophy is named for Johnny Black of Oakville, seriously injured player two years ago. It will be presented in Toronto Friday night at a dinner on the eve of the Grey Cup game, dinner proceeds going to a benefit fund for Black. Each player voted for two members of his own club and one from another, and that's how they award this trophy. Huntley—who played ball for the Petes last summer—has been an outstanding plunging halfback with Orfuns since coming here two years ago, and it's only right that he should at least share in this honor.

Rigid Reforms Drafted In College Sports

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (AP). — A straight jacket for over-emphasis of collegiate sports has been devised for national adoption by the National College Athletic Association policy-making council.

Rigid controls that would jack up academic standards, provide an antidote for professionalism, combat recruiting, and in general, put a lid on pressures to win at any cost, were drafted by the all-powerful council after a two-day session.

The council ordered a moratorium throughout 1952 on contractual commitments for post-season events such as football bowl games. A special study will be made to determine the degree of pressure postseason sports create in the build-up of over-emphasis.

A 12-point reform program will be submitted to the NCAA convention in Cincinnati Jan. 9-12.

Strong Support

Hugh Willett of Southern California, NCAA president, said the program has the support of a "substantial majority" of the association's 320 member schools.

A year ago the convention rejected the so-called sanity code, a weapon designed to be used against recruiting and commercialism.

However, in the last year basketball scandals have shocked the United States and started a seething undercurrent throughout collegiate athletic structures.

Judge Saual S. Streit of New York, after blasting commercialism and over-emphasis in college football, yesterday said "denials, reports and surveys will serve no purpose unless the college administrations change their present methods."

Streit, who handed out jail sentences in the basketball bribery scandal Monday, warned that "unless colleges take heed, all the efforts of the district attorneys, the state and the entire exposure will serve no purpose whatsoever."

Meanwhile, college presidents members of a special committee set up by the American Council of Education—end their first meeting in Washingnton.

Studying what's wrong with sports, they agreed that athletes should not be allowed to take only so-called snap courses, that colleges and universities must practice the high principles they preach, and that presidents must assume full responsibility for their athletic programs.

Main Grapple Bout Bloody Semi-Final Interesting As Japs Show Sumo Style

A wild-eyed, bloody finish to the main bout and Sumo semi-final grappling by four Japs were features of the pro mat card which drew a big crowd to the Brock St. Arena last night. Zorra and Lou Newman were both disqualified in the main go for slugging Referee Sam Gotter, and it wound up with Zorra — blood pouring from a bad cut on the head—chasing Newman to the stairway of the dressing rooms. He caught him there briefly, but other grapplers broke it up.

Newman had roughed the Frenchman up plenty and banged his head several times into the turnbuckles, with the referee acting helpless, and then Zorra started swinging. They slugged it out hard, and each took turns throwing the odd punch at Gotter when he tried to halt it. He finally disqualified both, and Lou took to his heels with Zorra after him, and the crowd screaming.

Evened the Falls

Zorra took the equalizing fall in 12 minutes with an airplane spin and slam, after treating Newman and the crowd to some plain and fancy foot work. He kicked the frustrated ex-Marvel all over the place with single punts, flying double boots, reverse kicks and even leather cuffs on the back of his neck. He had Newman, who roughed it for a space, loosened up plenty before applying his winning hold to the delight of the crowd.

Newman, weighing 245, to Zorra's 238, played it illegal all the way, pulling hair, using chokes, scratching the back and being slow to break, forcing Gotter to count to get him loose. Zorra was faster and got in some good licks, too, including a punishing armlock and some kicks. But Lou brutalized the Frenchman at every opportunity, especially along the ropes, and softened him up with knees, fists and elbows to the head and finally downed him in 23 minutes with rolling reverse full nelsons.

Paunchy Japs

The exhibition semi-final, showing the Jap Sumo style, was interesting, though not too exciting. The paunchy Orientals showed Japanese calisthenics and pre-bout ritual in their fancy dress, and then went through three brief elimination bouts. They scaled from 260 to 365 pounds, much of it around the middle—and they were quite proud of their big stomachs. Fujitayama downed Oneumi in the first go, but lost to Yakatayama, who in turn was no match for the champ, Maedayama. They tugged and grunted and displayed good blocking and leverage with a chattering referee walking about, until the loser hit the deck.

They dish up no rough stuff nor illegal mat work at all, sticking strictly to the rules of the game as performed in Japan. As soon as any part of a wrestler, but his feet, comes in contact with the floor, the fall is awarded to his opponent. Maedayama was undefeated in Japan in seven years.

Wouldn't Heed

Stan Mayslack, 242-pounder from Minneapolis, made his first grappling appearance here in the prelim and was disqualified by the referee. He had popular 228-pound Pat Flanagan in a corner and was standing up on the ropes pummelling him, refusing to heed the ref's warnings, and the bout was awarded to Pat in 26 minutes. They dished up a rousing struggle, a typical Flanagan wide-open affair. It was fast, with a lot of stuff served up to a noisy crowd. Pat pulled the Hangman Cantonwine stunt on Stan once and worked the ropes like giant fiddle strings to get the most out of it. But Stan had Flan in trouble, too, tossing him into turnbuckles, and each in turn was tossed out of the ring in riotous going. The fans loved the hectic action.

Here and There In Sport

Conh Smythe, general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, said on Tuesday at Toronto he will recall leftwinger Danny Lewicki from Pittsburgh Hornets in an effort to bolster sagging goal production.

Lewicki and Ray Timgren were sent to Leafs' American League farm club three weeks ago for seasoning.

At Tuesday's practice, Smythe said only that his Leafs were "all good fat, and well-rounded."

Eric Cradock announced Tuesday night at Toronto that he has sold his one-third share of stock in the Montreal Alouettes football team for $40,000. His shares are being absorbed by a Montreal group headed by Charlie Stone and Roy Robertson.

Cradock, Toronto stock broker, said in his announcement that he also is parting company with Hayman, who now owns two-thirds of the Alouette stock, because he feels that his business calls on too much of his time to be associated with any football venture beyond Toronto.

Cradock said that Hayman has agreed to relinquish his coaching duties and become a full-time general manager. He said he didn't know who might succeed Hayman.

Cradock's decision to sell his shares follows the recent action of Leo Dandurand, Montreal sportsman in disposing of his one-third share in the club to Hayman. Dandurand and Hayman split over the reluctance of Hayman to give up the coaching job after two dismal seasons following the Alouettes Grey Cup triumph in 1948.

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission Tuesday pondered the request of a pretty nurse to be permitted in her boxer-husband's corner as a trainer.

The application was made by Mrs. Mae Collins, a registered nurse whose husband of four weeks, featherweight Tommy Collins, fights Tommy Cam on Friday night. Mrs. Collins told the commission her training as a nurse would be an asset in her husband's corner, particularly should he get cut up or otherwise hurt.

At Baltimore, Judge Joseph Sherbow fined a man $2,500 on Tuesday for betting on horses, and said the penalty should "serve as a warning to nice people." Judge Sherbow recently announced that he would regard bettors in the same category with bookmakers and numbers operators when they came before his bench.

In assessing the fines against Bernard H. Hass, 61-year-old parking lot operator, Sherbow said: "When a respectable business man past the age of 60 does the things this defendant has done it sets a pretty bad example for the community. Without the bettor, we would not have the professional gambler and racketeer.

Sawchuk Shows Wings Way With 2-0 Shutout In Boston

By BARRY WEST

Terry Sawchuk is showing Detroit Red Wings the way home in the National Hockey League race. The Winnipegbor net-minder scored his fourth shutout, collaring the Boston Bruins 2-0 Tuesday night. The victory also proved a booster for his goals-against average.

While the agile goalie keeps them out, the Red Wings are consistent in their scoring to lead the league in points with 25. This is a seven-point edge over their nearest rivals, Toronto Maple Leafs.

Voted the outstanding rookie last season and awarded the Calder Memorial Trophy, Sawchuk now seems to be fighting for the Vezina Trophy awarded each year to the goaltender who has let the lowest number of pucks past him.

Average 1.84

Sawchuk's average now is 1.84, one-tenth less than Toronto's Al Rollins who copped the Vezina last year.

Holding such a heavy lead in points and having played the same number of games as Toronto and the third-place Montreal Canadiens, the Wings are favorites to pull farther away from the pack than ever as the season progresses.

Red Kelly and Tony Leswick scored in the last period Tuesday night to find a wide gap of scoreless play between the Wings and Bruins. The clubs had battled through 114 minutes and 57 seconds of scoreless hockey in their last two games on Boston ice.

Defenceman Kelly fired his counter into an empty Boston cage after goalie Sugar Jim Henry was removed for a sixth forward in the last minute of play.

During the game, Sawchuk kicked out 32 Boston shots.

Boston so far has been winless on home ice, having tied four and lost three games.

With the Wings safely in top spot, Toronto and Montreal are carrying out a struggle for second place. The Leafs hold a one-point edge with 18 points.

Indianapolis Headed For Worst AHL Season

The Indianapolis Capitols, usually one of the strongest teams in the American Hockey League, appear headed for the worst season in their history.

Coach Ott Heller's young Caps have failed to win any of their last 10 starts. During this slump they have managed to tie one game.

St. Louis Flyers turned back the Caps 5-2 Tuesday night and moved into a tie with Cincinnati for second place in the western division.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Conacher Scores Three Goals In Galt Victory

By The Canadian Press.

Galt Black Hawks undoubtedly agree that Pete Conacher needs more schooling. After all, it gives them a hockey player.

Young Conacher, who made his short-lived debut in the National Hockey League with Chicago Black Hawks Sunday night, returned to the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A circuit Tuesday.

He practically whipped Oshawa Generals single-handed, picking up six points—including three goals—as Hawks downed the last-place Generals 10-2.

Forty-eight hours earlier, the 19-year-old winger contributed an assist as Hawks downed Toronto Maple Leafs 1-0. That was before his father, Charlie, told him to go back to the minors so he could complete his academic studies.

While Conacher was cutting up like a pro, four other clubs fought it out in the junior league. Kitchener Greenshirts ended up by beating Barrie Flyers 7-3 and Toronto St. Michael's defeated St. Catharines Teepees 6-4.

In the Senior A loop, Hamilton Tigers walloped Sarnia Sailors 5-2 at Hamilton.

At Galt, Conacher broke loose for two goals in the second period and added the other in the third. His centreman, Ken Wharram, counted two goals. Right winger Bill McIntosh had a goal and an assist. Jack Price notched two goals and had two assists.

Only Oshawa Star

Little Bobby Shropshire was Oshawa's only star. He handled 44 shots as Hawk snipers blasted in on him time and again. George Nicholson and Jack Furston tallied for Oshawa.

The victory, however, left Hawks in a third-place tie with St. Michael's. They each have 19 points, eight less than the pace-setting Toronto Marlboros, idle Tuesday night.

At Kitchener the game was studded with two majors and two 10-minute misconducts as well as 25 minors.

The result made no change in the standings for each club. Kitchener stayed in fifth place; St. Catharines in fourth.

Barrie jumped into an early two-goal lead but Greenshirts whittled it by one at the end of the first and looked the better club from then on.

Orv Tessier and Frank Toyota came up with two goals apiece for Kitchener. Greg Hicks, Ron Austin and Joe Ingoldsby tallied one each.

Bob White, Skip Teal and Dave Whalen scored for Flyers.

St. Mike's Rally

Meanwhile, it was the first time this season that St. Michael's had invaded the St. Catharines camp and they left little doubt as to the outcome with a great third-period rally.

Ron Wallace and Murray Costello got the two goals at the tail-end of the game to give Toronto the edge.

In Hamilton, Tigers piled up their safe lead by ramming in three counters in the second period.

Ron Kemp, Frankie Liscombe, Murray Dunnette, Murray Comfort and Fred Pankowski scored for Tigers. John Shedden and Dink Savage accounted for the Sarnia markers.

Regina's Black Jack Smith Weeps Watching Parade Of Bruised, Be-Lumped Roughriders

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (CP)—"I'm not kidding, we've got miseries," said Harry (Black Jack) Smith Tuesday. And a first look at the Saskatchewan Roughriders convinced onlookers that coach Smith, built like a baby tank, wasn't kidding.

"Practically every guy on our first team has a bruise or a lump somewhere—ankle, leg, knee or hip," sad Jack said in an interview a few hours after his Western Canada football champions arrived in town for Saturday's Grey Cup final. But he had his "crocked up" team out for a two-hour light practice session anyway.

Probably the biggest source of grief in the Roughies' camp is end Jack Russell who didn't dress for the practice held on a public school field, about a half-mile from the club's sleeping quarters in southwest Toronto. The former New York Yankee pass-catching star who scored 45 points on nine touchdowns in Western League play has a torn knee cartilage.

Glenn Dobbs, Saskatchewan's six-foot-four-inch quarter and probably the most popular player around Regina is the most photographed and talked-to man on the club. Even Toronto's school kids know about the big good-natured passer and kicker.

The youngsters "mobbed" him Tuesday shortly before the practice and he was tossed for a loss by sprawling to the ground when a few tackled him. He won their hearts by posing with 15 or 20 of them for newspaper photographers.

'Deacon Dan' Leads In Prayer, Yds. Gained

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21 (AP)—"Deacon Dan" Towler leads the Los Angeles Rams in prayer before every game, and then proceeds to give his opopnents merry-H for the rest of the afternoon.

The Deacon, who weighs 220 pounds and has run the 100 in 9.8 seconds, is today the leading ground gainer in the National Football League, and on the personal side, a study in contrasts.

The 25-year-old former Washington and Jefferson star is a full-time student in the Divinity School at the University of Southern California.

This season he has gained 602 yards in the 71 trips he's taken with the ball for an average of 8.5.

To Demonstrate Play Techniques At Open Meeting

Experienced Ontario actor and director of amateur theatre, Arthur Clare, is coming to Peterborough Friday evening to talk to a public meeting of theatre folk on staging plays. Mr. Clare's talk and demonstrations will be practical—a workshop. He is being brought to the city by the Peterborough Drama Festival in co-operation with the Community Programs Branch (drama section) of the Ontario Department of Education.

The meeting will be held at the public library at eight pm Friday. There is no admission charge and all interested people of city and district are invited.

The selecting of plays and how and where to get the equipment will be discussed.

Began As Hobby

Mr. Arthur Clare has been practising the art of the theatre first as a hobby, and gradually in a more serious manner as an actor, director and behind the scenes worker for over twenty-five years.

In Canada, Mr. Clare has attended the Banff School of Fine Arts, studying directing and acting under Robert Gill of Hart House Theatre and speech under Professor Joseph Smith, University of Hawaii, and lighting and scenic design under Burton James of the Seattle Repertory Theatre. He has also played in productions and attended short courses under the leadership of such well known theatre personalities as Rupert Harvey of London England, Malcolm Morley, London England and E. Sterndale-Bennett, Toronto.

On The Ottawa Drama League

Most of the practical work done by Mr. Clare has been with the Ottawa Drama League and the Ottawa Drama League Workshop, appearing as an actor in such plays as "Ah Wilderness", "The Petrified Forest", "Ten Sixty Six and All That" "Christmas Pantomimes", "Children's Plays", original Canadian plays and many others. He has directed such plays as, "Our Town", "Skin of Our Teeth", "The Little Foxes", "All My Sons", "Papa is All", and others, having won acclain and mementos in both regional and dominion festivals. His latest achievement was a production of the winning play in the 1949 Dominion Drama Festival finals which was awarded the Festival Plaque for the best play in English outside of the Bessborough Trophy.

As a member of the board of directors of the Ottawa Drama League and an original member of the O.D.L. Workshop which is the outlet for experimental work in that theatre, Mr. Clare has served with practically every committee involved while holding offices.

For the past three years in an advisory capacity for the Community Programs Branch, Drama Section, Ontario Department of Education, Mr. Clare has added to his practical knowledge by working with groups across Ontario from as far east as Cornwall, to Kenora in the northwest of the province, and London in the south.

VOL. CIII, No. 119 — WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1951 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

35,000 May Vote In Election

175 Polls Open In Riding Of Peterborough

Over 35,000 people will be eligible to vote in Peterborough and the county in the provincial election Thursday.

There are 23,869 names in the city listed on the voters' list and 11,622 in the county. Returning Officer D. J. Lawrie said today that these were not exact figures, as there would be some additions as a result of the final revision.

The riding is divided into 175 polls.

Split Polls

There are 62 regular polls in the county. Ten county polls have been split. Voters whose names begin with the letters "A" to "L" voting at one poll, those from "M" to "Z" voting at the other.

In the city there are 61 regular polls and 42 split into two subdivisions for a total of 103.

Mr. Lawrie said that all polls with more than 350 voters have been split. Some city polls have over 500 names he said.

All polls throughout the riding open at 8 o'clock Thursday morning and close at 7 Thursday evening.

In rural polls, voters whose names are not on the list can vote after taking a residence oath. Mr. Lawrie said that urban voters who are listed on the city voters' list but are not on the provincial list can also be sworn and on taking the oath, are entitled to vote.

Mr. Lawrie said he received a telegram today, informing him the date of the official count had been moved back from November 29 to December 3 "owing to the active service vote."

Residents who are serving with the Canadian armed forces are entitled to vote, and it was feared it would not be possible to get all the returns in from servicemen by November 29.

There were three advance polls, two in the city and one in Havelock on November 15, 16 and 17.

Only a small number of those eligible used them.

Home Again

F/O Johnny Greatrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greatrix, 438 Park St., returned to Canada today when a second airlift, bringing 16 air and ground crew members of the 421 (Red Indian) Fighter Squadron, RCAF, reached Dorval Airport, Montreal. The former PCVS student and member of the 1947 COSSA football champions, has been stationed at Odiham, England, with the jet fighter squadron which for the past year was engaged in training with the RAF.

Will Not Press Query This Year Says N. Graham

Ald. Norman Graham told the Examiner today that he did not intend to press further this year one of the questions he submitted at the council meeting several weeks ago.

At that time he asked why, as a member of the industrial committee, he had not been informed of the decision of the Lemery Distributors to build a sales office on city property at the west end of Lansdowne St.

"I don't hold any grudges, and I'm going to let it go, now that we are coming into the Christmas season," Ald. Graham said.

"But, as a new member it has been a lesson to me. My objection is that every member of a committee should know what is going on, just as much as the chairman; and if he thinks he is more than a member of a committee he needs a little schooling as I see it.

"I was notified of only one industrial committee meeting this year. Why should I be left out of any meeting? If there is any leaving out to be done, then do it at the start of the year when the committees are being appointed.

"I am also a member of the welfare committee. Ald. Rehill is its chairman. I have been notified of every meeting. If I missed any, and I'm not positive, it was only one.

"I got notices of welfare committee meetings, but not of industrial committee meetings, and I'm on both committees. As I say, I have no grudge, but this is a matter of policy in the council, and I'd say it has got to be straightened out in the new year.

"I didn't know anything about a trip to Montreal, and another I heard of to Owen Sound. Not that either counted much as far as that goes, but if I'm on a committee I want to know what is going on."

Jaycees Help To Start Branch In Millbrook

Jim Fraser, manager of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and Ken Billings and Doug Vaisey of the Junior Chamber attended chamber organization meeting in Millbrook Tuesday night.

The meeting was held to make plans for the organization of a Millbrook Chamber of Commerce. It was decided to form the chamber early in the new year.

The meeting was attended by approximately 25 retailers and businessmen. Ivan Gray was chairman.

A BRIEF BUT SPECTACULAR FIRE drew a crowd of a couple of hundred people Tuesday night as part of a wooden storage shed on Ware St. went up in flames. It is owned by Jones Bros., coal dealers. Loss is set at $1,500. Firemen are shown battling the flames when the fire was at its height. Assistant Chief Stewart Foster is shown (Right) supervising the operation.—(Parks Studio Photo)

Grant Proposes Nursing Service For Municipality

A municipal program of self help and a voluntary nursing service in the community was proposed by Peterborough CCF candidate, W. C. Grant Tuesday night, as an answer to overcrowded hospital conditions.

Mr. Grant spoke to representatives of the Political Action Committee of the Peterborough District Labor Council at a meeting in the CCF Committee Rooms.

Denouncing the Toronto Star for "unethical conduct" in reporting provincial election news, Mr. Grant charged that it is "nothing more than a propaganda sheet for Walter Thomson."

Sent Unnecessarily

"It is a known fact that many people are being sent to hospitals that don't need to be there," declared Mr. Grant in suggesting that "we may have to rely on local initiative to cope with the problem of hospitalization."

Mr. Grant said that many hospital patients in hospitals today do not need special care but are unable to obtain care in their homes, have prepaid hospital plans, or are merely shuttled off to hospital by their doctor because it is more convenient for him to have his patients in one place.

"Every person who is in hospital and doesn't need to be is raising the cost of hospitalization to us as taxpayers—we are paying for it now, although we don't get the benefits—and we have to consider how to keep costs down. A voluntary nursing service would cost a good deal less than the costs under a hospital scheme and the government might pay some of that compensation," he said.

Police Nab Man In Stolen Car

BOWMANVILLE, Nov. 21 — (ENS) — Alerted by provincial police, Constable Alan Densem, of the local police department, recovered a stolen Toronto car and arrested one of three occupants when the vehicle stopped for a red light here last night.

A man who gave his name as Kenneth Ronald Chris, 41 Empire Ave., Toronto, was turned over to Toronto police shortly after his arrest, but his accomplices, believed to be Cyril Langell, Boston St., and Ron Carter, both of Toronto, escaped on foot.

The stolen car is owned by Jack Carson, 104 Borden St., Toronto.

Fire Erupts In Coal Shed Damage Held To $1,500

Fire Tuesday night gutted four stalls of a wooden storage shed belonging to the Jones Bros. coal dealers, 71 Ware St. Damage is estimated at $1,500. Fire Chief George Smith and Insurance Adjuster Tom Ephgrave are investigating the cause of the blaze. The L-shaped shed serves as a shelter for company trucks and a quantity of coal bags are also stored there. When the fire broke out early Tuesday night there were no trucks in the shed.

Ninety coal bags, valued at $400, were destroyed. Delivery trucks, until recently kept in the shed, were not parked there.

Seen By Family

The blaze was first seen shortly after 7 pm by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wells, Gilchrist St., and their 10-year-old son, Fred. The Wells family were walking along the street toward the home of Mr. Well's mother on Prince St.

His wife, Kathleen, smelled smoke and then they saw flames bursting from the west end of the shed, near the home of Joseph C. Amyotte, 75 Ware St. Mr. Wells pounded on the door of the Amyotte home, and when Mrs. Amyotte left what she was doing to answer the door she saw the reflection of the flames in her dining room.

Firemen used two 2½-inch hose lines to quell the blaze but they were unable to do so until four of the stalls had been gutted.

Burned Garbage Truck Valued At $5,000

Estimated value of the sanitation department's truck was $5,000 when it backed into the fire at the dump in North Monaghan and came out a total loss.

The new one that has replaced it cost $10,400. Worst of all in one sense of money gone down the drain, Ald. Norman Graham said Monday night, was the $1,000 spent on the old one to put it in good shape just before the mischance out in the country.

The $5,000 estimate from Ephgrave and Elmsley was for insurance purposes.

6 Children Adopted From Aid Society

Six adoptions were completed during October by the Peterborough Children's Aid Society.

This was reported at board meeting Tuesday afternoon by Miss Rachael Young, superintendent.

Miss Young also said that 12 children had been taken into care during the month. One was made a ward; five were placed in the society's custody pending wardship; and five children were given temporary care during their mother's illness.

373 Cases

A total of 373 cases were under supervision. Service for 340 was continued from the previous month and 33 came to the society's attention in October.

Fourteen family cases were brought to the society's attention involving separations, desertion by mother, marital difficulties, illness of mother and delinquency of children.

There were 36 hearings in family court.

On Oct. 31 nine children were in the children's home. Five were admitted during the month.

Jackson Park Too Secluded For Kids' Rink

Jacksons Park pond area was described as "too deserted" and "too secluded" by the Recreation Commission Tuesday in its effort to obtain more skating surfaces for this winter.

The commission decided that skating on the pond, which some years ago was a favorite cushion, was "too hazardous" unless there was supervision.

Action in connection with the pond was taken after numerous telephone calls to the commission's office asking for rinks in various parts of the city.

This year there will be 10 rinks for skating and hockey in the same six locations as last year: Inverlea, Riverside, Stewart-McDonnel, King Edward, Turner Park and Confederation school.

The closest skating facilities for people in Peterborough northwest section is the McDonnel St. rink. The Jackson's Park pond was suggested to fill the need in that area.

Look Over Site

Wilfred Langan, vice-president, reported results of a meeting with the Nicholls Trust when approval for a rink was given.

Mr. Sinclair said the water was low, and the bottom of the pond cluttered with rubbish, adding that "a bulldozer will have to be used to clear the area."

He explained that the water supply would be the chief cost for laying the pipe at $3 a foot would cost $600.

If the project had been carried out, the rink would have been 105 feet wide and 250 feet long.

Mr. Sinclair said that the pond is well-sheltered from all directions but the north. Otherwise, he explained, "it's a lovely place to skate."

The cost of the 10 rinks this year was estimated at $6,000.

Burke Speaks To Supporters At Norwood Rally

F. P. Burke, Peterborough Liberal party candidate, wound up his election campaign Tuesday with rallies in Norwood and Havelock.

The 17-point Liberal program was reviewed by Burke, supported by Charles Elliott, Arthur Lewis and Albert Galoska for 100 people in Norwood and 50 in Havelock.

Three main topics of the Liberal program, hospitalization, gasoline tax and the power of the Municipal Board were stressed along with other highlights such as TB rehabilitation, reducing the consumer price of fluid milk, dealing with the heavy burden of taxation, giving added security to trade unions and schools.

Mr. Burke said Thursday's voting day gave the people of Ontario a chance to change their government, "a change that has been overdue for a number of years."

He said he would support the Liberal program of hospitalization and reduction of taxes in a Liberal government.

Dr. G. R. Langley, J. Juby May Run For Utilities, First Contest In 10 Years

Two Others Announced Intention To Seek Commission Seats, George A. Macdonald, Charles Hurst

Dr. Gordon R. Langley, Burnham St., said today he would be a candidate for the Utilities Commission if he is nominated Friday. And James Juby, Boswell Ave., indicated that he too may stand for election. If all the likely candidates run there will be a four-way fight for the single vacancy on the commission. Charles Hurst, Hillcrest Ave., and G. A. Macdonald, Homewood Ave., present commissioner, are the other two. If there is an election it will be the first in 10 years.

Dr. Langley, for 13 years chief engineer at the CGE, said today that a number of friends had asked him to run.

"I believe I have some necessary qualifications," he said, "and if anybody sees fit to nominate me, I will stand."

Dr. Langley has had 45 years in electrical and mechanical engineering and has had to deal with the accompanying administrative problems.

Three Reasons

He told the Examiner that he had three principal reasons for offering his services to the electorate:

1. He believes the voters should have a choice of candidates.

2. Now that he is retired he has the time to look after the duties of a utilities commissioner.

3. His experience in the electrical industry and knowledge of the local hydro-electric setup.

Dr. Langley is a registered professional engineer for Ontario, a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada, chartered engineer of Great Britain, and a fellow of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Mr. Juby also said he had been approached on the subject of running by several friends but he hadn't as yet decided whether or not to do so.

On City Council

"I was on the city council from 1936 to 1939," said Mr. Juby. "Then ill-health forced me to drop out. Right now I'm pretty well retired and I have sufficient time for the job. And I think I can do the job if the electors feel that way."

Members of the three-man commission who are not up for election this year are chairman Gordon Matthews and Fred Hills.

Board of Directors

To Learn Children's Aid Society's Work

Members of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society are no longer going to learn their duties and obligations by a hit and miss method.

Instead plans are being made so that new members of the board are to go through a short educational procedure which will give them a comprehensive picture of the society's work within a short time after their appointment.

Dalrymple's Idea

The idea for this educational procedure was placed before the board by member K. C. Dalrymple.

Mr. Dalrymple made his suggestions in a letter to Miss Rachael Young, superintendent, who read the letter at Tuesday afternoon's board meeting.

In his letter, Mr. Dalrymple said that "all new board members are handicapped in the contribution they can make to the welfare of the society because it takes them a few years to learn even the basic function of the society. Their instruction is a hit and miss process since what they learn depends to a very large extent on the nature of the business discussed at board meetings."

Mr. Dalrymple continued by making the following suggestions for what he called "an induction period": On appointment to the board the new member

1. Should be presented with a precis on the society's function.

2. Within two weeks of joining the new member should visit the Children's Home, accompanied by one of the society's staff, for a thorough familiarization with this aspect of the work.

3. A week or so later, the new member should visit the society's offices where he could talk with one of the case workers to become acquainted with their work and problems.

4. A meeting with the treasurer should be arranged so that the new member might better understand the society's source of income and how money is spent.

5. Perhaps in six weeks' time, the new member could attend family court.

This induction procedure suggested by Mr. Dalrymple was accepted by the board and referred to the public relations committee to make plans for carrying it out.

Opposition Renews Demand For Army Welfare Services

OTTAWA, Nov. 21—(CP)—In one final stand, opposition parties Tuesday renewed a demand that the government provide auxiliary services for the troops in Korea and at least see that they get Canadian cigarettes.

Members in the three opposing parties campaigned again in the Commons on that issue as the Chamber gave third and final reading to a government bill making technical amendments to various statutes affecting the armed forces.

They reported that soldiers returning from Korea spoke of the lack of domestic cigarettes in that Far Eastern theatre, and asked that the government see that the troops get a chance to have a Canadian smoke.

Ralph Campney, parliamentary assistant to Defence Minister Claxton, said he could not usefully add anything to what Mr. Claxton already has said—that the terrain and weather conditions of Korea make auxiliary services unfeasible.

Claxton In Europe

Mr. Claxton now is in Europe seeing Canada's 27th Brigade as it takes its place in Gen. Eisenhower's European defence forces.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, recalled that Mr. Claxton had said last night that arrangements were being made to get Canadian cigarettes and other amenities to the men in Korea.

Veterans returning from Korea as late as Monday had been quoted as saying Canadian cigarettes and other things still were not available in Korea. They received Australian cigarettes, similar to the "gaspers" that Canadians smoked in France during the First World War.

He suggested that if there is any tobacco in the "gaspers" it is so well disguised that it couldn't be distinguished from "something else that was quite different."

Mr. Drew said Canadians shouldn't have to rely on other countries for entertainment. The Canadian people would be glad if the YMCA, the Knights of Columbus and other organizations served not only Canadian troops but the troops of other countries as well.

It was not good for Canadians to see men from other countries getting things that they could not get themselves.

TORONTO, Nov. 21 — (CP).—Ralph Lomax, 39, Tuesday was acquitted of murder and convicted of manslaughter in the stabbing death of George Mulholland on a Toronto street car June 19. He will be sentenced Friday.

No A-Bomb In Korea

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Reuters).—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said Tuesday night he thought there was not the slightest chance that the atom momb would be used in Korea.

Thomson Vows Liquor Reform

TORONTO, Nov. 21 — (CP) — Liberal leader Walter Thomsson Tuesday pledged his party to "clean up liquor abuses in Ontario" if it forms the government after the Nov. 22 elections.

Mr. Thomson, in a statement which he last week promised to issue, set out an eight-point Liberal liquor policy:

1. No further licences to be issued until "operational standards" have been raised.

2. The liquor inspection system to be revamped to provide "adequate inspection and appraisal of operating standards in licensed outlets."

3. Consideration to establishment of a non-political advisory board to help the Liquor Control Board.

4. Support of the principle of local option on sale of alcoholic beverages.

5. Use of liquor revenues for increased research and rehabilitation centres, alcohol education and more efficient law-enforcement measures.

6. More effective control of sale in licensed outlets.

1. Encouragement for establishment in Ontario of schools based on the experience and curriculum of the Yale University School of Alcoholic Studies.

8. Use of liquor profits for social services.

"Our objective is to take liquor control entirely out of politics," Mr. Thomson said.

Poll Frozen Out

FORT FRANCES, Nov. 21 — (CP). — A freeze-up of Namakan Lake in the Rainy River district is expected to keep one of the area's 91 polls from opening in Thursday's Ontario general election. Returning officer W. J. Gray at this town in the far northwestern part of Ontario near the United States border, said he applied for a helicopter to fly the ballot box in for the Namakan poll, but apparently none was available.

District Governor Visits Millbrook Club

MILLBROOK, Nov. 21 (ENS)—The Lions' International District Governor, Ross Burke, of Kingston, paid his official visit to the local club Monday evening, and attended their club dinner.

He chose as the subject of his address, "Lionism." Leonard Henderson introduced the speaker and last year's president, Ron Palmer, moved the vote of thanks and made the presentation of a hand-wrought guildcraft aluminum tray.

Percy Hamilton, the president, was in the chair, and the minutes were read by the secretary, Homer Ouellette.

The dinner was served by the south group of the Lady Lions whose leader is Mrs. Homer Ouellette.

Minister Lauds Liquor Policy

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (CP)—The Liberal party's liquor policy was commended Tuesday night by the Rev. A. J. Irwin, honorary president of the Ontario Temperance Federation.

Mr. Irwin, for 15 years general secretary of the federation, issued a statement shortly after Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, pledged his party to "clean up liquor abuses in Ontario." Said Mr. Irwin:

"Since the adoption of government control by Ontario in 1926 there has been little legislation caulculated to evoke approval from temperance-minded folk.

"The statement issued by Mr. Thomson as the program on temperance of the Liberal party makes a new departure. His proposals are intelligent, moderate, fair and progressive."

Liberal Leader Paid $59,928

OTTAWA, Nov. 21—(CP)—The name of Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, appeared Tuesday in a list of lawyers performing legal services for various departments of the federal government since March 31, 1948.

The list, tabled in the Commons, showed that Mr. Thomson was paid $59,928.32 for services to the Department of Veterans Affairs. The return did not specify what legal services he performed.

The list was tabled in reply to questions by John Diefenbaker (PC, Lake Centre). Mr. Diefenbaker had asked for a list of all lawyers practising in Toronto, Montreal or Winnipeg who had performed legal services or been retained by any department of government since March 31, 1948. He also asked how much was paid to each lawyer.

Mr. Thomson's name appeared in the list of Toronto lawyers acting for the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Next highest fee shown in the list was $34,243.23 paid to N. L. Matthews, of Toronto, by the Department of Health and Welfare. The department said this total included prosecutions under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act of which there were 80 in 1948-49, 67 in 1949-50 and 64 in 1950-51.

CBC Swears Too Much

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 — (CP). — John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said Tuesday he believes that profanity has been used unnecessarily in some plays broadcast by the CBC. He told the Commons committee on radio that profanity apparently was regarded as an ideal vehicle for the portrayal of thought. But there were cases where the use of such language was unnecessary. A. D. Dunton, CBC chairman, agreed.

Car Kills Two In Quebec Crash

MALARTIC, Que., Nov. 21 (CP)—Five men working at the scene of an earlier accident were struck down by an automobile Monday night. Two were killed; the others injured.

Charles Carthill, 35, a grocery store manager at Malartic, and Robert Sutherland, 20, an employee, were killed. Injured were Ted Blais, owner of the Malartic store, Aldricee Poisson, a Val d'Or mechanic, and Peter Wall.

The men were attempting to get Blais' car out of the ditch after a previous accident when they were struck by a car police said was driven by Rene Cote, of Val d'Or. Cote told police he thought the lights of the Blais car were those of an automobile coming toward him on the wrong side of the road.

Mrs. Cartmill, who had driven from Malartic with her husband to aid Blais, witnessed the accident. Poisson had arrived earlier with a tow truck.

Bold New Plan Needed To Save Sterling Area

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The finance ministers of nine Commonwealth countries are expected to meet in London in January to considered the sterling area's financial problems.

The question is, will stop-gap measures be adopted, or will some bold new plan emerge?

The counties to be represented are Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and Southern Rhodesia.

With the exception of Canada, all are in the sterling area—they use sterling in trading with each other.

It is not clear at this date whether the conference will largely be an intra-sterling get-together, with Canada more or less a sympathetic observer; or whether some major effort will be made to solve Canada's problem in regard to the area.

Canada's Problem

Canada's problem is how to trade with the rest of the Commonwealth. At present this trade is reduced to a minimum, except for foods and raw materials which Britain, especially, must have. It is at a minimum because the sister Commonwealth countries have not sufficient dollars with which to buy from us; and we are not buying enough from them to supply them with dollars.

A solution to the sterling area's difficulties might be sought in a number of ways, including the following:

A further drawing-in on the sterling area to itself, and away from dollar-area trading. This conceivably might be tried, but it seems doubtful that the sterling area can draw away much further in this time of common defence problems. At any rate, it would be a retrograde step and a further blow to world trade.

Or:

The sterling area may simply say that the dollar area must provide it with more dolars, if it is to carry its part in defence. This might be done by loan, gift, or some form of mutual aid.

Beyond any such stop-gap step, one might hope that some plan may be evolved that would hit at the roots of the unbalance between the two areas.

Dollar Shortage

We have been talking about dollar shortages in the sterling area since the end of the war and some good efforts have been made to alleviate it. They have not been enough and the dollar shortages still exist.

At present, tradewise, Canada is virtually ceasing to be part of the Commonwealth and is becoming more and more an economic entity with the United States. There are dangers in this.

One danger is that at some future date the United States may turn to a high-tariff policy which would wipe out much of our trade with her almost overnight.

Another is that we may become so dependent on trade with the United States, that our need for holding it might imperil our autonomy.

It is easy to give reasons why, tradewise, we can't at this time get back into the Commonwealth.

Need Daring Plan

It doesn't seem enough to give these reasons. We should like some one to come up with a plan by which we can get back. It would probably have to be daring to break down the roadblock that is building up between us and the rest of the Commonwealth.

The world, fortunately, has shown itself capable of doing daring things in the years since the war. The European recovery program instituted by the United States was daring and would have been impossible of acceptance 25 years ago. It is credited with saving Europe so far.

Just as the United States did not dare let Western Europe fall, so neither the United States nor Canada dare allow Britain to fall economically, if that should be threatened. She has too much production power and political power to allow that.

So sooner or later, it would seem that something must be evolved to make it possible for Britain to carry her heavy load of wartime ravages and world responsibility; before her people are utterly wearied with too much burden. If it must be evolved some time, perhaps we may hope that the time is now.

Hold Funeral Service For Mrs. R. Derry

MARMORA, Nov. 21 (ENS)—The funeral of Mrs. Rosabel Derry took place on Tuesday afternoon, leaving her late residence at Malone at 2 pm for service at St. Andrew's United Church. The funeral was largely attended by mourners, neighbors of her community and friends in the district.

As a token of respect Zion United Church choir joined with members of St. Andrew's in leading the musical portion of the service. The Rev. G. D. Young, BA, BD, gave a message based on St. Paul's description of divine and human comfort as found in his second epistle to the Corinthians.

Pallbearers were John Bell, Edward Post, Thomas McCann, Vincent Terron, Albert Nickle and Edward Robinson. Burial took place in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

Two Hamilton Girls Drown In Private Pool

HAMILTON, Nov. 21—(CP)—Two little girls were drowned Tuesday in a private swimming pool half a mile from their home at nearby Aldershot.

Linda Joan Carr, 4, and Susan Spencer, 5, wandered away from their homes during the forenoon. Later in the day a neighbor saw their bodies floating in four feet of water.

One theory was that they fell through thin ice on the pool.

Sergeant McCuish Says Korean Fighting Really Wasn't So Tough

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Nov. 21—(CP)—Looking back on 9½ months in Korea, Sgt. David L. McCuish says, "It really wasn't so tough."

The 34-year-old Torontonian counts just five days of close-quarter fighting with the Communists and figures no member of the 2nd battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian light infantry, recently replaced by the 1st battalion, could have had more than 10 days of red-hot fighting during his Korean service.

"The rest of the time it was either dull plodding uphill and down dale, days on end in the mountains, sheer hard work, or close sitting in the line, in contact but not forcing any issues, under the hazard of mortar and increasing artillery-fire, always ready for anything that might come up."

McCuish, who joined the Korean force in July, 1950, is "about the average Patricia" who was in the battalion's major engagements but spent most of his time working or waiting for something to happen.

5 Busy Days

McCuish'c five days of red-hot action:

Three days in February, soon after the Patricias entered the line after training at Pusan; the night of April 24, when the Canadians stopped the Chinese spring offensive on their front, and last Oct. 2 when his platoon stormed and captured a ridge against stiff opposition.

Other Patricias might have "hit it hot" other days. But none would have seen more than 10 days of close-quarter fighting.

"Korea, as I've seen it—and I'm about the average Patricia—has been more of a dull, slugging kind of campaign than fever-pitch actions like Oct. 2."

That was the day McCuish, after reconnoitring the ridge by night, led his platoon in a charge on an enemy bunker. After McCuish's men had hurled eight grenades into it, nine Chinese bodies were found.

McCuish, a merchant seaman in the Second World War, gained his sergeant's stripes last May. He says the Korean war is the sort that perfects a soldier's fieldcraft. The Canadians "learned almost to think like the Chinese."

"We became pretty expert at making ourselves comfortable. We copied the Chinese, building bunkers like theirs. We learned to improvise ways of preparing our food, of keeping our clothes and bodies clean, how to place our shelter-halves (a sort of two-man pup-tent) so the rain wouldn't sweep into them.

Learn Many Things

"We learned to distinguish between the birds and animals that roam at night. There was one we used to call the 'hey bird,' because it used to say 'hey, hey' all night. One corporal even answered 'what do you want?' before we knew what it was—a kind of magpie.

"We learned not to throw grenades when rabbits ran into our barbed wire and set off the trip flares."

Also the Canadians, who McCuish says "used to consider the Koreans almost as vermin," learned to treat the natives of this unhappy country as people.

That wasn't all they learned. "We as Canadians do not appreciate the full fact of freedom and democracy," he said as he "sweated out" the wait for his departure preparing drafts of his homeward-bound comrades.

Sentence Suspended In Car Tire Theft

Charged with stealing a pair of car tires, Oliver Giroux, Douro township pleaded guilty in police court, Tuesday.

At request of Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, Giroux was placed on suspended sentence by Magistrate W. R. Philp. Giroux signed a $250 bond of good behaviour for the two years duration of the sentence. He also was ordered to pay $2.50 in court costs.

OPP Constable Thomas Armstrong testified that the two tires had been taken from a trailer at a summer cottage on the south shore of Clear Lake. The two tires were valued at under $25 and have been recovered. Constable Armstrong said that Giroux admitted the theft when he was questioned.

Need Background

WINNIPEG, Nov. 21 —(CP)— Competition is stressed too much in Canadian drama festivals, Richard MacDonald, executive secretary of the Dominion Drama Festival, said Tuesday. He said too much emphasis was placed on the cup or plaque at a festival. What actors and drama groups needed most was a thorough theatrical background from working on sets to make-up and acting.

LITTLE "SPORT" — Mascot of Lt. Ed. Mastronardi's RCR platoon in Korea, is a battle-hardened veteran in every sense of the phrase. Recent news dispatches told how the officer's platoon fought its way out of a Chinese trap around an outpost position 600 yards from the main United Nations lines on November 2. "Sport" was one of the coolest customers during the entire eight-hour battle which raged until the Canadians were almost out of ammunition. After the battle, Pte. R. C. (Red) Butler, left, of Sudbury, found the pup still growling defiance in the platoon's command post which earlier had been overrun by attacking Chinese. He brought him back to Lt. Mastronardi, right, whose wife Constance lives in Toronto. Pte. Butler was trapped by the attacking Chinese and played 'possum in his slit trench after a Chinese soldier tossed a grenade his way. He was unhurt. In the battle Chinese formations suffered heavy casualties. And in the platoon they are still talking about "Sport—the iron-nerved pup."

Develop New Kind Pre-Fab Home

AYR, Ont. — (CP) — Norman Hipel, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests 10 years ago, has developed a new type of pre-fabricated dwelling which can be erected in a day and costs less than $8,000.

Mr. Hipel had a complete four-room modern cottage built on his farm recently. Everything used in erecting the house was loaded in the morning on trucks at a factory in nearby Preston. By sundown all that remained to be finished was installation of interior partitions.

Ten men worked on the job.

The windows are all sealed and ventilation is supplied through special aluminium vents in the outer walls. Filters are installed to clean the incoming air.

The roof is self-supporting and walls can be erected wherever the owner wishes them. The shape of rooms can be altered at any time the owner wishes to move the partitions.

Quebec Mayor Asked To Find Girl Husband

QUEBEC, Nov. 21 — (CP) — Mayor Lucien Borne has been asked to find a husband for a 16-year-old beauty from Salonica, Greece.

Mayor Borne said Tuesday he received a letter from her papa, E. Bassaras, asking him to help find "an intelligent young fellow of respectable and wealthy family."

Olga—that's the girl—works in an architect's office in Athens. She has had two raises in the last year, said the letter, and she can speak a little French.

The letter informed the mayor that any interested party be told that he must bring to Canada the girl's mother and sister as well as Olga.

CCF SUBSIDY MEANS $20,000,000 SAVING

The election of a CCF Government tomorrow will guarantee a $20,000,000 tax saving for home-owners, assured Leader of the Opposition Edward B. Jolliffe. This tax-saving would also help tenants.

No other party will pay your municipality a 10% tax subsidy based on your 1951 tax bill. This is in addition to existing aid.

Do you know that municipal taxes in Ontario have doubled since the Tories took office eight years ago, while Mr. Frost has overtaxed you over $100,000,000?

The CCF will stop this tax-grabbing and play fair with home-owners and tenants alike.

HERE'S YOUR TAX SAVING

Every municipality will get a 10% subsidy based on the 1951 tax bill. Here is a representative sample of what these tax rebates will be:

Brantford	$ 200,000	Kingston	$ 180,000	Sarnia	$ 170,000
Chatham	120,000	Kitchener	280,000	Sault Ste. Marie	194,000
Cornwall	60,000	London	620,000	St. Catharines	245,000
Fort William	200,000	Niagara Falls	125,000	Stratford	95,000
Galt	88,000	Ottawa	1,400,000	Wallaceburg	35,000
Guelph	140,000	Owen Sound	94,000	Welland	87,500
Hamilton	1,260,000	Peterboro	220,000	Windsor	790,000
		Port Arthur	190,000

VOTES DON'T LIE!

At Queen's Park and at Ottawa, both the old parties have opposed important measures when the votes were counted, even though they promise them now. The CCF has consistently spoken and voted for progressive legislation.

HERE IS THE RECORD:	Tories and Liberals	CCF
TWO WEEKS VACATION WITH PAY	NO	YES
PROTECTION for Small Home-Owners from Mortgage Foreclosure	NO	YES
FREE MILK for School Children	NO	YES
PRICE and RENT Control	NO	YES
UNION Security	NO	YES
HIGHER OLD AGE Pension	NO	YES

DO YOU GET A COST-OF-LIVING BONUS?

Folks on Old Age Pensions don't! The Liberals at Ottawa and Frost at Queen's Park made a deal to deprive pensioners of a cost-of-living supplement.

THE CCF WILL PAY OLD-AGE PENSIONERS AND OTHERS AN EXTRA $10 A MONTH. THEY NEED IT.

DOWN WITH THE COST-OF-LIVING!

The Liberals and Tories have just voted against price-control legislation.

So a Liberal or Tory vote only means that you're satisfied with high living costs.

But you're not! So what's the answer?*

DON'T WASTE YOUR VOTE

A vote for either of the old parties means
- you're for the boss who's against two weeks' vacation
- you're for the landlord who's against any rent controls
- you're for the Big Business interests who soak you for what you buy

If you want a Square Deal, Vote for your own party—CCF.

Plainville WMS Hold Thankoffering Service

PLAINVILLE, Nov. 20 (ENS)—The annual thankoffering meeting of the Plainville WMS was held recently in the church as an open evening meeting.

Quite a number of guests were present from Gore's Landing and Coldsprings as well as local members with their husbands and families.

A brief worship service was conducted by Mrs. Louis Buttars and Mrs. Earl Joice and the president, Mrs. Clifford Manley, welcomed the visitors.

Solos were sung by Mrs. Paul Harris, accompanied by Miss Edith Hoskin, both of Coldsprings, and a number by the local male quartet with Miss Myrna Larke at the organ. Mrs. Stuart Herriott presided at the organ for other music.

The guest speaker, Miss Wallace, of Gore's Landing, was introduced by Miss Clara King. Miss Wallace has been a missionary for 42 years in China.

Although Canadian-born and bred she attended university in the United States and went to China as an American missionary. She spent the many long years that China was at war, there, and knew a great deal about the hardships during that time. Among other interesting things she told of the growth of the Women's College which had been a dream of her aunt and others who had been her predecessors in China.

The speaker and others contributing to the program were thanked by Mrs. Fred Bowman. Mrs. Ewart King and Mrs. Georgina Carruthers received the offering. Mrs. Frank Westington conducted a short item on behalf of the WCTU, using clip sheets with several ladies taking part.

Mrs. Manley invited all to the basement where a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. William Herriott and Mrs. Alex Buttars poured tea from a centre table and from which lunch was served.

The minister of the church, the Rev. A. Y. Robertson, concluded the evening with the benediction.

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Salmon and Mushroom Newburg in Popovers (see notes)
Quick-cooked Broccoli
Tomato, Lettuce and Roquefort Salad
Quick Peach Upside Down Cake (see notes)
Coffee

DIRECTIONS: In all of the years I have been sending this column to you, I have printed the recipe for popovers very few times. All good cooks should know how to make popovers for they serve several purposes besides being delicious to eat. They may be used as you would use patty cases for

Salmon and Mushroom Newburg

Saute gently ½ pound washed, sliced and diced mushrooms in four tablespoon butter or margarine until mushrooms have absorbed the butter. Add four tablespoons flour, stir until blended, then stir in two cups milk or 1¾ cups milk plus the liquid from 1 one-half pound can red salmon. Stir until thick. Hold over boiling water. Flake the salmon from ½ lb. can and add with salt, pepper and a little cayenne to taste. Serve in hot popover cases (see below).

NOTE: To make the Salmon and Mushroom Newburg richer you may substitute cream for some of the milk and add 2 beaten egg yolks to mixture before serving time. One teaspoon lemon juice is a good addition.

Popovers

Beat 2 eggs, and 1 cup milk, 1 cup of flour and ½ teaspoon salt. Beat 3 minutes. Put in 16 greased custard cups or long iron gem pans and bake 40 minutes at 475 deg Fahr. To make cases, slit tops partway.

Quick Peach Upside Down Cake

You need to have on hand one can peaches and one package white cake mix for this dessert. Put the whole can of peaches in bottom of buttered casserole. Prepare the white cake mix as directed on package and pour it over the peaches. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about one-half hour. Serve warm turned upside down on large serving dish.

❖ ❖ ❖

A delicious salad to serve with this meal is made by lightly tossing together three tomatoes which have been cut in eighths, one small head of lettuce cut into one inch cubes, and about one cup of cucumber or celery. Toss this with a French dressing made of one tablespoon fruit sugar, two spoons each salt, pepper and mustard. Serve in lettuce lined salad bowl and sprinkle over the top about two tablespoons crumbled Roquefort or Danish Blue cheese.

Gentlemen:
I work out at business and also keep house so I am anxious to find ways of doing my housework easier and better. Glide is not only a wonderful short-cut on wash day, but ironing is ever so much easier too.
Kindest regards,

Dear Sirs: Windsor, Ont. August 21, 1951.
I just want to tell you what a wonderful product your Glide Liquid Starch is.
"My pet peeve on washday was the fuss of making starch. With Glide liquid starch all that is over forever. And it's such a wonderfully smooth starch as well!"
I have nothing but superlatives to say with regard to Glide.
Yours with best wishes,

Dear Sirs: London, Ontario, August 22, 1951.
My husband brought home a big box of chocolates yesterday. He said he was proud of the way I'd learned to iron his shirts so perfectly. (I never could do them smoothly before I started with Glide).
I might say that I am a fairly new bride and making starch the old-fashioned way was one of the most distasteful jobs of housekeeping.
Many thanks,

Writer Declares Planning Key To Good Family

TORONTO (CP).—The introduction to the book "Living With Our Children" says it should be read by the latest generation of married folks—those with "stray grains of wedding rice in the corners of their suitcases."

The present volume is a revised edition of the original of a quarter of a century ago, and author Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth examines her earlier theories in the light of years.

Dr. Gilbreth is popularly known as the model for the mother in the movie "Cheaper By The Dozen," an industrial psychologist and expert in scientific management who was the mother of 11 children when she wrote the book "Out of Her First-hand Experience."

She has always found life an adventure, and so did her husband, the late Frank Gilbreth.

"For him time was always an opportunity," she says. "His project all through the 55 years of his life was to find the 'one best way' of doing everything, having in mind satisfaction not only in the result but in the doing."

On one hand Dr. Gilbreth approaches her subject of raising a family with the point of view of the psychologist. At the same time she studies it with the eye of a mother of a large family.

Understanding Is Key

Young married couples, she says, should plan their future and get to understand one another's background, to learn the traits each possesses.

"It is interesting to consider one's ancestors both as members of social groups and as individuals, from the physical, mental and emotional side," she says, "and to evaluate their efficiency in both cases."

Her advice in child-rearing covers much territory. Bad habits can be established so easily. Napkins should never be tucked into the neck of a youngster's dress or suit, for instance. Later this will be accepted as bad manners. Bibs are associated with childhood but napkins should be used in the same manner as adults use them.

Parents must learn to live with their children, not for them, is her main theme.

"Make changes in your way of living, not primarily because it is best for them but because it is best for everyone."

...THE SWEETER, FRESHER MARGARINE!

DOROTHY DIX

Woman Re-marrying Ex-mate - Foolish

DEAR MISS DIX: Twelve years ago I married a divorced man. After four weeks of marriage, he left me for another woman. Now he has come back and wants to remarry me. In the meantime, he had contracted another marriage, which will make four in all if I remarry him. I also remarried.

Dorothy Dix

My husband was killed in the war, and I now have a boy 6. Eric, my divorced husband, does not like the boy and often strikes him. I have a nice home and good job and wonder if I should accept his proposal, or continue life alone with my child. JANE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Are you out of your senses completely to contemplate such a marriage? You don't even mention one redeeming quality Eric might have. He is faithless, cruel (as evidenced in his treatment of your son) and a liar. All he wants is to share, if not actually take over, your nice home and be supported by the proceeds of your good job. Don't be a fool. Your son deserves more from life than a brutal stepfather.

You'll Support Him

If you should be crazy enough to go on with this marriage, you will soon find yourself in the unenviable position of supporting a husband who uses your hard-earned money to enjoy life with younger women. Don't kid yourself about this either. If he could not be true 12 years ago, what makes you think he has changed?

I am always sadly impressed by the desperation with which so many women grab a man with obviously bad traits. Women who could not be fooled by a magazine salesman can be hoodwinked into falling for the most arrant scoundrel. The lure of a wedding ring works wonders.

Protect your home and your son, Jane, as well as your own future. Send Eric away as speedily, and as far, as possible.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am an unhappily married wife of 20. My husband is very good to me and we have our own home. However, before I was married I became acquainted with a married man who works in my office. We went out together and soon I found I was in love with him, at the same time being in love with the man I married. I thought after my marriage I would forget the man, but I haven't. We have gone out together again, and I still think as much about him as ever. What can I do?

VERA

ANSWER: Your first mistake, of course, was in going out with a married man at all. In the beginning you only liked him; constant association convinced you that you were in love. Actually your whole trouble lies in the fact that you married before attaining maturity to know exactly what you do want. With a fine husband and your own home, you have managed an auspicious beginning for so young a bride. Do everything you can to preserve your home—not destroy it.

You absolutely must stop seeing this married man. If you are still working in the same office, leave the job. With the economic standing you apparently have, is it necessary for you to work? Stay home and raise a family. That will leave you little time to go around mooning over the unattainable. Suppose you found out your husband was going out with a married woman? How would you feel? Suppose he finds out what you're doing? Do you want to destroy his faith and confidence in you? Straighten out your life now before it is too late—and it is dangerously near the "too late" point now.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very fond of a boy from another town. About a month ago I met him and he said he would write to me. As yet he hasn't. Do you think I should write first? He warned me that he was a bad correspondent. He is supposed to come here next month and I have wondered if it would be proper for me to invite him to our house even if I don't hear from him first.

LORENE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It would be perfectly proper for you to invite the boy to your house, particularly if you are having the gang in for an evening. Young boys usually do make poor correspondents, so don't worry too much over the lack of mail.

You are with your escort in a dimly-lighted cafe, and you decide your lipstick needs fixing.

Wilson's Face His Fortune Even If Ugly

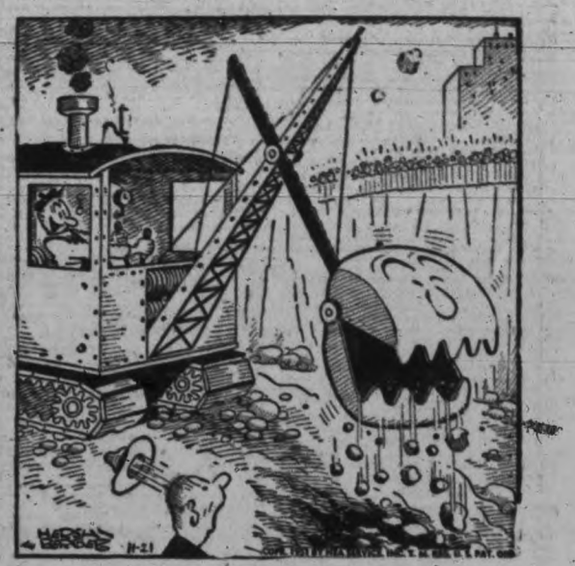
By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21 (AP)—Just like any glamor boy, Handsome Harry Wilson's face is his fortune. The only difference is that Harry's is the ugliest pan in Hollywood.

It doesn't hurt Harry's feelings to have that pointed out. After all, he has made a good living since 1924 from his over-sized leathery face.

"I guess people think I'm the perfect criminal type," said Harry in his rumbling voice. "Whenever they're making a crime or prison picture, the producers always think of me. I've been in almost every class-C cops-and-robber picture ever made."

Too Realistic



Harry's only trouble is that cops have the same type-casting ideas as producers. Once he was waiting for a streetcar to take him to a film location early in the morning. A patrol car stopped and questioned him about a report he was casing a drugstore for a robbery.

Harry was hauled off the street another time and "positively identified" by a woman as the man who had robbed her. It was then that a detective who knew him gave Harry a signed card assuring possible arresters that he is a law-abiding citizen.

After doubling for Wallace Beery for 25 years, Harry started doubling for Broderick Crawford in "All The King's Men." He has been with Crawford ever since.

Pleads Guilty To Theft Attempt

Charged with attempting to steal a quantity of clothing from a local hotel room, Albert Edward Daily, 22, RR 1 Cannington pleaded guilty in police court today.

When Daily said he could not pay the $14.50 in costs, Magistrate W. R. Philp changed his original verdict of two years suspended sentence on the charge to $10 and $14.50 costs or 15 days in county jail.

A private in the Royal Canadian Artillery, stationed at London Ontario, Daily claimed he had been drinking with a friend all afternoon and evening the day the charge was laid and did not remember anything.

No Excuse

"That is no excuse," said Magistrate Philp.

Detective Sergeant John Stevenson testified that in answer to a complaint Monday afternoon he went to a local hotel and found a sweater, a pair of shoes and two shirts behind a cigarette dispenser. He said that Daily had been surprised in one of the hotel rooms and had then gone downstairs and tried to hide behind the cigarette dispenser where the clothing was found.

Daily was being held by the proprietor Arthur Johnston when he arrived, Detective Stevenson said.

The clothing was valued at under $25.

On Tuesday, Daily pleaded not guilty and was remanded until today on $260 bail. He changed his plea to guilty when he appeared in court today.

First Wedding Held In Church 42 Years Old

The marriage ceremony for Marie Dunford of Indian River and William M. Robertson of Peterborough which was performed Saturday in the Indian River Baptist Church was the first conducted there since it was built in 1902.

The Rev. W. J. Bingham, minister for both the Norwood and Indian River Baptist churches, said that the custom of marriage ceremonies being held in the farm homes rather than the church was the reason for the 49 years without a marriage ceremony in the church.

Mr. Bingham explained that in former years if the weddings were not held in the homes, the young couples were married either in Norwood or Peterborough churches.

Another church near Roseneath last summer celebrated its first marriage ceremony in 100 years. The same reason was given.

Mr. Bingham said that some time was spent in making arrangements for the ceremony such as the signals for the various parts of the marriage ceremony. At the close of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Robertson were presented with a white Bible which is the custom during a first wedding in a church.

District Bull Sells For $710

TORONTO, Nov. 21— Highest averages to date were chalked up Tuesday afternoon when the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair's sale of stars featured 28 head of Hereford cattle, bringing a total of $27,820 for an average of $1,158.

Top animal in the sale was Jarvis Monty Domino 18 D, bred by F. W. Reicheld of Jarvis, and consigned by C. Carman Lyons of Wallacetown. The bull, born in August, 1949, brought $2,800 from E. H. Horne of Enfield, N.S.

Close behind him was Royal Prince D. 151st, consigned by Hunter Bros. of MacLeod, Alta., and sold to Ancell Lee of Ailsa Craig for $2,500. Not far behind was Comprest Lad 3 E. junior reserve champion at this year's Royal, and consigned by Stanley D. Henker of Midnapore, Alta. He brought $2,100 from E. H. Himmilman of La Have, N.S.

Another high-priced animal was sold in the Toronto district. That was the reserve grand champion female, Ullyses Lass 5 F, another representative of the Henker herd. She sold to Bert Gardhouse of Malton for $1,585.

A well-bred polled bull, carrying horned blood lines as well, failed to impress buyers in the crowded ring. The animal, Skibbereen Monarch 4E, was consigned by John R. Walsh and Son of Peterborough and went to W. H. Morrison of Apple Hill for $710.

TEL AVIV, Israel, Nov. 21 — (Reuters)—Six Arabs were killed and seven arrested while trying to cross the border from Jordan during the last two days, the government said Tuesday night.

Re-elect Magistrate W. R. Philp Head Advisory Board For Blind

Magistrate W. R. Philp was re-elected chairman of the Peterborough Advisory Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind at the annual meeting held on Tuesday evening in the recreation room of the Grafton and Co. store. The meeting was preceded by a dinner at which Mayor M. Swanston brought civic greetings and commended the work of the Board in the interests of those citizens who are blind.

Treasurer R. B. Arnold reported receipts of $6,208 and Miss Christine Dawson, home teacher, spoke of the intensive training course she had attended last winter and of her teaching of Braille reading, writing and handicrafts to 15 sightless persons during the spring and summer period. Miss Dawson also supervised a booth at the Peterborough Exhibition and is now preparing for the annual sale of handicrafts December 10 to 15 at the Grafton store.

Four In Industry

Percy Stollery, placement officer, mentioned that there are four blind persons employed in Peterborough industries and others are engaged in gainful employment. The industrial workers were able to earn last year at the rate of $9,000 total for the four workers.

Colin McEachern, field secretary reviewed the services available to blind people, of whom there are 90 in the city and county, 46 men and 44 women. He spoke of the campaign for funds conducted in the rural areas through the co-operation of school boards, teachers and children at which time also literature was distributed and talks given the children on taking care of the eyes.

Total cost of services provided in the Peterborough area during the year was $7,380 which included maintenance of a local office and various services in connection with the prevention of blindness as well as care for the blind people.

The Louis Braille Society, a social club for blind people, is thriving it was reported and grateful to the Lions Club for continued support. The city council also assisted the club during the year.

Board Officers Named

Report of the nominating committee as presented by Charles Ray was as follows: chairman, Magistrate W. R. Philp; vice-chairman, Charles J. Ray; secretary, Miss Agnes Grant; treasurer, R. B. Arnold and chairman of the welfare committee Mrs. Floyd Curtis.

Reference was made to the splendid work in the interests of the blind done by T. P. Lancaster, Havelock who for many years has been a member of the board and also vice-chairman. Mr. Lancaster had tendered his resignation due to his inability to attend the meetings.

Special speaker was Miss Joan E. Keagey, Toronto, who is in charge of social service work for the Ontario Division of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Miss Heagey dealt with the work of her department, with particular emphasis on rehabilitation and the need for individualization of each problem, in order to know how best to serve the individual. She spoke of the Institute's concern with the over-all community picture, urged that adequate social services be provided for the citizens in general, who are in need of them and thus in this way the blind will also receive the care required. Miss Keagey told of the work being done with pre-school age blind children; she related what was being accomplished at the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford operated by the Department of Education and at the seven fine residences in the province which provide homes for older people and contain occupational workshops, recreation rooms, home teaching quarters and administrative offices.

P. M. McCarrell extended the appreciation of the board to Miss Keagey and Peterborough staff members for the excellent work being done. W. C. Hughes was also thanked for his continued assistance to the Board in providing space for the Christmas sale of handicrafts at Grafton store and by having board meetings in the store's recreation room.

Obituary

A veteran of the First World War, Thomas Robert Rose, 593 Homewood Ave., died this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital after a lengthy illness. He was born near Port Hope 55 years ago, but had lived in Peterborough nearly all his life.

Mr. Rose was for 15 years caretaker of Peterborough Charlotte St. He was an active member of the Salvation Army, and as door sergeant, his position was chiefly to extend welcome to the Temple services. He was a member of the Canadian Legion, also of Corinthian Lodge, AF & AM and of Peterborough Lodge Scottish Rite.

Mr. Rose leaves his wife, the former Rachel Stott, and daughters, Mrs. L. Boorman of Quebec City, Misses Florence, Barbara and Agnes Rose at home; his sister, Mrs. E. Cheel and brothers William, Charles and Howard, all of Peterborough; George of Toronto and Thomas of Eastbourne, England.

The body will be resting at the Kaye funeral home, George St., from Thursday morning until Friday afternoon when the service will be conducted at the Salvation Army Temple by Senior Captain D. Sharpe. Burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Grant Proposes

Hospital Plan

"A CCF government would introduce a hospital scheme the same as the one in Saskatchewan as soon as it is possible and that's an honest promise," added Mr. Grant.

A "labor rally" sponsored by the Political Action Committee of the District Labor Council scheduled for Tuesday night in the Legion Hall was cancelled and a meeting was called in the CCF committee rooms to discuss the reasons for the meeting being called off.

Ed. Humphrey, chairman of the DLC Political Action Committee said the idea behind the meeting was to give all three candidates a chance to state their case in the presence of each other and the policy of their parties in regard to labor.

One Accepted

Mr. Humphreys said that Mr. Grant had accepted the invitation and that a letter had been received from Hon. Harold Scott stating that he had a Progressive Conservative meeting November 20 and would be unable to attend. No communication had been received from the Liberal candidate.

"We had intended to make a final announcement regarding the advertising on Monday. It was not inserted and Mr. Humphrey said he had learned that the advertisement had been refused on the grounds that Mr. Scott and Mr. Burke were not going to attend. The advertisement submitted to the Examiner stated that "all Peterborough candidates for the coming provincial election have been invited to speak to you."

"It was merely an announcement that the candidates had been invited. There was no suggestion they would be there. Since we didn't get the publicity, the meeting was cancelled. There would have been no attendance without the newspaper announcement," said Mr. Humphrey.

In presenting the policy of his party on labor matters to the labor council representatives, Mr. Grant prefaced his remarks with the comment that he "wanted to be fair. The CCF committee ran a meeting on another occasion and wrongly advertised that all candidates would be there. We had a packed house at the Paragon House, attended by all parties with members of our party in the majority.

"The meeting I refer to," he continued, "the Conservative candidate did not attend but his agent who did was greeted with jeers and boos. I doubt if the people of Peterborough would have dealt with the candidates themselves in that manner, but this may have left a bad taste in their mouths and convinced them that a labor rally would not be the best meeting for them to attend."

No Reason To Refuse

Mr. Grant said that "if they had real faith they were doing a good job for labor they had not reason to refuse to attend a meeting organized by labor."

Scoring what he termed the "apathy of the public" toward provincial affairs, Mr. Grant said it was "not lack of enthusiasm for our own work but lack of interest in politics generally that was most serious.

When candidates refuse an opportunity to appear on a platform together, they are doing a disservice to our province, in that they are discouraging the expression of the interest of the people who would attend such a meeting," he said.

Mr. Grant said that the CCF is the labor party of this country and what social welfare legislation we have has been achieved by the combined efforts of the CCF and the labor movement. In criticizing some features of the Ontario Labor Relations Act, Mr. Grant said he believed the act could be enforced more effectively if there were "some penalty clause" to deal with employers who fail to comply with the collective bargaining provisions of the act.

Heavy Shipments

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP) — With the lake shipping season not closing before the middle of December, cargo totals are already higher than the previous record peacetime year of 1948. As of Oct. 31 a total of 140,000,000 net tons was chalked up for iron ore, grain, coal and limestone cargoes.

Need Confidence Salesman Tells Sales, Ad Club

Members of the Peterborough Sale sand Ad Club Tuesday night heard an authority in his field lay down five commandments of salesmanship.

The speaker was Graham A. Walter, manager of the Toronto Osgoode branch, Canada Life Assurance Association. After his address the members viewed a film on salesmanship, described as the best of its kind, shown by Col. T. V. Kenney, Toronto.

Mr. Walter, a former teacher and a runner who represented Canada in the 1500-metre event at the 1928 Olympic games, illustrated his address with the use of printed placards.

His closing remarks were for people to be more confident of themselves.

"The world is full of talent," he said, "but people are afraid to use it."

A summary of his remarks on salesmanship, interlarded with anecdotes of his own experiences in selling, follows:

Be pleasant. People like to see a smile. A grim determination to succeed has ruined the effectiveness of many a salesman.

Be known. People like to do business with people they know. This applies to anybody whose business causes him to meet the public, including doctors, lawyers and other professional men.

Enthusiasm.

Be enthusiastic. It has a cash value in any business. It may not take the place of knowledge but it is a good substitute.

Prestige. It is the quality of being well and favorably known. Fundamentally it is based on integrity. While it takes a long time to build up prestige it can be broken down by a single mistake.

Be sincere. Believe in yourself, your product and your vocation, advised Mr. Walter. Man is not satisfied with just making money, he wants to think the world is a better place because he went through it.

The hardest thing is to believe in ourselves, said Mr. Walter.

"You are your own greatest asset and you can also be your own greatest liability."

All great men of character and nobility of purpose have three things in common, he said. They are a goal, a desire for accomplishment, and a determintion to succeed that surmounts all fear of failure.

Mr. Walter was introduced by Ted Howard and thanked by Ed. Henwood. President Bert Cowan was in the chair.

Storage Shed Burns In Lindsay

LINDSAY, Nov. 21 — Fire caused by a defective chimney resulted in $2,000 damage to a storage shed early Tuesday morning.

Firemen and volunteers battled the fire for two hours before it was extinguished. The shed is part of a terrace of homes on Peel St.

The fire was discovered about 1.30 am by Mrs. M. Atchison, 19 Peel St. who awakened her grandson, Glen Black. Black saw that the storage shed at the back of the home was on fire, turned in an alarm.

Before the flames were put out, the partition dividing the shed was partially consumed, rafters and sheeting in the roof had been nearly burned away and the door leading to the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Curry was also partly burned. Both apartments were filled with smoke. The property is owned by Howard Walden.

Man Committed In Morals Charge

At a preliminary hearing on a morals charge in police court today, Magistrate W. R. Philp committed William James Butcher, 49, of 390 Queen St., for trial at the next general sessions.

The charge was laid against Butcher November 10. He appeared in police court November 12 and was remanded on bail of $4,000 until November 19.

A further remand was granted Monday, and today, Butcher was represented by John W. Corkery who elected trial by a higher court.

Maximum penalty under the criminal code for conviction of the offence Butcher is charged with is 14 years in prison. In the case of a man, the law also provides for whipping in addition to the jail sentence.

Hastings News

The many friends of Mr. Gordon Fox are sorry to hear of his illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hoard, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lobb and family spent the weekend with friends in Toronto.

Mrs. M. Brownell was a weekend visitor in Toronto.

Mrs. Earl Scriver (nee Chennell) left on Sunday for Toronto where she will reside with her parents, until her husband returns from duty in Korea.

Court Charges Three Drivers In One Accident

Three drivers, involved in an accident on the Chemong Road last September 28, appeared in police court Tuesday charged with the same offence.

All three pleaded not guilty. Two of the drivers testified for the crown when the charge against the third driver was heard.

Mrs. Edythe Borland, 57 Hunter St., was convicted and fined $15 and $12.50 costs or 15 days in county jail in default.

W. J. Arthur Fair KC, defended both Mrs. Borland and Kenneth Walker, RR 7, Peterborough, one of the three drivers involved, and agreed to let the evidence entered against Mrs. Borland apply to the charge against Walker.

The charge against Walker was dismissed.

Third Charge

After Mrs. Borland had been convicted, and the same charge against Walker was dismissed by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw KC, said the crown would offer no evidence on the careless driving charge against Frank P. Kearney, RR 1, Peterborough.

All three charges were laid by OPP Constable Thomas Armstrong, following a three-car collision on the Chemong Road about one mile north of the intersection of Highway 7 and the Chemong Road.

Kearney testified he was going north, about 30 to 35 miles an hour and as he broke over a knoll saw a car about a quarter of a mile ahead, and moving slowly. He said he started to pull over to pass the car when he was about 600 feet behind. When he was about 100 feet away Kearney said the car suddenly swung to the left across the highway. Kearney said he applied his brakes and had stopped when a car struck him from behind, shunting him into the car driven by Mrs. Borland.

Two In Ditch

Both the Kearney car and Mrs. Borland's cars ended up in the east ditch.

"I was the only one on the highway after the accident," declared Kenneth Walker in his testimony. Walker said that he had not seen the coupe car (driven by Mrs. Borland) after he started down the small hill until the accident. He said he was following Kearney's car when Kearney stopped suddenly and he was unable to stop before crashing into the rear of Kearney's car.

Mrs. Borland said she was backing out of a laneway, across the highway in a northwesterly direction when the crash occurred. She said she had pulled into the laneway in order to turn around and go back to Peterborough. Mrs. Borland said she had looked both ways before backing on to the highway and had seen nothing coming. After making sure there was nothing in sight coming from either north or south, Mrs. Borland said she proceeded to back up and didn't see Kearney's car until after the accident when it was in the ditch.

Under cross examination, Mrs. Borland denied Mr. Bradshaw's suggestion that "you have changed your story several times." Questioned by Mr. Bradshaw if she had said in the presence of Mr. Kearney that she was going to turn into a laneway at the east side of the road then changed her mind and turned left, Mrs. Borland replied, "no."

Heard Statement

Under the strenuous objection of Mr. Fair, Kearney was recalled to the stand and insisted he had heard Mrs. Borland make the statement after the accident. Magistrate Philp admitted Kearney's evidence heard in reply.

Mr. Fair argued for an acquittal on the grounds that Mrs. Borland's car must have been in reverse to have been driven backwards 40 feet, across the road and into the ditch. "Kearney's story doesn't add up to anything more than that he wasn't paying attention and was driving on the wrong side of the road. It is only Kearney's evidence against Mrs. Borland's and Harold Gilbert's (of 87½ Hunter St., a passenger in Mrs. Borland's car.)

"It was a level road, broad daylight and there was no excuse for an accident," declared Mr. Bradshaw. "Even if we accept Mrs. Borland's own story, she backed across the highway in the face of oncoming northbound cars."

Was Negligent

In passing judgment, Magistrate Philp said he was accepting the crown's proposition that Mrs. Borland was negligent in backing across the highway in the face of oncoming traffic in a place where there was a clear view. "Other than the difficulty of reconciling the positions and paths of the various cars with the evidence of Mr. Kearney," Magistrate Philp said, "there has been no real evidence offered by either the crown or defence of sufficient degree to warrant disbelief of either Mr. Kearney or Mrs. Borland. But taking the two alternatives suggested by the crown, the second, that the car was in reverse appears to be somewhat more reasonable."

Cartoonist Lou Skuce, 65, Dies Working At Drawing

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (CP)—Lou Skuce, 65, who entertained and delighted persons throughout the English-speaking world with his sport cartoons and other drawings, died Tuesday night at his drawing board. His symbol, a goose with a hat perched on its head at a rakish angle, was as well-known as its originator.

The Ottawa-born Skuce was working on a cartoon for the Bell Syndicate of New York when he died. His latest batch of drawings was on its way to the syndicate's office.

During the First World War he was with the psychological warfare branch of the national defence department. In the Second World War, he produced government posters and helped promote the sale of Victory Bonds.

In his youth he was an athlete, in his later years a playwright, an actor and a painter of landscapes and portraits.

Won Paddling Honor

He won world and Canadian honors for paddling while a member of the Britannia Club in Ottawa. He also paddled for the Parkdale Canoe Club.

While living in New York, he became interested in the theatre and started writing and acting in plays. One of his best-known plays was "Bill of 13." At his death he was chairman of the Toronto chapter of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

He started his cartooning career with The Ottawa Journal. After moving to Toronto, he worked for the old Toronto World, The Star, and The Mail and Empire (later combined with the Globe to form the Globe and Mail), and for 14 years was art editor of the old Sunday World. For the last 15 years he free-lanced.

Among the works of the little man with the facile pen were the murals he drew for the Toronto Men's Press Club. These drawings, which illustrate club scenes and humorously depict the evolution of the printed word from the stone age up to today's giant printing presses, cover the walls of a large lounge.

Final Judging Takes Place At Winter Fair

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (CP)—The fair closes today.

The thousand little pieces of farm life from Canada and the United States that made up the 23rd annual Royal Winter Fair will fall out of place about midnight.

The animals and exhibits which filled the 25 acres of fair buildings will be herded and packed into box cars and trucks to start for home after eight days in the huge agricultural showcase.

But there was no relaxing for the final day.

There were still horses to be judged and market cattle to be auctioned. Saddle horses and thoroughbreds went into the judging ring for the last time this year.

There were still afternoon and evening sessions of the royal horse show to be run off and after the last event in the evening show—the closing ceremonies with bands, speeches, flags and winners on parade.

In Tuesday night's show, 83 champion horses and cattle were taken around the ring. Six provinces and six states were represented in the long line of champions. There was one each from Saskatchewan, New Brunswick, Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota; two each from New York and Ohio; four from Michigan; seven from Alberta; eight from Manitoba; 13 from Quebec and 42 from Ontario.

Doesn't Think Thomson Would Keep Promise

OSHAWA, Nov. 21—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, national CCF leader, Tuesday night predicted that if, "by some mischance," Liberal leader Walter Thomson is elected premier in Thursday's Ontario general election, he will neither put his promised provincial hospital care plan into effect within a year nor resign in that time if the plan is not working.

"They had the gall to pick up a policy which is in effect in the only CCF province and advocated by every CCF group in every province of Canada."

Committed For Trial

THREE RIVERS, Que., Nov. 21 —(CP)—The Gervais Brothers, Gaston, 31, and Marcel, 26, at a preliminary hearing Tuesday were ordered to stand trial at the present term of assizes on a murder charge. They are charged with slaying taxi-driver Maxime Gelinas, a semi-invalid, last month.

3 Political Leaders Wind Up Election Campaign Speeches

By The Canadian Press

Campaigning in Thursday's Ontario general election is all but over. E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, speaks today in Kitchener. But Premier Frost is spending the day quietly in his home riding of Victoria and his hometown of Lindsay and has no speeches scheduled. Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, also has finished campaign speechmaking and plans to put in the day in his home riding of Ontario in the Oshawa area.

Thursday the voters in the province's 90 ridings from the Quebec border to the Manitoba boundary and from the International Line to the sub-Arctic will give their verdict.

Premier Frost, who has campaigned for re-election on the basis of the administration's record, predicted in his closing address that his government will be returned to office.

Sure Of Victory

In an apparent reference to his Liberal opponents, he said in Toronto:

"The party which has made so many promises won't elect a single solitary member in Toronto and the Yorks."

Mr. Thomson, in a statement Tuesday, pledged his party to "clean up liquor abuses in Ontario" if the Liberals win. He made public his party's liquor policy, which includes more effective control of sale in licensed outlets and the use of liquor profits for social services.

Later, speaking at Cobourg and Port Hope, he said rent control is needed in Ontario because there is a shortage of homes. He repeated his promise that, if necessary, a liberal government would go into low-rental housing. He said he has received hundreds of letters from persons wishing his party "Godspeed" in its proposed provincial hospital care plan.

Disputes Claim

Mr. Joliffe, sharing a platform at Brougham in the Oshawa area with Agriculture Minister Kennedy, disputed a claim by Mr. Kennedy that the Ontario Cheese Co-operative is the only example of an agricultural co-operative working successfully under provincial legislation. Mr. Joliffe said there are others, including the Western Wheat Pools which he said are regulated to some extent by the federal government in keeping with international marketing arrangements.

He said the CCF proposed to establish in Ontario co-operatives for marketing agricultural products, thereby freeing Ontario farmers from dependence on fluctuating prices for their produce.

At a Toronto meeting, he encountered two men who asked him why the CCF, in their words, "supports the war policies of the Liberal and Conservative parties." He told them:

"None of the parties in this campaign is supporting nor endorsing a war policy. But we of the CCF, like the overwhelming majority of people in Canada, are ready to stand up and defend this country against Communist attack."

Young People Conduct Service

SPRINGVILLE, Nov. 20 (ENS)—The Young People's Union of Springville Church held a special service of song and music Sunday at Springville United Church.

With Frank Stevens at the organ, the Rev. A. E. Larke led the group and their parents and friends in a service of song.

Mr. Stevens at the organ and daughters, Doreen at the piano and Betty with the violin, contributed a musical trio. Other numbers included a piano and organ duet and a piano solo.

Eleanore Bowles had charge of the worship service on the theme "Poetry written to honor God, some to be read and some to be sung." She was assisted by Hazel McIntosh and Doreen Bowles.

Mr. Larke addressed the Young People on "Our Debts to Organ Builders, Architects and Stone Masons," emphasizing that each of us should bring our talents and our abilities to the use of God, making the world a little better than we found it.

The next meeting will be Nov. 30 with Margaret Earle in charge. Plans were also made for the December meetings.

INTERNATIONAL PHONETICS and basic English have been combined in a new technique at McGill University in Montreal for the instruction in English, in evening hours, of non-speaking adult students. The idea for the project, which has been marked with such success that it is being widely copied, was developed by Prof. L. B. Harrop, in charge of the Spanish section of the department of Romance languages. Some four years ago, at his request, the depart ment of extension announced its first class in English for non-English speaking students. Students can gain entrance to this class even if they don't know a word of English. All that is required is literacy in their own language. They pronounce their first English words through the use of international phonetics, a basis of sounds common to many languages with slight variations. Then with the help of basic English, which comprises some 800 words, plus some extras, they make rapid progress in their new language.

Smaller Nations Campaign For Big Three

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Nov. 21—(CP)—President Vincent Auriol of France apparently took a shot in the dark in suggesting a Truman-Stalin-Churchill meeting but several lesser countries in the United Nations are aiming at the same target.

Diplomatic speculation is that a meeting of the big three in the near future is unlikely but that it is in the realm of possibility that Prime Minister Churchill of Britain will visit Prime Minister Stalin in Moscow after his January visit to Washington to see President Truman.

Auriol's surprise move at the opening of the United Nations assembly soon was echoed in the general debate by a number of medium powers including India and Yugoslavia. Many middle powers indicated they still retained hope that a meeting of the big three could lessen to some degree the chasm between east and west.

May Be In Minority

Truman, diplomatic sources speculated, might soon find himself one of the few who thinks such a meeting is not a good idea.

Russia has indicated that she would like a big three conference and Churchill has stated that a new effort should be made to bridge east-west differences. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in his policy speech before the UN assembly, called for a "fresh start." One major item ruling against the possibility of a big three meeting is the question of travel. Stalin contends he does not want to leave Russia. Truman says he would like to see Stalin but only in Washington.

Unless there is a big change in views, Churchill is left as the man who can link the three by going to both. The British leader is expected to try to change Truman's mind during his visit in Washington but the most he is expected to receive in that connection is Truman's blessings for a visit to Moscow.

Smith, and quartette by Messrs. Harold Buckham, Art Beebe, Harlan Seens and Eldridge White.

The presentation of a studio couch was made by Gerald Anderson, Earl Hutcheson and Mac Bradshaw.

NATO Members Telling All to Each Other

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Nov. 21—(CP)—Members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are telling all to each other in precedent-setting exposures.

For the first time in history, members of an international group are exposing completely their economic, political and military situations for the common good—to ensure a uniformly solid organization.

An executive committee of three men is taking in the information to provide a rounded picture of the relation between NATO plans and the economic, political and military realities. They are Averell Harriman of the United States, Sir Edwin Plowden of Britain and Jean Monnet of France.

These "three wise men," empowered for their probing job at the NATO meeting in Ottawa, have the immediate task of recommending how to get the most military security at the least risk of economic and political collapse.

Finance and military leaders of the member countries have been reporting one at a time to the "three wise men" here in Paris, following up questionnaires sent to each country concerning troops, supplies, production and economic situations.

Abbott Quizzed

Finance Minister Douglas Abbott of Canada was one of those quizzed. As a member of the 12-member temporary council committee of which the "three wise men" are the executive, Abbott will receive their report on the situation in a meeting scheduled for Nov. 23 in Paris.

The TCC will make preliminary recommendations to the North Atlantic Treaty Council meeting in Rome Nov. 24 over which L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, will preside as this year's chairman.

The TCC's job, which the "three wise men" are spearheading, is largely one of economy. When it finds, for example, that one country is planning to build military trucks that are not essential for immediate security needs, it might recommend that efforts would better be spent in some other direction:

But on the other hand, the TCC may come up with the recommendation that some country might make bigger contributions to the joint effort than it has planned.

It has been indicated that NATO now is aiming to have an integrated security force available by next year in case of an attack against western Europe. But June, 1954, remains the target date when it could be hoped the buildup might be able to taper off.

Newfoundland Senator Praises $40 Pension

OTTAWA, Nov. 21 — (CP) — Senator Ray Petten (L, Newfoundland) Tuesday praised the government's new $40-a-month pension for those 70 and over which comes into effect next January.

He told the Senate that critics who said $40 a month was not enough should be realistic and ponder the cost. Even the $40 figure would cost the federal government $343,000,000 a year.

"If Canadians want a higher pension," he said, "then they will have to pay higher taxes."

Besides, it had never been the intention of the federal government to take over the full retirement responsibility of the people. The pension was meant as a base on which adequate retirement funds could be built.

Find Voting Slow At Polls Early In Election

TORONTO, Nov. 22. (CP)—Voting began slowly today as Ontario elected its 24th Legislature. In most parts of the province the sky was cloudy and it was mild, but cold weather was reported north of Lake Superior. Some showers of snow-flurries were expected before nightfall. Most Ontario towns said the balloting pace was slow after polling stations opened at 8 am—an hour later in two northwestern ridings. Voting ends at 7 pm and the job of counting perhaps 2,000,000 ballots begins.

Voters were deciding whether Premier Leslie Frost's Progressive Conservative party is to continue governing Canada's most populous province. The alternatives are the Liberal party, which went out of office in 1943 and has campaigned on a platform promising increased social services and lower taxes; and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, Canada's Socialist party.

Requests for transportation to the polls used up the supply of cars furnished by Elgin riding candidates before 8 a.m. and voters were waiting at a number of polling stations when they opened. The indication in Oxford constituency also was for a heavy vote, with more early balloters than in the last election in 1948.

But in other places—Owen Sound, Brockville, Galt and Hamilton, to mention a few—the early voting was reported light.

A total of 271 candidates contested the 90 seats. The Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties ran candidates in every constituency. The CCF contested 77. A half-dozen Independents and some minor-party candidates completed the list.

Standing of the 23rd legislature at dissolution: Progressive Conservative, 53; CCF, 21; Liberal, 14; Labor-Progressive (Communist), 2.

One of Longest

The 49-day campaign was one of Ontario's longest. On Oct. 4, Premier Frost, since criticized by his political opponents for asking an early-winter vote, announced that he was calling a general election. Active electioneering got under way about five weeks ago.

The campaign of the Liberal party, in office from 1934 to 1943 and placed in a minor-party role in 1948 when the CCF became the official opposition, actually began a year ago with the election of Walter C. Thomson as provincial leader. Retaining his seat in the House of Commons, the part-time Pickering farmer-lawyer immediately began stumping the province and made some 140 speeches in his role of the party's modern-day Mitchell Hepburn.

This is Mr. Thomson's first test as party leader. It also is the first test of Premier Frost's leadership. Mr. Frost, whose one campaign promise was "continued good government," became Progressive Conservative leader in 1949 when George Drew forsook provincial politics to become national head of the party.

Of the three main-party leaders, only the CCF's E. B. Jolliffe previously led an election fight. Mr. Jolliffe, at 42 some 14 years younger than his political foes, took his party through three previous elections.

Truce Delegates Near Agreement On Armistice

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 22 (AP)—Truce negotiators today are near agreement on a plan which could open the way for an end of fighting in Korea by Christmas.

Only one point remained to be settled in the buffer-zone dispute. Delegates were so close together they called a Friday meeting of staff officers to start drawing the line of battle contact across Korea.

This would become the centre of a buffer zone, 2½ miles wide, if an armistice is signed within 30 days.

If the remaining dispute on a cease-fire line is ironed out, three major hurdles would still stand in the way of making if effective and signing a truce by Christmas—(1) Terms for enforcing the armistice, (2) Exchange of prisoners, and (3) Recomendations to governments on withdrawals of foreign troops from Korea.

A United Nations command spokesman said only one question is holding up full accord on the buffer zone issue—that is how a new cease-fire line would be fixed if no argeement is reached in 30 days.

Thursday was the 28th time the two-man sub-committees assigned to the cease-fire line dispute had met in Panmunjom. They will meet again Friday at 11 am (9 pm EST Thursday) to try to remove the last stumbling block to an agreement.

During a one-hour and 55-minute morning session, Allied truce negotiators offered a revised version of the three-point plan submitted Wednesday by the Reds. It incorporated much of the Communist proposal verbatim.

Agree On First Two

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, UN command spokesman, said there was almost immediate agreement on the first two points.

The first provides that the line of battle contact will be the line from which both sides withdraw when an armistice is signed. In rewriting the Communist proposal the Allied negotiators inserted a clause specifying that there would be no withdrawal of troops until there is an agreement on the full armistice.

The UN command revision provided that after 30 days sub-committees would again determine the line of battle contact. This would become a new provisional line for a period agreed upon by both sides.

Have Plastic To Stop Bullets

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—A new plastic, tough enough to stop a .45-calibre revolver bullet at 10 yards, was announced on Wednesday.

It has higher impact strength, or ability to stand up under blows without shattering than any other plastic material. It resists heat and provides good electrical insulation.

It's made of fibre glass and a plastic resin. This kind of combination is not new. But this plastic compound, supplied already mixed, can be easily moulded or fashioned into various shapes.

The plastic, known as Plaskon Reinforced Alkyd Molding Compound, is being studied for possible military uses, including armor proofing.

Believes Atomic Autos Still Long Way Off

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 22 (CP)—Canadians can expect industrial atomic power plants in the next five to 10 years, but the day of atomic cars and home furnaces is still a long way off, J. R. Gray, chief administrator of the Chalk River project, said Wednesday.

"I certainly feel that large-scale industrial use of atomic reactors is coming," he said in an interview, "but smaller reactors are another thing.

"Of course, I wouldn't want to say we'll never have atomic cars—you know what happened to people who laughed at Jules Verne."

Coventry Entertains Stalingrad Officials But Mayor's Wife, Citizens Boycott Visit

COVENTRY, Nov. 22. (AP)—Coventry is entertaining the deputy mayor of Stalingrad, Mrs. Murashkina. Many people here aren't too happy about it.

Coventry and Stalingrad were two of the worst bombed cities of the Second World War and made a friendship pact in those days.

Last August Coventry's city council — under Mayor Harry Weston—invited Stalingrad to send along a goodwill delegation.

The delegation turned up Wednesday — Mrs. Murashinka accompanied by an interpretor, a Soviet embassy official and a couple of Russian reporters—for a two-day visit.

Weston went down to the railway station to meet them. A small girl stepped forward and presented Mrs. Murashkina with a bunch of red carnations. The 40 onlookers weren't exactly a cross section of Coventry's citizenry, they were mostly reporters and members of the local Communist party.

Weston said "letters and telegrams of abuse" are arriving at his office. He did not disclose how many or what they said.

Weston had to receive his visitor without the help of his wife.

Mrs. Weston is boycotting all functions connected with the visit because the Weston family heard Wednesday that the 19-year-old fiance of their daughter, Joyce, has been killed fighting Reds in Korea.

Collapse Of Bridge Not Solved

Commission Inquiry Suggests Sabotage Or Scientific Cause

QUEBEC, Nov. 22. (CP)—A commission inquiry has failed to solve the riddle of collapse of the $3,500,000 Duplessis bridge Jan. 31 at Three Rivers.

The commission's report, issued today by Premier Duplessis, said evidence suggested two hypotheses:

1. An unknown scientific cause.
2. Sabotage.

These two "most probable" causes mentioned by the commissioners, Magistrate Rene Lippe and Engineer Lucien Dansereau, both of Montreal, were included in "subsidiary conclusions" of their 30,000-word report.

The main conclusions based on evidence heard at Three Rivers from Aug. 27 to Sept. 26 were:

The bridge failure was due to "rupture" of one of the main steel beams in its superstructure;

There was no "fault or negligence" by the government, its department or officers, or by the builders of the bridge or their employees;

In Record Time

Bailey bridges set up to restore road traffic across the St. Maurice River were installed in "record time of three months."

These main conclusions answered specific questions asked by the government in an order-in-council naming the Lippe Commission Aug. 1.

The commissioners said it was not their responsibility under the terms of the order-in-council to decide the "scientific cause" of the collapse nor to find any legal responsibility for it.

Tito Planning Free Stepinac

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP) — The New York Times says today that Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia will announce "in the near future" the liberation of Archbishop Aloysius Stepinac.

In a dispatch from Rome, C. L. Sulzberger, The Times' chief foreign correspondent, says:

"The archibshop will be sent back to his native village of Krasic, where he will be permitted to live as a private individual and clergyman with full restoration of his civil rights on the condition that he does not engage in political activity considered to be against the interests of the state."

Archbishop Stepinac, now in Lepoglava prison, has served five years of a 16-year-sentence on charges including wartime collaboration with the Axis powers.

Sulzberger says:

"Officially speaking, Archbishop Stepinac is to be released on the ground that he has served a considerable portion of his sentence under conditions of good behavior and thus is eligible for what would be termed 'parole' in the western world.

"It appears obvious, however, that Marshal Tito in fact wishes to rid himself of a source of considerable embarrassment in his relationships with the democratic powers. . . ."

Hockey Player Hurt In Truck-Car Crash

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 22—(CP)—Hockey player Douglas Gillespie, his wife Carnita and their three-year-old son Robert were injured Wednesday night in a car-truck crash on a narrow bridge south of Hanover.

Gillespie, centre of the 1951 Allan Cup champion Owen Sound Mercurys and playing coach of the 1950 Mann Cup lacrosse champions, suffered a fractured breastbone, broken ribs, torn knee ligaments and bruises and cuts.

Mrs. Gillespie suffered a cut forehead and scalp, lacerated knee and bruised back. Robert has a jaw fracture.

All are reported in good condition.

The truck driver, Walter Wilkin of Hanover, was not hurt.

$3,000 UP IN SMOKE AND FIRE—A small refreshment stand, coupled with living quarters, owned by Paul Moloney, was completely destroyed by fire just east of Ennismore village Wednesday. Just as he was putting a stick of wood in the stove, there was a small explosion which started the half-hour fire. Although 20 men answered a fire alarm, they were helpless against raging flames. Partly crippled, the 39-year-old man rescued only a radio as he dashed out of the fire—(Harry Oakman Photo).

United States Celebrates Thanksgiving

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—(CP)—A country anxious for peace, but involved in an undeclared war one-third of the way around the globe, today gave thanks for its blessings.

Even in Korea, where the United States has counted more than 100,000 causualties in 16 months of bitter fighting, US soldiers in many instances had at least a reminder of Thanksgiving Day at home.

At one front-line post, the mess sergeant prepared a menu ranging from stuffed celery hearts, olives and shrimp cocktail to hot mince pie. One division on the eastern front employed helicopters to fly hot turkey to an infantry company on Heartbreak Ridge.

Vice-President and Mrs. Alden W. Barkley landed at Kimpo airfield, northwest of war-torn Seoul, for a Thanksgiving Day visit with the troops.

Typical Dinner

President and Mrs. Truman, with Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson as their guests, were spending the holiday at the "Little White House" at Key West, Fla., where the President has been vacationing.

Their menu, typical of many throughout the country: shrimp cocktail, turkey, dressing, gravy, cranberry sauce, sweet potatoes, peas, plum pudding.

The President had pointed up the significance and tradition of the Thanksgiving Day, saying in his formal proclamation:

"More than three centuries ago the Pilgrim Fathers deemed it fitting to pause in their autumn labors and to give thanks to Almighty God for the abundant yield of the soil of their homeland.

"In keeping with that custom . . . our hearts impel us, once again in this autumnal season, to turn in humble gratitude to the giver of our bounties."

Canada To Be Host

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (CP)—Canada has been selected as host country for 18th International Red Cross Conference, the external affairs department announced today. The conference will be held in Toronto next July 23 to Aug. 9. It normally convenes every four years.

Ennismore Man Saves Radio As Fire Razes Home, Store

ENNISMORE, Nov. 22. (Staff)—A flash fire razed a small refreshment stand and living quarters, owned by Paul Moloney, three-quarters of a mile east of Ennismore village, Wednesday, causing approximately $3,000 damages. Partly crippled, Mr. Moloney had started to put a stick of wood in the stove. He had just raised the lid when "it seemed to explode" and the fire leapt to the ceiling, getting a good start.

"It crept up on me quickly and I had just time enough to get out, grabbing a radio on the way."

Couldn't Get Help

"Unfortunately my car was away and I couldn't go for help. I had to wait until a car came along. The first car kept on going down the road, but I believe they gave the alarm in the village."

Within five minutes the village men rushed to the stand where the 39-year-old man has lived with his wife and family for three years. But even though the alarm was answered, there was little anyone could do. The frame building was razed in a half-hour.

With the exception of the radio, Mr. Moloney lost everything in the refreshment stand and the three rooms which were used as living quarters.

At the time Mrs. Moloney and their boy were in Detroit and Mr. Moloney was planning to close the store for the season.

Frantic Workers Dynamite Dikes

ROVIGO, Italy, Nov. 22—(CP)—Frantic workers today dynamited dikes along the still-rising Po River in an effort to speed the raging flood waters to the Adriatic Sea.

More towns and villages were menaced hourly by the waters from Italy's mightiest river—rising at the rate of two inches an hour—and it pushed its eastward course across the country's richest region.

One gap was blasted early today in the retaining wall near this stricken provincial capital.

Two other blastings were scheduled later today.

Many diehard villagers opposed the dike-breaking — certain to loose waters at their own doorsteps. Some refused to budge from their homes.

Examiner Sponsors Special Radio Broadcast News Service On Election Results Tonight

Ontario election results will be broadcast by the Examiner this evening over radio station CHEX, with special bulletins on the returns in the Peterborough riding. These bulletins will be heard continuously throughout the evening commencing at 7:50.

At 10:15 pm a special broadcast is being planned, when it is hoper the final results of the election will be known. There will be given a general summary of the vote, both in the city and county and comments on the same. The three candidates, F. P. Burke, William Grant and Hon. Harold Scott have been invited to come to the radio station.

The Examiner's radio bulletins will be supplemented with a telephone service. The polls do not close until 7 o'clock; thus readers are asked not to call before 7:45. Results available prior to that time will be very scattered.

The telephone number is 4641, and six young ladies will be answering the calls.

Panic Sweeps Crowded Trolley

WINNIPEG, Nov. 22 (CP). — Panic swept a crowded streetcar Wednesday night when an electric control switch short-circuited. Seven persons were injured.

Frenzied passengers fought their way to exits and some jumped through windows when smoke poured from the control box. There was a series of flashes but no fire.

The motorman suffered slight face burns. Passengers were treated at hospital and were allowed to go home.

Churchill Talks Start Jan. 3

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 — (Reuters) — The Churchill-Truman talks will begin in Washington Jan. 3, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

While the full agenda has not yet been drawn up, it was stated here that the talks at the White House will last for at least a week and in scope will constitute the most important Anglo-American conference since the end of the Second World War in 1945.

A new topic—control of American air bases in Britain—appears likely to take a priority place on the agenda.

Usually well-informed sources here say Churchill wants an agreement which would give Britain much more control than she has over the US bases on the grounds that she could be drawn into a war against her wishes as the result of a sudden clash between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Navy Washes Hands Of Fake Surgeon

VICTORIA, BC, Nov. 22 (CP) The Canadian Navy has washed its hands of the young American who successfully posed as a doctor until tripped up by fame.

Now it's the immigration department's turn.

Ferdinand Waldo Demara, Jr., 29, of Lawrence, Mass., today faces an immigration board of inquiry which will decide whether he is in Canada illegally.

Discharged Wednesday for fraudulent entry, Demara stepped directly into custody of the immigration department.

As it has in the past, secrecy surrounded Demara's parting with the navy. Reporters covered both gates at HMCS Naden throughout the afternoon, but his departure was missed. Presumably a navy staff car drove him to the immigration building, where he was interviewed by Inspector John Dorman.

Big Three Agree On Terms Of Bonn Contract

PARIS, Nov. 22—(AP)—West Germany's Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, met with the Western Big Three foreign ministers today to define the terms by which West Germany will get almost full sovereignty.

The Western ministers reached agreement on terms of a peace contract with the Bonn government this morning. They expected Adenauer's approval this afternoon.

The agreement covers only the general outline of a peace contract which the Western world is to sign with the West German Republic, abolishing the present occupation status.

Details of such problems as how many soldiers and airmen are to be recruited from among Germans to join the Western world's anti-aggression forces—and when—are being left to later talks by experts.

United States sources in Frankfurt, Germany, said agreement already has been reached on the main principles for granting West Germany near-sovereignty so she may participate as an equal partner in Europe's defence.

Americans here would make no comment on the Frankfurt report. One of Adenauer's close associates in Paris described the report as premature, but added that "there are the best prospects for full success." He said everything depended on today's meeting.

Adenauer met earlier today with the US High Commissioner to Germany, John J. McCloy.

7 Government Experts Check Sudbury Census

SUDBURY, Nov. 22 (CP) — A team of seven Dominion Bureau of Statistics experts arrived here today to check the August census figures which give Sudbury a population of 41,837.

City officials say it should be 50,222. Vernon Directories list the count at 52,054.

Adrien Lamoureux, Sudbury census commissioner, said today results of the experts' spot check are expected Saturday.

Firemen Save Husband In Holocaust

Flames 40 Ft. High In 22-Room House When Help Arrives

TORONTO, Nov. 22. (CP)—Bernice Geikie, 26, bride of a wealthy Oshawa manufacturer, was suffocated today when flames destroyed the couple's 22-room mansion in suburban North York.

The 72-year-old husband, W. R. Geikie, was carried from the flaming building by firemen. He is the retired president of the Pedlar People Limited, Oshawa sheet-metal firm.

Firemen said the blaze is believed to have started at dawn in a ground-floor den of the huge residence, "Donnybrook." Flames roared 50 feet above the building by the time firemen kicked through terrace doors and fought to the second storey.

"Mr. Geikie fought and kicked and pleaded with us to let him go to his wife," said Captain Charles Dawson of North York fire department. "When we got him outside we had to lock him in one of the trucks to stop him from running back in."

Two maids got out of the house safely.

Lost Her Chance

"If Mrs. Geikie had stayed on the back baleony, where she had taken her husband, she would have been alive now," said one. "But she went back and down the front stairs."

Captain C. Dawson of North York fire department said he managed to get Mr. Geikie out but couldn't find Mrs. Geikie "until it was too late."

"When we got there the whole building was on fire," said Capt. Dawson. "Flames were shooting 30 to 40 feet."

He said the building of brick and stone, was in a secluded area and estimated the house and contents to be worth about $100,000.

It was believed the fire may have started from a smouldering fireplace in the den.

Mrs. Geikie was her husband's nurse before she married him two months ago.

Won't Predict Cup Weather

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP)—The weather man today refused to predict what the weather will be in Varsity stadium for Saturday's Grey Cup football game.

Fred Turnbull, chief forecaster for the public weather office here, said "anything can happen."

"The cold polar masses completed a 600-mile gain to sink northwestern sections of the province deep into the cold zone. At 7:30 this morning, the scrimmage line formed up on the Kapuskasing-Soo position."

Mr. Turnbull said the warm tropical mass, although giving ground, is far from defeated. The surprise Texas attack he predicted Wednesday now is under way, with rain reported northward to Ohio.

His guess today was that the weather scrimmage line will form Saturday just about through Toronto. Toronto could have:

"Continuous rain or snow with temperatures near 30 or on the other hand—should the cold air be held only slightly to the north—a balmy spring-like day.

Young American Tries To Date Margaret Gets Royal Smiles Instead Of Dance

PARIS, Nov. 22 (AP)—Princess Margaret had an unscheduled meeting with a young American from Chicago at the swank Hertford hospital ball Wednesday night.

The brash midwesterner, 24-year-old Charles Norris, didn't get to dance with her. But he did get two royal smiles.

Norris, after seeing a newspaper picture of the Princess borrowed a black tie, dug 8,000 francs ($23) out of his pocket, and went to the swank affair.

Inside he admiringly watched Princess Margaret dance with a succession of young French noblemen. He decided he just had to meet her.

He walked up to a knot of male admirers surrounding the Princess, stretched out his hand, and said:

"Excuse me, Your Highness, I should like to present myself. I am an American and my name is Chuck Norris."

"I am delighted to meet you," said Margaret with a smile.

"I wonder," continued Norris, "whether I might have a dance with you?"

"I'm terribly sorry," replied the Princess, "but I seem to be booked up just now."

She smiled again as Norris bowed and backed away.

Wants House To Have Vote On Big Costs

Drew Thinks Gov't Going Too Far On Airfield Plans

OTTAWA, Nov. 22. (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Wednesday protested the announcement in Rotterdam by defence Minister Claxton that Canada will foot a bill of approximately $100,000,000 for the building of four or five new airdromes in western Europe.

That type of announcement, Mr. Drew said, should have been made in parliament because it represented government policy which should be debated by the people's representatives.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said he would not attempt to answer Mr. Drew's protest until he knew exactly what Mr. Claxton had said. But he would be "very much surprised" if the Defence Minister had said what Mr. Drew said he did.

"No such policy has been decided by the Canadian government."

The government recognized, he went on, that appropriations would have to be voted for such expenditure and that they must be debated in parliament.

Quotes Dispatch

Mr. Drew quoted a Rotterdam dispatch reporting Mr. Claxton's announcement before a press conference held in connection with the arrival of Canadian troops joining Gen. Eisenhower's North Atlantic army.

The Defence Minister also was quoted as saying Canada plans to send enough arms to equip two European divisions, making a total of five division equipped with Canadian weapons. Canada also is to build permanent barracks.

That, Mr. Drew said, is an "extremely important" announcement of policy which should have been made to parliament.

If it was the government's decision to build airfields at a cost to the Canadian taxpayer, the representatives of the people should be told so the matter could be discussed.

Mr. Claxton's announcement, he protested, is indicative of the government's tendency to "completely disregard" the fact that it is the executive with a duty to the represetnatives of the people when such vast sums are to be spent.

Not Most Bitter

The campaign was far from being the province's most bitter but it was by no means the quietest. Only occasionally did personalities enter the battle—and then only when Mr. Thomson's part-time work as a lawyer for the Department of Veterans Affairs came under discussion.

But the campaign also was notable for the criticism by both Progressive Conservative and CCF speakers of The Toronto Star's election coverage. The newspaper strongly supported the Liberal party and Mr. Thomson. Opponents said a "deal" had been made by which the Star would be given post-election favors in the event of Mr. Thomson's election. The Liberal leader and the Star denied this.

In the final speech of the campaign Wednesday night Mr. Jolliffe made his bitterest attack on his opponents.

He said the Progressive Conservative party "is still the party of George Drew, who of all political leaders in this country, despises and detests the laboring people of Canada."

Premier Frost had "denied to the people of Ontario a labor code with teeth in it" and in the face of "an appalling housing shortage" had initiated "no housing policy at all." The keynote of the premier's election campaign had been "complacency".

Mr. Jolliffe predicted personal defeat for Mr. Thomson and declared: "After Wednesday the Liberal party in Ontario, if any members are left, will be looking for another leader."

Mr. Thomson, a candidate in Ontario riding, which he represented in parliament, professed on the eve of the election to be more concerned with his 12-year-old Ayrshire cow, Red Bell, than over the outcome of the vote. Red Bell is "expecting," and there is a possibility that the calf will be born today. If so, the Liberal leader said this would be a good omen for his party.

Premier Frost, 56, spent the day before the vote making the rounds of Lindsay, where he is contesting Victoria riding. He visited 17 factories and shops, greeting nearly every person he saw. He stopped often to shake hands with pedestrians.

Banks May Start Five-Day Week

A five-day week for banks, proposed in a bill now before the House of Commons, was greeted with caution by a number of Peterborough bank managers.

If passed, they felt, the bill would untie the hands of banks, now bound by the Bills of Exchange Act which permits banks to close only on certain holidays.

At other times, banks are required by law to be open.

The bill is believed to be an amendment to the Bills of Exchange Act, which would allow banks to decide as a matter of policy whether they would operate on a five-day week.

Ford Warren, manager of the Bank of Montreal branch here, remarked that the idea "had been tossed around for some time."

So many offices are on a five-day week, he said, that banks have become involved with staff problems. That applies to women especially. They do not look on bank work as a career but more as a stopgap.

Therefore, said Mr. Warren, they are more likely to take a job which gives them Saturday morning off.

Another manager said he felt it applied more to banks in larger cities — such as Toronto and Montreal — where transportation is more of a problem. In Peterborough, he said, there are a lot of girls who consider a bank as a good place in which to work.

"It would be a matter of bank policy," he said of the five-day week.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

BREAK INTO COTTAGES

Thirteen cottages in the Long Beach area of Sturgeon Lake have been broken into recently, and Provincial Police from Lindsay are investigating. As yet there is no complete inventory of what is missing, but most of the loot seems to be fishing tackle and household effects. Six Lindsay cottagers report break-ins, and most of the others are Toronto cottage owners.

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP) — Stock market prices eased from morning gains in early afternoon dealings today.

Retail stores were unchanged but papers and foods dipped sharply.

Hockey Hours For City Schools

Hockey hours for the public school and separate school leagues have been arranged to the satisfaction of the Men Teachers' Public School Athletic Association.

Earlier this year the Civic Arena offered the hockey leagues time daily from 3:30 pm until 5 pm, but the teachers' association, in order not to take the boys from the classes too early and spoiling the afternoon's lessons, asked for hours from 4 pm until 5:30 pm.

This year the arena schedule is crowded to capacity, so much so that there is little time to clean and flood the ice for each group.

Compromise

But the association announced today that they had compromised with the arena officials. Hockey hours for both the public and separate school leagues will be on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 4 until 5:30 and on Tuesday and Thursday from 3:30 until 5.

The boys, leaving the classes, only miss a half-hour of school when hockey begins at 4 and an hour when games begin at 3:30.

In some cities the school boards have arranged taxis and buses to take the players to and from the schools and arenas. In Peterborough they go by bus, walk or if conditions allow by bicycles, but they pay their own way.

Already the hockey periods have started as the teams begin practicing for the season which begins December 5.

Car, Truck Collide Total Damage $255

A car-truck collision on Lansdowne St., at Western Ave., Wednesday evening resulted in $205 damage to the front end of the car.

Damage to the truck, driven by Percy Martin, 732 Young St., was estimated at $50.

The car driver, Harry Fry, of Lansdowne St., West, said he was driving west on Lansdowne St., and just as he approached Western Ave., he saw a truck crossing from the south to the north side of Lansdowne St.

Fry said he applied his brakes but was unable to stop before the two vehicles collided.

The car was jammed into the right side of the truck. Fry's car left over 60 feet of skid marks before the impact.

The truck driver, Percy Martin, said he had just taken on a load from a house on the south side of Lansdowne St., and was starting to proceed along Western Ave. when the collision occurred.

Constable Andre Dalton investigated.

"The time has come not merely for a confession of shortcomings. This is an occasion for a change of heart and determination to mend our ways."

Princess Margaret Dazzling At Gala Ball In Paris

PARIS, Nov. 22. (CP) — A laughing Princess Margaret, radiant in a white Christian Dior gown, danced here on Wednesday night to the strains of Russian gypsy music.

Her first dance was with British Ambassador Sir Oliver Harvey. That opened the ball, in aid of the British Hertford Hospital here.

The young Princess's second partner was Paul Auriol, son of the French President.

Then came young British diplomats and French noblemen. The first orchestra to play was from a Parisian nightclub.

Later another took over in a ballroom downstairs, playing Russian gypsy dances.

More than 1,000 guests, who had paid $22 each to attend one of the leading social events of the season, applauded as the vivacious Princess entered the ballroom.

The orchestra greeted the Princess with God Save the King and also played the Marseillaise before the dancing began.

The Princess sparkled from head to foot. With her white tulle gown she wore a diamond tiara and necklace. Mother-of-pearl embroidery shimmered on the bouffant skirt of the ball dress, which left one shoulder bare.

The ball was held at the Cercle Interallie, fashionable club for international parties, close to the British Embassy, where the Princess is staying.

Collapse

At least half the 138-page report quoted excerpts from the testimony of 43 witnesses, including Quebec Public Works Department officials who prepared the bridge plans and specifications, United States and Canadian engineering experts and three army men with knowledge of demolition.

No Explanation

The report said not one of the engineering experts—Ernest E. Howard of Kansas City, Dr. Clarence R. Young of Toronto, and Antonio Lalonde of Montreal—was able to explain the collapse.

The commissioners dismissed in a few lines any possibility that Dufresne Engineering Company Limited, the government's building agen and contracting firm for the concrete understructure, had been at fault.

Their report said four mills that supplied steel to the Dominion Bridge Company Limited for the Duplessis bridge met specifications.

It declared that the Dominion Bridge Company which worked out the detailed superstructure plans and fabricated the steelwork fulfilled all the terms of its sub-contract.

Approved System

The report said that expert testimony concerning the disaster that occurred in 30-below-zero weather and cost four lives "particularly approved the system of construction of the Duplessis bridge which was a welded bridge."

". . . It should be remembered there are a large number of bridges in Quebec province, identical to this one, which have borne loads as great and temperatures as low, and none of them has had a serious accident."

It went on to say that the expert witnesses considered the possibility of "microscopic fissures" having occurred in the steel-superstructure.

The report added their opinion was that collapse of the bridge because of such fissures was "very improbable though possible."

"Consequently," the report said, "it is conceivable there was a phenomenon as yet indefinite by which the Duplessis bridge might have had within itself the cause of its collapse—in other words that a phenomenon beyond present scientific and engineering knowledge occurred."

Sabotage Possible

The report said Dominion Bridge Company Limited brought before the inquiry "elaborate evidence" that sabotage might have caused the collapse.

The commission devoted 21 pages to evidence of the possibility of sabotage. It dealt with testimony of persons who heard the bridge fall and felt it "dance" shortly before, and the appearance as witnesses of three army officers.

Urge Ottawa Encourage UK Emigration

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (CP)—The Canadian government was urged Wednesday to encourage communities of British people to migrate to Canada.

George Murray, 62-year-old Liberal member from Cariboo in British Columbia, told the Commons that Canada's population must be increased and resources developed, if it is to be defended successfully.

"We should encourage not only individuals and families, but whole communities of Britain to migrate to western Canada and to share in the rich resources available there," said Mr. Murray.

He spoke after Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York South) asked the government to overhaul anti-inflation policies lest they plunge Canada into a depression. The policies, he said, may cure inflation at a price the people can not afford to pay—the depressing disease of unemployment.

The two members spoke in continued debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Higher Steel Production

Production Minister Howe said that expansion planned by Canadian steel companies is expected to increase the production of basic steel by about 33 per cent.

Mr. Howe also said the Canadian government has reason to believe that steps will be taken at the next session of the United States Congress to remove American restrictions on imports of cheese and other agricultural products.

In the main debate, Mr. Murray noted that Prime Minister Churchill plans to visit Washington and Ottawa in January. The Canadian government, he said, should take advantage of the visit to discuss immigration with Mr. Churchill.

People from the British Isles should be encouraged to settle in the rich lands of northern British Columbia and Saskatchewan.

Mr. Churchill also should be asked to earmark for export to Canada steel needed to complete rail links with undeveloped parts of Canada. A railway should be built, said Mr. Murray, from Prince George, BC, through the Peace River district to the Yukon and Alaska.

10,000 Unemployed

Mr. Noseworthy said there were more than 10,000 unemployed in Toronto at Oct. 31 and predicted the total will reach 20,000 before winter sets in. This was six per cent of the labor force and the National Employment Service felt anything over three per cent was "serious."

He blamed the unemployment on taxes on consumer goods, restrictions on credit and other fiscal measures.

Official bulletins from the employment service showed the number of jobless in Ontario is 50 per cent higher than a year ago, with unemployment in plants producing furniture, rubber, textiles, building materials, carpets, blankets, shirts, men's hats, work clothes, gloves and woolens.

Bicycle, Truck Hit

Eight-year-old Peter Rowley, 617 Union St., escaped injury when his bicycle and a truck collided at the corner of London and Bethune streets at 5:20 Wednesday evening.

The driver of the truck, Louis F. Campbell, 542 Bethune St., was driving west on London and just as he was turning south on Bethune St., the bicycle whizzed down the Bethune St. hill and collided with the right front fender of the truck.

The truck fender was dented. The front wheel and forks of the bicycle were wrecked. Young Rowley was not injured.

Constable Andre Dalton investigated.

The CBC Committee Shows Its Quality

It is instructive for the student of Canadian democracy to read the reports of the meetings of the Commons radio committee; this week the committee has been questioning the chairman of the CBC board of governors, Mr. Davidson Dunton, about some broadcasts which members of the committee think should not have been sponsored by the CBC; we are glad to see that Mr. Dunton has stood firm, and has repeated his often expressed opinion that it is the duty of a national broadcasting corporation to pay attention to all the principal interests and points of view in the nation. Several members of the committee, on the other hand, think that the CBC should not broadcast anything of an intellectually controversial nature. In other words, they do not think that anything should be broadcast which might disturb conventional thinking.

• • •

The special objects of criticism were a series of broadcasts given by the psychologists Dr. Brock Chisholm, Dr. Anna Freud, Dr. Carl Binger and Dr. Ewen Cameron. Another broadcast by Professor William Line of the University of Toronto was criticised as an attack on conventional political and religious opinions. A series of broadcasts lent by the BBC, and made up of a group of talks by the eminent philosopher Bertrand Russell, was condemned by some committee members; indeed one of them, a Mr. Leonard T. Stick of Newfoundland, described Russell's broadcasts as "more or less tripe." Another member, the Rev. Ernest G. Hansell, questioned whether taxpayers' money should be used to pay for such matter as the programs under criticism. Dr. Pierre Gauthier linked the psychologists' broadcasts with materialism and communism, and complained that Dr. Chisholm's lecture had in some way advocated birth control. Mr. Hansell also asserted that the talks abetted communism.

• • •

This sort of talks shows the intellectual quality of the men who make up the Commons radio committee. They are stand-patters, who want the thoughts of Canadians on all serious subjects to be imbedded in cement. It is interesting that several members of the committee are friendly toward many social reforms, and therefore they must believe that social progress is possible and desirable. But they are unfriendly toward intellectual reform, which is at least equally important. They do not want Canadians to hear anything on the CBC which might disturb what they apparently consider to be widely-held beliefs.

• • •

All of these gentlemen appear to regard themselves as defenders of religion; that is to say, they do not want religion to be discussed. They make the great mistake of assuming that religion thrives on inactivity of the mind, and that religion is going to be discredited or unseated if any opinion is expressed about it which is not utterly orthodox. This attitude does religion more harm than all the psychologists and all the philosophers in the world. It is an attitude which empties the churches and makes this country, supposedly Christian, a land in which religion is the preoccupation of a minority. People like Mr. Stick of Newfoundland, who described Bertrand Russell's talks as "more or less tripe," do not pronounce judgement on Russell, but on themselves and the people who elected them. And clerics like Mr. Hansell, who fear that modern psychology leads toward atheism and communism, pay religion a poor compliment; if it cannot stand up to criticism it is not worth having. Mr. Hansell would perhaps be surprised to know how many Canadians who are on the census lists as church adherents are, in their living and thinking, practising atheists. The notion, however, that atheism and communism go hand-in-hand is a mistaken one. It is no service to religion to cloud it with such sentimental and irrational twaddle.

• • •

As for psychology, it is undoubtedly true that many of the opinions of eminent modern psychologists are unpalatable to conventional thinkers; all advanced ideas in all ages have been so, and in all ages conventional and intellectually puny and confused people have tried to choke those ideas in the throats of those who asserted them. But the truth is great and will prevail. The shocking and revolutionary idea of yesterday is the commonplace today. We do not censure the CBC committee for disliking modern psychological ideas; it is in the nature of things that they would do so, for they are not elected to the Commons for the brilliance or receptiveness of their minds. But we do censure them sharply for their attempts to close the national broadcasting system to advanced ideas, while encouraging the broadcasting of wholly conventional and unexceptionable ideas. That is a form of censorship which should be inadmissable in a supposed democracy, and in effect it amounts to a tyranny of mediocrity on the air. And if they think that the broadcasts against which they complain have no listeners we can assure them that they grossly underestimate the intellectual curiosity of this country.

• • •

We can assure them also that if they are going to expose the chairman of the board of governors of the CBC to a humiliating cross-questioning about programs which they do not like every year, they will not long be able to get men of Mr. Dunton's capacity to fill that post. Men of ability can get positions in which their employers are men of their own intellectual stature. And it is not the wish of the people of Canada that the chief officer of the CBC should be a tame cat or a vendor of sugared mediocrity.

• • •

The CBC committee of the Commons has given an excellent example of what every walk of life would suffer under socialism—repeated attempts to dominate and call to account the leaders in every field by people whose chief concern is to retain political power, and who seek to do it by espousing old-fashioned notions which they seek to elevate to the rank of unchanging truths. The CBC is owned by the people of Canada and it is supposed to be for the benefit of the people of Canada. We shall none of us be benefitted by a thought-censorship imposed from Ottawa.

Increased British Immigration

Already more immigrants have come into Canada this year than in any other post-war year. The total to the end of October was 129,885. In the twelve months of 1948, the biggest post-war year, 125,414 people came from abroad to live in Canada. When the figures for the last three months of this year are added to the 129,885, the total may reach the Minister of Immigration's estimate of 150,000.

One of the encouraging elements in the immigration this year is the large number who have come from the United Kingdom. As we noted editorially last Thursday, British immigrants last year were relatively few, only 13,434, in a year when 130,238 Britons emigrated to various countries. In the first nine months of this year 21,935 United Kingdom immigrants came to Canada. It is still not a great number, in comparison with the total emigration from Britain to other countries, and even when compared with the number of immigrants who have come into Canada this year (to the end of October) from northern European countries—45,834. British immigration during this period amounted to about 17 per cent. In the year 1946 it was 85 per cent. of the total. The proportion of British immigrants to immigrants of other nations has been constantly less since the war. Perhaps this year will mark a change.

The Government's plan of assisting prospective new Canadians in their ocean fares is helping to increase the flow of immigrants. The British Government's easing of its restrictions against taking sterling out of the country (a small measure of leniency taken in the summer) is helping British immigration to this country. Although the new British Government is faced with a critical dollar shortage, it is favourable to United Kingdom immigration to Canada, and may, with Canadian pressure, increase the allowances of money which Britons coming to Canada may take from their homeland accounts.

No More Dominion Elections

Last Friday the Special Committee appointed to study the Dominion Elections Act presented its report in the form of a Draft Bill. Here is the first clause of the new Act, as devised by the special committee:

HIS MAJESTY, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:—

1. (1) Section one of The Dominion Elections Act, 1938, chapter forty-six of the statutes of 1938, is repealed and the following substituted therefore:—

"1. This Act may be cited as The Canada Elections Act."

(2) The said Act is further amended by striking out the expressions "Dominion election" or Dominion general election" wherever they appear therein and substituting therefor in each case the expressions "election" and "general election", respectively.

(3) The said Act is further amended by striking out the expression "The Dominion Elections Act, 1938" wherever it appears in the Schedules thereto, and substituting therefor in each case the expression "The Canada Elections Act".

For the last two years we have repeatedly called attention to the slithery campaign at Ottawa to rid Canada of the word "Dominion," a campaign which became bold and barefaced this year. As ruthlessly and quickly as possible Government departments are wiping the historic, unique title of "Dominion" from this land, and Parliament is meekly acquiescing in this ignoble, ungrateful and entirely unnecessary act of savage historical sabotage. The proposed amendment to the Dominion Elections Act is merely one further act of ravage in a totalitarian series.

Jeep Road To Lavi Fair

By RAWLE KNOX
(In Simla, India)

IT seemed that every man in this enclosed mountain world was on the road. You could still find women spreading out the red and yellow corn to dry in the farmyards and small children driving cattle up winding, precipitous paths after watering them in the Sutlej several thousand feet below.

But the men were driving laden mules along the dust-clouded tracy above, or were walking with a few goat-skins for sale on their backs, or were working the road as coolies humping piled loads in long conical baskets. They were travelling to the annual Lavi Fair at Rampur, a confused little town on a bend in the blue-green river and once the capital of the Bushire State; it lies seventy miles beyond Simla on the Hindustan-Tibet road and a little over a hundred miles from the Indian frontier.

NOT only traders but politicians were on the march. Himachal Pradesh, the Himalayan province where snow will soon close many of the higher passes, is the first State to poll in India's protracted General Election. The Congress candidate in Rampur was impatiently waiting for his loudspeakers, which showed the marks of their sufferings. Three times they had fallen (also with my luggage) from the top of a bus into a ravine on the way from Simla to Thanadar, where the motor road ends. Only some strenuous mountaineering by the conductor had saved them.

At Thanadar "the Kumar Sahib" rolled up in a jeep and a whirlwind of dust, and the peasantry emerged from every corner to salaam to him. The Kumar Sahib is the brother ("Only", said a member of the ruling household down his nose, "by a concubine") of the late Maharajah of Bushire; he is a tough Jully hillman who at once organized a train of mules and coolies to carry the makings of a huge feast which he intended to give next day in Rampur to the visiting Chief Commissioner of Himachal Pradesh.

"God," said the travel-stained Kumar Sahib, "I could do with a drink." The next time I saw him he was sitting, solemnly arranged and attired, on a Congress election platform listening to booming platform speeches on prohibition through those battered loudspeakers.

✧ ✧ ✧

BEFORE India's independence, Himachal Pradesh was a jigsaw of thirty-five Princely States, all suspicious of one another and more than suspicious of any British political agent who should try to come and discover what was going on. Some of these States would have been ridiculous had they not been iniquitous. Thus the old palace of the ruler of tiny Kumar Sain stands with its peeling pagodas topping the high pines on a carefully levelled piece of mountainside, and next to it the new palace, modelled apparently on those tin-roofed dance-halls that are sometimes attached as an afterthrought to failing seaside hotels; and beneath and around the palaces huddles an abomination of tumble-down shacks.

None of these Princes believed in roads save for a few miles of comfortable transport round their capitals; their ancestors had fled to these heights to escape Mogul invaders, and they inherited a wholehearted fear of being followed. In 1947 their absolute powers disappeared and their States were merged into Himachal Pradesh, administered by a Chief Commissioner, a post at present held by a thoughtful Oxford man who is a sculptor in his little spare time, Bhagwan Sahay.

✧ ✧ ✧

BHAGWAN SAHAY came to Lavi Fair in a jeep. This may not sound anything very special, but the road on which he travelled had never been tested before over its whole length; work on it had begun only six weeks before and in very many places, as it winds its fiendish way thousands of feet sheer above the Sutlej, its width is a bare six inches wider than that of a jeep. (I can shudderingly swear to it; I travelled back that way.) Bhagwan Sahay was making a public gesture to show that the promise of his chief and executive engineers, G. Nangia and S. K. Bose, that their three radial roads from Simla will open up Himachal Pradesh for lorry traffic within a year is well on the way to fulfilment.

✧ ✧ ✧

BEFORE 1947 few missionaries did anything for this part of India. There were occasionally good rulers, such as the present Raja of Mandi, whose State is merged in this union. He would almost certainly have won as an independent one of Himachal Pradesh's two seats in the central Parliament had not Nehru himself asked him to withdraw in favour of Rajkumari Amritkaur, the central Health Minister, who has elected to stand where over 90 per cent. of her constituents suffer from venereal disease. Occasional good rule has been supplanted by Chief Commissioners with a real desire to improve conditions of the filthy, tattered peasantry.

Encouragement of potato- and fruit-growing on this wonderfully productive soil is bringing in unheard-of wealth. Road-building is driving out mule transport, which is not only slow but ruinously expensive. In this part of India a blind man could detect the progress that is being made.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT is, perhaps, at least a back-hand compliment to the Administration that few country visitors to Rampur bazaar seemed to have any idea who was running their State. "What does it matter to us—so long as we can carry on with our business." This was a fairly general reaction. Men who feel themselves ill-ruled are usually quick to discover the origin of their discontent.

The grime-encrusted Mongolians of the border State of Chini who were being swindled daily by selling their wool weight for weight against sweetmeats and spices did not care. In the narrow, paved bazaar stinking of goats and rare foods cooked with too little fat, where you had to use your elbows hard to make any progress at all, business was roaring. The round little Socialist candidate, Mr. Devikanand, stood outside his general store waving his party's voting symbol—a tree: "Come under this tree which has given you shelter all your lives and protect your religion from Congress, which favours the Muslims and Harijans." It seemed a queer speech for a Socialist. But queer things were happening. At a mock election held a few weeks before, the Congress candidate had carefully rehearsed his followers to put their voting slips in a box marked with the Congress symbol—two yoked bullocks. To his dismay they returned with papers still in their hands. "They were fat bullocks of the plains," they answered his protests. "They would be no good in the hills."

✧ ✧ ✧

IN the Rampur Palace, completed in 1925, which sprouts stonily in Victorian Gothic and, above flowers into Tibetan timberwork. I had tea among the dustcovers with Mr. Negi. Mr. Negi is Secretary to the Queen Mother, who lives almost alone in the Palace in fitful light that struggles through the stained-glass windows; he has also recently been elected Member for Chini to the new Himachal Pradesh Legislative Assembly, beating the Congress candidate in a 14 per cent. poll.

"My policy," he said in one mouthful, "is to bring peace, tranquillity and happiness to Chini, and to see that the wishes of the people are reflected in the policies of their rulers."

Bhagwan Sahay says nothing about the coming of democracy to Himachal Pradesh, but he gives the impression of being able to deal with it.

THE BATTLEFIELD EQUALIZER?

An Unreasonable Judgement

(OWEN SOUND SUN-TIMES)

MRS. Irene See of Kingston has been ordered to be at home by 9 p.m. each night for two years.

It is an unreasonable order—because it tends to defeat its own purpose.

Mrs. See and her husband were charged with car theft. Her husband was convicted. The charge against Mrs. See was reduced to joy-riding. She was given a two-year suspended sentence, placed in charge of her grandmother and ordered to get a job to support her two children.

So far, so good. But why, in the name of common-sense, add the condition that she must be at home by 9 p.m.—for two years?

Mrs. See is only 18. For a year, while her husband serves his sentence, she will face a difficult task in providing for their children. No sympathy need be wasted on her. She deserves punishment. But surely the terms of her suspended sentence should not be such as to make it highly improbable that she will refrain from attempts to evade them.

Before two years are up, Mrs. See is going to be very, very weary of working every day and spending every evening at home. Even "lifers" in modern penitentiaries are provided with some recreational facilities. If some provision had been made for a relaxation of control after restrictions had been observed for a period, the sentence would have been reasonable. But we fear that, some time after the return home of her husband if not before, Mrs. See is going to feel an urge to attend a movie, or go to a hockey game, or spend an evening playing bridge at a friend's home. And just as soon as she does she breaks the terms of her probation and is liable to a jail sentence.

The more we see of the type of conditions which magistrates and judges attach to suspended sentences, the more we doubt whether suspension of sentence ought to be permitted at all. In most cases the culprit would be much better off to accept the jail term, serve it and emerge completely free of the asinine restrictions imposed by the courts.

Wrong Quote

(THE REGINA LEADER-POST)

THIS is in justice to Kipling, a man prone to demand it for others. The Kipling heartbeat was humanely rhythmic, the voice authentic. And when carelessness mars it, all one needs to do is let the man speak for himself in exact quotation.

In his picture of developments in the Colombo plan published on this page some days ago, Mr. Nick Cavell of Toronto wrote: "I have always admired Kipling as a story teller, but not as a philosopher, and no piece of his philosophy was more off the beam than his much quoted 'East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet.' East and West have been meeting for centuries." They have indeed.

Go to the source, Kipling's famous Ballad, and one finds that this is precisely what Kipling did say, in his own inimitable way. Mr. Cavell has carelessly fallen into the current habit of limiting himself to line one in the key verse. The heart of the matter emerges in the second half of the verse.

Here is the verse complete.

"O East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet,
Till Earth and Sky stand presently at God's great Judgment Seat.
But there is neither East nor West
Border, nor Breed, nor Birth,
When two strong men stand face to face, though they come from the ends of the earth."

Shakespeare wrote: "To gild refined gold, to paint the lily." He had no idea of "gilding" the lily. Pater wrote: "To burn always with this hard, gemlike flame", not the "pure, gemlike flame" beloved of certain lady novelists. Paul did not say that money is the root of all evil. He said that love of money is the root of all evil.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jesus departed from thence, and came nigh unto the sea of Galilee; and went up into a mountain, and sat down there. And great multitudes came unto him, having with them those that were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus' feet; and he healed them: insomuch that the multitude wondered, when they saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to be whole, the lame to walk, and the blind to see: and they glorified the God of Israel. (Matt. 15: 29-31.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father? . . . Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake. (John 14: 8, 9, 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Now thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savour of his knowledge by us in every place. (II Cor. 2: 14.)

✧ ✧ ✧

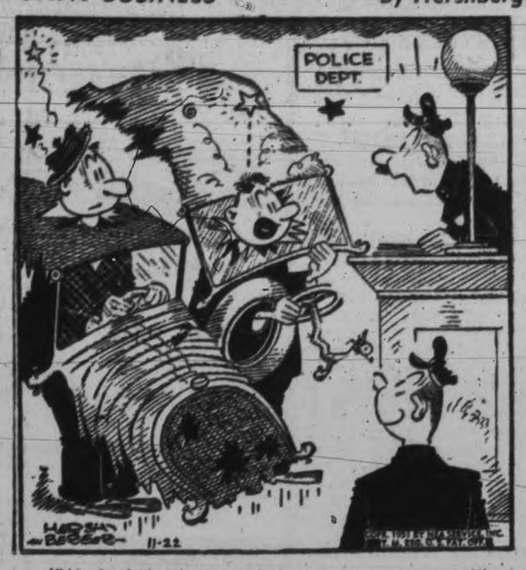
And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward: not that we are sufficient of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God; who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. . . .

Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory even as by the Spirit of the Lord. (II Cor. 3: 4-6, 17, 18.)

Relic Of Colonialism?

(Montreal Star)

The question of a Canadian Governor-General is up again, stimulated by an article in Saturday Night from the pen of Mr. Frank Flaherty, a veteran member of the Ottawa press gallery. We suspect Mr. Flaherty did not have his heart in his job, for the real basis of his argument appears to be that a Canadian does not hold what he describes as "the most imposing and most lucrative public office in Canada." Take-home pay seems to us an odd and degrading basis on which to discuss the Governor-Generalship. It is, however, Mr. Flaherty's choice, not ours and Mr. Flaherty would probably say he is only reporting what he hears in Ottawa. If this is so, Ottawa and our politicians are getting pretty small.



Mr. Flaherty goes on to say that the fact a Canadian does not hold this post is a "relic of colonialism." How silly can we get? We have all the essential attributes of nationhood. We make our own policies and we are responsible only to ourselves for them. It is, we think, time to stop talking about "relics of colonialism." It is a mark of our own immaturity to be afraid of such shadows.

How many other nations share this fetish? The United States, of British colonial origin, has become proud of its "colonial" period. It has colonial schools of architecture, art and letters and is proud of them all. It does not try to pretend that the 13 original states were not once colonies. It boasts of the fact.

This prattle about colonialism and its twin bogey, imperialism, may be all right for the Egyptians and the Iranians, but it's time we grew up. Of course, we have relics of colonialism, and we are going to have them to the end of our history. We don't wipe them out by appointing a Canadian as Governor-General. Furthermore, we hope it won't happen.

Canadians Overseas Find Famous Nazi War Song New Link With West Germans

By DOUG HOW.

HANNOVER, Germany (CP)—Lili Marlene is still haunting the hearts of soldiers. She is proving more than a successor to the durable siren of another era, the Mademoiselle from Armentieres.

For this sweetheart of song of the Second World War not only is as bewitching, as tormenting, as ever but she has become a force for reconstruction.

She is a sort of cross between diplomat and nurse of the spirit. She helps to heal the wounds and bridge the gaps left by the war, between the Germans who discovered her and the Allies who came later but no less devotedly to her shrine.

She descends nightly, for instance, upon the steamship Canberra which is shuttling across the Atlantic to bring shiploads of Canadian 27th Infantry Brigade soldiers to Europe. Aboard, she receives the joint homage and fealty of the former enemies.

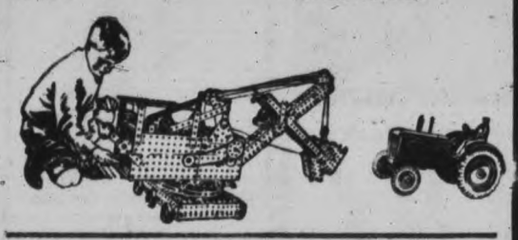
Germans in the Canberra's crew and the Canadian soldiers who are her passengers have found that the war, rather than perpetuating their differences, provides a common denominator for conversation for recollections, for swapping of experiences. Of all the bonds across the bitter years, Lili Marlene is the most subtle, the most pervasive.

Germans and Canadians share Lili without jealousy or hesitation and, indeed, take mutual pleasure in her charms. There are a number of veterans of Rommel's Africa Korps among the more than 100 Germans in the crew. They seem content to have their Lili wooed in song by young Canadians, many of whom were 10-year-old schoolboys when Lili was sung at El Alamein.

One of these Germans, a blonde former NCO, plays the cello in the ship's four-piece orchestra. No other song runs through the ship as often as this soft, haunting tune about the girl who waits for her soldier underneath the lamplight beside the barracks gate.

The Germans play the music, the soldiers sing and Lili steals aboard, a tender mystic wraith. As the music of her mystery spreads, men pick it up and hum or sing it in English or German.

Some of them just look out across the sea or stare into the ceiling and let the gentle Lili murmur in their blood.



For, with all her new and broadened achievements, Lili remains strongly personal.

The basketball belles who cavort of a Friday evening in the YWCA gym return to action on the morrow, starting at eight. It's a twin bill featuring Nurses vs. CGE, and Black's vs. Neill's. Both city league fixtures, and plenty of good hoop action is expected. Schedule runs another month and then they have a layoff till after the first of the year when competition resumes. Men cagers go in two tussles, too, Saturday eve in the YM, starting at seven. Both are postponed jousts and we don't know what the order is yet. Clubs in this house loop are Collies, Terriers, Bulldogs and Hounds, all good canine cage monickers.

Somewhere recently we were reading of a winter baseball league of triple "A" calibre in Puerto Rica. Begins late in October and ends in March with a "world series" between Puerto Rica, Cuba, Panama and Venezuela. They draw crowds of 16,000 and more, real, rabid fans who yell from start to finish. Night and day games there draw well in the hot clime. The players love to hit a homer, as they circle twice, once around the bases and again around the stands. You see the second trip around is a lucrative one as admiring fans shower them with money. With ball in Japan, too, it looks like this game is spreading and is a year-around sport.

Junior Hockey Opens

Junior "B" hockey makes its seasonal debut at 8.30 tomorrow (Friday) evening in Civic Arena here. It's Belleville Hawks, coached by Red Doran, playing Johnny Godfrey's local Oddfellows. After dropping a 5-2 decision to the Quinte crew on Belleville ice early this week, the IOOF-ers will shoot the works to even that up and get their first win of the young schedule. They've got a fast, husky squad (including a good Lakefield line) and should have a big season, but there are no soft touches in the group. A hefty Friday night crowd of fans expected for this streamlined puck fixture.

* * * * * *

Regarding their previous meeting, Scribe George Carver of Bella Villa writes: "It was a typical Belleville-Peterborough junior clash with the teams caring not for the borderline between rough and rugged play, and not the least reticent about tossing their torsos in the foe's direction, with little or no regard for legality. The home boys were up against a hard-hitting, fast-skating Peterborough squad, one improved nearly 50 per cent over their game in Kingston. It was anybody's game till late in the third. Don Barclay turned in a goalkeeping performance that was shaded only by that of young Wasson of IOOF. Both teams gave ample promise of good things to come through the schedule."

Hawks Still Fly High

Not too many on deck here last e'en to see a keen senior "B" contest, won in the dying minutes by Belleville 6-5 o'er the Petes. A toughie to drop. Jumbo Goyer was the payoff hero after being held well in check most of the melee. Petes were down in the first frame but led to end the second after a smart showing, Leforte robbing 'em of several more. It ties Hawks for first place at the moment with Eagles, two points up on the Petes. Locals battled hard and played fine hockey the last two periods. Their defence all looked good as did Harding in goal. Collins played his head off, West was high scorer, Gus Leonard was effective, Mason notched two and Jake Wade went well. But so did the undefeated Hawks. Eagles go Friday in Belleville.

* * * * * *

Several other senior "B" puck items on hand. Petes have protested last Monday's game with Eagles here, claiming Bob Parnall of the RCAF at Trenton is not eligible to play here this season—Belleville being his closest senior "B" centre. Eagles argue that if he was eligible, while at Trenton as a serviceman part of last season, to play for Eagles here, the same still applies. This matter and a requested transfer of Honey Tompkins from Petes to Eagles will be dealt with shortly by the OHA sub-committee. A 2.30 meeting Sunday in Belleville will redraft the senior "B" schedule (since Queen's dropped out), Frank Buckland advises. The latter last eve presented the 1950-51 club most valuable player OHA trophy to Ray Harding. Can't say yet who plays here Monday. Chum Fryia is sidelined with a fractured thumb from Monday's tilt.

YOUTHFUL, SPIRITED HOCKEY is on the Friday night Civic arena menu at 8.30 when the battling Triple Links will make their debut before the home fans against Belleville. Although winless in two starts, the IOOF club plan to begin the season right with a win. Coach Johnny Godfrey plans his attack (top, centre) with assistant captain, Roy "Army" Armstrong, (left) and captain, Brian "Red" Robinson, (right). A Lakefield product, now an IOOF veteran, Red Wasson, (centre) will again be chief guardian in the twine. Again it's Lakefield products (third photo) as the IOOF has on one line, Kevin Heffernan, (left), Gord Coyle (second from left) and Bill Twist (right), all of Lakefield, shown before Wednesday night's practice with manager Len Symonds. Headed for his best year is Peterborough product (left) PCVS football star, Bill Stewart.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Hawks Edge the Petes 6-5 To Tie For Top Place On Vern Goyer's Late Goal

High-scoring Vern Goyer of Belleville Hawks was held to a single marker here last night but it was the payoff tally. His shot with less than three minutes to go before the end of the third period gave the Quinte crew a 6-5 verdict over the Petes and pulled them into a top-place tie with Eagles in the OHA senior "B" group standing. The crowd was not large for the speedy, clean and close contest, Hawks getting six of the nine penalties. They led in the first frame 3-1, but Petes outscored them 4-1 next heat for a 5-4 lead. Hawks tied it early in the third and won in the dying minutes of play, their fourth straight win.

Led In First

As indicated by the period scores, the Doran-coached Hawks had a fair margin on play in the initial inning, but it was all Petes the next chukker as Jim Ellis' charges fairly peppered goalie Maurice Leforte. He stopped a golf swinging shot by Junior West on the check and had to take 10 minutes out for repairs in this stanza. Play was fairly even in the hot third period, but Belleville got the tying and winning goals. Both netminders made a flock of brilliant saves in every chapter.

The Desjardins - Jones - Barrett trio was hot in the first heat to figure in on all three Belleville goals. Desjardins led the team in sniping with two goals, as one each went to Goyer, MacDonald, Wardhaugh and Jones. Barrett clicked for three assists and Jones for two, as one each was counted by Desjardins, Doren, Goyer, Moher, MacDonald and Semark. Curly Mason topped the homsters with two tallies, Ted Collins, Junior West and Ron Horton having one each. Two assists were marked to West and Gus Leonard, as Garvey got one.

A Hot Drive

Hawks flew early but a West-Horton thrust was close and Leforte hurt his arm stopping a hot drive by Wade. Jones opened scoring from Desjardins and Barrett on close-in combination and flip shot. Desjardins made it 2-0 right away with his linemates aiding in a scramble. Collins got one back in a scramble at the opposite end, Garvey helping, and then Jopling drew a boarding penalty. He was back when Desjardins got in once more to bat home a rebound, Jones and Barrett building up the play. Semark was waved away for high-sticking just before the gong to end the period.

The Petes poured in to dominate play opening the middle stanza. Gus Leonard came close and then set up West for a score. Gus got another but it was ruled in the crease. Mason tallied then neatly from West and Gus Leonard to tie up the count. The Floyd-Garvey-Collins trio threatened a space and Leforte kept kicking them out. Horton's backhander from outside defence went in on a screened shot to put Petes up. Desjardins was gated for tripping and the goalie took time out with a facial cut. Doran later almost counted on a breakaway. MacDonald and Earl Leonard got the nod for roughing and were back when Wardaugh tied it up on a swell passing play with Doran. Day sat it out for cross-checking and the Petes cashed in for a goal, Mason from West in a scramble, to go up once more. They were peppering Leforte mercilessly but unable to beat him again when the frame finished.

Tied It And Won

Trumble drew an early charging penalty but got back on the ice when MacDonald tied the score at 5-all on in-close fast combination and corner shot, Goyer and Moher being in on the sweep down the rink. Jones came close again, and Dugan pulled a nifty solo dash. Garvey was chased for slashing, followed by Wardhaugh for tripping. When Garvey returned, Ellis' outfit ganged up hotly but couldn't get the winning marker. Later play was up and down fast with each goalie in turn on the jump to stop hot rubber from point-blank range. Goyer, acting as a floater, picked up a pass on a play started by Semark and MacDonald, dipsy-doodled around the defence fast and pulled the goalie out in a neat finish with the winning goal. The Petes battled furiously then but it ended that way. Semark was bumped hard and left the game, and Mason missed in close just at the windup

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Carl Voyles, reiterating his belief that Canada should have a football commissioner, said Wednesday he thought Frank Clair, coach of Toronto Argonauts, would be the ideal man for the job.

Voyles, coach and general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four, said in an interview that "what football needs in Canada is a commissioner who knows the game from all aspects. One who is honest, fearless and who could rule with an iron hand."

Voyles, who came here last season from Brooklyn Dodgers pro football club, said that Canadian football has outgrown the present system in which the Canadian Rugby Union has the last say and the eastern and western leagues run their affairs independently.

In Toronto, Clair said he is flattered by Voyles' suggestion but "my first love is coaching and I think I'd prefer to stick with it."

Vancouver Combines of the Inter-City Lacrosse League said Wednesday they will recommend that all senior clubs withdraw from the Canadian Lacrosse Association because they have insufficient representation in the association.

George Gray, Combines secretary said at Vancouver "we will recommend that all senior leagues band together to form a new organization—one capable of running the Mann Cup playoffs."

He said the CLA was under continuous fire for "bungling this year's Mann Cup and Dominion championships here. Game sites were constantly shifted from one arena to another and attendance dropped sharply.

The recall of rookie left winger Jack McIntyre from Hershey of the American Hockey League was announced Wednesday night by general manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins. McIntyre suffered a broken collarbone in a pre-season exhibition game against Hershey.

Ross said that Pentti Lund, who suffered an eye injury 10 days ago against Chicago Black Hawks is out of the hospital. The mask has been removed from his eye—injured accidentally by a stick—and Lund is expected to resume skating in a week or so.

At New York, veteran Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland caught up with back-pedalling Charley (Doc) Williams of Mahwah, NJ, in the second half of their 10-rounder Wednesday night to win a split decision at St. Nicholas Arena. Bivins, a 2 to 1 favorite, outweighed his lanky rival, 184¼ to 180½. Only 848 fans paid $1,848 to see the bout which was telecast and broadcast.

At Bremerhaven, Germany, Sgt. Curtis T. (Curt) Simmons said Wednesday he hopes to be out of the army and back to the United States next summer in time to resume pitching for the Philadelphia Phillies. Simmons, 22-year-old ace of Philadelphia's 1950 pennant winners, said his term of enlistment ends next June and "unless war comes or something else happens I should be back in the United States by May."

Bruins Tie Rangers 3-3 As Leafs Snap Slump Wallop Chicago Hawks 5-1

By The Canadian Press

A shifty young rightwinger enjoyed the best night of his National Hockey League career Wednesday night, and all at the expense of his former team mates. Dunc Fisher, a 24-year-old product of Regina, spent two seasons with New York Rangers, before he was traded to Boston Bruins last year. And Wednesday night the 165-pound winger personally accounted for all Botson goals as the Bruins battled to a 3-3 deadlock with Rangers in New York.

The stalemate enabled Bruins to creep to within a single point of third-place Montreal Canadiens. Rangers stepped into a fifth-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks, who dropped a 5-1 verdict to Toronto Maple Leafs in the only other game.

Fisher scored once in the first period and twice in the third. In every case, his goal put Bruins in front.

Paul Ronty fired the tying marker for Rangers at 15:05 of the final period.

Ties It In Second

After Fisher tallied the only goal of the first frame, Herb Dickenson, playing his first NHL game since being called up by Rangers from Cincinnati Tuesday tied it up in the second.

Fisher put Bruins ahead again early in the furious third period, only to have big Ed Slowinski pick up Don Raleigh's rebound and ram the puck home to make it 2-2.

The second-place Leafs, snapping out of a scoring slump, were paced by the No. 1 combination of Ted Kennedy, Sid Smith, and Tod Sloan. That combination counted 79 goals in the regular schedule last year. Each got one on Wednesday night.

The win brought Toronto to within five points of the pace-setting Detroit Red Wings.

Harry Watson and Danny Lewicki—who returned from Pittsburgh and replaced centre Max Bentley, out with the flu—were the other Toronto marksmen. Clare Martin saved the Hawks from a shutout the final frame.

Marking his first appearance for Chicago Wednesday night was centre Sid Finney, called up from St. Louis Flyers of the American League. The Calgary, Alta., puckster was used sparingly in the first and third periods.

OHA Referees Have Busy Night 38 Minors, 12 Majors Dished Out

By The Canadian Press.

Harassed hockey officials must have thumbed through just about every page in the rule book on Wednesday night. The Ontario Hockey Association was a riot.

There were two games in the Senior A loop and one in the Junior. Here are the penalties handed out: 38 minors, 12 majors, three 10-minute misconducts and three match misconducts.

In one game alone, the junior battle between Windsor Spitfires and the seventh-place Waterloo Hurricanes, a total of 108 minutes in penalties was meted out. That included 10 majors and a misconduct.

The last-place Spits came from behind to win the game 6-5.

In another penalty-ridden contest, Stratford Indians edged Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 3-2. That game featured three match misconducts, among other minors.

However, in the other tilt, players concentrated more on scoring goals than going for players. Sarnia Sailors vacated last place in the senior circuit by virtue of a 4-3 victory over Brantford Redmen.

Third-period Donnybrook

The junior game at Windsor was the most explosive seen in years and was highlighted by a third-period Donnybrook.

Bob Brown led the Spits, scoring twice while singletons went to Willie Hass, Rod McElroy, Joe Zorica and Elmer Skov. Jim Connelly and Paul Oliver potted two for Waterloo and Gerry Horton added the other.

The Stratford win was the fourth straight over Kitchener-Waterloo. Jack Thaler scored twice for the winners, his second goal proving to be the winner. Dinny Flanagen scored the other. Doug Verity and Ed Stankiewicz were Dutchmen marksmen.

An unassisted marker by Rolly Beauchamp at 6:27 of the final period gave Sarnia their triumph. Stu Cousins, Ted Garvin and Ollie Haddon added the others with Bill Hnatiuk scoring two for the losers. Ab Holota hit for the final marker.

Players take a night off tonight but seven games will be played Friday.

Dumart Placed On Inactive List

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—Manager Lynn Patrick of the Bruins disclosed Wednesday night that the veteran Woody Dumart has been placed on Boston's inactive list due to the roster limit but remains on the payroll.

Dumart, who will be 35 next Dec. 23, has been hitting the banquet circuit making speeches for the Bruins while the National Hockey League club is on the road.

The left winger, veteran of 13 NHL seasons, appeared in only seven of the Bruins' 17 games to date, mostly as a penalty killer, and had only one assist. Last season Dumart scored 20 goals and collected 21 assists in 70 games.

With Dumart inactive, the only member of the old Kitchener line still with Bruins is centre Milt Schmidt who at 33 still is going strong. Bobby Bauer, right winger of the famous line, left the Bruins several seasons ago.

Selkirk Rink Captures Mixed 'Spiel

Augmented by rinks from Haliburton, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Lakefield and Keene the Peterborough Curling Club held its first open mixed rink bonspiel on Wednesday. The winning rink was skipped by Vern Selkirk, Peterborough, closely followed by J. Curtis of Fenelon Fals, and R. McIntosh of Bobcaygeon.

The entry was not as large as expected and maybe there were reasons for it, but nevertheless it was a good 'spiel.

As is always the case there was some real good curling and some not so good; some surprises and upsets; but that's curling.

During the evening refreshments were served in the lounge by the lady curlers. It was an appreciated gesture.

Well Handled

All rinks played the usual three 10-games and the bonspiel was well handled by chairman Dr. M. McCartney and secretary I. Moore.

The ice was in good condition and the 'spiel was all in fairly good time.

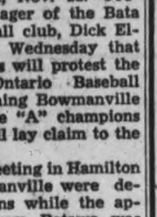
Batawa Plans To Protest

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 22.—President and manager of the Bata Shoemen baseball club, Dick Elston announced Wednesday that the Shoetowners will protest the ruling of the Ontario Baseball Association naming Bowmanville the intermediate "A" champions for 1951 and will lay claim to the title.

At an OBA meeting in Hamilton recently, Bowmanville were declared champions while the application fee from Batawa was refused and refunded to them on the grounds that the lateness of the season would not permit further competition.

Elson points out that the first-round playoff between Batawa and Bowmanville had started with Batawa winning the first game in Batawa when Bowmanville refused to continue. The OBA then ordered Bowmanville to meet Crowland with the winners to play Bata for the title. After Bowmanville ousted Crowland, they claimed the title and once more refused to meet Batawa. At a sub-committee meeting in Hamilton last month the matter was laid over until the next executive meeting which was held last Saturday.

The Bata club president claims he wrote OBA President Fred H. Young at Chippawa three letters regarding the date of the meeting so that representation could be made, but received no reply.



Meanwhile the intermediate "A" championship trophy is being forwarded to Bowmanville.

He entered the hospital in August for treatments of a detached retina of the left eye. The 52-year-old manager lost the sight of his right eye about four years ago.

Riders Win Eastern Title Wallop Imperials 43-17

By ERWIN FRICKE

OTTAWA, Nov. 22. (CP)—It hasn't been the fashion in the past for the capital to fuss about its Rough Riders departing for the football wars. This year's Eastern Canada champions however, have found particular favor with Ottawa's football faithful and a razzle-dazzle sendoff is scheduled.

The Ottawa Junior Board of Trade is behind the big football cavalcade which will see off the Riders to Toronto and the Grey Cup final against Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday.

The 13-car parade will feature Mayor Charlotte Whitton in one car with Rider officials, coach Clem Crowe riding in splendid isolation in another and the players spread over the remainder.

Riders qualified as the east's representatives in the east-west classic by defeating Sarnia Imperials 43-17 Wednesday before a slim crowd at Lansdowne Park here. They are the seventh Ottawa team to be eastern champions since the inception of the Grey Cup final in 1921.

Not Enthusiastic

Coach Clem Crowe wasn't particularly enthusiastic about Wednesday's contest against the all-Canadian Imperials.

"A five-cent game with five-cent officiating," said the one-time coach of the professional Buffalo Bills. His dim view was partially caused by a shaking up handed out to Riders' fine pass-catching outside Anton Baldwin, and defensive half Ted McLarty. They suffered ankle and knee injuries but the word today is that both are likely to be in shape for Saturday's game.

Half back Pete Karpuk, who played a fine running game and colected two of Riders' seven touchdowns, though Sarnia was guilty of clipping and piling on after tackles in the first half.

"We could have played it a lot tougher," said Karpuk. Snap Don Loney and Howie (Touchdown) Turner also said they thought Imperials were unnecessarily rough.

Red Douglas, Sarnia coach, said his ORFU champions "really did not get going until the last half."

Sy Murano, big 220-pound Sarnia middle, didn't think Riders "are so tough. They just do things right. It's the passing not the ground attack that earns them their touchdowns."

Not Too Impressed

Also not too impressed by the Ottawa ground attack was Pistol Pete Martin of Regina. The Saskatchewan Roughrider lineman, hobbling around on crutches as the result of a foot injury last month, scouted the game for the Western champs.

"Unless Bob Gain wasn't putting out, he is highly over-rated," said Martin. "Our Big Boy Martin Ruby will eat him."

Gain, Rider import from the University of Kentucky, did not do much tackling, but he earned eight points on seven converts and a kick to deadline, and blocked one Sarnia kick.

Matt Anthony and Pete Karpuk bagged a pair of touchdowns apiece for Ottawa with Steve Hatfield, Bob Simpson, and Turner each getting a major.

For Sarnia, George Curtis was impressive at quarter while Perk Johnston, Corky Duchene, Archie McCaffer, Eric McKeever, and Johnny Chorostecki made good gains. Duchene scored all three Sarnia touchdowns, the last on a 30-yard gallop through a hole in the left side of the Ottawa line.

Most of the Imperials' scoring came after the Riders had run up a 19-1 edge by half-time.

Champion Canes Win Opener By 8-5 Score

COBOURG, Nov. 22.—The famous Cane brother hockey team started on a win streak again this year, after winning the Factory League title last season, by whipping CGE, 8-5, in the opening doubleheader of the Cobourg Factory League here Tuesday night.

A stranger to the Cane crowd, Rollie Campbell and another outsider, Frank McIvor, moved up from the MOHA juvenile team for the game and along with Neil Cane, led the winners with five goals to their line's credit. Bus and Doug Cane had a hand in the other counters, the veteran Bus getting two.

Bud McIvor, Tommy Hogan, G. Buck and Brian Hart led the losers.

The second game of the twin bill went to Matting, 6-1, over Cooey Arms. Jack Bevan with three, Bill Bowen and Chumb McIvor were the winners' marksmen. Timer Fox got the lone Cooey goal.

School Awards Received By Queen Mary

The regular midweek senior assembly at Queen Mary Public School featured the presentation of athletic awards and the Horticulture Shield.

Principal O. M. Steer welcomed the visitors and told of the outstanding interest taken in sports and civic affairs by the late G. N. Gordon who donated the trophy won by the Queen Mary boys in the soccer season.

On presentation of this trophy to Wayne Haig, the captain of the Intermediate soccer champions, Mr. W. B. Gordon congratulated the boys and their coach, Mr. J. Weir, on their team work. "There is nothing that fill teach the essentials of citizenship better than the playing of a well-coached team," said Mr. Gordon.

On behalf of the Home and School Association, the president, Mr. Wm. Ovens, presented the boys on the winning team with crests. Mr. Ovens pointed out that the passing of the ball so that some one else may score is illustrative of a co-operative effort necessary in every day life.

Receive Awards

The field day winners were given their awards by Mr. L. McNeil and Miss A. Curtis. Jack Dafoe accepted the trophy on behalf of room one, who won the highest percentage of the possible points allowed. This trophy was presented for annual classroom competition at the field day by Mr. Steer. Crests were presented to the field day champions: Ray Brady, Ann Merrett, Brian Clarke, Sylvia Graham, Jean Anne Dobbin, Catherine Ovens, and Bob Gatfield.

Mr. T. Bacon, second vice-president of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, made the presentation of the shield awarded annually to the city school which has the best kept and most beautified school grounds. Mr. Bacon noted that this was the second time in succession that Queen Mary had won this shield. "Thorough and regular checks were made on school grounds throughout the year and following these the shield was awarded," explained Mr. Bacon. On receiving the award Principal O. M. Steer praised the boys and girls for their pride in their school. A special tribute was paid to the janitor Mr. Smith, for his care of the grounds.

BERNIE GEOFFRION did score one goal against the New York Rangers in Montreal last Saturday night. He just missed another as Chuck Rayner lost the puck which dropped dead after it struck his glove.

TORONTO, Nov. 22 — For the second consecutive year, Imperial Bank of Canada has won a Socrates award for "consistent excellence" in newspaper advertising.

The Socrates awards are given by Vincent Edwards and Company of New York after checks of advertising in all North American newspapers.

Winning of the award means that Imperial Bank's 1950-1951 advertising program was rated among the best 20 financial advertising campaigns in North America.

The prize-winning advertising campaign, which appeared in the Examiner, showed how various industries contribute to providing a better life for Canadians and how regular deposits in a savings account make this better life possible.

VON Nurses Make 535 Visits

Peterborough VON nurses made 535 visits during October, Miss Harriet McGeary, nurse-in-charge, reported at the VON board of directors meeting Wednesday afternoon.

During the month 53 new patients were visited. There was a drop of eight new patients as compared to October, 1950, but there was an increase of 27 visits.

Miss McGeary also reported that the future policy of the VON will emphasize quality rather than quantity of visits. This change in policy was decided at the conference of 27 Central Ontario VON branches held in Toronto October 12.

The nurse-in-charge gave a brief outline of the Civil Defence Committee's plans for preparation on the local level for atomic warfare. These plans include various phases—fire-fighting, monitoring teams, communal feeding centres, care of infants and aged, first-aid and all subsequent medical and nursing care.

The CDC plan will be organized in relation to three major fields — target areas, mutual aid areas and reception areas.

500 Blue-Jeaned Regina Fans Whoop It Up To Hand Out 15,000 Loaves Bread At Parade

REGINA, Nov. 22 (CP). — Regina's Union Station looked like the scene of a cattlemen's convention Wednesday as close to 500 white-Stetsoned Saskatchewan football fans boarded two special trains that will carry them to Toronto for Saturday's Grey Cup grid classic.

Football fever here was never higher. There was no holding the whooping crowd of Toronto-bound fans and the hundreds more that packed the station to see them off.

It was the noisiest, gayest and most colorful crowd that Regina has seen in many a year.

The fans were decked out in the distinctive white Stetsons, plaid shirts and blue jeans that will spell the west to the men of Toronto.

The invasion of Toronto is being as carefully planned as a military manoeuvre, with mayor-elect Gordon Grant in charge.

Thirty costumed Regina girls will distribute 15,000 miniature loaves of Saskatchewan bread during the Grey Cup parade through Toronto. Also distributed will be 10,000 "Saskatchewan Roughrider extra" editions of The Regina Leader-Post.

BEST FROM WEST — Saskatchewan Roughriders are working out in Toronto in preparation for their battle for the Grey Cup on Saturday. Here's the probable starting line-up shown during a practice.

Jackie Robinson Plans Ask Substantial Raise

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22 (AP) —Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodger flashy second baseman, says he'll ask for a substantial raise in 1952.

He would not disclose to an interviewer Wednesday how much he wants, but it is believed he will hold out for at least $50,000. He was paid $35,000 this year and last.

Robinson, 32, figures he has "at least two more years of major-league baseball left in my system."

FAMOUS SCHOOL

The Franklin Institute founded at Philadelphia in 1924 is the oldest school in the United States for study of mechanical arts.

Western Boys' Jinx Continues

TORONTO, Nov. 21 (CP). — Saskatchewan Roughriders, already crippled for Saturday's Grey Cup final here, Wednesday suffered another blow.

Del Wardien, a great defensive back, sprained an ankle in practice and probably will be absent when the Roughies tackle Ottawa Rough Riders in the national football classic.

"I don't know what can happen to us next," said coach Harry Smith. "That leaves us with 28 ball players. What hurts is that most of the guys we need are out or badly on the limp."

Wardien turned his ankle when he hit a soft spot in the field. Other injuries include end Jack Russell, taking heat treatment for a battered knee; halfback Al Bodine, limping on a swollen ankle and centre Don Ettinger and quarterback Glenn Dobbs, both wearing heavy foam rubber covering over battered ribs.

The western champions brought a large assortment of footgear with them. It includes "lumberjack" shoes with corrugated rubber soles and felt uppers, just in case there's an icy field Saturday. They also have running shoes for a hard, dry field and big cleats for mud.

Meanwhile, Toronto got ready for a mammoth downtown parade Saturday morning with floats, bands, cheerleaders, cowboys and beauty queens.

Cmdr. Turner Dies

TORONTO, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Comander Albert Charles Turner, who commanded the Royal Canadian Navy establishment at Toronto during the Second World War, died Wednesday. After the war he worked for the Ontario government.

RCAF TAKES OVER—Group Capt. Edward Hale, 37, of Hamilton, Ont., affixes his name to the log book to officially take over for the RCAF the RAF station at North Luffenham, Rutland, England. Looking on is the former station commander, Group Capt. Ramsey Rae. The North Luffenham base is the first Canadian air base established outside Canada since June, 1946.

Britain To Ask US To Promise No A-Attack Without Consultation

LONDON, Nov. 22 — (AP) — Prime Minister Winston Churchill is expected to ask President Truman for assurances that United States bombers will launch no atomic attack from their British bases without prior consultation with Britain, informants said Wednesday night.

The Prime Minister Tuesday refused to promise left-wing Labor members of the House of Commons that he would seek similar assurance that no atomic attack would be made in Korea without consultation with Britain. He said it was not proper to discuss what he might talk about with the President when he visits Washington in January.

The informants said Churchill will link a demand for assurances concerning use of the British bases with his wish for a full exchange of atomic secrets with the United States. The wartime exchange of information stopped in 1945.

Churchill rejected Wedesnday a demand of Emrys Hughes, left-wing Labor, that Britain turn the United States out of its atomic bomber bases in this country.

He said arrangements for the US air force to use its bases "will continue so long as required in the general interests of world peace and security."

Social Security Can Be Overdone

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (CP)—One of the Deans of the Senate, 78-year-old Senator J. M. King, said Wednesday he hopes Canada never institutes a "cradle to the grave" plan of social security.

Such a plan, the British Columbia Liberal told his colleagues, simply means "slavery" for the people of the country which imposes it.

Senator King, who practised medicine in British Columbia in the early days and later as a minister in the MacKenzie King government, instituted Canada's first old-age pension plan in 1926, spoke in supoprt of the government's new old-age security legislation. It provides $40-a-month pensions to all 70 and over without a means test beginning next January.

Senator F. W. Gershaw (L, Alberta) said something still remained to be done for those permanently crippled or disabled, many in middle-life. He suggested that Senators and others not so much in need of the new pension might assign it in whole or in part to some such person in his district.

His suggestion was applauded by other Senators, many of them already beyond or approaching the pension eligibility age.

Want Self-Sufficiency

FINCH, Ont., Nov. 22 (CP).—Transport Minister Chevrier expressed the hope tonight that the day of Canadian self-sufficiency in oil "may not be far distant." Canada is producing more and more oil, he said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Stormont Holstein Breeders' Club in this dairying centre 40 miles southeast of Ottawa.

Newfoundlanders Vote 2nd Time As 10th Province

ST. JOHNS, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland elects its second government as a Canadian province Nov. 26, but it may be two or three days before it learns officially what party has been returned.

Slow returns are the outcome of the island's 1913 election act which calls for the collection of ballot boxes from all polling stations and their delivery at 25 district returning offices before counting starts. In the event of water transportation becoming icebound through severe weather, it might be weeks before some isolated areas are heard from.

Premier Joseph R. Smallwood's election announcement, coming when the legislature's first legal term was only half completed, caught the Progressive Conservatives with only a skelton organization and brought a fruitless protest to the Lieutenant-Governor on the surprise move.

56 Candidates

Fifty-six candidates were nominated Nov. 16 for the 28-seat assembly. Twenty-four seats are being contested, Liberals having been returned by acclamation in the remainder. The acclamations leave 24 Liberals, 22 Progressive Conservatives and six Independents in the election fight.

The Liberals were returned to power in 1949 with a wide majority in Newfoundland's first provincial election. They won 22 seats against the Progressive Conservatives' five. One Independent was elected. Mr. Smallwood was already interim premier, appointed after confederation had ended a 15-year period of commission government.

By dissolution, Liberal ranks had been reduced to 20. Finance Minister Herman W. Quinton was appointed to the senate and his seat left vacant.

Resources Minister Edward Russell became an independent after claiming he could no longer support the government's economic policies. Samuel Drover, fired from the party when he accused the government of failing to keep election promises in his northern district of White Bay, was later welcomed back to the government side.

The Liberals are seeking a mandate for their policy of granting dollar guarantees to industrial groups, mostly European, to get new indsutries started here.

The opposition, while not against the scheme in principle, urges careful investigation before pledging the public credit to support private groups.

Campaigners in this election are up against the same geographical difficulties which delay election returns. In many roadless corners of this island's 6,000 mile coastline, they have to use motorboats or even dog teams to contact the voters, and one Progressive Conservative candidate is riding around the remote Labrador hustings in his own plane.

NEW PROPOSAL—Maj.-Gen. Henry Hodes and Admiral Arleigh Burke look over a map of the proposed truce demarcation line in Panmunjom, Korea. The Reds are expected to reply soon to the latest UN proposals.

Coughing Spasm Blamed For Crash

A coughing spasm was blamed by Alfred Davis, 272 Rogers St., for an accident on Hunter St., at Burnham St., at 8:30 Tuesday night.

Davis told constable Andre Dalton that he was driving east on Hunter St., and on coming to Burnham St., looked across to a service station on the south-east corner of the intersection.

As he did so, Davis said he started to cough violently and crashed into the rear of a parked truck on the south side of Hunter St.

The front end of Davis' car was damaged to the extent of an estimated $225. The car collided with the left rear corner of the parked truck owned by Allen B. Munn of R.R. 4 Peterborough.

Air Superiority Curbed By Migs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg said Wednesday the Allies' "complete air superiority over Korea is now being seriously challenged by the Migs but so far the situation is in hand."

The United States air force chief of staff told a long and grim press conference that possible "serious potentials" exist. Among these he listed the fact that "overnight China has become one of the major air powers of the world."

Vandenberg added that the Peiping regime obviously has attained that status "as the direct beneficiary of another power possessing the essential industrial and technical resources that Communist China itself lacks."

Two Local Electricians With No Permits Fined In Court

"Surely you must realize that this will not do your business any good," Magistrate W. R. Philp told two local electrical contractors convicted in police court Wednesday of carrying out electrical installation work without obtaining a permit.

"No workman would surely like to hear it said his workmanship was dangerous, faulty and hazardous," said Magistrate W. R. Philp.

The men: H. A. Mason, of 62 Murray St., and N. Farthing of Rose Ave., pleaded guilty to two charges of installing oil burners without obtaining a permit as required by the Power Commission Act. The two men operate under the name of Veterans Electric.

Mason pleaded guilty to a third charge on the same offence charged against him personally. The first two charges were laid against Mason and Farthing jointly.

Magistrate Philp fined each of the men $15 and $1.25 costs on each of the two charges. Mason was ordered to pay a fine of $15 and $2.50 costs on the third charge.

Fred Hardwick, an inspector under the Power Commission Act testified he learned of two oil burners that the men had installed in May and July without first obtaining a permit.

Usually Co-Operate

Questioned by crown attorney John A. Bradshaw, Mr. Hardwick said that in the two instances, the wiring could have resulted in a power failure and was also a fire hazard. Mr. Hardwick said that "as a rule, these men are fairly co-operative but two of the three installations (under the charges) were very hazardous."

Mr. Hardwick said that after the men received subpoenas on the charges, Mr. Mason took out eight applications for permits on Tuseday afternoon.

In asking for more than the minimum fine, Mr. Bradshaw said "it isn't a question of collecting the small fee for the permit. It's a question of protecting the public and I would ask something more than the minimum fine."

WEATHER FACTOR

Weather and water conditions on Pacific streams have a marked effect on natural propagation of salmon.

Ever buy a car from this angle?

SURE, a trim new Buick makes a mighty pretty picture when you see it in your driveway, or watch it wheel by.

But if you could get a mechanic's-eye view of this big, broad beauty as it sits on a lift, you'd see an impressive picture of rugged brawn that makes Buicks give such a good account of themselves on the road.

You'd see the full-length torque-tube drive that firms the whole power relay system, and steadies your going like a giant hand beneath you.

You'd see all four wheels cushioned by stout coil springs that are completely service-free, practically breakproof—and a principal reason for the ever-level Buick ride.

But mainly, you'd see the massive foundation that backbones every Buick—the deep, wide, X-member frame that's rugged as a rock, and a brute for strength.

So when you look at the beauty of a Buick—the big mileage power of its valve-in-head Fireball Engine—and the money saving ability of its Dynaflow Drive*—don't overlook the tough stamina that goes with it all.

And whether you're looking at a Buick CUSTOM, a Buick SUPER or a mighty ROADMASTER, don't overlook the fact that a '51 Buick, with all its heft, costs less per pound than any other car of comparable size, structure and weight.

Better come see us first chance you get—and find out what a smart buy this is—from every angle.

NO OTHER CAR PROVIDES ALL THIS:

Fear Hunter May Be Dead

CAPREOL, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—The search for 28-year-old Lawrence Fortier went into its fourth day today. Searchers advanced the theory he may have died of exposure.

Fortier's mother-in-law, Mrs. George Yensen, said she has little hope he will be found alive.

But Mrs. Jacqueline Fortier, the missing hunter's wife, was more optimistic. She said he is big, rugged and calm.

"He's the kind of man who keeps his head. I think he must have made his way to one of the cabins in the bush and is waiting there until someone comes for him."

Fortier, a Canadian National Railways employee, has been missing since Sunday in the Whistle Mine area north of here. It is a region spotted with abandoned mine shafts and trappers' cabins.

Another hunter, Sylvestre Rivard of Sudbury, was lost in bush 15 miles from here Monday. He spent a comfortable night by a fire, and back-tracked his way to safety Tuesday.

SHE'S HAD ENOUGH—Taxpayers, arise, and take a tip from the quiver of Shirley Eckley of Oakland, Calif. Garbed and armed as "Miss Taxpayer," Shirley, in her own charming way, "terrorized" the annual meeting of California County Tax Assessors at Palm Springs. Here, she prepares to let fly at three hapless assessors, Maurice Enderle, Crowell D. Eddy and Frank Burchfield, as they beg for mercy.

Ease Restrictions On Isotopes

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (CP)—Canada Wednesday eased restrictions on the export of radioactive isotopes.

The Atomic Energy Control Board announced that under new procedure international distribution will be under the control of the Eldorado Mining and Refining Company, the government's agency for uranium sales.

Sales procedure has been eased so that future sales can be negotiated directly between Eldorado and the applicant country. It no longer will be necessary for the importing country to appoint a representative in Canada to handle details of shipment and payment.

However, it will be necessary for the government of the importing country to certify as to the use of the isotopes and the qualifications of the user.

But it will no longer be necessary for the importing country to agree to having its laboratories using the isotopes open to inspection by Canadian scientists.

Smallwood Cabinet Seeks Newfoundland Re-election

By The Canadian Press

The Liberal cabinet of Premier Joseph Smallwood seeks re-election en bloc along with its one new minister in Newfoundland's Nov. 26 general election.

New member of the cabinet is Gregory Power, chairman of the Liquor Control Board since 1949, who was sworn in as finance minister after the legislature was dissolved Nov. 3.

He will seek a seat in Placentia-St. Mary's, won by a Progressive Conservative in the last election. Mr. Power made his first political appearance in 1949 when he was defeated in the federal election by Progressive Conservative W. J. Browne in St. John's West.

Premier Smallwood himself holds the portfolio of economic development, a big plank in his election campaign.

Rest Of Lineup

Samuel J. Hefferton, education minister—a journalist, was named interim education minister and won his seat in the 1949 general election, Newfoundland's first as a province.

William J. Keough, fisheries and co-operative minister—was natural resources minister in the 1948 "caretaker" government and after winning his seat in St. George's-Port Au Port in 1949 was named to his present portfolio.

Herbert L. Pottle, minister of welfare and acting minister of natural resources—a former judge of the juvenile court, was elected in the 1949 contest and named to the cabinet as minister of public welfare.

Leslie R. Curtis, attorney-general—a senior law partner, Mr. Curtis was appointed attorney general in the 1948 government and gained a seat in the Twillingate riding in the election of 1949.

James J. Spratt, provincial affairs minister—a former member of the St. John's Municipal Council for 16 years, the last four as deputy mayor, Mr. Spratt was appointed to the cabinet following the 1949 election.

Edward S. Spencer, public works minister—a former highway engineer, Mr. Spencer was named to the cabinet immediately following the 1949 election. He is a member for the Grand Falls district.

Philip S. Forsey, supply minister—a former school teacher and a strong advocate of confederation, Mr. Forsey was named acting minister of provincial affairs in Mr. Smallwood's interim government. He won his seat in Burin and took over the portfolio of supply after the election.

Oliver L. Vardy, minister without portfolio in charge of housing administration—a manufacturer, Mr. Vardy was a member of the St. John's Municipal Council for eight years. He was named to the cabinet without portfolio in 1950.

James R. Chalker, health minister—was in business for himself before entering politics, gaining election in 1949. He was named to the cabinet shortly after the contest.

Charles H. Ballam, labor minister—a long-time unionist and one-time president of the Newfoundland Federation of Labor, Mr. Ballam was named to the labor ministry in the 1948 cabinet. He won election in the Humber constituency.

Note To Thieves

FRANKFURT, Germany (Reuters)—Anti-theft signs are appearing on American-owned cars here saying: "No need to break in—this car is not locked." Police favor the growing habit of leaving car doors unlocked and nothing of value inside the car.

Kill Huge Crocodile

DARWIN, Australia—(Reuters)—Cattlemen have killed a monster crocodile that for years had terrorized the Wickham River area 400 miles southeast of here. Nearly 25 feet long and six feet around, it had killed several horses by grabbing their noses at the riverbank and hauling them in.

Battle Discrimination

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Joint Labor Committee to Combat Racial Discrimination is urging a bylaw with teeth in it. They recommend fines and temporary licence cancellations for firms convicted of refusing to serve persons because of race, creed or color.

Tough On Santa

MEDICINE HAT, Alta—(CP)—Like fire departments in most Canadian communities, firemen here now are busy fixing donated and broken toys for Christmas distribution. But Santa's local helpers complain many of the toys they are getting are "broken beyond repair."

POW's In Canton

HONG KONG, Nov. 22 (AP)—An unconfirmed dispatch published by the pro-Nationalist Kung Sheung Daily News Wednesday said Chinese Communists sent at least 80 United Nations prisoners of war to Canton early this month. The paper said the purpose was to impress South Chinese with Red "victories in Korea."

FLOOD WATERS OF THE RAMPAGING PO RIVER and its tributaries in Northern Italy isolate a small island near Rovigo where hundreds gathered to escape the deluge. Later a wall of water five miles wide rolled toward the Adriatic Sea, completely engulfing the city of Adria and driving the 36,000 people of Cavarzere and Loreo from their homes. The death toll is mounting and a strong earthquake was recorded in Undine, northeast of flood-threatened Rovigo. Escape from the stricken areas is being made by every available conveyance.

Find J. R. Smallwood A Doughty Vote Campaigner

By The Canadian Press

The unpredictable Joseph R. Smallwood leads his Liberal party for the second time in Newfoundland's Nov. 26 general election.

The man who became premier after campaigning for confederation surprised everyone, especially the opposition, with his snap election call.

Mr. Smallwood, 52, who claims his greatest support comes from "the toiling masses" is known as a fiery little man whose brain "always remains as cold as ice."

When Newfoundland's national convention met in 1946 to discuss future forms of government, "Joey" took his seat as the only member to be elected on a "union with Canada" platform.

He fought a bitter, uphill battle to get a delegation to Ottawa to study what basis might exist for confederation. When the convention turned down a motion that union with Canada be recommended to the British government as a possible future form of government, Mr. Smallwood immediately began collecting signatures for a petition asking that confederation be placed on the ballot. It was.

With three choices the issue went to the people on June 3, 1948 and ended in a stalemate because neither Confederation nor responsible government received a majority. Commission government, which had run third, was dropped and the remaining two were voted on in a second referendum on July 22.

He used cars, boats and a small airplane to get around the country to press his case. His opponents accused him of "selling out his country," of being a "Judas Iscariot" and a "Quisling."

When the big day came, Confederation—and Smallwood—won by about 7,000 votes.

At 18, Smallwood was acting editor of the St. John's Evening Telegram and later was known to Newfoundland's radio audience as the "Barrelman." He wrote seven books on the island and visited most of its 1,300 communities.

He is married and has three children.

Mounties Give Big Thrill To Two Children In London

LONDON, Nov. 22 (Reuters)—For 10-year-old Peter Smith, weak from a nine-week illness, two Canadian mounties today stepped out of the pages of an adventure story right into real life.

His pallid cheeks flushed as scarlet as the tunics of the two mounties when his mother opened the door of their home in a London working-class district Wednesday morning and he heard a Canadian voice say: "Corporal Ouimet, from Canada, Ma'am."

Cpl. J. T. Ouimet and Const. T. A. Matthews, two of the four mounties who accompanied Princess Elizabeth back from Canada, had given up their planned sightseeing tour on their last day in Britain to pay a visit to a schoolgirl and then to Peter Smith.

It all began last Sunday when Peter, bitterly disappointed at being unable to see the mounties, wrote to: "The one I picked out because I like the look of him best."

He wrote:

"Dear Corporal Ouimet,

"I hope you are getting on all right in London and I hope it stops raining. I cannot come to see you as I have been ill in bed for nine weeks, but I used to listen on the radio about the mounted police and would love to see your uniform."

Peter's eyes opened wide as Const. Matthews sat on his bed and Cpl. Ouimet sat on a chair at the bedside.

Before calling on Peter the mounties went to see eight-year-old Jane Wilson who wrote and asked the mounties to tea to thank them for "looking after the Princess."

Tom Gard's Note Book

Autumn always brings a number of tasks to the home owner, especially if he is a gardener. A few days ago I noticed such a man preparing for winter. He had already constructed a reel for his garden hose, impressing upon me the need to drain it after use, then to store it dry in order to prevent the rubber from rotting. Well, his idea is worth copying.

HAMPERS FOR CLOTHES

His wife was just as handy, in fact she had converted a bushel basket into a clothes-basket by enamelling the outside white, and the inside lined with colourful chintz. This seemed to be the envy of her neighbours.

DOOR-MAT FROM BOTTLE TOPS

There was a youngster in the home, the kind that thoughtlessly ran in after school without wiping his feet. Dad soon corrected this by collecting bottle tops, then in a few minutes he made a door-mat by nailing the tops in even rows on two pieces of pine joined with a pair of cleats. I noticed that the tops were nailed closely together.

ORANGE CRATES FOR SHELVES

This chap turned out to be quite an amateur craftsman, and he liked everything in order. He was very proud of two shelves he had constructed from orange crates, one to serve his purposes in the basement, and the second one, nicely finished, for the living room.

Union Of Germany Difficult Job After Division Of Past Six Years

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN—(AP)—Germany is a modern humpty dumpty. Despite all the talk about national elections and unity, can Germany be put together again.

For six years the nation has been split. East Germany has gone the Kremlin's way. West Germany has been integrating itself with the free world.

Between the two is more than a geographical line. The Elbe River frontier might as well be the Styx.

With sustained pressure, the Russians and their German-born henchmen gradually have transformed the life of 18,000,000 people in their zone until it has become almost un-German.

Meanwhile, the 48,000,000 people in the West have hurried impatiently back to traditional Germanism—respect for constituted law and order, respect for titles and authority, respect for the profit motive and above all fierce pride in their own culture and destiny.

In the East zone, Stalin is the public hero; in the west, Bismarck, Bethoven, Stresemann—Germans all.

Must Act Soon

If national unity were to come soon, many observers believe it would be possible to wipe out the differences in life in the two divisions of Germany relatively quickly. But in another five or 10 years, these same thinkers are convinced, the Red imprint might be indelible on many East Germans.

There are vested interests in the impoverished east who have much to lose and little to gain by unity with the West.

The politicians, for example. The ruling Socialist unity (Communist) party leaders would be almost certain to be shelved and they know it. Some might have a less pleasant fate when they got around to explaining conditions in the uranium mines, the concentration camps for political prisoners and their collaboration with the Soviet secret police.

Youthful Mayor

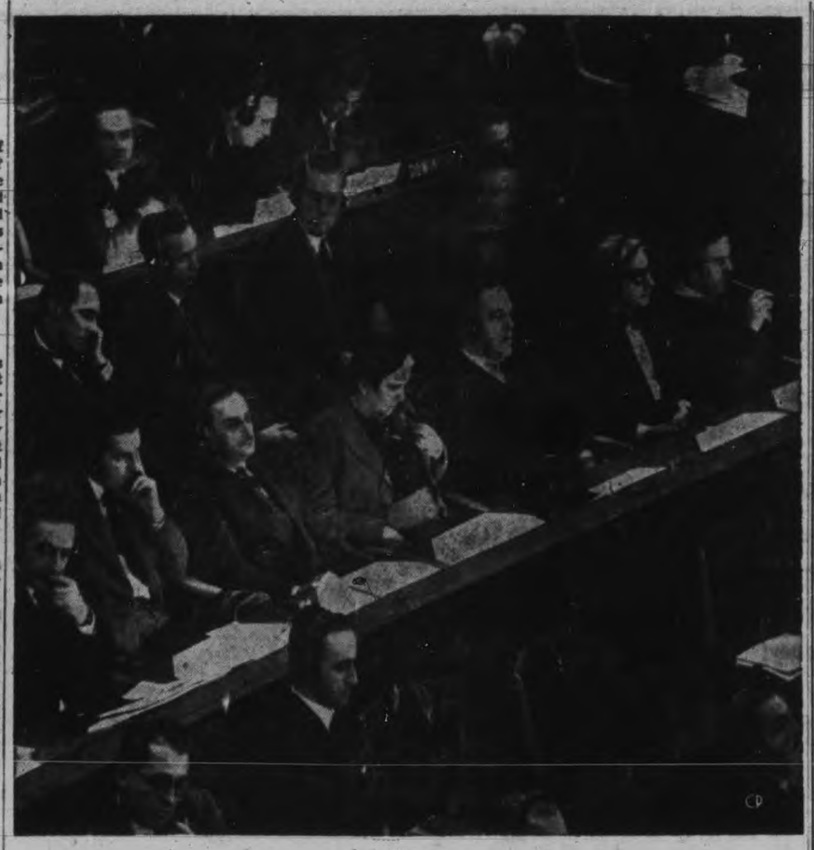
Then there are the elite youth. The Communists have elevated some young people in East Germany to a pre-eminent position. More than 300 mayors of small towns and villages are no older than 21 or 22.

West Germans aren't so zealous about all this accent on youth. They saw it during the Hitler regime.

There are, too, the courts and legal machinery of the East, in which "people's judges" and a host of "people's attorneys" are entrenched.

The farmer in the East is harder to predict. The old "gutscher" who owned a large acreage is out of business. The Reds reformed the land and parcelled out the big estates in driblets to small farmers. The old landowner would be grateful for his return to gentry status but what of those who had shared his wealth?

The average workman in the eastern cities obiviously would relish Westernization. They would be relieved from political "mass demonstration," forced contributions to Communist campaign chests, and fear of a sabotage charge for some trifling error in a factory.



Keeping Dossier

More than a million Communists rule East Germany. The West thinks they have much to answer for and that may be point number one for the agenda on unity day day. An organization of Soviet zone judges and lawyers who had to flee to the West is keeping a giant dossier of "illegal acts" in the East. "Indictments" are filed agasint th eday they can be served.

A unified Germany would mean a unified Berlin, which once more would be the seat of government. The new Reichstag would be a steamy place. Anti-West deputies, and there probably would be some, would scream about the Ruhr producing for the "Imperialists." German Nationalists would never get tired demanding return of Silesia, Pomerania and East Prussia, not to mention a little matter of multi-billion Soviet reparations.

It would be noisy.

Many Berliners doh't really expect to see the day.

2 Brothers Killed

CAMPBELLTON, NB, Nov. 22 (CP)—Two young brothers were fatally injured Wednesday night when struck by an automobile as they walked along a highway. Allan Coutang, 8, and his brother Joseph, 11, died in hospital shortly after the accident.

COL. JAMES M. HANLEY, chief of the Far East Command's war crimes section, who said he revealed that 5,500 US prisoners of war had been slaughtered by Chinese Communists because he thought UN soldiers at the front ought to know what they are up against.

Car Hits Tree 3 In Court Three Hurt

Auto Total Wreck, Three Fined In Police Court

A carload of out-of-town youths attended a dance here Wednesday night. One is in hospital with a broken wrist. Two others were slightly injured in a car crash, and three of them were fined for their evening's escapade when they appeared in police court today.

Three of the youths were injured when the car in which they were speeding east on Hunter St., went out of control and crashed head-on into a tree, as the driver tried to turn sharply north on Stewart St.

The accident occurred at 11:30. The car was completely wrecked. Damage was estimated at $950.

Fractured Wrist

Most seriously injured was William Kerr, 20, of RR 3, Bowmanville. Kerr was taken to hospital where it was learned he had a fractured right wrist and a cut upper lip. His condition is described as good today.

Neil Guscott, 493 King St., Oshawa, another passenger in the car was also taken to hospital and given out patient treatment for abrasions to his right leg.

The driver, Robert Bickle, 18, of 95 Church St., Bowmanville, was also given out patient treatment for lacerations to his forehead above his right eye.

In police court today, Bickle pleaded guilty to careless driving and driving without a chauffeur's or operator's licence.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw asked for more than the minimum fine on the careless driving charge. Magistrate W. R. Philp ordered Bickle to pay $30 and $2.50 costs or one month in jail on the first charge. Bickle said he had never had a driver's licence and Magistrate Philp fined him $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days on the second charge.

Magistrate Philp said that the two jail terms were to run concurrently if the fines were not paid.

"His licence can't very well be suspended," the Magistrate added.

Found Drunk

William Forrest, 21, of 115 Gibb St., Oshawa, the owner of the wrecked car was found drunk and downing a bottle of beer in a parked car on Brock St., owned by Jack Lunny of Cresswell.

Forrest pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place when he appeared in police court today but pleaded not guilty to having liquor in a place other than his residence.

On the drunk charge, Magistrate Philp fined Forrest $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days in jail. Crown Attorney Bradshaw said he would offer no evidence on the second liquor charge when Forrest pleaded not guilty.

Forrest said he had not given Bickle permission to take the car and wanted to lay a charge. Magistrate Philp assured him that he could.

Paul Hehrenbeck, 19, of 238 Elm St., Oshawa, who answered when Forrest was paged by police at a Brock St. dance hall, took the officers to the car where Forrest was found and arrested by Constable Douglas Farthing.

Crown Attorney Bradshaw said five pints of beer, one partly consumed, and a 12 ounce bottle of liquor were found in the car.

Bar In Car

"You practically had a bar in your car," Magistrate Philp said today in fining Hehrenbeck for having liquor in a place other than his residence. Hehrenbeck pleaded guilty to the charge. He was fined $25 and $2.50 costs or one month in jail in default.

Bickel, the driver of the car which crashed into the tree told police he and his companions were driving back to the dance hall in Forrest's car to pick up Forrest who was waiting for them.

Driving east on Hunter, Bickle tried to turn north on Stewart St., but failed to make the turn. The car bounced over the curb and crashed into the tree.

In addition to Kerr, Bickle and Guscott who were injured in the crash, Harry Clark of 512 Chamberlain St., was also in the car but was not injured.

Constable Andre Dalton, one of the investigating officers said the car was completely wrecked.

Acting police sergeants Claire McGillen and Gordon Trennum also investigated.

Hunt On Roof Man Caught 2 Still Sought

Wailing fire sirens brought nearby residents from their homes Wednesday evening, as police and firemen teamed up to capture a local man on the roof of a downtown business block.

Shortly before 7 pm, police received a call that two men had been seen on the roof of the block bounded by Brock, Chambers, George and Hunter Streets.

Constable Donald Mackay arrived on the scene in a police cruiser and a police cordon was quickly thrown around the block by constables Andre Dalton, Robert Menzies, Arthur Beardsmore, Wilfred Perry and Donald Mackay.

Sent For Ladders

Constables Mackay and Beardsmore saw a man on the roof from Chambers St. and the fire department was notified to send ladders.

Before the ladders arrived, constable Mackay found Douglas Chapman, 23, Aylmer St., crouching in a corner between the roofs of Franks Furniture Store and Burtol's Cleaners.

Chapman was ordered to come to the edge of the roof where he was arrested by Constables Mackay and Dalton.

Although police were unable to find anyone else on the roof, two other men are being sought for questioning in connection with the incident.

After being taken from the roof, Chapman was taken to the police station where he was locked up and later booked on a charge of vagrancy.

In police court today, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw asked for a remand on the charge until Friday so that further investigations can be carried out. Chapman's request for bail was denied.

PORTRAITS OF THEIR MAJESTIES were presented to the citizens of Peterborough Wednesday evening by the Municipal Chapter of the IODE. Admiring the portraits in the Mayor's reception room, where they will be hung, are, Left to Right, Miss Joan Stark of Edith Carleton Chapter, Miss Mary Medd, Regent of the Municipal Chapter, and Miss Wanda Deyell, Regent of the Mary K. Birdsall Junior Chapter. In the Lower photo, in a simple presentation ceremony, His Worship Max J. Swanston accepts the portraits from Miss Medd.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

IODE Presents Portraits Of King, Queen To Council

Portraits of Their Majesties King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were presented by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, to the city council and the citizens of Peterborough Wednesday night. These twin pictures are to be given place in the mayor's reception room which opens directly off the council chambers. They are gifts from the Municipal Chapter of the IODE, which is composed of the executive committees of the eight Primary Chapters and one Junior Chapter of Peterborough, representing about 500 members.

For this function, significant of the major purpose of the IODE, Miss Mary Medd, Regent of the Municipal Chapter, was invited to the dais by Mayor Swanston. She is the first woman to ascend those official steps, symbolic of the presidency of the aldermanic assembly with the council in session.

Presentation

Speaking to the members and also to her associates who occupied many of the seats in the public section of the chamber Miss Medd explained the IODE mission, with incidental reference to other activities of the Order, and then called upon Miss Wanda Deyell and Miss Joan Stock to make the presentation to Mayor Swanston.

Miss Deyell is Regent of the Mary K. Birdsall Chapter, and Miss Stock is a member of the Edith Carleton Chapter. These are both junior chapters of the IODE.

Mayor Swanston, wearing his gold chain of office, suspended the usual course of opening a session.

"We are hapy to have with us tonight," His Worship said, "the Municipal Chapter and other members of the IODE. The Daughters of the Empire carry on a great deal of good work. They have decided to make a presentation of pictures of Their Majesties the King and Queen to the council and the citizens for this new municipal building."

Mayor Swanston then requested Miss Medd to address the council from the dais.

After her introductory reference to the IODE deputation and their wish to make a gift of the royal portraits, Miss Medd recalled to the council that the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire was founded in 1900 and was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1917. The first of its six objects she recited as follows: "To stimulate and give expression to the sentiment of patrictism which binds the women and children of the Empire around the Throne and person of their gracious and beloved Sovereign.

"In presenting these pictures to serve as a visible reminder of our loyalty to Their Majesties and the Throne, we feel that we are carrying out the first object of our Charter.

"The members of the IODE are proud of this beautiful building and are pleased to make this contribution to the city hall so generously donated by the late W. G. Morrow, whose sister, Miss Emma Morrow, founded one of our first Chapters."

Financial Helyp

Indicating the scope of the activities of the Order, particularly in the disbursement of its funds, Miss Medd quoted from its finances of last year.

"First I should like to state that $3,070 was spent for furnishings for the new Civic Hospital which was opened last year. Under the heading of education, which is one of the Order's principal projects, $790 were spent in loans, bursaries and prizes paid directly to students in Peterborough, who had been recommended by responsible people for such assistance. Our adopted schools, which are nearly all located in sparsely settled parts of the county, received $214 worth of library books and other equipment.

"Child and family welfare and war veterans received $160 in emergency aid which we were able to give until other agencies took over. Every month we send food parcels overseas for distribution through British welfare groups, and $590 was spent in the city for food. We spent $1494 for rental of halls and rooms in which to carry on our various activities and for advertising and printing.

As miscellaneous we list donations to such objects as the Mayor's Fire Fund and all other items too numerous to mention, amounting to $965."

Miss Medd then read with the council and the IODE members the Order's prayer.

Mayor Swanston said: "I am pleased on benalf of the citizens and this council to accept this very generous gift from the Municipal Chapter of the IODE. We are all grateful that our citizens and organizations take pride not only in the Empire but also in the affairs and betterment of Peterborough. The IODE has always taken a great pride in the Empire, and I know that if they continue to carry on in the future as in the past, Canada and Peterborough will be a better place to live in."

Royal Standard Of Scotland Replaces Union Jack As Proud Banner Of Triumph

The Royal Standard of Scotland was flying this morning out on Monaghan Road, near Works Ave., of the CGE, and not at the home across the street of the Scottish prospect as successor to the outgoing Scottish mayor.

This little story appears to be entirely about Scots. It was gleefully related this morning by Robert MacMorran in the shop of Bert McLeod.

It is practice in structural steel erection to fly a flag over the finished frame if the job has gone well without an accident.

Perfect Rating

This Monaghan Road job at Canadian General Electric Co. gets perfect rating from the accident preventionists.

General superintendent of the contracting firm, A. W. Robertson and Company, which certainly has a Scotian flavor to it, is Alex Macdonald, and according to the accents of that name, there is a Scot. Anyway, when it came time to fly the flag of grateful accomplishment out on the steel job, Mr. Macdonald, with all due respect to the Union Jack and the constituent cross of St. Andrew, unfurled the Red Lion rampant on the field of yellow.

That's not just another flag, Robert Henry, wellknown Scot would say: that's the Royal Standard of Scotland.

There must be a few Sassenachs down in that part of the town but they weren't anywhere you looked or could listen this morning. Anyway, the Red Lion seems to flaunt in the breeze the words of an immortal song: "Though the King's crown go down, there are crowns to be broke."

Stewart Says Had Agreement To Get Water

"When I sold part of my property to the city for Civic Hospital site, I was told by one gentleman in a verbal agreement that if we dug the trenches the city would supply the piping and we could get water," Hugh Stewart of Hill Top Farms told the Council Wednesday night.

Hill Top is in North Monaghan Township, and Mr. Stewart said that so far he had been unable to get any assurance of water service.

"I would like to get some definite information from the Council as to what the city intends to do about the bypass road that is supposed to go through the east side of our farm.

"I would like to get the obstacles out of the way, so that I can go ahead with plans for subdividing the property in 1952."

Mayor Swanston said the Council would take up the questions Mr. Stewart had presented.

Saw Plans

Mr. Stewart said that he had been at the Department of Highways plans for the bypass to connect with a Trans-Canada road. Restrictions attaching to that plan require that no streets through the Stewart property could be laid into the bypass, and no residences could be built on either side of it. On that account streets on the sub-division would probably have to be laid in a winding way, if they could not enter into the bypass."

"I would like to know where I stand, and what the Council intends to do about this bypass road. It would be a great help to me, and I certainly would appreciate the co-operation of the city to that extent."

Mr. Stewart remarked that the whole farm might be in the city "sooner than we expect." He had the property surveyed this year preparatory to opening a subdivision, but it was not passed by the planning board on account of dead-end streets.

"I'd like to know if the city is going ahead with the bypass street, or is it going to be held up."

Mr. Stewart said he had applied to the Utilities Commission for water, "but they said they could not supply it."

Rev. W.G. Gilling Not A Candidate

"I am not a candidate for the Board of Education and have no intention of being a candidate," the Rev. W. G. Gilling, rector of St. Luke's church, told the Examiner today. "I was out of town and was astounded on my return to see the report in the Examiner that I might be a candidate."

Mr. Gilling said that he had no thought of running. He was approached to run last year for the Board and had refused to be a candidate. No such approaches had been made to him this year. "I am keenly interested in municipal affairs but I have not the time to devote to muncipal office." He said the report had caused him some embarrassment among his people of the parish. Whoever the well-meaning supporters were who had suggested his name spoke without consulting him.

Child Falls On Ice In Skating Accident

Nine-year-old June Marie Casey, 617 McKellar St., was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital for X-rays, following a skating accident at Grove Public School Wednesday afternoon.

The girl was skating on a strip of ice in the school yard after school and collided with another youngster. She fell to the ice and injured her head.

She was taken to the office of Dr. C. F. Cahill Wednesday evening, who examined her and said today, she was only slightly injured in the mishap.

Time Lag

How can I get in to pay a parking ticket when there's a padlock on your door, an indignant feminine voice asked Sergeant Leo Murphy this morning. It turned out the lady had tried to pay her fine at the old police station on Water St. Of course the door was locked. The police department moved to their new quarters in the city hall over a month ago. The lady who was a local resident either had forgotten or was not aware that the change had been made. The phone call solved her parking ticket worries and she learned where the new station was.

Sid J. Black May Run For Alderman

If Sid J. Black decides to become a candidate for alderman he will have two particular interests.

One of them will be to endeavor to get more industries and the housing that goes with them.

Mr. Black has been engaged for years in the office outfitting business on Charlotte St., and moved into the new Centennial Building last year. It is opposite the CNR. between Aylmer and Bethune Sts.

"I've had quite a lot of people tell me I should stand for election to the council," Mr. Black said today. "I told some of them they ought to do some thinking in that direction themselves."

One of Best Cities.

"Seriously though," he said, "I haven't made up my mind. I am just as much interested in Peterborough as anybody. We have one of the best cities on the continent.

"I can't see that we have much more bulding to do. It appears to me that we have about caught up with our needs on that side, hospitals, city hall, sewage disposal, schools and so on.

"We have the physical set up for another 5,000 or 10,000 people, and what I would be interested in, if I ever got into the council, would be in trying to get some more industries, and also the housing that goes with it."

Sid Black has been prominent in Rotary, Fish and Game Protection, and generally hasn't been giving every hour of his time to only his own business.

He might be an entry when the aldermanic ballot is being printed, that is if there is an election.

POSTERS

The Peterborough Junior Chamber of Commerce has distributed more than 500 posters to stores and various points in the city and district urging people to get out to vote.

JAMES DUTTON

Morning Vote Light, Rush Expected

Voting was light in the city before noon today, but poll clerks prepared for a rush of voters from 12 noon on.

Seven of the 61 city polls reported before noon that, on the average, less than 10 per cent of the voters had cast their ballots, individually, only two showed better than a 10 per cent turnout.

In the committee rooms downtown, more and more calls came in from voters wanting: cars, baby-sitters, advice, the location of their polling place and how to get there.

Best record of the seven polling places the Examiner spoke to this morning was held by No. 51, at the home of Charles Hamilton, 337 Rogers St. With nearly 600 on the list, 75 had cast votes before noon. Another Ashburnham poll, No. 48, at the home of Darrell Rose, 171 Douro St., reported 38 out of 521 had voted.

In the west end, poll 23 at the home of Fred Parsons, 588 Sherbrooke St., reported 39 out of 300 had cast ballots.

Polling place 1, at 120 Princess St., the home of Robert Ritchie, showed 35 of 416 as having voted, and poll 6, at Earl Succee's house, 715 Chamberlain St., had only 13 of 350.

In the north end, 30 out of 500 voted this morning at the home of Ernie Nicholls, 578 Gilchrist St. (Poll 33), and 18 of 266 at Harry Adlam's house, 508 Wolsley St. (Poll 34).

Permission Giver To Plan School

Tentative approval of a $25,000 bylaw to build a public school in Ashburnham has been given by the Ontario Municipal Board. This approval now permits the Board of Education to engage an architect, have plans drawn and tenders called. Finally when the tenders are opened and the successful bidder named the bylaw will then go back to the Municipal Board for final approval.

Not until this final approval is given can third reading be given the bylaw by the city council and the debentures offered for sale.

James Dutton Resigns From Board

Council Accepts Resignation With Reluctance

The resignation of James Dutton as chairman of the City and Suburban Planning Board was accepted with regret by the council Wednesday night.

"For some time I have been conscious of failure to give the leadership which is required in the important work of town planning," Mr. Dutton wrote. "This has made me very unhappy. Little has been done to implement the Master Plan which has been accepted by the council and approved by the Minister of Planning and Development.

"For this, I must accept my share of responsibility. I feel that the program set forth in the plan should be proceeded with and without further undue delay. This will require the attention of a qualified person, and I am willing to assist in any way I can, but not as chairman of the Board."

Mr. Dutton thanked the council for their confidence "in appointing me to this important position," and expressed his appreciation of the courtesy and support from the city officials and others with whom he has been associated.

"I am sorry to receive that letter," Mayor Swanston remarked.

The regret and appreciation of the council is to be conveyed to Mr. Dutton from a motion by Aldermen Waddell and Gillespie.

"I am sure we are unanimous on that motion," said Mayor Swanston, deciding not to put it to a vote.

City planning was perhaps Mr. Dutton's chief concern and hope for the city in his later years as an alderman. He gave a great deal of time and study to the project which he visualized as a new design for the Peterborough of the future as the community was approaching the close of its first century of incorporation.

Made Chairman

Mr. Dutton accepted the chairmanship of the planning board, co-operated ardently with its members and also with the council in an prolonged effort to obtain full authorization of the plan and its zoning proposals.

His vision of eventual widening of George and Charlotte Streets met with disillusionment as it encountered objections that were concerned too closely with the present. Some setbacks have actually been accomplished down town, but the net result in that phase of long view planning has not been substantial.

The planning board succeeded in winning co-operation from builders and others in spheres of zoning. That was mainly the result of persuasion and appeal to civic sentiment, pending the adoption of the proposed zoning bylaw. A basis of suburban direction of planning was also accomplished. The general plan is still operative here and there, and Mr. Dutton still manifests hope that "it will be proceeded with".

Irish Riders Win Trophy At Royal Fair

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP). — Canada's biggest annual indoor fair closed its eight-day show with a sparkling exhib ion of horsemanship Wednesday night.

A clean performance over 15 jumps by the Republic of Ireland's three-man jumping team gave it the international team challenge trophy in the Royal Winter Fair's final horse show. It was the fourth time Ireland has won the trophy.

Then the Earl of Westmoreland and president P. L. Whytock officially closed the show. Earlier, an auctioneer's shouts in the small ring at the Coliseum sounded the end of the agricultural division of the fair.

Ireland's victory capped eight nights of international competition which saw the team never place higher than third. In second place was the United States team, third the Mexican, fourth Brazil, while Canada dropped into the reserve slot.

Breeding horse awards held the spotlight in the final stages of the agricultural show. Brave Captain, owned by the Dufferin Stock Farms of Downsview, Ont., took the senior and grand champion saddle horse stallion award. The grand champion thoroughbred stallion was Vibrator, owned by James G. Cain of Cainsville, Ont.

At the auction of prize-winning cattle, a Toronto department store bought both best steers. For the champion King's Guineas animal, a Hereford baby beef, it paid $2.05 a pound, netting owner Robert Hern, 17, of Granton, Ont., $2,132.

Haven't Sent Letters On Use Of 'Dominion'

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday in the Commons that no correspondence has been exchanged in the last five years with the United Kingdom or other Commonwealth countries on use of the word "Dominion."

Telegrams were exchanged between the United Kingdom and Canadian governments in 1947 when the British government decided to change the title of the secretary of state for dominion affairs to the secretary of state for commonwealth relations.

Mr. St. Laurent made his statement on a motion of E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) calling for production of all correspondence exchanged with Commonwealth governments on the use of the word Dominion in the description or style of title of Commonwealth countries.

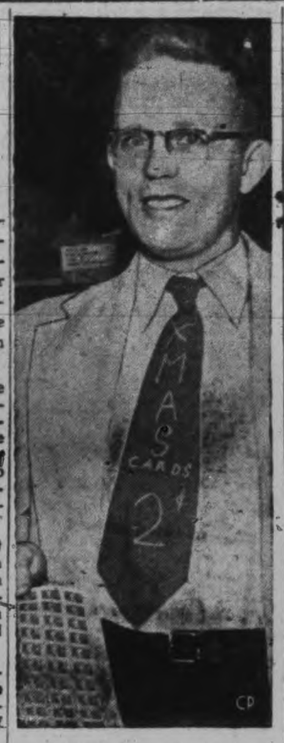
Loses Fight For Life

SEAFORTH, Nov. 22 (CP). — James R. Riley, 44, of Seaforth, lost a three-day fight for life when he died in hospital here on Wednesday of injuries suffered in a traffic accident Sunday. He was employed in the Canadian National Railways Stratford shop.

Would Withhold Information On Travellers

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 —(CP)— Prime Minister St. Laurent objected in the Commons Wednesday to an opposition motion for production of correspondence respecting Canadians who have travelled behind the Iron Curtain since January, 1950.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) who had placed the motion before the House seeking information on persons who have gone to Russia, Poland, Hungary or Czechoslovakia, agreed to withdraw it after the prime minister promised he would be supplied information "in confidence."



Mr. Diefenbaker said he did not seek the names of Canadians with legitimate business in eastern Europe, but those who went behind the Iron Curtain and then came back to Canada to spread Communist propaganda.

The prime minister said he objected because production of the correspondence would be an infringement of the principle of passport-record secrecy.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had asked for the correspondence because on a previous inquiry he had been told that only 18 persons had made such trips. He did not believe this information to be correct. He was seeking information only of those persons who went abroad to attend so-called international meetings and got invitations to Moscow.

GREAT DESERT

The Gobi desert covering perhaps 300,000 square miles in Mongolia is believed to have been an inland sea centuries ago.

NO MISTAKE—W. R. Lindsay, of the St. Thomas, Ont., post office staff, isn't going to let anyone forget its costs more to mail those Christmas cards this year. Anticipating the usual deluge of unsealed Christmas mail, he had Mrs. Lindsay embroider a necktie with the appropriate information and now wears it at his stamp wicket.

Standard Rifle Action Being Delayed

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Defence and defence production officials said Wednesday that agreement by North Atlantic countries on a standard rifle will provide the key as to whether Canada will go into mass production on that basic weapon.

They were commenting on a Rome dispatch in which informed sources said Western military chiefs have agreed on the United States army M-1 Garand rifle as the standard and this will be recommended for approval of the NATO Council.

Officials here said they had no information on the reported agreement, but they were hopeful of such a development which would aid Canaad greatly in her defence production planning.

Canada had hoped to go into production of a basic standard rifle, along with standard ammunition, for herself and other North Atlantic members, but a United States-United Kingdom split on which weapon was to be adopted has delayed planning.

The US wanted the .300-calibre semi-automatic Garand adopted as standard and the UK insisted on having its own new .280-calibre lightweight rifle adopted.

The result has been that Canada, instead of going into mass production of her own, has relied on her Second World War Lee-Enfield rifle as the basic weapon and supplemented it with enough Garands, purchased from the US, to train an infantry division.

Reject Suggestion

TORONTO, Nov. 22 (CP). — Toronto's Board of Control Wednesday rejected a suggestion that meetings of city council be broadcast. City clerk George Weale indicated that the practice was not general. He said Brantford reported its council debates on a much higher plane since broadcasts were inaugurated. Hamilton reported broadcasts weren't considered equal to newspaper coverage and only tended to prolong them.

Not Told Of Death

VANCOUVER, Nov. 22 (CP).— A father charged today that his son had been cremated before the family was notified of his death. William C. Down of suburban Burnaby told Mayor Fred Hume that police were guilty of "gross negligence" in their failure to notify him of the death of his son, David, 27, who died in a gas-filled room in a downtown rooming house June 13.

34 People Charged

VANCOUVER, Nov. 22 (CP). — The biggest mass conspiracy trial in the city's history opened in court Wednesday with 34 persons charged as members of Vancouver's $6,000,000-a-year bookmaking business. Thirty-three men and one woman were charged with conspiring among themselves and with more than 260 others to operate bookmaking houses here. All were arrested during the last month when police opened a city-wide campaign against bookies.

Youthful Hunters

FORT WILLIAM—(CP)—The Thunder Bay Fish and Game Association has recommended special hunting permits for boys and girls under 16. The association said such a permit, to be used only when accompanied by an adult, would help young persons learn the proper care of firearms.

Called Dr. In Ad Chiropractor Faces Charge Now

KITCHENER, Nov. 22—Judgment was reserved one week in magistrate's court Wednesday when Neil S. Harris, Waterloo chiropractor, was charged with unlawfully using the term doctor.

Evidence centred around an advertisement which appeared in the Waterloo Chronicle announcing the opening of a new office by Mr. Harris, and a news story of the event in that paper. The advertisement and story both used the prefix Dr. in front of Harris's name.

Henry Koch, Chronicle reporter, testified he had not been asked to use the prefix, but had assumed that it was not unlawful. He said Harris had seen a rough draft of the advertisement, but had not corrected it.

Gavin A. Monahan, inspector for the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario, said Harris had answered his telephone with: "Dr. Harris speaking."

Conducting his own defence, Mr. Harris cross-questioned Mr. Koch, who admitted the former had never suggested to him that he was a "doctor of medicine."

Mr. Harris agreed that he had been instructed at school to be "very careful" never to use the prefix "Dr."

He was quick to seize on a slip of the Crown Attorney, however, when the latter called the accused "Dr. Harris," to emphasize his belief that the term was in wide practice.

A million Canadians now have jobs in manufacturing. Ten per cent of these are in the primary textile industry. [The latest Dominion Bureau figures are 1,080,000 in manufacturing and 104,000 of these in primary textiles.]

Besides leading all other Canadian industries in numbers employed in manufacturing, primary textiles also is away ahead in the size of its payroll. It is up among the leaders in providing jobs for women and in being well spread out through the smaller communities.

Dominion Textile is a considerable part of this basic textile industry.

A MEAL FOOD EXPERTS COMMEND

Oven-baked beans go beautifully with hot brown bread . . .

Here is nourishment as appetizing and economical as any cook could devise. Everybody knows that beans have a high caloric content and when they are oven-baked by Heinz chefs and drenched with Heinz own Tomato Sauce, you have a hearty flavour treat at low cost. Heinz makes four kinds of oven-baked beans. Look for them all at your grocer's. Also note below recipes for a warming cold-weather feast!

RECIPE

"Dinner of the Week" may easily be your family's verdict, when you serve a deep dish of tender Heinz Oven-Baked Beans. Vary them from time to time—add a few dashes of Heinz 57 Sauce to give a special flavour—some Heinz Chili Sauce or Tomato Ketchup on other occasions. Again, stir in gently ½ cup diced processed cheese or add crisp bacon strips, and heat as usual in saucepan or baking dish. For a crisp topping if you heat your beans in a casserole, try a layer of big buttered crumbs over the dish and bake until hot and golden.

ALL-BRAN MOLASSES HOT-BREAD

Measure 1 cup ALL-BRAN, ½ cup raisins, 2 tbsp. shortening, and ½ cup molasses into bowl. Add ¾ cup hot water, stir till shortening melts. Add 1 egg; beat well. Sift together 1 cup sifted flour, 1 tsp. baking soda, ½ tsp. salt and ½ tsp. cinnamon; add to All-Bran mixture, stirring only until combined. Fill 2 greased Heinz Oven-Baked Bean tins ⅔ full. Bake in preheated mod. oven (350F.) 45 min. Yields 2 loaves. Or use 8 x 8-in. pan. Bake in mod. oven 35 min. Yields 1 loaf. Serve at once.

Charge Diplomat Trained In Silent Killing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP) —US Senate internal security investigators said Wednesday a Czechoslovakian diplomat trained in spying and "silent killing" has been permitted to remain in this country for more than two years. They identified him as Jiri Stary.

They said Stary, accompanied by his wife, Olga, left for Paris October 31 as a member of the Czech delegation to the UN Assembly here.

Senator Herbert O'Conor (Dem. Md.), chairman of an internal security sub-committee unit that held secret hearings on Stary's activities, said that prior to his entrance into the United States, Stary was trained in Moscow "in espionage and assassination."

Got Special Training.

"For about six months he was given special training in Czechoslovakia in methods of silent killing and political activity," the Senator added. He said it was noteworthy that Stary joined the Czech Foreign Office only a short time before being sent here.

A sworn testimony, O'Conor said, was that Stary's mission in the United States was to direct a Czech espionage network and "to maintain discipline over the Cbechoslovakian personnel in the United Nations and in the Czechoslovakian Consulate."

O'Conor reported that the State and Justice Departments have refused to commit themselves on whether the Czech and his wife will be readmitted to the United States.

In his statement, O'Conor said he could not urge too strongly that immediate action be taken by the government to prevent the Starys from re-entering this country.

Police Raid Club

MONTREAL, Nov. 22 (CP). — Police directed their crime clean-up at the late-night drinkeries again Wednesday and clipped the wings of the Flamingo Club, the second such spot to get the licence lifting treatment in three days. The club was raided on the order of chairman Edouard Rivard of the Quebec Liquor Commission who alleged the place served drinks past the 2 am deadline. On Monday police knocked off Ciro's, another centre for hot music, cold drinks and throughout-the-night patronage.

Patient Improving

LONG BEACH, Calif. Nov. 22 (AP).—Melvin E. Hewitt, 28, who was revived last Oct. 3 by a heart massage, after he was pronounced dead, played cards Wednesday at the Veterans' Administration Hospital here. Attendants at the hospital said he is now able to feed himself, write letters and recognize hospital workers by name. However that after talking fluently for short periods he sometimes lapses into blankness, staring vacantly.

ANCIENT CONVENT

West Malling in Kent county, England, has the remains of a Benedictine nunnery founded in 1090 A.D.

MARY'S BACK—Mary Pickford, above, "America's Sweetheart" in the days of silent movies, will return to the screen for the first time in 19 years in a production of "The Library." Now 58, Miss Pickford called her new role "an almost sacred responsibility".

2 School Boys Find Hunter

CAPREOL, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Two bush-wise high school boys Wednesday found Lawrence Fortier, 28-year-old railway employee, in the Post Creek district, 10 miles north of here.

Joseph Hanzel, 17, and Albert Richardson, 14, spotted Fortier from the brow of a hill, almost 60 hours after he disappeared Sunday while on a hunting trip.

Fortier, wearing a light sweater, shirt, gabardine trousers and rubber boots, was numb with cold and in a semi-speechless daze when the boys found him. He had his gun but all the ammunition was gone.

Fortier said he slept under branches and in caves to keep warm. He ran out of matches Monday and used up his supply of ammunition—seven rounds—trying to direct searchers.

Canadian Front-Line Soldier Thinks Cold War Worth Fighting Despite Hardship

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Nov. 22 (CP)—Young Jim Ramsay did a bit of personal stock-taking in the front line the other day and decided that on the whole, the investment had been worth it.

Jim is 20, and from Edmonton. A private with the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, he has been a driver-operator with the machine gun platoon all the while he has been over here.

In July, 1950, when the Korea force was raised, he had just graduated from high school and was thinking of studying law, or commerce at the University of Alberta.

Aboard the Pvt. Joe P. Martinez as he neared Korea a year ago he told why he enlisted.

"I decided," he said then, "to take 18 months out of my life to do something about Communism, to get the experience army life offers and incidentally to see a bit of the world. Once the 18 months are over I'll go on to university."

Now he's homeward bound, with others of his platoon, commanded by Capt. Andy Foulds of Vancouver. It's one of the few platoons in the 2nd Patricias which is going home with essentially the same ho came over with them.

Just before his outfit pulled out of the Commonwealth defence line west of the Imjin River, Jim totalled up the "lessons learned, time spent and time wasted" account and decided it worked out on the profit side.

Retained Ideals

He had retained his ideals and his convictions, he broadened intellectually, and he had learned tolerance.

"We are here for the right reasons," he said. "The people and their country are worth fighting for. But actually all this is something bigger than they represent or know.

"I like Koreans. And I like their country. I didn't at first, but I think the way the 'rice-burners' worked with us in the hills opened my mind. I certainly admired them."

Indicative of Jim's feelings about Koreans was his reaction to Lee Jung-ok, 22-year-old Korean university student who has been chief interpreter with the 2nd Patricias since their arrival, and also "OC rice-burners."

"The Canadian government should do something about him," said Ramsay.

Need Help

"Somebody, why not the regiment, should sponsor Lee and the two or three like him who have been with us and who would benefit their country after receiving higher education in Canada."

Among the items on the debit side are what he terms "rotation injustices" and the UN army policy of leaving troops too long in the time, coupled with the unavailability of leave centres or rest camps on an adequate scale.

"Jim's headed back to college once he's released from his contract with the army. Already he has arranged for a refresher course on his high school work, and next autumn it will be either commerce or law at U of A.

"All in all, it's been a good go," he said. "But I'll be glad to be a civilian again."

Urgent Request By France For US Dollars

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—An urgent request from France for fast United States dollar assistance Wednesday heightened the possibility that the administration may ask Congress early next year for a special foreign-aid appropriation.

Britain is in about the same economic plight as France. In fact, almost all America's European allies were described by authorities as requiring help to maintain defence production and scheduled contribution to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's European army.

Officials told reporters that within the next few days the US will probably make a final decision on how much direct help the French need. Estimates range from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000.

France has told the US, according to informed sources who may not be named, that it will have to cut imports and reduce its defence operations unless special help is forthcoming promtly.

First Action

Congress this fall voted a mutual security appropriation totalling $7,328,000,000. While the great bulk of that was for the purchase of military equipment for America's allies, $1,022,000,000 was earmarked for economic aid—primarily for Western Europe.

This was almost $700,000,000 less than the administration had asked.

Several weeks ago, Mutual-Security officials made tentative allocations of $950,000,000 in military aid fund for 13 countries considered eligible and in need.

Also tentatively, officials had decided that $580,000,000 which they could divert from military to economic assistance purposes should be held in reserve until a survey of the whole North Atlantic defence effort—now underway in Paris—is completed.

None of the allocations made to date help Britain. Although Britain's declining economic health is a cause of concern here as in London, the extent of Britain's needs is reported to be still unknown in Washington.

HIGH BRIDGE

At mean high water there is a clearance of 172 feet under the Great Arch Bridge over the harbor at Sydney, Australia.

"THE LAST SUPPER" RE-CREATED—New York artist Lumen Winter puts the finishing touches on an immense painting to which he devoted many years' research—an exact-scale re-creation of Leonardo Da-Vinci's masterpiece, "The Last Supper." Winter's work, only one in the world painted to the full scale of the original, about 14½ by 28 feet, was done on commission for the Holton Museum of Miami, Fla. Much of the preliminary work was done in Milan, Italy, birthplace of DaVinci, where Winter talked about the work with leading Italian artists and church dignitaries, including an audience with Pope Pius XII.

Senator Dislikes New Price Plan

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 — (CP) — Senator Hayden (L, Ontario) said Wednesday moves to abolish the business practice of resale price maintenance was an effort to "take a pot shot" at something "that can be flailed publicly."

The public, he told the Senate during the throne-speech debate, could be informed that big business was "not going to be allowed to get away with it any longer."

But actually that was a fairy tale comparable only to "Alice In Wonderland" because resale price maintenance—the practice of a manufacturer setting the resale price of his product—was not something new. It was recognized in the United States by law. The courts had upheld it in Britain. And the manufacturer was not getting away with anything.

He believed that the Canadian public would eventually "see the substance and the reality of this" and would ask why the government was hitting at such a small thing with such force when there were many other more important things to be dealt with.

He said retail price maintenance protected the small retailer and if abolished, then the volume buyers would be in a position to swamp the smaller retailer by price-cutting.

LENGTHY LABOR

Samuel Johnson labored eight years with the help of six clerks to issue in 1747 the plan of his manumental English dictionary.

Says Report Hooey

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP). — Albert Anastasia says a report that the underworld has ordered him to leave town or be killed is nothing but "hooey" newspapers reported Wednesday. "I'm going to stay here," he was quoted as saying. Newspapers said the reputed one-time triggerman for Brooklyn's old Murder, Inc., mob termed "fantastic" a report that the underworld had ordered his exile under threat of execution.

Cotton Mills Expecting Work Pick-up

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Some prospect is seen for a pick-up in work in Canadian cotton mills, following recent dullness.

The Cotton Institute of Canada, reporting on the situation, says:

"Activity during the third quarter (ending Sept. 30) was down almost 40 per cent from the first half of the year, with resulting lay-offs and short-time.

"One cause was imposition of government credit restrictions at a time when inventories were high. Unusual demand had forced a high rate of domestic production and a still higher rate of imports.

"There is some hope now that inventories have been liquidated, at least sufficiently to make some buying again possible. This would mean renewed activity, and fuller employment in the 44 mills that make cotton yarn and cloth, and which normally supply employment for approximately 24,000 people."

The Institute will hold its annual meeting in Montreal Nov. 28.

Silk, Rayon, Wool

The Silk and Rayon Institute, Montreal, states that exports of woven rayon fabrics from the United States to Canada in August totalled 651,642 square yards, compared to 598,403 in July, and to 609,062 in August last year.

The Canadian Wool Grower, publication of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Ltd., comments in its current issue:

"The smallest Canadian wool-clip in 35 years is reported by the Bureau of Satistics, with a 1951 total of 7,471,000 pounds for all Canada, except Newfoundland.

"When it is noted that in 1920 the figures were about 24,000,000 pounds, and in 1943 and 1944 around 15,000,000, it is little wonder that users of wool become alarmed."

Apsley WA Holds White Elephant Sale

APSLEY, Nov. 22 (ENS)—The Womens Auxiliary of St. George Anglican church held an Afternoon Tea and White Elephant sale in the rectory.

The small beautifully decorated tables were used to serve tea in the dining room and the sale was carried on in the reception hall. The goods sold very readily and the members were well pleased with the number who attended and with the proceeds.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

"Notice any difference in the tea, Jane?"

"I sure do. It's Mother Parker's, isn't it?"

"Yes, but come now, Betty, you couldn't really tell."

"Oh, yes, I could! Didn't I have my family after me for a month to get Mother Parker's for them?"

"Well—I was a long time coming to it—but one day John was shopping with me. He picked up a package of Mother Parker's—read the money back guarantee printed right on the label. 'Here,' said he, 'let's try Mother Parker's—we can't lose.'"

"And are you glad you did try it?"

"I'll say I am—Mother Parker's is simply delicious—we rave about it to everybody."

THESE GLOVES will be in evidence next spring. The striped glove in double-woven cotton (left) that's sweeping the country now has company in the form of matching ascot. White glove (upper right) in handsome cotton has bracelet of embroidered applique leaves. For a turtleneck blouse, there's a glove (lower centre) with a turtle top. It's white with green band. Dressy glove (lower right) is slightly longer length, has French knots and hand fagoting.

Bride Writes Cook Book in 18 Months

Lucille Iremonger, who described herself as "the most useless bride who ever stepped into a kitchen", produced a cookery book that was published in three languages eighteen months after she first began to cook. This remarkable achievement was the odder because her book was for people who had "practically nothing to cook".

Mrs. Iremonger clarified her contradictory statements by explaining that her husband was a district officer on his first tour of duty, which took him to the Ellice Islands in the Pacific. No one but the interpreter could speak English and nobody could cook in the English way so the new bride had to learn to cook and to speak Ellice all at once. Supplies were scarce and she had no fresh beef, milk or butter, no green vegetables, little fruit and inadequate water.

When she had learnt a little about cooking she decided to put down fifty of her laboriously collected recipes in the Ellice language. Her book soon became known by the people of the Ellice and Gilbert Islands and they christened it "Tusi Cuka", coming to her and begging her to put in recipes using unambitious materials.

Her simplifying of these went on to such an extent that her list of essential ingredients became smaller and smaller. She had fish, eggs and coconuts and the rare cut of pork seen on great occasions The only imported goods were those that could be bought in small quantities from the local trader's shop or passing ships—potatoes, rice, onions, flour, sugar, tinned milk and butter, dripping and coffee. And this, bar seasoning, was all.

She pointed out that coconut milk could be substituted for tinned, the local tuber, taro, would do instead of potatoes or rice, molasses from boiled-down coconut could replace sugar and onions could be abandoned. That left flour as the only really necessary import and, if hard put to it, bananas could be saved up to make banana flour.

From these meagre ingredients it was possible to make many of her fifty recipes, sixteen of fish, egg and meat, eight from vegetables, fourteen puddings and seven cakes. "Tusi Cuka's" glossary explained the simplest cooking terms—toasting, making bread crumbs, seasoning, flavouring, steaming and beating an egg, all of them totally unknown to the Ellice Islanders.

The little book had success with both the Islanders and the white population and when the Americans came to the Pacific after Pearl Harbor "Tusi Cuka" was a natural souvenir to send home. Complimentary letters soon came from women in America who had tried out the recipes from the English section printed at the back of the book but the most treasured were those from museums with Pacific collections. "Tusi Cuka" is the first book to be published in the Ellice language and it now lies in isolated splendor in the museums' glass cases. "But neither the Ellice Islanders nor I shall ever be able to take it seriously", said Lucille Iremonger.

What's Right?

A neighbor comes into your house and doesn't notice your new draperies.

WRONG: Ask: "How do you like my new draperies?"

RIGHT: If you are determined to mention them, do so in a way that is not a direct bid for a compliment.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

DOROTHY DIX

Man Should Be Judged On Character Not Ancestry

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am 18 and for the past six months have been going with a boy three years my senior. He has every quality a girl admires. My mother, also, is very fond of Harry, but because he is a foreigner to this country, my father will not even be sociable to him nor tolerate my seeing him. I have reasoned with father and tried may best to see his way but he won't let me go out with the boy at all. I have decided to break with Harry to keep peace in the family. Because I have become so fond of him, how can I tell him we're through without hurting his feelings?

CARMELA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your father must be a narrow, obstinate person indeed, to condemn a young man for no other reason than the fact that he was born in a different country. Is father by any chance an Indian? If not, his forbears, too, at one time or another were foreigners. And does dad realize that a trip across either our northern or southern border will make him a foreigner? This great land of ours was built up through the courage and diligence of those who come here from across the water—foreigners all.

You'll Have To Give In

Father's stubborn attitude does not leave you much choice except to break off with Harry, or face continual family strife. Remember, in choosing your next boy friend be sure he comes equipped with the proper pedigree to suit pop.

You cannot possibly avoid hurting Harry's feelings when you announce your decision, any more than your own can be saved from grief. All you can do is inform him that since he meets with your father's disapproval, you think it foolish to continue the friendship. After all, since your friendship is of just six months' standing, neither one of you is so emotionally involved that the break will cause too lasting a distress. I hope not, anyway.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: What can I do in this case? My son is 20 years old and was born of a bigamous marriage. I did not know at the time that my husband was already married; we separated and he disappeared before the legality of the ceremony could be straightened out. I have since learned that he is dead. My father adopted the boy when he was three years old. Now the boy is dating a girl, and I'd like to know if they should be told of the circumstances surrounding his birth.

WORRIED MOTHER.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Neither you nor your son is in any way to blame for your unfortunate position at the time of his birth, and since the boy was adopted by his grandfather his legal position is secure.

Circumstances such as these can never be kept a secret forever. Always there is a busybody who feels obligated to reveal a story "for your own good," to use the universal excuse for tale-bearing. Isn't it much better for you to tell the boy yourself, then let him pass the information on to a girl friend, or ask you to do it, as his own discretion? A worthy girl would never hold the circumstance against him.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Can you help me with my problem? For six years I have been going with a man a few years my senior. This is a long time, but still there is no sign of marriage. He says he cares for me, I enjoy his company very much but he insists money is his drawback to matrimony. I've met someone else who seems to care a lot for me, too, but can't make up my mind between the two.

P. H. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your hesitant lover has now become a poor marriage risk. After dawdling so long, few men are really prepared to face the altar. If they do, it's usually with someone much younger—and less patient. The old standby just gets the go-by—and it's definitely good-bye! If you are not very much in love with this man, and your letter doesn't indicate that you are, let him go and give the other beau a chance.

MOVIE COLUMN

Kay Grayson Enjoying Her Freedom

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22 (AP)—"I'm free for the first time in my life," enthused Kathryn Grayson, her upswept nose tilted at a gay angle.

"This is the first time in my life I have been a free woman. When I was a girl, my diversion was attending musicales. My father would pick me up promptly at 10 o'clock, when the musicale was over. When my parents were away on a trip to North Carolina, I sneaked away and married John Shelton.

"That turned out to be an error, and then I got married again (to crooner Johnny Johnston). After much unhappiness . . . we got a very Hollywood divorce; that is, we're still friends.

Anxious Dates

"Now I'm really living. The only trouble is that I've had two dates since the divorce and both men asked me to marry them. That's not the way I planned it."

Kathryn is delighting her intimates by blossoming out these days. They had been concerned about her unhappiness following the break-up with Johnston. Now she's full of plans for her own independence, and that includes her film future.

Mark St. WA Entertains At Fall Tea

In a very prettily decorated tea room at Mark St. United Church, the Women's Association on Wednesday afternoon entertained a nice crowd of friends. They were welcomed by the president Mrs. F. R. Samis, the vice-president Mrs. F. L. Edworthy and the minister's wife, Mrs. B. S. Morwood.

Grove H & S Assoc. Offers Fine Array Of Bazaar Goods

A tempting array of home cooking, a tableful of nicely made aprons and children's dresses and pretty dolls' outfits just like little girls', drew the attention of early comers to the Grove Home and School Association tea at the school Wednesday afternoon.

The ladies were hard pressed to be ready for their guests in the tea room, owing to the afternoon classes, but the goods for sale was displayed in the hallway where tables had been set up earlier.

Many of the pupils stayed to patronize the "fish pond" and the candy booth, and teachers, after dismissing classes early, attended the tea. Cars met the afternoon buses to bring the visitors from other sections of the city.

The kindergarten made an attractive tea-room with posters done by the children on the walls and the blackboard showing their reading lesson for the day. The serving table and small tables for guests were decorated with 'mums in the fall colors. Social convener Mrs. W. Higgins was in charge.

Refreshments were looked after by Mrs. Ken Mills, Mrs. G. Beauchamp, Mrs. George Rutherford and Mrs. J. Holt, and the tea was poured by past presidents of the association, Mrs. W. Hargreaves, Mrs. F. Sanders, Mrs. J. Coit and the principal's wife, Mrs. J. Barnard.

Receiving at the doorway were President Mrs. N. Foster and Vice-President Mrs. R. Clements, and tickets were taken by Mrs. B. Keene.

One classroom was made a "nursery" for the small children who accompanied their mothers, and Mrs. J. Adams, Mrs. A. Finnemore and Mrs. E. Partington were in charge of it.

15 Active Women Prepare Goods For Bazaar Sale

The Home League of Byersville Salvation Army Temple, which has only 15 active members, presented well laden bazaar tables for the visitors' choice at their annual Christmas bazaar and tea Wednesday afternoon.

Truly the members must be "active" to have such quantity of embroidered towels and pillowcases, with crocheted edges, quilt tops, children's clothes, stuffed toys, novelties, and an array of tea aprons. There was also some fine baking, jams, pickles and fruit and candy, all home made.

The sale of goods began after an official opening ceremony by Captain D. Charp. A solo was sung by Mrs. Reginald Jones, "The theme of my song" with accompaniment by Mrs. Wm. Lowel.

Miss Clara Barnes, secretary of the League, had been in charge of the preceding arrangements. Christmas decorations made both the tea room and bazaar room attractive and there was a big Christmas tree laden with small parcels donated by various stores for the sale.

Tea pourers for the afternoon were Adjutant Wood and Mrs. C. Hunter and the ladies serving guests at the quartette tables were Mrs. B. Meeks, Mrs. H. Winterbottom, Mrs. J. Castle, Mrs. G. L. Ellis, Mrs. A. E. Gilpin, Mrs. H. Tippett and Mrs. B. Reid. Mrs. A. Pagett Sr. sold tickets for the tea.

Mrs. Major Everett was acting as cashier in the bazaar room. Sales at the home baking table were made by Mrs. G. Thomas, Mrs. H. Hedge and Mrs. D. Best. The toy display was in charge of Mrs. Wm. Lowell and the novelties of Mrs. J. Sloan and Mrs. E. Hele.

Mrs. H. Parnell had charge of the rack of aprons. The sewing table was attended by Mrs. J. Bidyard and Mrs. L. Jones. Candy was sold by Mrs. T. Trotter and Mrs. M. Tully.

Christmas tree parcels offered a wide choice and customers were assisted by Mrs. T. Mills and Mrs. W. Christmas.

To Initiate YWCA In Gold Coast And Aid Surinam

TORONTO, Nov. 22.—Decisions to initiate YWCA work in the Gold Coast, and to supply a paid secretary for the struggling YWCA in Surinam, were made at Wednesday's sessions of the National Council of the YWCA, which is meeting this week.

The projects will comprise Canada's share of much-needed work which the YWCA World Council decided should be undertaken, when it met recently at Lebanon.

In the Gold Coast project the Canadian YW will receive assistance from Denmark.

To cover its World Service work, which includes the two new projects the Canadian YW has undertaken to raise $30,000 next year. In addition, the National Council budget for 1952, which was presented by Mrs. R. M. Brophy, will be over $67,000.

National President Mrs. J. L. Savage, who attended the meetings in Lebanon, said that many more countries are now contributing to the World Service Council than previously.

At the afternoon session, Mrs. H. A. Tanton described the speakers' bureau which the public relations committee is in the process of setting up. The bureau will supply speakers to describe the work of the YWCA for various organizations wanting information.

WI Directors Urge Steps For Safer Rail Crossings

TORONTO, Nov. 22 — Devices ensuring greater safety at railway crossings were urged in resolutions passed at closing sessions Wednesday of the annual meeting of the board of directors, Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario. These resolutions were among 60 dealt with, all of them previously passed by the 13 convention areas of Ontario. Mrs. R. G. Purcell, Fort William, was re-elected president.

Safety resolutions asked compulsory installation of wigwags at railway crossings on all public roads, also that railway companies put reflectors, or hands of aluminum paint, on each side of each freight car.

Pensions for mothers after children reach 18 years of age, which will compensate for the mother's allowance, which ceases when the youngest child reaches 16, were asked.

Oppose Sunday Sports

The meeting urged the Federal Government to take immediate action to discontinue Sunday midnight shows and dances, also went on record as opposed to commercial Sunday sports. A uniform time system, eastern standard, for the entire province was asked. Department of Lands and Forests will be urged to indicate beach and resort areas available as picnic grounds.

Heavier penalties for drunken drivers, proper care of neglected cemeteries (as provided for in the Cemeteries Act of 1950), observance of Canadian national holidays, such as Dominion Day, on the Monday nearest the dates on which they fall, were other measures asked by resolutions passed.

In view of the fact that unauthorized persons are said to be soliciting for charitable causes, the meeting pledged its members to refuse to give subscriptions to any agents without investigating.

Compel Chest X-Rays

Marking of school buses by placards to ensure greater safety on the road, abolition of the practice of closing food parcels with wire staples because of the danger of their becoming embedded in the food, compulsory chest X-rays for all persons, and a safety campaign in respect to young children driving tractors were also asked by the meeting.

Elimination of taxes on household electrical equipment, standardized sizes in children's clothing, a better quality of sewing thread, the use of washable materials only in belts of women's dresses, availability of paint in pint containers, were also asked by the meeting.

Equitable distribution of insulin tablets for oral administration to replace the daily insulin treatment required by some persons was another measure urged. The meeting went on record as requesting the authorities to ban entry into Canada of obsene, immoral and sexual periodicals now on sale in the newsstands.

New SS Facilities At Knox Used For Tea And Bazaar

In the new Sunday School room of Knox United Church a large and very successful tea and bazaar was held Wednesday afternoon. Classrooms opening off the assembly room of this recently finished off basement space served admirably as bazaar booths and the tea tables were supplied handily from the adjoining kitchen, which is splendidly equipped for the purpose.

Soft, light colors used in the original decorating scheme were background for the glitter of tinsel and silver and blue streamers. Posters made by CGIT girls advertised the "post office" which did a brisk business until the "mail" was all out. Then the clerks turned to selling soft drinks, gum, jelly powder, etc., like the usual country store with post office attached.

The tea table was very gay with rows of red candles in tinsel holders and a christmas centrepiece. Presiding in turn were Miss Susan Summers and Mrs. T. Wallace, Mrs. M. Lindsay and Mrs. C. Sparks.

Mrs. Donald Hubbs had charge of the tea room and the servers attending the 16 guest tables were Mrs. C. Hancock, Mrs. A. Kempt, Mrs. John Kempt, Mrs. G. McGavin, Mrs. H. Todd, Mrs. L. Foster, Mrs. G. Miles, Mrs. G. Goodfellow, Mrs. C. Grainger, Mrs. E. Pearcy, Mrs. James, Mrs. Ken McCannan, Mrs. R. Gertley, Mrs. S. Adamson, Mrs. McIntosh, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Sharpe, and Mrs. J. Donaldson who had been convener of the decorations.

Replenishing the plates, tea pots and chins was in charge of Mrs. Harold Murduff with Mrs. D. Chevalier, Mrs. M. Jude, Mrs. G. Clarke, Mrs. S. Wright, Mrs. W. Gaskin, Mrs. C. A. Gilders, Mrs. Gordon Morrison and Mrs. E. Jewell assisting.

Mrs. Howard Clegg assisted in the tea room as hostess. The guests were welcomed at the door by Mrs. R. Hanscom and Mrs. H. G. Douglas and Mrs. W. McCracken was taking tickets.

Youngsters were particularly delighted with the tea arrangements at this affair for they were sent to another room where Margaret Johnson and helpers took them in charge and they were shown nursery films on the screen by Robert Ross operating the projector.

With more than 300 tickets sold for the tea, bazaar booths were almost certain to do a large business, and they did.

Most popular, perhaps, was the post office, because of its novelty and the element of chance in buying a packaged article. The WA members had written their friends out of the city asking for small gifts which could be sold for 25c and even they had not removed the mailing wrapping. Miss Phyllis Kidd and Mrs. K. Fairburn were in charge of this section.

Home baking table was in charge of Mrs. F. Milburn with Mrs. M. Lindsay and Mrs. J. A. Marchen assisting. Mrs. Ray Gillies had the candy table which sold out early. Aprons were sold by Mrs. F. A. Kidd, Mrs. C. Aulbrook and Mrs. C. Hill. Attending an assortment of handwork and other articles were Mrs. Gordon James, Mrs. Lloyd Little and Mrs. E. Berry.

The "white elephant" table was in charge of Mrs. Eric Pearse, with Mrs. H. Moore assisting and Mrs. Frank Dunford operated a "wishing well". The dolls were sold by Mrs. C. Ross.

Of interest was the talent money table, attended by Mrs. J. Lancashire and Mrs. H. Trotter. Items for sale here included a beautiful lace tablecloth, an afghan, men's socks, handkerchiefs with crocheted borders, etc.

Mrs. George Hutchinson, general convener of this event, is to be congratulated for the good arrangement and financial success.

KEENE, Nov. 22.—A very successful progressive euchre party and parcel post sale was carried out in the Keene town hall Wednesday evening by the Highland View Swimming Club girls. Exchanges Aid British Mothers

LONDON — (CP) — Thousands of mothers in Britain benefit from a service set up in wartime and continued through popular demand.

Clothing exchanges for growing children are operated throughout the country, and parents can exchange junior's outgrown outfits for other second-hand garments in good condition.

"More than 300 exchanges are now operating," said an official of the Voluntary Women's Organization that instituted this service. "And the autumn demand is heavier than ever."

Twelve mobile exchanges now operate in rural areas, one unit linking 10 villages.

High living costs are reflected in the eagerness of mothers to take advantage of this service, said the official. "Boys' clothing of all types, particularly underwear, is always in demand."

At some centres, demand is so keen that working parties are kept busy cutting boys 'pants from women's skirts.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Get Cookies Made Before Christmas Rush

At one time in my life circumstances crowded me so hard that I had to organize my time so that I virtually did two things at once (and sometimes three) whenever possible.

For instance, my best example of this complex accomplishment is this: I would walk to the office in the morning which took forty minutes; on my way I chose ten blocks in which to think through my leads for these columns each day. This method served four purposes.

1. I had my daily constitutional.
2. When I sat down to the typewriter I knew what I was going to say.
3. I saved a bus ticket, and
4. I got to the office!

(The little matter of having to have my heels straightened and my shoes re-soled fortnightly is another story!)

Thank goodness, though, that pressure is greatly relieved now.

That leads up to what happened this morning. Pete came up to me just as he was leaving for school and put his arm lovingly around my shoulders, "Mother dear, you know how much I love you, don't you?" "Uh-hum I know"—"Well my precious pet—I promised to bring cookies to the Y.P.U. Meeting to-night. I forgot to tell you". "You are mother's little helper aren't you? I suppose you know I have to be Mistress of Ceremonies at a Cooking School this afternoon and this morning I have to type two daily columns?" "Yes dear I know all that but I'll help you when I get home from school, I'll taste them for you."

Is your six-foot two-incher, seventeen-year-old "just cute" like that?

The upshot was I made Christmas Cookies—thus doing two things at once. So the Y.P.U. Meeting ate some pretty fancy little cookies that were the hit of the evening and the young people sent messages home to me to the effect that I was elected official convenor of the cookie department. I made CHRISTMAS HERMITS (Such a silly title—who wants to be a hermit at Christmas!) Three-quarters cup shortening, 1½ cups firmly packed brown sugar, 3 well-beaten eggs, 2½ cups sifted cake flour, ¾ teaspoon baking soda, ½ cup each sultana raisins, chopped walnuts, green glace cherries, and whole red cherries, ½ teaspoon salt. Work the shortening with a spoon until fluffy and creamy; add sugar working until mixture is light. Then add well-beaten eggs. Add 2 cups of the flour sifted with soda. Add fruit and nuts, except whole red cherries, mixed with remaining ½ cup flour. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased or oiled cookie sheets about 2 inches apart. Top each cookie with a piece of red cherry. Bake in moderately hot oven of 375 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. One teaspoon grated lemon rind is an optional addition.

Watch for more Christmas Cookie recipes from now until Christmas time.

Wants TV

Her long (12-year) film contract with M-G-M expires a year from January. She is willing to sign on again—on her own terms.

"I want to have the right to do television, and I want to be able to make concert tours."

With refreshing candor, she said she wants to do concerts not for Art or to reach the public. She's interested in the money.

Capsule Review

"Double Dynamite" is a foolish concoction, but a diverting one. The nonsensical tale involves two enamored bank clerks (Frank Sinatra and Jane Russell) and ne'er-do-well waiter (Groucho Marx). Sinatra inadvertently wins thousands on the horses and all heck breaks loose. The geniality of the performers keeps this one from becoming a dud.

Service By Churches To Nation Circle Theme

MILLBROOK, Nov. 22 (ENS). —Mrs. Ernest Powell was hostess on Tuesday evening for the autumn thankoffering meeting of the Golden Links Circle of St. Andrew's United church. Mrs. M. E. Hobbs, the president, was in the chair, and there were 24 members and two visitors present.

Miss Estella Hetherington had charge of the worship service which had as its theme "The Church Serving the Nation." Mrs. Earl Armstrong gave the scripture reading and Mrs. A. M. Butler a poem.

Mrs. Hobbs conducted the study period which stressed the need of more churches in the larger cities of Canada. Mrs. Bruce Ingham told of the work being done in missions in Halifax, Toronto and Vancouver, and Miss Edith Clarke gave several stories of individuals in these missions.

Attention was called to the fact that Miss Jean Stewart, the Circle's special missionary, had at last been allowed to leave China and was on her way home by way of England. At the Circle Rally held in Peterborough last month each group was asked to take a missionary in Canada as well as the one already chosen overseas as the Circle's special missionary. The name drawn by the Golden Links Circle was Dr. Margaret Savage, stationed at the hospital in Cold Lake, Alberta.

The temperance report was given by Mrs. Homer Ouellette.

Since it was a thankoffering service, Mrs. Hobbs drew attention to some of the things for which the members might be thankful.

Miss Edith Thorn, the treasurer told of receiving greetings to the Circle from Mrs. W. E. Ball, who is in Florida, and who enclosed her thanskoffering envelope.

It was reported that $20 had been cleared at the M. and M. commmittee supper held in the parsonage last month. The thankoffering collection amounted to $30, with some contributions yet to come in.

Supper hostesses were Mrs. Robert Larmer and Mrs. Ernest Harker.

Children's Mission Raises $18 At Sale

HASTINGS, Nov. 22 — (ENS)— The November meeting of the WMS was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Waters with 13 present.

The worship period was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe.

Children's mission band earned over $18 at their recent food sale.

A document was read on a campaign in the offing to build a training school to prepare leaders for the United Church work.

The sum of $60,000 is to be raised for the project.

The special and annual WMS service is to be held at the morning service on Sunday, Dec. 30th. The Evening Auxiliary to select the guest speaker.

Next regular meeting of the WMS will be held on Dec. 13, in the church basement with the mission band in the afternoon. A bale of used clothing is to be packed soon.

Mrs. Way and Mrs. Collins read from the study book and mission digest. Prizes were given by Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe and the Rev. N. Cole.

Contest and lunch closed the meeting.

Carey Appeals Rape Conviction, Judgment Later

TORONTO, Nov. 22—The Ontario Appeal Court in Toronto Wednesday reserved judgment in the appeal of Ralph W. Carey, 26-year-old Port Hope undertaker, sentenced to 20 years for raping a young Port Hope woman.

"I venture to think that it has been a long time since you have read of a case as revolting as this one," Mr. Justice Laidlaw said to G. Arthur Martin, counsel for Carey.

Carey was convicted last April 4 by a jury at Cobourg and he was given the 20-year sentence by Chief Justice McRuer. The jury found him guilty of breaking into a neighboring home and attacking the mother of a small child while her husband was working night shift.

He got into the house by breaking a cellar window. He wore a mask that later fell off and he carried a flashlight with which he is said to have repeatedly struck the woman.

Mr. Martin said he agreed that the attack was brutal but said that it was wholly out of keeping with Carey's background.

"If this man was normal at the time, it was a most horrible offense and deserved severe punishment," said Mr. Justice Laidlaw.

20 Years Excessive

Mr. Martin then argued that a 20-year sentence was excesive and that sentences for first offenders in Ontario are generally in the neighborhood of five years.

"Since when?" asked Mr. Justice Hogg.

"In the past five or six years," said Mr. Martin.

"I'm afraid you won't get very far with that argument," interposed Mr. Justice Henderson. "Sentences for rape in this province have run all the way to hanging. I imposed a sentence of 20 years and 20 lashes myself."

"I did too," said Mr. Justice Hogg.

Mr. Justice Laidlaw then made his comment that the case was "brutal and revolting."

"A more moderate sentence would have served the purposes of justice," said Mr. Martin. "In modern times a sentence of 20 years is excessive."

C. P. Hope, KC, appeared for the crown.

Buchanan-McGee

NORWOOD, (ENS)—November 22, — The wedding of Miss Greta Lottie McGee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McGee, to Mr. Clayton David Buchanan, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Buchanan, was performed on Wednesday by the Rev. H. K. Wright at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

An arch of spruce boughs and chrysanthemums tied with wedding bells was arranged for the ceremony. Mrs. Robert Garden played wedding music and Miss Shirley Brown sang "Perfect Love" before the service and "Because" while the register was being signed.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a gown and train of white satin with lace yoke and sweetheart neckline. Her veil of silk net fell to train length and was caught to a pearl tiara. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Miss Jean Baskin, bridesmaid, and Catherine and Patricia Hudson as flower girls were frocked in pink and green taffeta and wore matching hats and mittens. Miss Baskin carried yellow and mauve 'mums and the flower girls had bouquets of pink carnations.

Mr. Russell McGee was groomsman and William and Clifford Sedgwick ushered.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a navy crepe dress and navy felt hat and her corsage was of pink carnations. She was assisted in receiving by the groom's sister, Mrs. Stanley McMillan who was wearing green faille with a cerise felt hat and corsage of yellow 'mums.

When leaving later on the wedding trip the bride wore an autumn green dress with lace trim and matching accessories.

They will live in Norwood.

Christmas Bazaar Revived By George St. WA Members

Revival of a custom of many years ago—it ended with the First World War—drew wide interest of ladies of the city to the George St. United Church on Wednesday. It was a Christmas bazaar with the old-fashioned style of decorated booths displaying quantities of goods, Christmas toys and gifts, aprons, home baking, candy and farm produce.

Preparations for this day began last May when, at a meeting of the Women's Association, president Mrs. George Munro appointed conveners to prepare for nine booths and a tea room. Those who took on the sewing work had helpers busy throughout the summer and they produced some very attractive contributions.

The apron table, which was just as pretty as an apron itself with ribbon bows, was convened by Mrs. H. G. McGinness. It was the first to be sold out, the aprons being all gone at four-thirty in the afternoon.

There was the usual rush to the home cooking table, one lady dashing in to buy up supplies for her family while she is out of town for a few days. Conveners, Mrs. J. Beatty and Mrs. S. Wildman had, however, arranged for sufficient quantity to last into the early evening.

Visitors to the bazaar, and there were well over 300 during the afternoon, with more coming in throughout the evening until ten o'clock, were representative of all the uptown church congregations.

They were served in the tea room, convened by Mrs. W. W. Sheppard, with hot chicken patties, dainty cakes and tea. The committee helping to serve, both afternoon and evening, included young women of the Federation, an affiliated group.

Red and green Christmas garlands roped off a section of the Sunday school auditorium and the platform where small tables were set for the guests. Over their heads were hung large and small Christmas bells and other fancy decorations for the festive season, leading up to a beautiful Christmas tree. These gala trappings were put up for the ladies by Mr. George Munro and they will be left in place except the tree, until after the Sunday school Christmas concert. Each of the booths was decorated by the ladies in charge.

Young people were attracted to this affair by a fish pond, which they cleared of "fish" by supper time, and by the candy booth which obtained a further supply of candy for the evening. Mrs. Alex. Rosborough and Mrs. Geo. Benton operated the fish pond and Mrs. P. C. Sanders was in charge of the candy booth.

There were also movies in connection with this affair. Two fine films were loaned by the Public Library and the projector was operated in the afternoon by Mrs. Quirt McKinney and in the evening by Mr. Ross Payne.

A record player and recordings were also loaned and the music entertained during the tea hours.

"White elephants," on paper, marched around the table of gift articles which included some fine paintings contributed by Mrs Charles Elliott. This was a very popular booth convened by Mrs. M. McIntyre and Mrs. F. Barrett.

Miscellaneous fancy work, plants, etc., was offered at a table convened by Mrs. W. K. McGee and Mrs. E. L. Sackville. Children's clothes from pyjamas to jumpers and blouses were very well made for sale at the booth convened by Mrs. M. H. Ballard.

A most interesting collection of stuffed animals was offered by convener Mrs. W. H. Frise. Two tables with gay canopy decorating were used to display these toys.

Lapel pins for the Christmas season were made of tiny cones picked up in the woods and sold at the booth convened by Mrs. E. Yelland. The very large cones were gilded with silver and gold paint for table decorations. Also for sale were jams, jellies, pickles and other produce of the farm.

The bazaar was officially opened with a message of welcome from the Rev. A. A. Mathews. Mrs. Mathews was assisting Mrs. Munro to receive at the door.

Canada-US Exchange Income Tax Laws

OTTAWA, Nov. 22 (CP)—Canada and the United States have exchanged instruments of ratification bringing into force two conventions on reciprocal tax treatment, the external affairs department announced Wednesday.

The announcement was made simultaneously here and in Washington.

The two tax conventions were signed in June, 1950 and amend existing tax conventions in the fields of income tax and succession duties. Canada has accepted a reservation to the income tax convention liberalizing the exemptions for casual visitors from either country receiving compensation for services performed in the other country.

The conventions will have retroactive effect to Jan. 1, 1951.

Reds Making Feeble Efforts To Discredit Canadians

WITH THE CANADIANS IN GERMANY, Nov. 22 (CP)—Soon after the Canadians moved into barracks in the Hanover area someone scrawled on a nearby wall an invitation for them to go home and a Communist newspaper published an article deploring their use of quarters which might be used for Germans living in "misery and squalor."

It was Communism's feeble salute to the latest western troops to come to Europe. But the surprising thing about it is that although the 28th brigade is concentrating only 40 miles and less from the iron curtain, Communits activity appears to be about as inconsequential as it is back home.

There have been incidents in Hannover which some people think may be red-inspired, but other people don't. Small groups of Germans have shoved Canadians. A German girl dancing with a Canadian has had her face slapped by a German civilian. Canadian orders are to act with restraint under such circumstances.

But this outward appearance of Communist impotence doesn't mean they aren't being watched. Security arrangements are broad and extensive on the assumption that a red fifth column must operate in West Germany.

Girls Screened

Every German who works for the Canadians or British is screened. Any soldier who wants to take a German girl to a military dance must give three days' notice for screening, mostly for health reasons but partly political.

The newspaper article was published in Hannover's Die Wahreit or Truth and it contained the familiar red tactic of taking a legitimate grievance and slanting it for their own ends.

Truth quotes an unemployed German—there are 60,000 in Hannover—living within sight of the barracks as regretting that more and more foreign troops are coming in to live at the expense of "wretched" Germans.

This ignores the Canadian policy of paying Canada's own costs rather than taking [illegible]ion money from the Germ[illegible] runs counter to the pleasure of German officials that the Canadians are simply taking over quarters already in British use.

And, incidentally, from the window of the barracks where this is being written, many homes are visible. They are all homes many Canadians would be pleased to own.

At the same time Syntona helps build up the entire system. Promotes better assimilation of food and relieves nervousness, poor appetite and fatigues, rundown feeling.

Mr. Francis Edwards, of 147 Clarence Street, London, Ont., said in a recent report:

"I was run down and suffered from headache, backache and rheumatic pains in all my limbs, joints and muscles. Many days I felt sore and lame all over. MR. FRANCIS EDWARDS

"But since I've been taking Syntona it is just wonderful how different I feel. First thing I noticed was that my food began to digest without causing gas and sour acidity. PC'S GET LANDSLIDE

VANQUISHED CANDIDATES GREETED THE FOURTH-TIME WINNER of Peterborough West, Progressive-Conservative the Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, Right, following a short radio talk by each one at the radio station on Thursday night. Both Liberal candidate Francis Patrick Burke, Left, and CCF candidate W. C. Grant said that the whole campaign had been conducted in a gentlemanly and sporting manner.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Elect Scott 4th Time In 8 Years

Gets Largest Vote Ever Polled In County History

The Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, Thursday was elected to the Ontario Legislature for the fourth time in eight years. He received the largest vote ever polled in Peterborough county by a provincial candidate and also chalked up a record majority.

His overwhelming victory was typical of the election results all over Ontario as the Progressive Conservatives increased their seats in the legislature from 53 to 79. The CCFers were reduced from 21 to two seats; the Liberals from 14 to seven; and the Labor Progressives from two to one.

With 173 of 175 polling subdivisions reported, here are the unofficial results for Peterborough county at press time:

H. R. Scott, PC	14,344
F. P. Burke, Lib.	7,616
W. C. Grant, CCF	2,604
Total	24,564

(Three advance polls are included).

The two subdivisions not yet reported are Sherwood Gerow's house, Belmont township, and Post's school in Chandos township Together they are not expected to total more than 150 votes and they could not upset the final results.

Mr. Scott was victorious in the city and all of the county's 15 municipalities with the exception of Douro township. In Douro the native Irish rallied to the support of the Liberal standard bearer, F. P. (Paddy) Burke.

Most Exciting Race

In the most exciting race of the day Mr. Burke edged Mr. Scott by a single vote. The unofficial returns show Mr. Burke with 357

Heavy Vote Smashes CCF In Surprise Upset, Only 2 Candidates Elected

TORONTO, Nov. 23. (CP)—A mild-mannered small-town lawyer to headed an Ontario Government with the greatest majority in the Province's history. Leslie Frost's Progressive Conservative administration was re-elected in Thursday's general election by a margin that was nothing less than a landslide. And a heavy vote smashed the Socialist CCF as a political force at least for the life of the 24th Legislature and left a weakened Liberal party as the official Opposition. The closest previous parallel to Thursday's result was the election when the Conservatives under the redoubtable G. Howard Ferguson returned 91 members in a 112-seat House. In 1934, when the legislature was reduced to 90 seats, the Liberal party was swept into power with 66 seats.

In its victory sweep the Frost administration obtained 49 per cent of the total vote, the highest percentage since the Liberals' 51 per cent in 1937. With counting of ballots all but completed, a vote count of 1,707,668 had been tabulated. The record vote came in the 1945 election when 1,765,793 Ontarians cast ballots. Some 3,000,000 were eligible this time.

The final standing, with the standing after the last election:

	1951	1948
Prog. Conservative	79	53
Liberal	7	13
CCF	2	21
Liberal-Labor	1	1
Labor-Progressive	1	2
Total	90	90

Smashing Defeat

While the result left the Liberals' seven-man representation as the official opposition, of more immediate interest to political experts was the smashing defeat of the CCF. The party's leader of nine years, E. B. Jolliffe, lost his seat. The CCF stalwarts fell right and left. In only one industrial riding and in one largely gold-mining, northern seat did it elect candidates.

In approving the good-government program of Premier Frost—in a sharp six-week campaign he made one promise—the electorate rejected that put forward by Walter C. Thomson, leader of the Liberal party. Mr. Thomson, who failed to win election himself, promised more social services of all kinds, including a contributory hospital-care plan, and a general reduction of taxation.

Mr. Thomson, who accepted defeat with the remark, "There will always be another day," began his campaign for election almost as soon as he was elected party leader a year ago. He made 159 political and 97 non-political speeches in 12 months and 12 days in almost every part of the province. He retained his seat in the Commons, where he represented Ontario riding, until last month.

Paper Under Fire

An issue in the campaign, sharp, sometimes bitter, throughout, was the part played by The Toronto Star. The newspaper vigorously supported Mr. Thomson and its presentation of campaign news

Give Gratuities To Troops Serving In Korea

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Canadian troops serving in the Far East will get war service gratuities similar to those paid Canadian servicemen in the Second World War, the army announced today.

The gratuities will amount to 50 cents a day for each day of paid service in the Far Eastern theatre, plus a supplementary grant of one week's pay and allowances for every 183 days overseas.

On this basis, a married first-class private who is serving in the Far East will receive a gratuity of approximately $275 for each year he served overseas. An unmarried sergeant will receive approximately $250 and a married captain approximately $340.

In the Second World War, Canadian servicemen and women received a gratuity of $7.50 for each 30 days' service in the Western hemisphere and $15 for each completed 30 days overseas, without regard to rank.

Paid On Discharge

"Payment of the gratuities will be made on discharge to special force soldiers terminating their engagement and to active and special force men released on medical grounds," the announcement said.

Cheques will be sent out "in a few weeks" to eligible men already discharged, the statement added.

"These men need not make official application for their gratuities as all preliminary work has been completed.

"All others will make application on the form provided at the personnel depot where and when their discharge is effected.

Lindsay Goes Wild As Frost Wins

LINDSAY, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Premier Frost Thursday night put his arm around the shoulders of Edward Harding and led in three cheers for the Liberal candidate whom he defeated in Victoria riding in the Ontario leection.

Mr. Harding, from Minden, came in to Mr. Frost's committee room at 8.55 pm, shook hands with the Premier, and said: "It couldn't happen to a better man."

The Progressive Conservative committee room in this Victoria county town, where Mr. Frost has practised law for nearly 30 years, was jammed with well-wishers who joined as the Premier led three cheers and a tiger for Mr. Harding.

The room was littered with telegrams of congratulations and was brightened intermittently with the flash of photographers' flash-bulbs.

When Mr. Frost heard the bulletin saying his government had been returned he said to those near him: "I've waited a long time for that one."

Rides On Fire Truck

It took the Premier 15 minutes to get out of the room, shaking hands as he pushed through the crowd to get outdoors where a fire truck stood waiting for him.

Mr. Frost sat on top as the fire engine drove up and down the town's main street three times with the siren screaming. A cavalcade of horn-blowing cars followed.

On his way to the fire truck he spotted a small girl standing in the crowd with a camera and flash-bulb. He waited while she took a picture before climbing on the truck.

The fire truck finally drove him home. The rest of Lindsay, despite a drizzling rain, continued a celebration that outdid any Saturday night this town ever saw.

Reds Protest Plane Flight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23 (AP) —Russia has protested to the United States that an American plane violated the Siberian border. A note from Moscow said the plane was fired on by Soviet fighter craft.

This was learned today, and may explain a Moscow press announcement of the decoration of two Soviet navy fliers for outstanding performance of their service duties.

The circumstances paralleled the awards given Soviet fliers who shot down an American navy Privateer plane early last year.

While there was no official comment on the matter, it was learned that Russia filed the protest Nov. 7.

On that date, Hugh Cumming, who is in charge of the US embassy at Moscow in the absence of Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, was called in for an interview with Acting Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Neither Moscow nor the State Department disclosed at the time the subject of the interview.

However, it was learned the Russian note was was not presented then.

Persons familiar with the matter said Gromyko charged that an American plane deliberately crossed the border in the area of Vladivostock, that it was pursued and fired upon by Soviet fighters, and was last seen disappearing toward the sea.

Freedom Brief

OSHAWA, Nov. 23 (CP).—Roy Slobodian, found guilty three months ago of the screw-driver killing of his wife, escaped on Thursday from Oshawa General Hospital but was captured a block away. He had been taken to hospital for treatment after he slashed his wrists in his cell at Whitby jail.

1,000 Cheering Westerners Take Over Toronto For Game

TORONTO, Nov. 23 .(CP)—Toronto was invaded today by some 1,000 cheering, singing and shouting stetson-bedecked Regina Roughrider fans. Toronto welcomed them with open arms. Coming here for Saturday's Ottawa-Regina Dominion football final, the cowboy-booted, blue-jeaned westerners arrived on two "Grey Cup Specials". The first reached Union Station at 9:40 a.m., the second 20 minutes later. Bringing their own miniature bands, waving placards and signs predicting victory, the rollickers received a greeting from nearly 1,000 Torontonians who crowded the station concourse.

The team, which arrived earlier in the week, was slightly amazed.

"We never expected it to be like this," said big Glen Dobbs, the Riders' passing star. "Why, it's wonderful. I've never seen anything like it in all my life. We just have to win for all these wonderful people."

Typical of the Regina fans were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. (Jim) Armstrong. The retired real estate man and his wife have been coming east regularly since the first Roughrider club made a Grey Cup bid against Queen's University in 1923. The Tricolor won 54-0 that time.

"It will be different Saturday," Armstrong said.

Hasn't Any Doubts

Norm McInnes, oil company executive, arrived on the first section. Wearing a white Stetson decked with green and white Regina colors, he assured everyone there's no doubt about Saturday's game.

"But did we have fun on the way down?" he said. "We left Regina at 1:30 pm Wednesday and it was a continuous party all the way. We had dances, cooked our food and sang all the way. What a time."

4 Die, 14 Hurt In Truck Smash

VAL MORIN, Que., Nov. 23—(CP)—Four workmen were killed and 14 injured today when a truck in which they were riding skidded off an icy road and crashed through a guard-rail fence into a 30-foot ravine.

First reports did not give the names of the dead or injured.

The accident occurred near La Binnette, some 10 miles from here and about 60 miles north of Montreal in the Laurentian mountains.

The men were said to be travelling in the course of a road building job.

Quebec provincial police immediately went to the scene to investigate. One report was that the truck was also involved in a collision with an automobile.

Grey Cup Weather Cloudy With Snow

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP)—The weather for Saturday afternoon's Grey Cup football game probably will be cloudy and cool with some light snow, the public weather office said today.

But chief forecaster Fred Turnbull said there is risk of a storm overnight.

Here is the special Grey Cup "communique," fourth of a series:

"The cold-polar versus warm-tropical weather battle is still very much in evidence. During the night the cold forces made new gains, pushing the scrimmage line eastward to Toronto—a sharp eight-degree temperature drop this morning marked the arrival of the Arctic breezes.

"The surprise attack of the tropical currents, suggested Thursday, took the form of a long end run. A hefty little storm pushed the whole length of the scrimmage line from Kansas to northern Quebec with a speed in excess of 60 miles an hour. The polar forces held the line, giving no opportunity for a breakthrough.

"It now appears that the polar forces will hold the scrimmage line off to the south, providing a cool, cloudy afternoon with some light snow."

More Dikes Crumble As Po Rampages

ROVIGO, Italy, Nov. 23 (Reuters)—Flood waters from the rain-swollen Po River Thursday night blasted new breaches in the dikes, driving thousands more Italians from their homes in the 400-square-mile delta area near the Adriatic Sea.

The dikes crumbled at eight points under the enormous pressure.

Most residents of the area had abandoned their homes and joined the army of 200,000 homeless when engineers announced they would sacrifice seven villages to ease the flow of the river towards the sea.

Flood waters today were running away more rapidly towards the sea, but not as fast as the engineers expected. They planned to widen the breaches.

Allow By-Elections For Two Leaders

LINDSAY, Nov. 23 (CP)—Premier Frost said today he does not think Progressive Conservative candidates would oppose two party leaders defeated in Thursday's Ontario election if they seek to enter the legislature in by-elections.

"This is generaly conceded to be the customary thing," Mr. Frost said, "and I think that courtesy should be extended to them."

Liberal Leader Walter Thomson was defeated in Ontario riding and CCF Leader E. B. Jolliffe in York South.

The Progressive Conservatives gained 26 seats in the Legislature. The Liberal party lost six seats in the House but partial returns indicated it polled 31 per cent of the vote, compared with 29 per cent in 1948.

The CCF, whose House membership dropped from 21 to two, polled 19 per cent yesterday compared with 27 per cent three years ago.

Incomplete Canadian Press compilations indicated the total vote might rival the 1948 figure of 1,757,767 or even the 1945 record of 1,765,793. But the exact figure may not be known for days.

With more than 1,700,000 ballots counted, the party-vote percentages were as follows, compared to the last four elections:

Communism Nothing To Fear–Archbishop Church Has Fought Such Ideas For Centuries

MONTREAL, Nov. 23—(CP) —Msgr. Paul-Emile Leger, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal, thinks people "talk too much about communism."

"Newspapers are full of it, radio is jammed with it to a point where Christian people fear it like the plague," he said, in an address to a gathering of Knights of Columbus.

"Actually, there is nothing to fear. Marxism is only a man's idea of a method which will make men greater than his forefathers and even more perfect than mankind today.

"There is nothing new about this idea. The church has had to combat such idealism for centuries..."

Msgr. Leger said the church's worst enemy at present is materialism and man's false conception of his inevitable destination.

Russia Files Complaint Against US

Financing Groups To Overthrow Stalin UN Told

PARIS, Nov. 23. (AP)—Russia today filed a formal complaint with the Untied Nations, charging that the United States is financing armed groups on her territory aimed at the overthrow of Prime Minister Stalin's government.

The Soviet Union Thursday night asked the general assembly to look into charges that the US Mutual Security Act was intended to foster subversive acts in Communist countries.

In an explanatory note today, Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky said US financing through the Mutual Security Act "of subversive organizations and diversionist groups . . . constitutes an act of aggression towards the Soviet Union and the states of the peoples democracies."

Call It Propaganda

The note to the UN followed a similar Russian communication to the US government Tuesday. The US state department dismissed the protest as "groundless propaganda" and said it came with "singular ill-grace" from a regime which has consistently supported "subversive activity against the US and other nations of the free world."

The latest Russian blast against the west came as the assembly marked time on its peace programs, with some hope that Vishinsky, in a scheduled appearance before the UN political committee Saturday, would answer the west's disarmament proposals with a speech spelling real peace.

The British minister of state, Selwyn Lloyd, told the committee Thursday that the assembly already has shown signs of a lessening in the east-west tension.

Although some believed he was only echoing his own and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's conciliatory words, Lloyd expressed the hope that the Russians would further relax the tension by accepting the west's disarmament proposals.

Plane Wreckage Reported Seen

ROME, Nov. 23 (AP).—Clearing skies sent ground and air searchers out in force today to pin down reports on a United States Air Force plane missing since Monday with four men aboard.

One unconfirmed report said wreckage had been sighted among the jagged peaks of northeast Italy's Dolomite Mountains, 40 miles east of Bolzano.

Another report, from a traveller arriving in Vienna said the plane was shot down by Romanian army border guards as it touched the iron curtain on its flight from Germany to Belgrade.

Neither report could be confirmed officially.

Clouds and fog which previously had hampered the search cleared today. Twenty US planes based on Treviso Air Field in northeast Italy swept the skies above that section and Yugoslavia.

Italian police and US ground searchers were working in the Dolomites, trying to check the report of the sighted wreckage.

Biggest Gains Scored In Toronto, York

TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP). — The Progressive Conservative victory tide flowed strongest in the 17 Toronto and York ridings in Thursday's Ontario election.

The Progressive Conservatives retained the four Toronto area seats won in 1948, and gained 11 seats from the CCF and one from the Communist Labor-Progressive Party. They missed a complete sweep by one—Toronto St. Andrews, held by Labor-Progressive Joseph Salsberg.

Western Ontario's 26 seats edged further into the Progressive Conservative fold. The government added six seats to the 16 won in 1948; Liberal holdings dropped from eight to four and two CCF seats were wiped out.

In Northern Ontario's 12 seats, the government's party strength rose to 10—four more seats than in 1948. The CCF lost three of four seats and Liberal supporters fell from two to one.

Of Central Ontario's 18 seats, the government won 16, compared to 12 in 1948. The Liberals kept one of two former seats and the CCF one of four.

Eastern Ontario, with 17 members, showed no change in party standings. In 1948 and Thursday the Progressive Conservatives won 15 seats and the Liberals two.

CNIB Says No Offer Of Dog

A report that a seeing-eye dog would be supplied to some blind person if two pounds of cellophane ribbon were collected, was discounted today by Colin McEachern, field secretary of the Peterborough district of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Wednesday, an offer was received by the Louis Braille Society from Claude A. Hunter that a seeing-eye dog would be given if enough of the cellophane were collected. Mr. McEachern said Mr. Hunter was apparently acting on the widespread story.

Mr. McEachern said the head office of the Canadian Institute for the blind checked with every cigarette manufacturer in Canada about the offer and none of them knew anything about it.

All the organizations, which are all in the US, which supply seeing-eye dogs were also queried and they knew nothing of the offer.

Mr. McEachern said he was anxious that no one be disappointed unnecessarily by an offer which apparently doesn't exist.

US Superforts Plaster New Red Jet Air Base

SEOUL, Nov. 23. (AP)—Ten United States Superforts roared through intense flak and an angry cordon of MIG-15s Thursday night and plastered a new Communist jet air base two miles from Communist China's Manchurian frontier. The Far East air forces in Tokyo said all B-29s returned to their bases. It described the results as good.

The raid was the first bombing attack on Uiju, in northwest Korea two miles south of the Yalu river boundary.

This strike so close to the "sanctuary" of Manchuria pointed up the mounting Allied effort to block off the growing Communist air threat and keep the Reds from setting up bases in North Korea.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, chief of the US Air Force, warned in Washington that Red China has emerged suddenly as a major air power. He said this new-born air force, with Russian-type jets and Russian-speaking pilots, has broken Allied air supremacy in Korea although the United Nations still holds superiority.

Allied F-86 Sabre jets strafed Uiju field Sunday and caught 11 MIGs on a taxi strip. They reported eight destroyed or damaged.

Then the big Superforts hit last night.

Plaster Runway

The B-29s spilled 100-pound bombs at the 7,100-foot runway and dropped quarter-ton airbursting bombs which hurl jagged chunks of steel at hidden planes.

Communist jets snarled around the B-29s but FEAF said they made no firing runs.

Almost every night for a month, B-29s have bombed three new Red airfields farther south—at Namst, Taechon and Saamcham.

Vandenberg said the raids have prevented the Reds from using the three fields.

He estimated the Chinese Reds have about 1,500 planes in North China and Manchuria, of which half are MIG jets. He said the MIG "in many respects can outperform our own F-86" Sabre jet, the top Allied fighter operating in Korea.

Truce In Korea By Christmas Now Possibility

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 23 (AP) —A truce in Korea by Christmas became a possibility today as negotiators reached agreement on the first section of an armistice—the thorny buffer-zone issue.

If the agreemnt is approved—as expected—by the full truce delegations, negotiators will have 30 days in which to solve three other tough problems—supervision of the armistice, exchange of war prisoners and recommendations to the belligerent governments.

Fighting will continue in the war, now 17 months old, until all of these points are settled.

Maj.-Gen. Henry I. Hodes, chief United Nations command subcommitteeman, indicated the full five-man delegation could meet Sunday to approve the buffer-zone agreement worked out by sub-committees.

Staff officers Friday started mapping the actual line of battle contact. This is to become the formal cease-fire line if an armistice is signed within 30 days.

The staff officers meet again at 10 am Saturday (9 pm EST Friday.)

Check Translation

Final approval of the buffer-zone agreement was delayed during Friday's 50-minute session because Communist delegates wanted to check the translation into Chinese and Korean of the UN command revision of the Reds' own cease-fire proposals.

Later a spokesman said the "wording" was approved.

If no agreement is reached before the 30-day deadline, a new demarcation line incorporating changes resulting from military action will be drawn just before an armistice is signed. Then both armies will pull back to create a buffer zone 2½ miles wide.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, UN command spokesman, said the agreement would give the Allies "exactly what they asked for at the beginning of the talks in July."

Wants Liberals To Drop Paper

HAMILTON, Nov. 23 — (CP) —James Osbaldeston, president of the Hamilton East Liberal Association, said today he intends to place before the Ontario Liberal Association a resolution proposing "that we divorce ourselves from the Toronto Daily Star until it presents its news in a more sensible manner."

Mr. Osbaldeston telephoned this statement of intention to the Hamilton Spectator. Criticizing newspapers which presented editorials on their front pages during the Ontario election campaign he attributed Liberal defeat in Thursday's election to the Star, and added:

"Other papers replying to the Star and presenting editorials on their front pages might have struck a similar blow at the Progressive Conservative candidates if such practices had continued for another week. People just want to read unbiased facts. They don't want the truth varnished, and they resent being told what to do."

Hero's Welcome For Mossadegh

TEHRAN, Nov. 23 (CP)—Premier Mossadegh received a hero's welcome when he returned to Iran today from a fruitless mission to Washington and a triumphal trip to Cairo.

A frenzied welcome reached a hysterical pitch when a man tried to throw himself under the wheels of the Premier's car as a "sacrifice." Police saved him.

Police estimated that 250,000 persons thronged the airport to greet the frail Nationalist leader, whose government is facing a financial crisis threatening the country with bankruptcy.

The city was under strict military guard to foil any attempt to stage a revolt against Mossadegh's regime, under growing criticism at home for failure to solve the financial crisis stemming from Iran's nationalization of her oil resources.

The frail premier appeared wan and worn from his mission of almost seven weeks.

In Cairo, Mossadegh had urged Egypt and Iran to work closer together in a joint fight against "British Imperialism." During his Cairo stay he and Premier Mustapha El Nahas Pasha of Egypt decided to begin talks soon about tighter economic and cultural pacts between the two countries.

Hold 2 Orderlies

ALBANY, NY, Nov. 23 (AP)— Police today held two hospital orderlies on charges stemming from a 20-year-old girl's story that she had been assaulted, robbed and tossed into the Hudson river. Detectives said Edwin W. Crumley, 42, has been charged with attempted murder and robbery, and Peter Kotowylak, 49, with rape. Police said Mary Ballard told them that both men had attacked her, snatched her purse, and pushed her into the water.

LESLIE FROST'S PC ADMINISTRATION was re-elected Thursday with the greatest majority in Ontario's history. Frost himself polled 12,416 votes against Edward Harding (L) 2,915.

Commons Sets Fast Pace Handling Work

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (CP)—The Commons is setting a fast clip in disposing of the government's legislative program.

It showed an almost-unprecedented pace Thursday in putting through five items of government business so swiftly the House for the first time in years passed up an evening session for lack of anything to do.

Possibly preoccupied with the day's Ontario general election, the Commoners rattled the bills through with short discussions and no opposition. They cleaned up the government's scheduled program for the day and night, plus one bill more, well before the afternoon session was over.

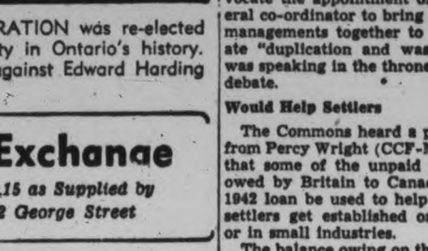
Four measures got third and final reading in the Commons Thursday; another got second reading and the sixth received first reading. All were brought in by the government.

The Senate heard Senator A. N. McLean (L-New Brunswick) advocate the appointment of a federal co-ordinator to bring railway managements together to eliminate "duplication and waste." He was speaking in the throne speech debate.

Would Help Settlers

The Commons heard a proposal from Percy Wright (CCF-Melfort) that some of the unpaid balance owed by Britain to Canada on a 1942 loan be used to help British settlers get established on farms or in small industries.

The balance owing on the original $700,000,000 loan is $229,800,000. Mr. Wright suggested the fund be used to ease the difficulties of immigrating Britons who now are able to take out of Britain only small amounts of capital.



The House gave third and final reading to a measure to continue the loan on an interest-free basis until Jan. 1, 1954.

Another measure given final reading in the House Thursday would empower the banks to operate only five days a week.

Heftiest item dealt with Thursday was a government bill to consolidate and revise the statutes dealing with the government's financial administrative practices. The Commons adopted a resolution preliminary to the bill and then gave the measure itself first reading.

Conservative Landslide

Our first task—and it is a pleasant one—in commenting on the Conservative landslide in the provincial election, is to congratulate Mr. Harold Scott on his victory in this constituency; his able representation of Peterborough, and his successful management of the Department of Lands and Forests have made him one of Premier Frost's best lieutenants, and have won him the respect of all parties in this district. Mr. F. P. Burke, a newcomer to local politics, made a creditable run as Liberal candidate, but no man can make a successful political campaign in this riding who enters the field a few weeks before the election. For Mr. William Grant, the C.C.F. candidate, we feel that a word of praise is fitting; a man who presents himself to the public in defence of his principles upon three occasions, knowing that he will be defeated, has earned the respect of his opponents, as well as his supporters. Three good men represented their parties in Peterborough, and the contest was a clean and honourable one. There was never any serious question but that Mr. Scott would be re-elected, but the decisive nature of his victory was of a piece with the reaffirmation of trust in the Frost administration which was exhibited all over the province.

* * *

The principal reason for the Conservative victory was, of course, the good record of the Conservative government. No scandal has ever touched it; no charge of serious mismanagement or wanton extravagance has ever been proved against it. As we have said in these columns many times, it has followed the trend of all recent governments in taking power from the municipalities; it has been dull and flat-footed in its treatment of education; but these are not matters which bring about the fall of governments. In the affairs which appeal most directly to the voters it has done its work well, and its soundness and honesty are apparent to everyone. That is the overwhelming reason for its re-election.

* * *

Certain factors, however, contributed to the triumphant nature of its victory. The campaigning of the Liberal leader, Mr. Walter Thomson, was not of the kind which caused pride in the hearts of Liberals of principle. Election promises are one thing: wholesale offers of benefits which are demonstrably unattainable are something else. Mr. Thomson made a valiant effort to re-build the Liberal party in Ontario, but he tried to build it with straw; it must be built of stone, and that will take time and a very strong man. He was unlucky also, in the nature of the support given him by the Toronto Star; such newspaper tactics are old-fashioned, and in the day of their greatest vogue they never brought real political influence to the Hearst press which used them most extensively; now that they are outworn and discredited they have no effect in Canada. The Star's attempts to strum upon the heart-strings of Ontario voters served only to exacerbate the Globe and Mail and the Telegram, and they dealt acrimoniously with Mr. Thomson. We do not think that they defeated him, for he defeated himself, but the Toronto newspaper uproar served on all counts to present him in the worst possible light.

* * *

We are at a loss at present to account for the severe defeat of the C.C.F. This is a party, of course, which thrives in bad times and has faster and greater vicissitudes of strength than either of its opponents. With twenty per cent. of the vote it has a mere two seats in the Legislature.

* * *

It always seems mean-spirited to complain of the extent of a party victory. Nevertheless, we must say that the small opposition which will face Premier Frost's next government in the Legislature is not good for parliamentary government in Ontario. The trend toward legislative monopolies in Canada's provinces is examined more closely in another editorial. Mr. Frost's government, judged on its record, is not likely to abuse its power; it is conservative in the best sense, and will not allow itself to be carried away by victory. But parliamentary government is a matter of constant checks, and unremitting examination and criticism. The size and quality of the new Opposition promises little in that respect.

A psychologist gets his name in the papers for declaring that a dumb blonde has as good a chance of getting married as a clever girl. Yes, but will it be as successful a marriage?

One Party Houses

Ontario has joined the trend to one-party Legislatures. In all other provinces except Saskatchewan the Opposition is reduced to a corporal's guard. Saskatchewan has a C.C.F. Government supported by 31 of 52 members of the Legislature; the C.C.F. has thus a clear majority but not the preponderance of Government parties in the other nine provinces. In British Columbia and Manitoba coalition governments have been formed—weighty combinations of Liberals and Conservatives against C.C.F. and independents.

Here is the shape of the various provincial legislatures, as represented by party standings at the end of last December:

Prov. Government	Seats Held	Total Opposition
B.C.—Coalition	39	9
Alta.—Social Credit	51	6
Man.—Coalition	47	10
Que.—Union Nationale	82	10
N.B.—Liberal	46	6
N.S.—Liberal	27	10
P.E.I.—Liberal	24	6
Nfld.—Liberal	21	7
Sask.—C.C.F.	31	21

His Majesty's Loyal Opposition in all provinces excepting Saskatchewan are so numerically weak that they are ceasing to exist effectively. This does not mean that Opposition parties in Federal ridings in the provinces are disappearing. In Federal politics, Quebec is dominantly Liberal despite Liberal weakness in Provincial politics; and as the last Federal election showed, Ontario is predominantly Liberal despite the power of the Provincial Conservatives.

Thus there are two trends which yesterday's election results in Ontario reaffirmed—a swing to one-party Government in the Provinces; and a severance of Provincial party politics and governments from Federal politics and Government. If the provincial and Federal politicians have refused to accept the reality of this separation, the voters have convincingly demonstrated it across Canada in the last four years. On the whole, the independence of Provincial from Federal government—when neither is in the other's pocket—is healthy and good for the political well-being of the country.

The Truth Will Not Out

In this country and on this continent in which outstanding engineers and brilliant investigators abound, it is incredible that no reason can be found why the Duplessis Bridge at Three Rivers collapsed last January 31st. Two commissioners appointed by the Duplessis Government to investigate the collapse of the new $3,500,000 bridge have presented a report which is long as four pages of this newspaper. In all that report they do not put their finger on the reason for the bridge's fall. The two were a Montreal magistrate (whose appointment is made by the Province) and a Montreal engineer.

The bridge may have collapsed because of an extraordinary act of God—yet there were no bolts from the blue and no violent storms which the engineers who built the bridge could not have foreseen. There were no earthquakes at Three Rivers and no atom bombs. But with the best scientific brains of this continent presumably at their call and witnesses of less technical capacity, and their own mental powers, the Commissioners could find no reason for the collapse of the Duplessis Bridge.

Our faith is badly shaken in the ability of engineers to know what they are doing when they are engineering, and in investigators to discover truth when evidence before the eyes presents none to the mind. We wonder if the search for an adequate explanation of the bridge's collapse might have been more successful if two commissioners farther removed from the Quebec scene had been appointed instead of two Montreal men? It dismays us to think that now the truth will never be known, as a public fact.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A newspaper writer estimates that the average lawn is cut twenty times a year. Then why does it seem like forty?

The Guelph Mercury comments that the word "thoroughbred" is often misused when speaking of horses. And oftener misused when speaking of people.

A university professor has said that a degree is no guarantee of a job. The Kingston Whig rather bitterly comments that it is also no guarantee of an education.

A number of songs, we learn, are barred from the air because they have two meanings. Perhaps they are just trying to establish a balance with the ones which have no meaning.

A fellow-editor has dived deep into the profundities of thought and come up with this remarkable fish in his mouth: "In times like these, it is best to live only one day at a time." Very well, we shall repress our tendency to cram a week's living into a few hours—a trick with which we have been astonishing Dr. Einstein and the relativity boys recently.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR ALPHA: Where can one obtain a voltmeter; and what can one do if he finds his voltage low? I am rather certain that our voltage is below standard. When we moved from the north end of Bolivar Street, our washing machine persisted in blowing fuses. A repair man was called and he declared the machine blameless but said that most people in this district used "20" fuses because of the low voltage. Our electric stove, which had formerly been most efficient, became inordinately tardy, and I bought a complete new set of burners but to no avail. I am told by an engineer that low voltage shortens the lives of electric motors, such as is found in the refrigerator.

Hydro is giving us poor service, forcing us into dangerous practices and burning out our motors? Is there nothing we can do with this Frankenstein?

ANSWER: You might borrow or rent a voltmeter from an electrical repair shop, or get a friend who has one tucked up his sleeve to take a sounding....If the voltage is below standard you might be able to sue the Utilities Commission for breach of contract. That would be a matter to discuss with a lawyer.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALPHA, DEAR SIR: Quoting from a letter in to-day's Globe and Mail, I see, "any one of the new Old Age pensioners forfeits his pension if he lives outside Canada for six months in the calendar year." Newspaper reports seemed to me to say that any such pensioner lost his pension for each month he overstayed outside Canada beyond three months. What is the correct version? Those who were working and saving in 1930 and 1940 and retired now are due a compensation (rather than a penalty) for the devaluation of their money and insurances permitted by a federal government that encouraged high wages and costs in recent years.

ANSWER: The Old Age Security Act passed by the House of Commons on November 8 states: that the $40 monthly pension will be paid to any person who has attained the age of 70 and "has resided in Canada for the 20 years immediately preceding the day on which his application is approved, or, if he has not so resided, (i) has been present in Canada prior to those 20 years for an aggregate period at least equal to twice the aggregate periods of absence from Canada during those 20 years, and (ii) has resided in Canada for at least one year immediately preceding the day on which his application is approved".

The Act also states that where a pensioner absents himself from Canada, payment of the pension shall be suspended immediately. But if the pensioner returns within six months, the pension will be resumed, and he will be then paid his back pension (missed while he was away), not exceeding three months' pension in any calendar year.

Thus, if a pensioner decided to take a holiday in Florida during four months in the winter, his pension cheque will be stopped immediately. But when he comes back at the end of four months, he will get three months' back pension cheques.

If he goes to England for a couple of months in the summer, his pension cheques will be stopped, but given him when he comes back. But if this person is the same one who went to Florida from January to April inclusive, and then goes to England for August and September (a total of six months) he will get pension cheques for only three of those months, all told. In other words, he would have used up all the allowable absence during his Florida trip and could collect nothing for the months he was in England.

If a pensioner is out of Canada for more than six months in any year his name is taken off the pension rolls and he has to re-apply.

DILEMMA OF THE DREAMER: the man who wants to live in an ivory tower and yet is fond of elephants.

SOLUTION: Live in Tusc-any.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR ALPHA: What is the relation between corn syrup and corn whisky?

ANSWER: Corn. Corn (maize) is a conveniencing plant. Its succulence yields the sweetness of the syrup, and when fermented, the kick for the booze. A French-Canadian farmer-friend of mine always puts a big stone jug, corked, at the bottom of his silo before he fills the silo in the fall. By spring, when the silo has been depleted and months of sweetness have left their oozings, the jug is full of pure spirits which have got into it by a magic process of osmosis.

Corn is a native North American plant, introduced into Europe after the discovery of America, where it had long been cultivated in Mexico. Now, in Europe, it is very popular as food for man and beast, but very seldom on the cob.

During the war in Italy, in back areas bypassed by combat troops, Italian farmers would mount guard over their vineyards, their vegetable rows and their peach trees, to protect them from being liberated by Canadian troops resting in the area. But they never put guards over the corn fields, because (alas for their crop) they did not realize that human beings would eat corn on the cob. The Italians use corn (a crop extensively popularized by the Mussolini regime) for fodder, and to make into corn meal for humans. To their delight, Canadian troops found sacks of corn meal in farmhouses and used it as the Italians do, to make an excellent porridge.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIR: I see this heading in tonight's (Thursday's) paper:

"Navy Washes Hands Of Fake Surgeon"

Why couldn't he wash his own?

ANSWER: The gent acting as a Canadian naval surgeon in Korea and using the name of Dr. Joseph Cyr is certainly capable of looking after his own hygiene; it's the navy that needs to do the hand-washing.

Ferdinand Waldo Demara must be a rather brilliant sort of fellow to have performed difficult operations without training and using only his natural abilities and knowledge picked up from books. His impersonation has made Canadian naval medical history and, incidentally, has lifted the veil of the high altar from the priesthood of medical men. If young, untrained and unqualified F. W. Demara can perform the operations he has done and give the medical care so successfully, are doctors the superhuman geniuses they sometimes seem and their skills the esoteric science beyond the comprehension of ordinary mortals?

Some university or wealthy benefactor of humanity should offer this man free tuition and lodging at a good medical school so that he can get an orthodox background for his brilliant foreground.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR THE RECORD: I read that the West German state of Rhineland-Palatinate has lost half its tobacco tax revenue since U.S. troops arrived there this summer with their duty-free-smokes. A carton of 200 cigarettes costs them a dollar and fetches about $5.50 on the black market. I do not see that this is any reason for alarm; the American cigarettes would fetch almost as much in Canada. It shows how things have improved in Europe. In 1945 in Holland, troops' cigarettes were worth 25 cents each on the black market.

Afrikaans: The Story of a New Language

By UYS KRIGE

(Ed. Note: Uys Krige was born on a Cape farm 41 years ago, son of a famous Springbok rugby footballer. At 21 he wandered through Europe, earning his living for the next five years as swimmer, footballer, waiter. He was a war correspondent in Abyssinia, Egypt and Libya. Captured at the battle of Sidi Rezegh in 1941, he escaped two years later from his Italian prison camp and wrote his only English book to date—The Way Out, describing this experience. He has won a number of national literary prizes, both English and Afrikaans; has published twelve books in Afrikaans. Some of his Afrikaans poems have been translated into half-a-dozen European languages.)

THE recent appearance of the first volume of the Afrikaans Dictionary marks an important stage in the remarkable development of the Afrikaans language and literature.

The Afrikaans language has had to contend with many difficulties. A bare 45 years ago its enthusiastic advocates even had to convince many eminent fellow-Afrikaners of the merits and of the urgent necessity of adopting it in every walk of life.

"Why adopt this unknown language, Afrikaans", the unbelievers asked, "when we have a known one, Dutch, with a great history behind it and a rich literature?" The enthusiasts replied: "But it is not an unknown language. You are speaking it yourselves and it is being spoken everywhere with a remarkable degree of uniformity in our vast country. It is a new language, based on a firm foundation of 17th Century Dutch, but grown out of this soil and suited to our every need. And its grammar is there, waiting for us. All we have to do is to sit down and formulate it from the spoken word".

Today, Afrikaans is spoken by a million and a half Afrikaners, about 60 per cent. of the million English-speaking South Africans—this percentage is steadily increasing—a million coloured people and many Africans. There are about a dozen flourishing Afrikaans publishers who together issue approximately 300 books every year; for years now Afrikaans has been heard more often in Parliament than English, South Africa's other official language; and it has a vigorous vital literature.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE appearance of the first volume of the Dictionary has created great interest. When completed, it will be a monumental work. This first volume, containing almost 700 large 3-column pages and covering only the three letters, A, B and C, gives us an idea of its eventual scope.

More than 25 years ago, South Africa's greatest philologist, Dr. J. J. Smith, started this formidable task. He did not live to complete it. Dr. P. C. Schoonees, Editor-in-Chief since 1947, is at present assisted not only by experts employed by the Government in conjunction with Stellenbosch University, but by thousands of individual contributors from every part of the country and from beyond our borders. One man alone has sent in more than 10,000 cards containing rare words, idioms and expressions; and schoolchildren are collecting lists of words from their particular regions.

Afrikaans is a constant state of growth. Even the most underprivileged sections of our population are continually adding words and expressions to it. For instance, the Cape Coloured people speak a racy, colloquial Afrikaans, which, though it is often mixed with English in a haphazard, slovenly way, is full of pithy, humorous idioms and vivid images. And every visit to the platteland or countryside becomes a linguistic adventure. Speaking with the farmers, one is struck again and again by their capacity to create their own language.

This vast, agrarian linguistic hinterland is one of the reasons why Afrikaans has escaped the standardization that comes with urbanization. Of course, a language, to achieve maturity, needs the refining and synthesising influence of the city. This is what is now happenings to Afrikaans. It must be remembered that the Afrikaans people, and so also the Afrikaans language, has only become urbanized in the course of a single generation. And here both people and language have shown their extraordinary adaptability. Not only are new words being created daily for the new industries, professions, sports and other urban activities by intellectuals consciously from above, but also by countless anonymous individuals from below.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE salient characteristics of the Afrikaans language, to my mind, are: its idiomatic richness, of which the first volume of our Dictionary gives ample evidence! its directness and simplicity; its "modernity" in that, like English, it is one of the most advanced of what the philologists call the "analytical" languages; and its supple, elastic rhythms. These inner rhythms and the contrast between its rugged consonants and sonorous double vowels, giving it both melodic sweetness and strength, make it a medium particularly suitable for poetry.

Small wonder, then, that it was poets like Eugene Marais, Louis Leipoldt, Jan Celliers and Totius who, almost 50 years ago, first proved that the Afrikaans language is capable of expressing every shade of human emotion.

Modern Afrikaans poetry which was assimilated some of the best discoveries and innovations of modern Dutch, German, English, French and Spanish poetry, has been acclaimed in the Netherlands and Belgium, where Afrikaans is easily understood and studied at several universities. This modern school came into prominence in 1935. Since then it has maintained a consistently high level in scope and variety. Its best known representatives are N. P. Van Wyk Louw, Elizabeth Eybers, W. E. G. Louw and D. J. Opperman; and among its younger exponents G. A. Watermeyer and Olga Kirsch are perhaps the most promising.

In this, South Africa has faithfully followed the pattern set by all young countries; first poetry, then the nature novel (the works of Sangiro and the Hobson brothers) developing simultaneously with the regional novel (Jochem Van Bruggen's famous study of a poor white boy "Ampie" or C. M. Van Der Heever's "Summer") and lastly, a long way behind, the drama.

There is perhaps another reason why the poet has played such an important part in Afrikaans literature. The poet is, essentially, a more subjective being than the prose writer. He is the great individualist, interested mainly in himself, his own particular reactions to God, nature, the universe—while the novelist or dramatist is, in general, more interested in other people and in society around him. It is, therefore, natural for the Afrikaans people to have produced poets rather than novelists or dramatists, since till now they have been in the main an agrarian people with strong individual characteristics, which they retain even after years of city life.

TO depict truly the life of his times, the novelist or dramatist requires a more objective and rational outlook than the poet. It is in their portrayal of our city life that our novelists have failed. They have lacked insight into, and understanding of, the highly complicated workings of modern industrialized society. They have not been able to see our many-facetted, multi-racial society steadily. (This is a fault, also, of most of our liberal English writers; they are so keen on the blacks that they have no time for the whites unnecessarily to blacken them.) In some of his fine short stories J. Van Melle is an exception to this rule.

On reading some Afrikaans writers, especially when they write about the city, one gets the impression; they cannot see the national wood for the nationalist trees—even if this lack of perspective has a subconscious basis. And it is significant that the greatest moral crisis of our age, the Second World War, has found little reflection in Afrikaans verse or prose—in spite of the fact that more than half of our fighting forces were Afrikaners.

Afrikaans literature has notable achievements to its credit. One would wish its writers, however, particularly its novelists and dramatists, a deeper, colder, pitiless penetration into the real South African situation; a more acute awareness of the tragic racial dilemma in which South Africa now finds itself.

Letters To The Editor

NELSON TO PETERBOROUGH TO CHURCHILL

Sir: A flagpulley from Admiral Nelson's flagship "Victory" has finally reached home after wandering round the world for over 185 years. The memento, a curious bit of black oak, now hard as iron from the beating of a thousand storms, I sent to the Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, which was promptly and appreciatively acknowledged.

The pulley has been in our family since 1836 when it was given to my grandfather Judge Stafford Kirkpatrick—who came from the north of Ireland in 1830—by an officer of the Royal Navy. For some years the pulley was used to haul up the flag at St. John's Church, Peterborough, to acquaint the countryside that Divine Service was being held.

The revered old Victory now rests in a cement block in a park at Plymouth. She is on exhibition and some of the old tars are there to show visitors about. Mr. Harry Butcher, now living in Santa Barbara, who was General Eisenhower's Aide during the war, had luncheon on her. He tells an amusing story about the young lads who visiting the Victory, love to tease the old boys by interrupting their spiel about the ancient guns, which had been carefully memorized, and this so confuses and throws them off the track that they have to go back and start their recital from the beginning.

KATHLEEN I. JENKINS.

HIGH PRAISE FOR THE Y.W.C.A.

Sir: Through your newspaper, I would like to offer a bouquet—several of them, in fact—to the Y.W.C.A. in Peterborough. As a newcomer to your fair city, I have found, finally, in a group at the Y.W.C.A., both a chance to do my bit and a genuine welcome and friendliness which made me feel at home immediately. This atmosphere pervades the Y. I know that many others have found this to be so, as well. The Y.W.C.A. certainly is living up to its name, Young Women's Christian Association, for they are making strangers welcome, not to mention their many other worthwhile endeavours. May I suggest to any newcomers, if they are finding it difficult to meet people with similar interests and wish to be assured of a pleasant reception, that they enter the doors of the Y.W.C.A. This, of course, may sound very elementary to anyone who has worked for the Y before. To myself, who has not spent much time in Y work, it has been most heartening, especially in the face of elements of coldness shown at other doors.

This leads me to mention a condition, too prevalent, alas, in cities, which might well bear more attention. In groups where a degree of talent is necessary, would it not be wise to have that as the primary requirement in encouraging a new member rather than such snobbish considerations as — for example—what position one's husband holds? There has been a large influx of new citizens into Peterborough within the past five years, no doubt of varying abilities. But who can say what potential talents they may possess, or of what value they could be as contributing members of different groups, provided they are not barred before being given a chance, or discouraged by obvious unfriendliness? Would it not be a splendid thing if various organizations decided to take an inventory, now and then, of their own methods of acquiring and welcoming new members? (Each of us, as individuals, might well do the same.) While they may not claim to have as their first aim, welfare work, could they not profit from the fine example set by such organizations as the Y.W.C.A.?

Yours sincerely,
JAN.

Columnist Tries Acting For A Change

By BOB THOMAS

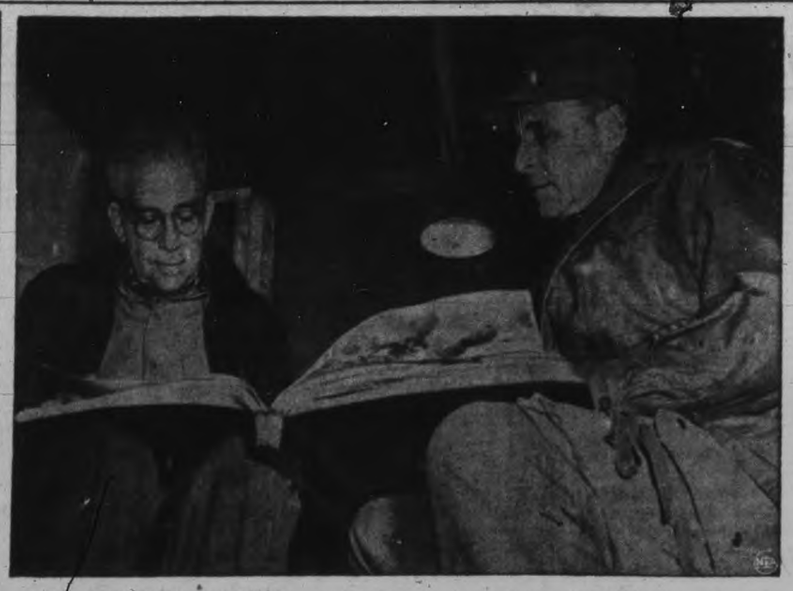
HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23 (AP)—Newspaper writers in Hollywood were startled recently to learn that columnist Darr Smith had gone over to the other side. He became an actor.

Now there is supposed to be a war between newspapermen and actors in Hollywood. The shooting has been led by Franchot Tone and Frank Sinatra recently.

There is also a cold war, as fought by such stalwarts as Greta Garbo, Jean Arthur and Charlie Chaplin.

Smith, until recently, was interviewing actors, directors and producers for a Los Angeles newspaper (Daily News). He suddenly exchanged his typewriter for a make-up kit, got himself an agent and started on a promising career as a character actor. Why did he do it?

"For the money," he replied crassly. "Even with the few jobs I've had so far, I've earned more than I could on a newspaper."



Smith is a lumbering bear of a man with a photogenic profile. Even so, none of his colleagues suspected he would attempt to make a living as an actor.

"It all started when I wanted to write a play," he related. "I didn't know how to write it, so I joined a little theatre group. I did a number of roles, including the lead as the stage manager in 'Our Town'. Strangely enough, I liked it.

"Then . . . in 'The Asphalt Jungle' I played a newspaperman, and if you looked closely, you could have seen the left side of my face."

Has this new experience changed him?

"Well, a little," he admitted. "This morning I thought I needed a haircut. But then I decided to forego it, since I might get a job in a period Western or something. Also, I put in an hour of pick-ax work at home every day in order to keep my waistline down."

Sergeant Finds Korean War Mostly Doing Hard Work

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, Nov. 23—(CP)— Sgt. Jean Paille sat back and reflected.

"How," he had been asked, "would you sum up your fighting in Korea—what are your dominating impressions?"

The 2nd battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian light infantry, with whom he crossed the Pacific in the Pvt. Joe P. Martinez almost a year ago, call him "Sgt. Paley"—it's the closest they can come to pronouncing the 26-year-old St. Boniface man's name.

A year ago Jean Paille's English was hesitant. Great self-control increased his command of the language and during the summer he was entrusted with a platoon.

Says Lt.-Col. Jim Stone—"He's my best sergeant."

Now, homeward bound, he doubts whether he will stay in the army.

Summing up, he said "I think it has been more a question of hard work than of hard fighting."

Last Hardest

"Actually of all the months we've been in the line these last three weeks have been the hardest on the nerves."

"The Communists are using much more artillery now and sometimes it gets hard to just sit and take it. My fellows are good, if fairly new, and sometime they get jittery during the shelling, and if the Chinese come in and attack, they get excited during the grenade-throwing."

The most of Paille's time in Korea has been "Steady, hard work. All the time," he said.

"I hope," he said, "that they soon make peace. We figure the war should have been finished a lot sooner."

"We've stopped them here, and thrown them out of South Korea. We've done a good job. If we hadn't stopped them here, maybe we'd have been stopping them instead on the shores of Vancouver or in Calgary."

Blonde, with blue-grey eyes, and by preference an outdoorsman, Paille is enthusiastic about what the army does for a man.

"You can take any of my fellows now—this whole force, for that matter—anywhere at all in the world. And if they go back into civilian life, you don't need to worry about these guys in Canada. With an old shovel and a bag of rations they could make a living anywhere. They could do anything, and a leader could do anything with them."

In his time Paille has been one of the youngest post managers employed by the Hudson's Bay Company. For three years he had a post and quit in 1949. "I was getting bushed and so I came out."

He then worked for the Manitoba civil service as a guard at Headingly pail. Then, in July 1950, "I had nothing against the job but I wanted fresh air—so I joined the special force."

The sergeant was looking forward to his return to Canada for two reasnos—there he would see his parents, and on the way he would see at Kure, Japan, his brother, Lieut. Albert Paille, an officer in the 2nd Battalion Royal 22nd regiment's reinforcement stream.

He didn't know that his brother already had joined the Vandoos, and had been killed outright in a minefield while returning from a patrol.

Pearson Works On Big Report

ROME, Nov. 23 — (Reuters)—Canada's External Affairs Minister, L. B. Pearson, is working on the report he is to deliver Saturday to the North Atlantic Treaty Council as chairman of the Committee on Political and Cultural Co-operation.

During council debates Pearson will be prevented as chairman from voicing a purely Canadian view. The Canadian standpoint will be presented by Defence Minister Brooke Claxton, assisted by a strong delegation, which includes L. Dana Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom.

Observers here consider the Canadian delegation will play an increasingly important part in debates to reconcile American and European views about the buildup of North Atlantic defence forces.

Canada, as a trans-Atlantic power of growing importance and as a member of the British Commonwealth and with close traditional links with France, is acquiring the position of a key party in NATO capable of balancing extreme views.

Child Cruelty Rising In UK Demand Stiffer Penalties

By ERNEST AGNEW

LONDON, Nov. 23 (AP)—Child cruelty is increasing in Britain. The cry is growing louder for stiffer penalties for those convicted of the charge.

In 1950, there were 1,151 maltreatment convictions. That was three per cent more than in 1949 and will be about three per cent less than this year's figure, the home office reported.

The total is alarming, a home office official said, "considering that relatively few cases investigated by the police, the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the Salvation Army and other welfare organizations ever reach the courts."

Parents convicted of cruelty should be both flogged and imprisoned, some newspapers and social workers demand.

Flogging is forbidden in Britain. Persons convicted on charges of cruelty are liable to sentences up to two years' imprisonment and a fine of £100.

During the six-month period ended Aug. 1, the NSPCC investigated 19,665 cases involving 49,980 children. "Only 2 per cent of those cases were taken to the courts," says J. J. Gladwell, an official of the society, "because we only prosecute as a last resort."

What makes cruel parents? The home office says it doesn't know.

Gladwell says inadequate housing is one cause; poverty and lack of education are others.

"There is no one root cause," Gladwell says. "We find this cruel streak running right through all classes of British society, but the well-to-do parent, living more or less in seclusion, is less likely to get caught."

Commissioner M. Owen Culshaw of the Salvation Army blames the worst cases on two world wars, and the collapse of home life.

"Home life, as we used to know it, is disappearing in Britain," Culshaw told a reporter. "And as it disappears, the number of cases of child cruelty jumps. Then, too, the brutality engendered in our young men during training as soldiers and during the war is not easily eradicated."

Chinese Nationalists Execute General

TAIPEH, Formosa, Nov. 23—(AP) Chinese Nationalists Thursday executed Maj.-Gen. Sun Tzewen of the Defence Ministry on charges of being a Communist spy. The Defence Ministry said Sun came to Formosa ostensibly as a loyal Nationalist, but later was found to be a Communist agent.

The 49-year-old general formerly commanded the Chinese Nationalist 31st Army under Gen. Fu Tso-yi, Nationalist commander in North China who switched his army over to the Reds.

South Africa at Loggerheads With UN, May Walk Out

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

PARIS, Nov. 24—(CP)—South Africa and the United Nations are at loggerheads again.

This time, some delegates would not be surprised if the South African delegates walk out, at least, from the UN committee studying the problem of Southwest Africa—which South Africa refuses to bring under the UN trusteeship system.

For five years the UN has been trying to persuade South Africa to place under the trusteeship system the former German colony which South Africa holds under a mandate issued 31 years ago by the League of Nations.

Now, for the first time, the UN has invited representatives of three tribes of Southwest Africa to state their views on the administration of their country. Canada abstained on the vote calling on the tribal chiefs.

Discussion of the full problem before a UN committee has been postponed to give South Africa time to think about the committee's request that the chiefs be given every opportunity for "prompt travel" to the UN in Paris.

May Not Get Visas

The South African government hasn't decided whether to grant the chiefs travel visas.

South Africa has defied the UN before and might do so again in this question. Her delegates at each session broadly criticize the UN's growing interference in the "domestic affairs" of members.

But another South African refusal to accept a UN request would bring the situation to a crisis stage. The UN has already hit at South Africa's policy in connection with the territory—almost as large as British Columbia and with a population of some 450,000, largely made up of Hottentots and Bushmen.

A special UN committee has suggested that a 15-member commission including South Africa be formed to handle reports from South Africa on the territory and petitions of complaints to be passed annually to the UN assembly.

That will form the basis of discussion in the trusteeship committee of the assembly after the question of the tribal chiefs has been cleared up.

Blind at 52, George (Specs) Toporcer is far from dispirited. The former star major league infielder and highly-successful minor league manager prepared today at Scarsdale, NY, to launch a brand new career.

Toporcer lost his eyesight on Wednesday following three unsuccessful operations on the right eye that kept him hospitalized for approximately three months. He lost the sight of his left eye 3½ years ago.

Realizing his days in baseball are over, Toporcer is planning to write several books dealing with the playing, administrative, technical and instructive side of baseball. George is well qualified for this work since he has spent 32 years in the game as a player, scout, manager and farm director.

"I'm looking forward to the future with a great deal of hope and interest," Toporcer said. "Sure, I got a tough break, but I'm far from heartbroke. I've got much to be thankful for."

This past season, Toporcer, in his first year as pilot of the Buffalo Bisons, won the "manager of the year" award in the International League.

He led the last place outfit of 1950 into the first division.

Recently, when the International League decided to have its own "Hall of Fame," Toporcer was one of the first to be picked. He was a brilliant performer with the Rochester Red Wings from 1928 through 1932.

Edmonton-born Richie Ferguson Thursday night was awarded the annual Governor-General's Trophy as the outstanding junior in the country, it was announced at Toronto. He succeeds Jackie Carroll, Montreal sprinter who won the award in 1950.

The 20-year-old Ferguson who represented Canada in the 1950 British Empire games at Auckland, NZ, in the one-mile and three-mile events, now is studying medicine at Iowa University on an athletic scholarship.

Ferguson, who came to Toronto about nine years ago, is considered a hot prospect in the mile at the 1952 Olympic games at Helsinki.

At Kingston, centre Danny Poland slapped in Eric Nesterenko's pass early in the final period Thursday night to give Toronto Marlboros, the unbeaten Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league leaders, a 3-2 win over Montreal Canadiens in an exhibition tussle.

Canadiens, Quebec Junior Hockey Association leaders, came from behind a 2-0 deficit only to have Poland score the only marker of the final period. Rookie Louis Bendo and John Lumley hit for the other Marlboro scores while Don Marshall capped an outstanding performance by scoring both Montreal goals.

At Vancouver, Bill Hagen, a six-foot 20-year-old centre and left winger, reported Thursday to the Vancouver Canucks of the Pacific Coast Hockey League. He came from Syracuse, NY. Last year he was a star with Barrie's Memorial Cup champions, piling up an impressive record as a junior in the OHA.

Jumping George Ratterman, who rejoined the New York football Yanks two weeks ago after a spell with Montreal Alouettes, will start at quarterback against the San Francisco 49ers Sunday at Yankee Stadium.

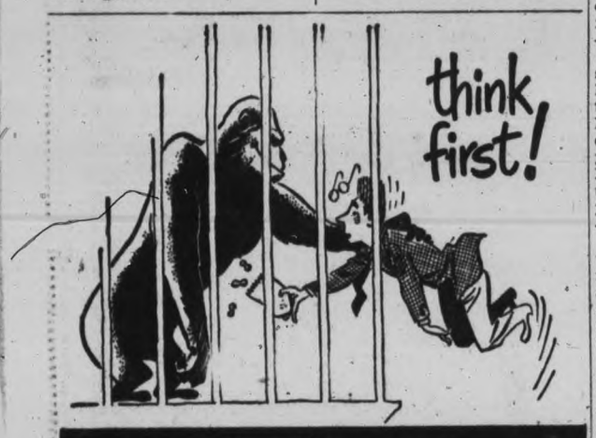
Coach Jimmy Phelan made the announcement in New York after a practice session. Ratterman, in a part-time appearance, completed nine of 16 passes for 111 yards against Los Angeles last Sunday.

Had Good Season

REGINA — (CP) — Saskatchewan's well-known fishing spot at Lac La Ronge had a record number of fishermen this year. Estimates are that about 6,000 visitors, mostly Americans, took more than 270,000 pounds of fish from the lake, mainly lake trout, pike and pickerel.

Former Fight Champ Dempsey To Handle Zorra-Newman Bout

Figuring that he got a raw real from Referee Sam Gotter Tuesday night when Gotter ruled the match no contest, Lou Newman demanded a return bout with Zorra and a new referee.



He was granted both requests and as a result he has been rematched with Zorra and the referee will be none other than the former world's heavyweight boxing champion Jack Dempsey.

Newman, who had Zorra in a bad way in their last bout, claims he can whip the Frenchman and also knows that a decision over Zorra will put him in line for nothing but the top bouts.

The former Masked Marvel's demand for a new referee may backfire for Dempsey is well known for his efficiency and watches closely for rough stuff, which Newman specializes in. The former boxing champion is not adverse in backing his rulings up with his famous fists.

For the semi-final, the new Negro sensation, Bobo Brazil, will meet Stan Mayslack. The experts are predicting Brazil the coming champion.

With Dempsey on hand a record-breaking crowd is expected when Sonny Kurgis and Mike Padousis start things off.

It's junior hockey night this eve at Civic Arena, Red Doran's scrappy Belleville Hawklets vs. Johnny Godfrey's local IOOF-ers, out for vengeance after dropping a close decision last start on Quinte ice. Oddfellows have a good, hustling team, including: Wasson, Kimball, Armstrong, Robinson, Stewart, Buckton, Twist, Coyle, Heffernan, Floyd, Morrow, Sullivan, Bigford, Wilson and a few more. They should take Belleville's measure in this OHA junior "B" opener here, but it'll be a stiff scrap all the way. Definitely no soft touches in the group this semester, Lindsay, Kingston, Belleville and the Peterborough puckists all being solid squads. It rates a hefty crowd to see streamlined junior hockey in loop play.

Grey Cup grid madness descends upon Toronto this weekend once more, with the big final at Varsity tomorrow aft. Though two outside clubs, Ottawa and Regina, are the principals, Toronto will go football crazy despite that. Biggest single sports spectacle in Canada each year, this east-west playoff always sees a shortage of tickets. Fans who never attend a Big Four game want to get in on the color that goes with a Grey Cup final. Incidentally, in an early season poll of Toronto sportswriters, they unanimously picked the Big Four teams to finish in this order: Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa. How wrong can you get?

"Ulcers" McCool Hit It

But only one scribe in Canada, in on the senior football poll at the time, predicted an Ottawa-Regina final. That was Frank McCool of Calgary, former goalie with Maple Leafs. Coach Steve Owen of the pro New York Giants gridders remarked in Ottawa the other day: "Coaches who have good ball players, all the way through, are successful. That's the only difference in coaching. There isn't a nickel's worth of difference between coaches if they have equal material". That applies in other sports, too. Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa suggests fans carry a broadaxe and wear a mackinaw in their Toronto invasion; thinks it a good emblem for the city. Says quite a few families there are only one generation removed from the bush. Won't Torontonians love that crack!

Cagers Settling Away

Basketball as served up by the colleens is a YWCA gym feature this evening, a double-header commencing at eight chimes. Nurses play the CGE-ers in the opener, with Black's meeting the undefeated Neill's lasses in the nightcap. Following week has Normals vs. Lindsay, and Black's vs. Nurses. A couple of postponed men's hoop melees listed for Saturday eve in the YM, house league fixtures. Some OABA and lakeshore cages action ere long as the older chaps get lined up in two or three teams. And Bev Goulding is busy getting the PCVS teams—five of them, we believe, this semester—organized for the winter campaign. St. Peter's probably will be going in for basketball again, also, now that the football grind is over.

Quinte columnist is pardonably pleased at Hawks' win over the Petes here. Has high praise for Goalie Maurice Lefort—whom they were thinking of replacing this season—as he shone betwixt the pipes, despite being hurt twice. Of course, large Vern Goyer gets an accolade for scoring the winning goal, and the Jones-Desjardins-Barrett line gets some glory, as well. And he adds: "What's this we hear about the Petes protesting the Eagles' game of the other evening when the feathered crew down them by a 7-4 count? Seems as though the Birds used Parnall, now an officer in the RCAF, who works in Trenton or some place and has a home in Peterborough. Petes say it isn't cricket, and they're going to do something about it, or else. Just one big happy family up there in Peterborough." You're not kidding, chum.

Tickets Scarce Out West For Grey Cup

The following letter from Chief Justice D. A. McNevin of Regina, Sask., to Mrs. D. A. McGillis of Peterborough shows that Grey Cup football tickets are as scarce out west as in the east:

"Dear Mrs. McGillis—I received your letter enclosing $30 to cover the cost of six tickets for the Grey Cup final in Toronto. Needless to say, such tickets are at a premium and for that reason the club decided to distribute the available tickets between their advertisers and financial supporters of the club in the way of club memberships.

"I believe that 3,800 tickets were allotted to Saskatchewan, and I am now told that they have several thousand applications for tickets that they were unable to fill. They were not able to supply even the members of the club who wanted tickets.

Even In Court

"Regina is running two special trains to Toronto for the game and a number of others are taking the regular trains, some going by car, others by bus and private planes are leaving on Friday. This city and the province generally are football mad; football is the topic of conversation in every avenue of life, and the courts are not exempt. A Chinese man due for a court appearance on Friday next sent word to the court that he couldn't possibly be there as he had to go to the Grey Cup final.

"Last year I was able to get four tickets and wanted four for my daughter and her husband, who are now living at Windsor. I was not able to get them any at all this year, much to their disappointment. I am sorry indeed about this but feel sure that you will understand the very great demand there was for tickets. I regret exceedingly being unable to get the tickets and hope you won't be too badly disappointed. I return herewith the $30 which you enclosed in your letter. With kindest personal regards, believe me. Yours sincerely, D. A. McNevin."

Providence Tramples Cincinnati Mohawks

By The Associated Press.

Cincinnati Mohawks remained tied with St. Louis in third place today in the American Hockey League's western division after dropping their first road game in five starts this season.

Three goals in five minutes of the second period Thursday night by Ken Smith, Ray Powell and Jack McGill enabled Providence Reds to down the Mohawks 4-2. Cincinnati and St. Louis are tied with 19 points, and a Mohawk victory would have sent the Ohioans into second place past Cleveland Browns who have 20.

In the only other game, the Hershey Bears boosted their eastern division lead by defeating Syracuse 6-4. Hershey scored twice in each period, with Leo Labine getting two goals.

Two Cup Teams Mournfully Licking Wounds

By JACK SULLIVAN.

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP). — Things around here today are about the same as any other Grey Cup eve.

The eastern Canada football champions, as usual, are the betting favorites, 6 to 5 with the odd wager going at 7-5. The weather is muggy, the coaches are singing the blues, the gaily-costumed crowds are raising some good-natured shenanigans and everybody appears to be searching out hard-to-get tickets. Even the weather man is up to his Grey Cup tricks.

So far, however, there are no wild rumors going around about $5 ducats selling for $100 a pair as in previous last-minute seat scrambles. And there are no reports of well-heeled westerners betting oil wells or wheat fields that the Saskatchewan Roughriders will win their first Grey Cup in the 30-year history of the east-west game for the trophy.

The folks are ready for this greatest of Canadian sports spectacles Saturday at 27,000 seating capacity Varsity Stadium but the principals — the Ottawa Rough Riders, eastern Canada titleholders, and the western champions—have woes.

Licking Wounds

Coach Harry (Black Jack) Smith of the western club will tell, and is telling, anybody that his Roughies aren't so tough after all—his players are hobbling around trying to hold each other up, he says. And Ottawa's Riders limped into town Thursday night with two regulars uncertain about starting, the others licking their wounds.

Coach Clem Crowe's red battalion picked up the bruises in Wednesday's eastern Canada final at Ottawa with Sarnia Imperials, Ontario Rugby Football Union champions. Practically anything went in that game with knees and elbows flying around until near the end.

The most upsetting of the injuries in the Saskatchewan camp is the torn knee cartilage suffered by Jack Russell, nifty pass-receiving end in the final game of the western playoffs against Edmonton Eskimos. The former New York Yankee outside has not put on his uniform since the team arrived here earlier this week.

For Ottawa, it is the bruised heel owned by outside Alton Baldwin and torn ligaments in Ted McLarty's left leg. Crowe said he isn't certain that either player would be ready for the 1 pm (EST) kickoff.

Both clubs plan light afternoon practices. They will be bedded down early tonight — Ottawa players in a downtown hotel and the westerners in their suburban motor hotel.

Hawks Jar Canadiens 5-1 As Wings Edge Rangers

By BARRY WEST, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chicago's lowly Black Hawks jarred the faltering Montreal Canadiens 5-1 Thursday night and served notice on the rest of the National Hockey League teams that they aren't to be counted out. In another game, Detroit Red Wings edged the New York Rangers 2-1. Chicago's win pulled the Hawks out of a last-place tie with Chicago now having 14 points, two more than New York.

The Red Wings showed their usual fire-power to beat the Rangers but it remained for Terry Sawchuk to shut the door on the New Yorkers in the final period when he foiled Reg Sinclair twice on breakaways.

Gordie Howe scored a goal and an assist to his scoring. The toast of Detroit beat Charlie Rayner for the first tally and then combined with tireless Sid Abel to set Glover up for what proved to be the winner.

Couldn't Finish

Canadiens' main trouble in the Chicago contest was their inability to finish off plays. Harry Lumley worked well in the Black Hawks' cage, but Gerry McNeil of Canadiens was called upon to make six more stops than Lumley. The latter kicked out 24 while Garry handled 30.

The first tally by the Hawks came when Tom Johnson of Canadiens was waved off for interference in the first period. Jimmy McFadden drove home a 25 foot sizzler past McNeil with Bill Mosienko and Al Dewsbury assisting.

A strong drive by the two last place clubs could cause a tight stretch fight for every position but the top one. Detroit's power has kept the team rolling along at a winning pace, and with the smooth work of Sawchuk there seems little likelihood they will be headed. Injuries are the only thing that may halt the Red Wings—the other teams don't seem to be able to at this stage of the race.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Two Montreal Canadiens, inseparable at the top of the National Hockey League's individual scoring list, moved up Thursday night only to have their closest rival move closer to them.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard picked up an assist and Elmer Lach got a goal to bring their totals to 17 points each.

Hot on their trail, Detroit's Gordie Howe scored a goal and an assist to move within one point of them. Howe has nine goals and seven assists. His goal total is only two short of Richard's pace-setting 11. Lach continues to show the way in the assists division with 14.

NO PINING FOR THIS PAIR—Tommy Bolt (left) of Durham, N.C., and Francis (Bo) Wininger of Pleasantville, N.J., smile the North-South golf tournament. Bolt was high money winner with a 283 score. Wininger was low amateur with 292 for four rounds.

TICKETS WANTED—The 5,000 Grey Cup tickets alloted Ottawa were sold out four hours after they went on sale at the Lansdowne Park ticket office. Many of the capital's football fans shown in this queue were among the 1,000 who lined up too late—and howled their disappointment.

ON THEIR WAY—Waving white stetsons and sporting plaid shirts and blue jeans, 500 Reginans are en route east in two 14-car special trains for the Grey Cup game Saturday between Saskatchewan Roughriders and Ottawa. They will arrive in Toronto Friday where they will take part in a monster Grey Cup parade and cheer their team on to victory—they hope.

St. Peter's and Lions Tie For Best Tussle In PMHA

A tied game was the feature fixture at Civic Arena last night as six PMHA games gave a fair crowd of fans lots to yell about. This game ended at 3-3 between St. Peter's and the Lions. The Otonabee Wolves took their bantam game 5-0 over Trojans. In midget play, Trojans won 7-2 against Snowbirds, as Martin-Hewitt downed St. Peter's 5-3. The juvenile jousts saw Oddfellows take a 4-3 verdict over Lakefield, while Marines beat Trojans 7-2.

In this latter game, Kearns counted two goals for Marines, one each going to Spencer, Corbett, McGrath, Ball and Pearson. Ball aided on two, and Hunt, Dodd and Corbett one each. Seabrooke scored one and assisted on another for Trojans. Scott scoring once, and Foley helping. The winners got five of the nine penalties. The other juvenile tilt was close and fairly clean. The scorer listed numbers instead of names of those scoring and assisting, so these names were not available for the newspaper.

A Clean Game

Martin-Hewitt scorers were Gardner and Stewart two each, and Floyd one. Strickland and Smith each aided once. McCarthy Garvey and O'Connell did the sniping for the losers, with Tait and McCarthy each having an assist. But three penalties were handed out. For the midget Trojans, McFadden tallied three times, Keeting twice, and Rusaw and Smythe one each. Whitnell aided on two, McIlmoyle, Rusaw and Merrett each having one assist. Chase and Hannon counted for Snowbirds, with Dodd helping on both. The winners drew four of the five penalties.

Darling was the main gunner for Wolves bantams with three markers, as Heron clicked for a pair, these two being potent on the attack throughout against Trojans. The latter had three penalties and the winners two in a neat tilt. For Lions' bantams, Naish, O'Connell and Murphy did the scoring, Murphy and O'Connell also having an assist apiece. Johnston got one and Baker two goals for St. Peter's. The latter club were down 3-1 in the third but fought back hard in a nifty number to sew things up. There was no time for an extra period. Lions were handed five penalties to two for SPS.

Necktie For Scots Britain's Latest

LONDON — (CP)—A British-made tie, specially designed to touch the hearts of all true Scots, will be sold shortly in Canada.

Woven on a blue background are two red unicorns, a silver cross of St. Andrew and green thistles.

The design, originally conceived by an 18-year-old Scots girl, has been heraldically approved by the Lord Lyon King of Arms of Scotland. A correspondent for a textile trade journal says efforts are being made to ensure that the tie is sold only to persons of Scots extraction.

As cut for the Canadian market, the tie will be slightly larger than those worn in Britain.

Naga Tribesmen Near Burma Demand Independence Granted

KOHIMA, Naga Hills, India — (AP)—Leaders of the 500,000 Naga Hills Tribesmen of this key Burma border region are talking independence.

Organizers of the Naga "plebiscite" say that by December they will produce thumb prints of an overwhelming majority of Nagas proving the tribesmen want independence from New Delhi rule.

"It's a farce," commented L. H. Shrikant, Indian Commissioner of Scheduled Castes and Tribes. "The people do not know why they are giving their thumb prints. We are ignoring the entire affair."

Since he launched the Naga independence movement in 1947, A. B. Phizo, head of the Naga National Council, said he had tried repeatedly without success for interviews with Indian officials.

Meantime, he said he had served three jail sentences at the hands of the Indian government on charges of disturbing the peace.

India laughs off the idea that the Nagas, embracing 14 dialects and a few tribes which still practice head-hunting, could constitute a sovereign state.

Strategic Spot

The Naga land, a rice surplus area, nestles strategically in the Communist-infested vicinity of North Burma and the Indian frontiers states of Manipur and Assam.

The Naga National Council contends that Naga territory enjoys economic self-sufficiency and that the Naga people have customs and religion of their own.

Historically, the Nagas were an independent people until the British conquered major parts of the territory late in the 19th century. Several treaties were concluded between the British and the Nagas giving the British administrative authority.

Say Support Promised

When Britain withdrew from India in 1947, Phizo and his council stepped up their agitation for freedom. They claim that the late Mahatma Gandhi and India's present home minister, Chakravarti Rajagopalachari, informally promised support.

The Nagas sent an appeal to the United Nations on independence day Aug. 15, 1947, asking aid in achieving freedom. No nation sponsored the appeal and it was not considered.

It was the adoption of the Indian constitution in January, 1950, with no provision for Naga independence, which convinced Phizo the Indian government had no intention of doing bus ness with the national council on the subject of independence.

Gave Interview

Assam Governor Jairamdas Doulatram and Commissioner Shrikant visited Kohima last June and interviewed Phizo.

After their departure, Doulatram and Shrikant pressed for quick action on Naga war damage claims. The Indian government authorized payment of 300,000,000 rupees ($63,000,000) to the Nagas, mostly for devastation in the immediate area of Kohima.

"But they won't buy us with this grant," a member of the National Council said.

Slightly built, 50-year-old Phizo appears in deadly earnest about his freedom campaign. Some observers, who say he has no Communist leanings, fear Phizo may turn to nearby Communist forces for help as a last resort.

Indian spokesmen insist the Naga national council consists only of power-seekers representing an educated handful of the tribesmen.

Defy Superstition

BOMBAY (Reuters)—The Hindu Mahasaba, orthodox religious group and India's third largest political party, has called on Hindus to "cast off superstition in killing pests and vermin." The group has sanctioned the killing of monkeys and locusts that destroy food crops.

Doug Loucks Wins Award

PORT HOPE, Nov. 23.—Doug. Loucks, pitcher for the Lindsay Merchants, OBA Intermediate "B" finalists, was selected as the most valuable player in the Lakeshore Baseball League at its final meeting of the year here on Wednesday evening.

Loucks received seven of the 10 votes and will be awarded a prize of $25. He had a record of 16 wins and three losses in league play. Don Gilhooley of Bowmanville received two votes and Dave Shorey of Cobourg, one.

A most successful season was reported by treasurer Ab Walker. In view of the fact that the OBA is financially unable to buy crests for championship clubs this year, the league voted to purchase crests for Bowmanville, Intermediate "A" champions of the province; and for Lindsay, the "B" finalists.

The 1952 annual meeting will take place in Whitby.

Won't Reduce Exports From Canada

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The "economic record," issued by the United Kingdom Information Office in Ottawa, commenting on present UK emergency measures to deal with its balance-of-payments problems, says:

"They will not reduce Canadian exports and do not discriminate against the dollar area.

"They involve the temporary restriction of certain UK imports from Europe, pending long-term plans for the UK and for the sterling area as a whole."

Sir Reginal Rootes, deputy-chairman of the Rootes Motor-Car group, speaking at the Motor Agents Association in London recently, said:

"It is all too prevalent in the world today to regard Britain as finished. That is not my view. We have suffered an eclipse, but our industrial potential is still enormous. I believe we can surprise the world with our capacity and, given reasonable freedom of scope, I feel sure we shall do so."

A recent summary of American reaction to the British election by Sam Dawson of The Associated Press, outlined a few factors which may aid Britain in maintaining her gold and dollar reserves.

"One weapon" said Dawson, "is the $1,000,000,000 in American securities which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been holding as security for a 1941 loan to Britain. This loan was repaid in full (in October) and the securities released to Britain.

"A second help may lie in the possibility that Britain will skip payment in December of the interest due the US treasury on the 1946 loan of $3,750,000,000.

"A third help could come from congressional action—possibly in January—in further financial aid like the Marshall Plan, or in loans or gifts of raw materials needed in Britain's arms program."

Dawson added:

"Most American businessmen have confidence in Churchill to pull Britain out of its tailspin.

Phone Network In Bookie Case

VANCOUVER, Nov. 23 (CP)—A network of telephones, listed under fictitious names, played a major role in Vancouver's $6,000,000-a-year bookmaking business, it was reported in court here Thursday.

Thirty-four persons, called by Prosecutor Gordon Scott the "kingpins" of the bookie racket here, are charged with conspiracy to operate betting houses.

The preliminary hearing, which opened Wednesday, continued yesterday.

It is expected to last a week.

Detective William Butchart, a member of the gambling squad, said he had found phones listed under fictitious names and fictitious company names.

He said the racket had developed from the pool room stage to one of big business, with communication systems linked to a central recording headquarters.

Prosecutor Scott said operations were made possible only by the existence of an up-to-the-minute race result system brought in by special wire. Most of the information was filed from Seattle.

Churchill Disagrees With Ike's Statement

NEW YORK, Nov. 23 (CP) — Winston Churchill disagrees with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower who said the allied invasion of Europe might have been impossible if the Germans had begun using the "V" rockets against England sooner. Eisenhower made his statement in his book "Crusade in Europe."

"This is an overstatement," Britain's prime minister says in another volume of his memoirs, "Closing The Ring," published today by Houghton Mifflin Company.

Much of the book has been published previously in Life magazine and the New York Times and in Canada in the Montreal Standard and Weekend magazine.

CBC Wants To Be Little More Selective

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (CP)—A. D. Dunton, CBC chairman, said Thursday the CBC would like to be more selective in its commercial programs including daytime "soap operas."

He told the Commons committe on radio that an improved financial position would enable the CBC to make a better selection of programs. The committee has before it legislation which would provide a parliamentary grant of $6,250,000 to the CBC in each of the next five years.

Mr. Dunton said no one is neutral on soap operas. A person was either strongly for them or against them.

"The CBC has turned down quite a number of soap operas. It would be going pretty far to ban them completely. It would not be right to put them off the air until something better can be produced to take their place."

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 25c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Aaland Islands Independent Within Limits

By THOMAS HARRIS

STOCKHOLM — (Reuters)—Finland has confirmed the independence of the Aaland Islands, the strategic group which could serve as a naval base to control the Northern Baltic.

But there is a big difference between the new home rule act and the 1922 act it supersedes.

The old law made the League of Nations the guarantor of the Aalands' independence. The new law, due to Moscow pressure, makes the islands' future indepence rest on the goodwill of Finland alone.

Thus, if a Communist government ever came to power in Finland—which borders on Russia—the status of the strategic Aalands could be changed.

The new "Russian-censored" act of parliament confirms the islanders" autonomy, their right to their own parliament and their exemption from military service.

The old act set up the League of Nations as guarantor because all the great powers believed that these Swedish speaking islands, lying half-way between Stockholm and Finland's southwest tip, should be kept demilitarized.

Could Seal Baltic

Any strong naval power occupying them could, they argued, seal the northern half of the Baltic. If the islands were left independent they would threaten no one but just go on with their fishing, farming and shipping.

In the new act, the international guarantee paragraph has been removed on Russian orders.

The Aalands' independence would vanish overnight if Finland had a Communist government, most observers here believe. The Communist party has consistently attacked the act. The Aalanders, the Communists say, should consider themselves as an integral part of Finland. As Finland is protected by her military assistance treaty with the Soviet Union, the Aalands would then enjoy the same security as the mainland.

The Aalanders, as members of their own parliament have hinted, are afraid of being "over-protected." They want the Western powers to have a stake in their independence.

For this reason, they asked that the new act name of the League of Nations as guarantor.

"We know the League is dead," an Aaland delegation to Helsinki said, "but it is a better guarantee than nothing. It would give us a strong moral case if we lost our rights. We should prefer to have the United Nations as guarantors, of course, but Finland has not been allowed to join the organization."

Russian Intervention

Finland's agrarian-led coalition government intended to preserve the guarantee paragraph. But suddenly, in the midst of the drafting work, the Russian minister in Helsinki told Finland in diplomatic language that Russia would not tolerate it.

The Russians based their case on the grounds that the Finno-Russian peace treaty bound Finland to consider the League of Nations dead. On the other hand, the same treaty bound Russia not to interfere in Finland's internal affairs — an undertaking which was reiterated in the later military assistance treaty.

Finland's government could not tell the Aalanders publicly that they could have no international guarantee by Russia's orders. Nor could they afford to offend Russia.

Finally, the guarantee clause was dropped. The parliament reluctantly voted the bill.

More Red that the Russians, the People's Democrats opposed the bill as being "dangerous for Finland." They insisted there should be no home rule act at all.

Paradoxically, the Aalanders themselves may destroy the act. The Aalands' parliament can neither make nor propose alterations in the act. But it can reject it outright.

It is, however, confidently believed in Helsinki that the Aalanders will accept the bill because it contains a number of advantageous clauses concerning taxation, land ownership and protection for their Swedish language and way of living.

Youth Crossing Canada On Last Of World Jaunt

CALGARY—(CP)—A 20-year-old Englishman is hitch-hiking across Canada on the last lap of a trip around the world.

Lanky, blonde David Potter started out from London, near Norwich, in July, 1950. Since then he's worked his way around the globe and still has the money he started out with—"in case."

He is on his way to New York and from there will work his passage on a ship to England.

Dressed in a plaid shirt and ski cap, a heavy wool sweater, and windbreaker bought in Vancouver, he told his story at the Calgary Tourist Bureau. He'd dropped in to find the best way to get to Winnipeg.

He was sent to Rhodesia in 1950 by his father to work six months, then came home. His father is the managing director of an English engineering firm. But instead of coming home, he decided to travel around the world.

He hitch-hiked to Durban, South Africa, then got a job as a deck hand on a ship going to Australia. To avoid possible parental opposition he didn't write home about his plan until he was aboard ship. He needn't have worried—his father approved.

The young Briton worked at a variety of jobs in cities and farms in Australia. Then he landed a job on a ship bound for Canada.

He turned to loading sugar during the two weeks the ship stopped in the Fiji Islands.

He landed in Vancouver five weeks ago, then worked on farms, gas stations and building jobs in the district.

In three weeks he had $100 and was ready to set out again.

Optimistic about getting rides across Canada, he had averaged 200 to 300 miles a day.

David carries all his belongings in a pack sack on his back. He says he's had a wonderful time although he's been in some tight spots.

He refuses to spend the money he brought with him from England, so when he runs out of cash he stops and finds work.

Once he had to sell his shirt. That was in Southern Rhodesia. He had hitched to Victoria Falls with only £3. That took him to within 100 miles of his base at Salisbury. Then he ran out of money again and had to sell his pyjamas to a native.

Interested in farming, he's picked up ideas all over the world from working on tobacco, wheat, sheep, cattle and mixed farms.

His dream is to come back to Canada and farm in BC.

Picture Windows Do Not A Homelife Make - Weekend

Remember that old saying about people in glass houses not throwing stones?

If you have a picture window in your house you should.

In this week's WEEKEND, writer Bruce West explains how one of these "glass walls" in his home has completely upset the domestic routine.

Illustrated by cartoonist Doug Wright, "The Broader View" is a tongue in cheek commentary on the things your home builder didn't tell you when he sold you on a picture window in using that wall facing the street.

Now, says Mr. West, his home life is as open to the curious eyes of the neighborhood as if he were living in a goldfish bowl in the community's living room.

Don't Throw Vases

For example: arguments with his wife have to be toned down (it's dangerous to throw vases around, they might miss the husband and smash the window). Then, too, there's the temptation of looking in on the neighbors, if they happen to have a picture window opposite yours. It's unfair to have to watch him crunch corn on the cob while you eat yours out of a can, he complains.

Local fans who cheer their heroes in the regular Tuesday night grunt and groan fests when muscle men try to tear each other apart in the westling ring should find Sports Editor Andy O'Brien's offering in this WEEKEND right down their alley.

Remember those Japanese Sumo wrestlers who flopped around the Brock St. rasslin' rotunda recently? Their pictures illustrate Andy's article "Rasslin' is Big Biz" in Canada.

Throughout Canada, the shows now bring in nearly $2,200,000 every year, sports editor O'Brien reveals. The field is pretty well tied up, between Montreal's Eddie Quinn and Toronto's Frank Tunney who supplies talent for the local Tuesday night mat shows.

Remember When?

Note to teenagers: The next time "Mom" criticizes those crazy outfits you've been wearing, strides, bobby socks and so on, just trot out a copy of this Saturday's WEEKEND. Turn to page 26 and show her how she looked as a flat-figured flapper clomping out the Charleston in the early 20's.

"Four Centuries of Femininity" also has photos of milady's apparel through the ages, from a regal costume of the 16th century to a flowing satin crepe of today, designed by that fashion designer of new-look fame, Christian Dior.

It's Turkey Time in Toronto with Women's Editor Helen Gougeon. Husky Hydro Head Bob Saunders is pictured all decked out in an apron about to use some of the kilowatts he controls for the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Comission on a trukey.

Toronto's former mayor finds cooking a hobby that provides him with a refuge safe from ringing telephones.

"I write my best speeches when I'm cooking," he's quoted as saying, and on the few evenings and weekends when he isn't making a speech or visiting a hydro project somewhere in the province, he can be found in the kitchen whipping up a dish for his wife and daughter.

In "France Is Ten Miles From Canada," WEEKEND readers will be taken on a tour of St. Pierre and Miquelon, two tiny French islands right on Canada's doorstep off the coast of Newfoundland in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

In addition to these articles and photo features, there are a variety of other reading attractions which include regular WEEKEND features and the comics that will interest every member of the family from junior to grandpa.

Even Mounties Not Immune

MONTREAL, Nov. 23—(CP)—Five husky RCMP officers learned today how difficult it can be to get into Canada if you haven't the proper papers.

The five, who accompanied Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to England after their tour of Canada, didn't have papers to prove they had been vaccinated on their return by plane. Immigration officers had not alternative but to shunt them off to the medical officer for vaccination.

After receiving the needle treatment, the five again were citizens in good standing and headed to their homes across the dominion.

Heading west were Constables T. A. Mathews of Revelstoke, BC, and Sgt. I. C. Shank of Melville, Sask. The other members of the party were Assistant Commisioner M. F. Anthony of Ottawa, Corp. J. T. Ouimet of Rock Island, Que., and Constable E. S. Hunt of St. Johns, Nfld.

Tobacco Union Heads Call Special Meeting

MONTREAL, Nov. 23 (CP) — John Purdie, Canadian vice-president of the International Tobacco Workers of America, announced Thursday night that a special meeting of executives of all tobacco locals is called for Saturday night in Granby, Que., to discuss recent layoffs in the Canadian tobacco industry.

The meeting was prompted by last week's layoff of 200 employees of the Imperial Tobacco Company here and today's layoff of over 100 tobacco workers in Quebec and 20 here.

The high tax on cigarettes and the wholesale smuggling of American cigarettes into Canada will also be discussed.

Police Seize Suspect Car Crossing Border

HACKENSACK, NJ, Nov. 23—(AP) — New Jersey authorities said Thursday night they can see no direct connection between the Willie Moretti killing and a black Cadillac impounded at Toronto by the RCMP.

The RCMP stopped the car at the Canadian border Thursday and arrested a former jockey and his girl friend, who were driving the $5,000 vehicle.

The Canadian police said they had information that the car was stolen and used for a getaway after the gangland slaying of the glib-tongued Moretti Oct. 4 in a Cliffside Park, NJ, restaurant.

Capt. E. J. Thompson, of the Bergen county prosecutor's office, which is investigating the Moretti killing, said he does not believe the car is the one used in the getaway.

Canadian officers said they do not believe the couple in the car —Patsy Perry and Laurette Nesbitt, an 18-year-old dancer from Vancouver—had anything to do with Moretti's death.

Routine Questioning

A routine questioning by Toronto detectives, investigating an international jewel theft, uncovered the Cadillac convertible.

Three weeks ago New York City Police Detective James McShane and Daniel Foxe, a New York insurance company investigator, got in touch with Toronto detectives. They believed part of a $16,000 jewel theft from the Waldorf Astoria Hotel had found its way into Toronto.

During police investigation in Toronto Inspector John Nimmo talked with 19-year-old Laurette Nesbitt and her boy friend, Patrick Perry, a former jockey.

Miss Nesbitt claimed she bought a black Cadillac convertible bearing New York licence plates in New Jersey, unaware it was stolen.

Miss Nesbitt, who had aspirations to a New York stage career as a dancer, and Perry were charged with being in possession of a stolen car.

Coastal Command Already Operating

ROME, Nov. 23 (Reuters)—An Atlantic Pact coastal command covering the English Channel and a part of the North Sea has been in existence for several months under a British Admiral, it was disclosed Thursday.

The command covers parts of the British, French, Belgian, Dutch and Danish coasts, an Atlantic Pact organization spokesman said.

The spokesman said that fuller details of the command would be released shortly.

The spokesman said the command, constructed on a geographic and not national basis, was mainly concerned with matters such as the protection of harbors, mine sweeping and coordinating of traffic and signalling.

He indicated it would control no large ships nor considerable bodies of ground troops.

Highway Ambushes Spearhe Drive Of Malayan Reds

By LIONEL HUDSON.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya — (Reuters). — It is just another bend in the road through the quiet Malayan jungle or the monotonous rubber plantations—until guerrilla crossfire shatters the windshield.

For a few dragging minutes, if they live, the occupants of the car are at the frontline of the terror war being waged by the country's fanatical Communists.

Then, at the sound of a bugle or a whistled signal, the guerrillas snatch arms and ammunition from their victims—if they can—and are swallowed up again by the olive green jungle.

The road is open to traffic again.

These ruthless hit-and-run ambushes are the spearhead of the Communist offensive in Malaya—and the main source of weapon supply for the terrorist bands, mostly Chinese, who call themselves the Malayan People's Liberation Army. They rely on road ambushes to keep their campaign rolling.

Always Come Off Best

They plan them painstakingly, sometimes wait patiently for days for a suitable target, and rarely come off second best because they have a strong initial advantage.

Security force leaders admit that one of the most serious military problems in Malaya today is combatting road ambushes.

What is more, the terrorists have been striking more often as the widespread security drive to cut them off from food supplies takes effect.

British troops and Malayan police who have to run the gauntlet of these perilous highways day after day know full well that there are stretches where the guerrillas, perched on road banks, can usually kill them at will if they are travelling in "soft" vehicles—without armor plating.

Rubber planters and tin miners know it too. They almost invariably use armored cars or jeeps fitted with bullet-proof steel shields when they leave their barbed wire defenses.

On the Defensive

These men in the thick of the emergency tell you that they realize that, in the circumstances, they must remain on the defensive while travelling. Few of them, however, can reconcile the fact that so many police and troops are still easy prey to roadside snipers, nearly three and a half years after terror broke out.

"If we continue to dish out rifles and Sten guns on a platter to these bandits we'll never break them," commented one experienced guerrilla-hunter.

The cry throughout Malaya is for more determined and imaginative action against the road ambush menace.

From all quarters demands are heard for flame-throwers, smoke screens, land mines, much more armor plating, and steel helmets for security forces when not engaged in the jungle.

Not Bothered

The terrorists rarely ever shoot at unescorted civilian vehicles on the roads because they know that there is little chance of loot in the form of firearms or food.

They concentrate on police and army parties, especially when there is no armored car in sight, and never attack unless they are sure that they are superior in numbers and fire power.

All units are kept up-to-date on counter-ambush tactics but, as one officer points out, they are of use only to the men who survive the first burst from the terrorists.

"Our guns are always at the ready but at best we only get second shot," he added.

Army authorities stress that like the other two services in Malaya they are still only acting in support of the civil power and have no authority over the conduct of the "anti-bandit campaign."

3,000 Woodworkers Ordered To Strike

VANCOUVER, Nov. 23 (CP)—Three thousand interior British Columbia woodworkers were called to strike at midnight Wednesday but many reported for work Thursday.

Operators reported operations normal Thursday in three major areas—Prince George, Cranbrook and Kamloops, where most of the men are employed.

Stewart Alsbury, president of the International Woodworkers of America (CIO), had this explanation:

"We are striking wherever it appears most effective and most convenient. We will close other operations on the same basis."

The strike follows failure of the union and operators to reach contract agreement. The union is seeking the coast rate of $1.29½ cents an hour. The difference in interior and coast rates is 19½ cents-an-hour.

Hastings WA Meets

HASTINGS, Nov. 23 (ENS)—Mrs. J. M. Baker was hostess to group 2 of the W.A. of Trinity United Church for their monthly meeting.

The topic, the talents, was read by Mrs. F. Crate. Mrs. Rymerson read "Clouds and Their Silver Lining". She announced that the W.A. had decided to postpone the cooking sale until a future date.

There will be no December meeting. Mrs. A. Poole will look after the birthday box. The committee for worship for the January meeting is Mrs. A. Beamish, Mrs. H. Oliver and Mrs. Bruce Trotter.

A contest was conducted by Mrs. J. Cruikshanks. Hostess for the next meeting will be Mrs. L. W. Humphries.

Feels Humility After Win Frost Tells Supporters

LINDSAY, Nov. 23 — (CP) — Premier Leslie Frost said Thursday night his party's sweeping victory in the Ontario general election has brought him feelings of both "great personal satisfaction" and "great humility."

He also asked—in a statement prepared for delivery over a CBC network—that all Ontario citizens "join together regardless as to how we may have voted in order that we may as a united people face the challenge and complexities of tomorrow."

Mr. Frost spoke from his Lindsay committee room, packed with cheering people and littered with telegrams of congratulation. A heavy rain poured down outside.

His first word was "one of gratitude to the people of Victoria and Haliburton" for returning him for the fifth time in Victoria riding.

"As to the verdict across the province, which has resulted in a great endorsation, may I thank our candidates, our workers, and the people of the province.

Deeply Gratified

"At a time like this it is pardonable that there should be a feeling of great personal gratification. For myself in these last 2½ years—chosen as I was by a party convention—I have always felt that I did not have personal mandate which is really needed in these times.

"This has now been given and very naturally I am deeply gratified.

"On the other hand, in this hour when the results may be rated as a great political victory, I have a feeling of great humility.

"I am conscious of the responsibility which this mandate carries. Faced with a heavy task, I am aware of my frailties.

"I am fortified, however, by the knowledge that I have beside me able and loyal colleagues and above all the endorsation and good wishes of the people.

"Now that the issues have been decided and the people have rendered their verdict, let us all join togther regardless as to how we may have voted, in order that we may as a united people face the challenge and complexities of tomorrow.

"Let us now close up our ranks and work together in good will and co-operation for our province and our country."

Give Results In 90 Minutes

TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP)—Ontario's daily newspapers and the two national telegraph systems co-operated—through The Canadian Press—in giving Canada the result of the Ontario election less than 90 minutes after the close of the polls.

At 8:27 p.m., The Canadian Press announced the re-election of the Progressive-Conservative government on the basis of early returns indicating increased majority.

In the 1948 election the re-election of the Progressive-Conservative government was flashed at 8:44 p.m. In the 1945 election, election of the Progressive Conservatives was flashed at 8:47 p.m.

The Canadian Pacific and Canadian National telegraphs carried the constituency returns into the compiling centres of Ontario newspapers from where they funnelled into the central compiling rooms at the Toronto office of The Canadian Press.

Thousands of deputy returning officers were instructed by Major Alex Lewis, chief elections officer, to telephone the total vote at their polls to constituency returning officers at government expense. The move definitely speeded the collection of complete returns.

The vote by parties was compiled progressively and issued each hour by The Canadian Press.

Early settlers from England, France, Italy and Germany discovered that the Niagara Peninsula had perfect soil and weather conditions for the cultivation of fine grapes.

Now, years later, Niagara Peninsula vineyards have developed many varieties of grapes that are distinctively Canadian in flavour and bouquet. Proof of success is shown in the many international awards won by Ontario vineyards.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Peterborough Crop Improvement Association Meeting, Thursday, Nov. 29 — Forums' Rally Attended by 200 — Quinte Seed Growers Meet Here Nov. 30 — Co-Op Medical Services of Zone 4 Show Development.

Of Peterborough's seventeen Forums, fourteen were represented at Monday night's rally at the Y.M.C.A.

Clare Burt, of Toronto, provincial secretary, warmly complimented the attendance of 200 men and women who made this second annual joint meeting on the first review night an outstanding success. Wellington Sutton was chairman.

It was a social assembly featured in entertainment by the Forum contributions. Everybody enjoyed it, and Mr. Burt said it was evident that the Forum groups were now making a broad contribution to the social life of rural Peterborough.

W. W. Dawson, president of the county Federation of Agriculture, congratulated the Forums on their increase in number and activity.

This movement was fostered by the Federation, he said, and was in some notable respects its finest achievement.

Radio Speaker

Harold Lewis reports that Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore will be the speaker in the Federation broadcast at 12:15 p.m. Saturday Dec. 1.

QUINTE SEED MEETING

Quinte District Seed Growers are holding their annual meeting here on Friday Nov. 30. Some informal suggestion has been mooted of establishing Peterborough as the permanent location of the Quinte District Seed Fair.

This proposal appeared to be on the way to general acceptance after the successful fair here in the spring of 1948. However, the directors decided to continue the rotary system which has been fairly satisfactory through the years. The 1949 show was allotted to Kingston with indifferent result.

At Lindsay last year the Seed and Bacon display, and an interesting accompanying program, were well attended, and the plans directed by Leroy Brown, agricultural representative, provided another success.

This year's show at Blackstock in Durham turned out well, lacking only in local accommodations.

The Peterborough fair at Morrow Park introduced some new ideas which have been retained since then. Ample room is available, but the heating system has been removed, and there is a question as to the extent of interest and support coming from Peterborough Exhibition Board.

These are some matters which the Seed Fair members are likely to discuss.

CROP IMPROVEMENT ANNUAL

Annual meeting of Peterborough Crop Improvement Association is announced for Thursday Nov. 29 at 1:30 p.m. in the Y.M.C.A.

The speaker will be Dr. J. R. Weir of the field husbandry department of O.A.C. His general subject will be grass silage, hay and pasture improvement.

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, is asking farmers to make a special effort to attend this meeting. In recent years the Ontario Crop Improvement Association has steadily enlarged in position in the agricultural industry of this province. Actual improvement of crops has made substantial headway right across Peterborough county, but interest in the local association has not been as sustained as it should be.

MEDICAL CO-OPS MEET

Co-Operative medical services are expanding their sphere of benefits in central Ontario. W. W. Dawson presided at a first annual meeting in Zone 4 Tuesday at the home of Miss Jennie Mulvey, Belleville, who is secretary of the Quinte Co-Operative Medical Services. The Kawartha Co-Op. of Peterborough, and Loyalist Co-Op of Prince Edward were also represented.

Miss Olive Bell of Smith was appointed Zone secretary for the advantage of being proximate to the president, Mr. Dawson, who is a provincial director of the Federation of Medical Co-Ops. Harold Lewis, fieldman, and Clifford Johnston of North Monaghan, also attended.

Quinte and Kawartha have each more than 500 members, and Loyalist, who have just passed their first fiscal year, have more than 100.

"There is a sustained demand for expansion," Mr. Dawson informed the Examiner. "I expect to see 1,000 members in each group. Interest is spreading in Northumberland, and something is likely to deveop there. The Medical Co-Ops are all doing fairly well, but they have their problems, as shown in the discussion."

EDUCATION BROADCAST

The new Forum series begins Monday Nov. 26 with the topic: "Opportunities For Cultural Activities," discussing the question, have farm people the desire and opportunity to engage in such activities as music, painting and drama?

The subject Dec. 3 is: "Educational Outlet For Adults", posing the question: what are we doing to encourage libraries, short courses and opportunities for further study. The broadcast on the 10th deals with Folk Schools, followed by review night.

The second of the series invites consideration of the extension to rural communities of the library service afforded in a city such as Peterborough. Farm magazines often list the increasing literature devoted to agriculture in subjects which should be of practical interest and help to farmers.

A few of the titles noticed in a recent U.S. magazine were: Successful Poultry Management by Morley A. Juil, Professor and Head of Poultry Dept., University of Maryland.

Animal Sanitation and Disease Control by B. R. Dykstra, Dean, School of Veterinary Medicine, Kansas State College.

Feeds and Feeding by F. B. Morrison, Prof. Animal Husbandry and Animal Nutrition, Cornell University.

Forage Crops, by Gilbert H. Ahlgren, Professor of Farm Crops, Rutgers Univ. and Research Specialist, New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.

Those are only a few selection from a recently recommended list of books. If by some arrangement that variety of agriculture could be made available to farmers with new additions from time to time, it should become a helpful branch of a general library.

The subjects indicated in the lists are not confined to practical phases of farming. There are others leading into a cultural field that would offer, together with the main body of the library's volumes, a wide range of reading.

\+ + +

RHINITIS FACTS

Dr. T. Lloyd Jones of Ontario Veterinary College, and Prof. R. G. Knox of O.A.C., agree that there is at present no positive method of treatment developed against rhinitis in swine. If the disease is not present on a farm, every effort should be made to guard against its introduction.

The following facts are emphasized: all pigs showing signs of rhinitis are likely to transmit it to nursing pigs; pigs from litters where rhinitis is present, in spite of healthy appearance, may give the disease to healthy litters; pigs from infected premises often carry the infection when taken to clean premises.

ELGIN JUNIOR FARMERS

Hitch your dreams to courage was the theme of the address by Rev. H. S. Rodney of St. Thomas at the annual dinner meeting of the Junior Farmers and Junior Institute of Elgin county.

"Don't let the hard facts of today take away your dreams and ideals," Rev. Mr. Rodney said. "Hang on to them because they are amongst the most precious things you possess."

Read history, he advised. "The world right now is at a crossroads in history, and we need to read history and to learn what we must avoid if this civilization is to survive."

To live successfully in this new and challenging world, young people must learn to have great faith in God, in others and in themselves. They must perceive that life is real and earnest, and is not a snowflake dropping into a river.

"We should be enthusiastic about life, entering it in a spirit of adventure. You must put aside old ideas of security because the kind of life that the generation before you knew is gone."

THIRD AT ROYAL

Francis Walsh of Otonabee placed third in the Hereford baby beef steers shown at the Royal by Boys and girls of Ontario calf clubs. His son of Old Orchard Conover was next to the reserve champion.

The champion steer and winner of the King's Guineas was shown by Robert Hern of Huron county. It and the reserve champion shown by Robert Kinsman of Perth county were of the Hereford breed.

The entries in this class were 46 Shorthorns, 35 Aberdeen Angus and 20 Herefords.

RECOMMENDED PRICES

Recommended minimum prices for seed in Ontario were decided upon at a recent meeting of the Seed Marketing and Publicity Committee of the Ontario Crop Improvement Association. The prices recommended, based on retail sales at local shipping points, bags included, are as follows:

Oats—Com. No. 1 grade— $1.60 per bus.; Reg. No. 1 grade—$1.95 per bus.

Barley—Com. No. 1 grade—$2.15 per bus.; Cert. No. 1 grade—$2.50 per bus. Reg. No. 1 grade—$2.60 per bus.

It was reported that the demand for seed grain on the export market at the present time was very active. At the same time, the committee felt that the domestic demand would also be good. This expectation was based on the fact that a big livestock production program is under way in Ontario and that labor is in short supply. Thus they expect that many farmers will feed their home-grown grains and buy seed that has already been cleaned, graded and treated.

Referring to the forage seed situation, the committee pointed out that Canadian alfalfa is again in short supply and prices are likely to be as high or higher than last year. However, most other types appear to be more plentiful.

\+ + +

THE OLDEST HERD

The oldest herd of cattle in Britain was founded in 1240 at Chillingham Castle in Northumberland, and is distinguished by containing remnants of the original wild white cattle. They are totally white excepting black noses and black interiors of their ears, according to an item in the Ayrshire Post. Fears a few years ago that the herd after all this time would become extinct appear to have no foundation. In 1947 the severe winter killed off all but 13 of the 40 strong herd, and of these survivors all were old. Worry began when no calves were born in the following winter. It was though the king bull had become infertile and would have to be shot. Eighteen months after that winter of 1947, however, two bull calves were born and later four heifers. Today the herd consists of three bulls, seven cows, two bull calves and four heifers, and looks as if it will continue to keep going.

\+ + +

"ROCKET" GRAND CHAMPION

Members of Quinte District Cattle Breeders' Association of Belleville will share the elation of having one of their sires named grand champion Holstein bull at the Royal Winter Fair. That is an experience usually confined to one owner, but the Belleville unit is a form of co-operative ownership.

This high award to Rocket is another proof of the quality of stock that is being selected by the artificial breeders, not only of Belleville, but also of Maple, Kemptville, and elsewhere in the province.

Breeding associations are comparatively new organizations in Ontario, but already their effect is being seen in their offspring scattered among the herds of members.

The grand champion bull at the east central Holstein championships show in Peterborough last month placed third in the two year old bull class. It is Illehee Sovereign Supreme, owned by H. C. McCloskey of Queensville.

Winner of this class was J. M. Fraser's Spring Farm Fond Hope, and in second place was Franlo Roebuck Regent shown by Kil-Bar Farms of Hastings, Min.

Judge A. C. Thompson of West McHenry, Ill., described that two year old bull class as "sensational". Any one of the top three would have been a very acceptable winner.

Mr. Thompson said the 31 senior yearling heifers comprised the greatest class of that age "I have ever had the privilege of judging —some of them down to the 20th could have won at most shows".

Winner was Rosafe Shamrock Kay, shown by Hector I. Osengo of Brampton. His Shamrock Kit, placed second, ahead of the entries of Wilfred James of Sarnia, J. M. Fraser and J. J. E. McTague.

Ninety Holstein exhibitors brought out 264 head.

\+ + +

DURAL PURPOSE CHAMPION

John Trotter and Son of Madoc showed the grand champion dual purpose Shorthorn bull at the Royal this week, and were awarded the Shorthorn Society's Plate. Their entry was Mapleville Lucky Prince. The Trotters are associated with the dual purpose Shorthorn breeders of this district, especially the strong group around Omemee.

\+ + +

HOG MARKETING

Roy Jewell of the London Free Press staff attended in Middlesex county meetings of producers at which the proposed hog marketing board was discussed.

His comment follows, in part: "As we understand the plan, the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Board would become the agency responsible for selling all hogs marketed in Ontario except the few handled by local butchers. The board intends, we believe, to engage the services of persons experienced in the selling business at present, namely the licensed commission men selling the five to eight per cent of hogs now consigned to the open market in Toronto.

"Apparently the proposal calls for incorporation of the existing commission agents. This group would then, under the authority of the board, direct the sales of all hogs marketed in Ontario, regardless of their source. All this we assume after hearing Charles McInnis, president of the Ontario Hog Producers Association outline the proposal.

"Such an arrangement, according to Mr. McInnis, does not mean that all hogs would necessarily have to go to Toronto whence they would be shipped to district processors.

"Instead, the sales agency would direct delivery of hogs in the various districts to the plant nearest their source, the transaction being concluded between the agency and the processing plant, settlement being made directly with the producer.

"Mr. McInnis held out the hope that eventually the price might be established before hogs are sold, instead of several days later as as present. He says the authority for setting up such a selling agency is contained in the present marketing scheme for hogs in Ontario."

BUS TRIP TO ROYAL

John Bent of Victoria Shorthorn Breeders organized a bus trip to the Royal Tuesday. Nearly half the group were farmers from the Omemee area.

GOOD COOKIES

Ormskirk, an ancient market town in Lancashire, England, is celebrated for manufacture of gingerbread.

PROUDEST HOUR in the young life of Lorne Pimmett of Indian River struck for him at the Royal Winter Fair in Tuesday's judging of Shorthorn cattle. At the halter of Strathore Duthie Violet, bred and exhibited by Melville H. Pimmett & Sons, of Otanobee township, he is receiving the Silver Cup of the Shorthorn Society of Great Britain and Ireland for the supreme champion of the 1951 Royal. At the Left is Captain R. S. DeQuincey of Bodenham, Herefordshire, England, judge of the show, and Centre is Gordon Muirhead, Winnipeg, Man., president of the Canadian Shorthorn Association. Duthie's full sister, Strathore Collynie Violet, captured the reserve junior and the reserve grand female championships in the same ring. This was the first time such a wealth of honors was ever collected by one exhibitor in Royal Shorthorn history.

Pimmetts Of Indian River Reach Show Heights Unmatched At Winter Fair

Melville H. Pimmett and Sons, Indian River wrote a new chapter in Canadian Shorthorn cattle history at the Royal Winter Fair collecting a sheaf of top honors in national competition.

This was their achievement in the female division:—junior, and reserve junior championships; the grand championship and reserve grand championships; and finally the championship Shorthorn Trophy donated by the Shorthorn Society of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

Winner of the junior calf class in Shorthorns, Strathore Duthie Violet went on to take the junior championship, and followed up that title by capturing the grand championship over Torrance Beardmore's Briardale Cluny Pauline, from Mono Mills, the senior female champion.

The reserve junior and the reserve grand championships were awarded to Strathore Collynie Violet, also of the Pimmett herd.

Add to all that treasure in highly coveted titles, the British trophy for supreme champion in the Shorthorn breed, and M. H. Pimmett and Sons accomplished at this year's Royal a broad sweep of honors collected for the first time by any exhibitor in Shorthorn history.

Peterborough friends of the family were delighted when the news arrived this week of the performance of the comparatively small group of Strathore entries which Lorne Pimmett took the Roal. It is understood that he is going to the big International show in Chicago.

Lorne Pimmett is not only an expert in Shorthorn cattle but he is also a proficient showmen. His abilities, acquired in the first place at the home farm about six miles east of Peterborough, which adopted the herd designation of Strathore, have become widely recognized. During the last two years he accepted the job of leader of the beef club that was organized here for the younger juniors by Frank C. Paterson and his assistant Robert E. Bell.

It must be a great satisfaction to Mr. Melville Pimmett that his years of breeding Shorthorn cattle and imparting his interest to his sons have been so splendidly crowned.

Ontario's Crop Of Honey Up Ten Million Pounds

Solomon said in Proverbs: "My son, eat thou honey, for it is good."

Therein, the reputedly wisest man of antiquity spoke out as a sales agent for honey, and since then apiarists appear to have been content with that notable approval of their perfect product. Probably, that comment should be qualified by the phrase "until recently", because the industry has evidently discovered that even Solomon's recommendation hasn't yet reached a lot of consumers.

It is a long stretch from Solomon's time and taste to the 1951 honey crop in Ontario, which as recently mentioned by the Federation of Agriculture is estimated at 18,254,000 pounds as against 8,350,000 in 1950.

"While both colony and beekeeper numbers are down slightly from last year, yield per colony has more than doubled."

That further statistic does not suggest that the bee has presented a marketing problem to his Ontario keeper, but there is some sensible stress on that increase of 10,0000,000 pounds.

According to the advice of Solomon the only problem in the marketing of honey should be in producing enough to go around to all the tables in the land. And, if it has not reached that stage of distribution in some thousands of years, then the apiarists have let down both Solomon and the busy bee.

On the table at the Public Library the other day there was a book entitled "Honey and Your Health", and if the half of its assertions and claims are true, people should be beating paths to the door of the apiarist. Apparently until these latter days, the beeman has been satisfied to wait for that trickle of business.

'Sweetner' Of Centuries

This book is published by McBride and Company, New York. Bodog F. Beck, M.D., co- author, says in a foreward: "For sixty centuries, throughout historic ages and undoubtedly even in prehistoric times, honey was man's only 'sweetner', and his most favored food, delicacy and medicine . . . Upon the intrusion of 'refined' sugars, honey declined in use and now, instead of being an important household necessity, it has become an article of luxury . . . It is almost unbelievable that such an ideal and nourishing food, with its delightful bouquet, is almost entirely missing from our tables . . . It is astounding how meager are the scientific data available today concerning honey. Not a single book has been published of late years which creditably and thoroughly discusses its nutrimental and medicinal values."

Any one can imagine the fact that, through all the years the bees have been gathering the nectar of the summers' flowers, sealing it in nature's patented containers for man's use. It is the same product today as that which Solomon extolled.

Source Of Energy

The authors say: "Honey is an energy-building food. It contains 1,600 calories to the pound, and with only one exception surpasses all other natural foods as a source of heat and energy. The exception is the date, which has a slightly higher caloric content. Honey is six times richer in fuel value than milk. It is many times higher in fuel value than meat, fish, poultry, eggs, grains and vegetables. According to Professor Klemperer, a tablespoonful of honey is equal in caloric value to the largest size hen's egg."

Some of the chapter headings of the book are: Honey For Children; Molten Gold For Your Table; The Medicinal Value of Honey; Modern Secrets of Honey, and various others.

Ambrosia Of Greeks

Most of the ancient Greeks were fond of honey. Pythagoras, the philosopher, adopted a diet that included a generous amount of honey and bread. Other scholars in Athens evolved a mixture of milk and honey that became known as 'ambrosia'. Pythagoras lived to be 90; one of his disciples, Appolonius 113. Anacreon, who died at the age of 115, attributed his long life to the daily use of honey. Hippocrates, the father of medicince, prescribed it for longevity, and used it daily himself.

"Up to about 1700, very little sugar was imported to Europe from India. It cost about $2.50 a pound, and was used almost exclusively by royal families and the upper classes. The rest of the population relied on honey for sweetening.

When means were found of manufacturing sugar in large quantities, and the price was lowered, it was eagerly purchased. By 1800, England was importing more than three hundred million pounds annually. In 1801, a German scientist by the name of Franz Achard discovered a new process for manufacturing sugar from beet roots. Soon the continent was flooded with beet sugar. Honey began to lose prestige as a staple in European diet."

Any way, Ontario is flowing with its own milk and honey this winter, and along with it, whole wheat bread, butter, cheese, plus the citrus line—all that and ragout, ham—and, even mulligatwaney, too. Why worry about the dearth of porterhouse?

Planned Centres Developing Rapidly In South African Boom Town Areas

JOHANNESBURG — (CP). — Number 13 has only golden associations in South Africa now.

The steel headgear of 13 new gold mines, rising from the flat, dusty veldt of the Orange Free State, are landmarks for development of four boom towns which one day will bring the total of South African cities to 12, opening a new chapter in the Union's dazzling history of mineral development.

Unlike Johannesburg and Kimberley, the new cities are not being born in tents and mud shacks. They will not rush to a sprawling maturity beset with housing and transport problems. The Free State planners learned their lessons from the tangle that developed in Johannesburg, for instance, and they have called on the resources of science to make sure the same things will not happen again in the new goldfields.

First of the new goldfield towns was Odendaalsrus, where a fabulous gold strike was made six years ago. Thousands of homes have been built in Odendaalsrus and its neighbor towns of Welkom, Virginia and Allanridge. All planned to cover developments for another 25 years, they have risen like mushrooms from the hot dry flats where formerly a few families farmed maize and groundnuts and raised cattle.

Modern Buildings

Roads and a railway have been driven through the farmlands, airfields have been laid out and new pioneers have been provided with water and drainage, hospitals and schools, recreation clubs and buses. Satellite townships for native workers have been planned and built with the same foresight.

Originally a tiny hamlet, Odendaalsrus has been engulfed in a wave of modern homes and buildings. Imposing brick buildings are springing up, shops with big city fronts are appearing, and two up-to-date hotels cater for the visitors. Planned suburbs are coming into existence.

Twelve miles south of Odendaalsrus planners started from scratch to build the new town of Welkom on the bare veldt. They planned an imposing civic centre, parks and a green belt, controlled traffic highways, boulevards and car parks, markets, churches, schools and sports fields. Remarkable progress has been made in development of Welkom's four suburbs.

Allanridge, the "baby" of the goldfield towns, was born last year. It is a planned town like Welkom. And in the extreme south of the new goldfield the mining town of Virginia is rising with the same rush and bustle which marks its sister towns.

Sport plays a large part in the lives of South African mining communities and the industry is providing playing fields, swimming pools, golf courses, and club houses, tennis courts, and billiard rooms, libraries and bowling greens.

Like early Johannesburg, the new Free State goldfield towns are plagued with dust storms, occasionally as dense and far more unpleasant than an English fog.

The planners tackled this problem by planting tens of thousands of trees. In Welkom alone 15,000 have already been set out to break the sand stretches.

A large nursery will supply hundreds of thousands of tree seedlings, hedges, and shrubs to the township, and each householder is given a quantity free of charge. The nursery will also supply great quantities of flower seedlings.

But for all its amenities, the gold field is still lacking enough marriageable girls. Young women in the area are besieged with escorts, and every weekend sees a great exodus of young miners to their girl friends still living perhaps 20 miles away.

The majority of mine workers however, are tribal Africans who return to their native homes after a certain period of service. For these single quarters must be provided. For married, de-tribalized Africans who make up about five per cent of the labor force, native villages are being built where the men may live with their wives and families.

Dewey Urges US Give Aid To Generalissimo

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York Thursday urged the United States to provide the Chinese Nationalist Government in Formosa with moral support, technical assistance, political support, combined with arms and financial aid.

Writing in Collier's Magazine on his recent 41,00-mile tour of the Far East, Dewey says the United States must become at least as intelligent as the Kremlin, for once.

"Let us keep our friends, back them up and make them strong," he said.

"Every day the danger grows greater that Red Chinese soldiers may invade the critical area of Indo-China. But they will not invade Indo-China if they are busy at home, and I propose that we allow their free countrymen who want to liberate China to keep them busy at home."

Dewey said this does not mean we will be involved in war on the Chinese mainland. He explained:

"Russia is waging wars, violent wars, through native Communists in five of the countries I visited. Yet Stalin is smugly pointing out to his people that not one Russian has been killed in Korea, in the Phillipines, in Malaya, in Indo-China or in Indonesia."

The United States can't risk having its defence "shring back to Hawaii or the coast of California," Dewey says.

MORE ABOUT—

Elect Scott

votes, Mr. Grant 83, and Mr. Scott 356.

Douglas J. Lawrie, returning officer, said 37,230 electors were qualified to vote in Thursday's elections. Present figures indicate that more than 24,700 voted or about 66 per cent.

Seventy per cent voted in the provincial elections of June 1948.

Here are the comparable figures for the Peterborough riding in the 1948 elections when the provincial government, headed by Col. George A. Drew, was returned with a slightly reduced majority:

H. R. Scott, PC	10,259
Chas. Elliott, Lib.	7,729
J. G. Morton, CCF	5,929
Total	23,917

Mr. Scott's plurality as a result of that election was 3,399. In Thursday's election he increased his vote to 14,344 (plus the two subdivisions yet to be heard from). At the same time his two opponents polled a total of 10,220 votes—more than 3,000 votes fewer than in 1948.

The result was that Mr. Scott rose from a plurality of 3,399 to a majority of more than 4,000 votes.

CCF Hardest Hit

Biggest inroads, as in the rest of Ontario, were made into the ranks of the CCF. In 1948 Morton polled nearly 6,000 votes; this time Mr. Grant received only slightly more than 2,600.

Three years ago the CCF got strong backing from organized labor in the city, including the support of the Allied Labor Council, representing CCL, AFL and independent unions. This time the CCF candidate was endorsed by CCL unions only.

Chief loss to the CCF was in the city itself. Only 1,830 electors voted CCF Thursday in the 103 city subdivisions. In 1946 the figure was 4,373, some 200 fewer than supported the Liberal candidate.

In the rural municipalities the CCF more than halved their 1948 vote, dropping from 1,494 to 774.

With two rural polls still unreported, the Liberals also got fewer votes, though there was a larger turnout at this election. In 1948 7,729 electors voted Liberal; this time the number dropped to 7,616. They lost their hold on the townships of Asphodel, Otonabee and Galway-Cavendish.

Only Exception

The only exception to the Conservative sweep was the township of Douro where Mr. Burke polled 357 votes to 356 for Mr. Scott. Burke won two polls there: Poll 100, McKiever's house, and Poll 101, the town hall.

Mr. Burke won two subdivisions in the city: Poll 3 (A-L), 72 Lynch St.; and Poll 8 (A-L), 233 Lake St.

In the city he received some 500 votes more than Mr. Elliott, the Liberal candidate in 1948. But the best he could muster was single polls in the 1948 Liberal strongholds of Asphodel and Otonabee and he didn't win a single poll in Galway-Cavendish.

Besides the two in Douro, the three rural victories were when he defeated Mr. Scott 77-69 at Poll 80, Grady's school, Otonabee; 43-42 at Poll 97, Hale's school, Chandos; and 66-31 at Poll 113, James Beamish' house, Asphodel.

Mr. Burke received none of the 16 votes cast at Poll 121, Donald Windover's house, Galway-Cavendish.

Not one vote was cast for Mr. Grant at five rural polls—including the two Indian reserves at Curve lake and Hiawatha, and he didn't get any votes at one of the three city advance polls, and again at polling subdivision 28 (M-Z), Homewood Ave.

List Breakdown

Here is a brief breakdown of the results:

City of Peterborough: Scott 9,131; Burke 5,006, Grant 1,830.

Lakefield village: Scott 397, Burke 222, Grant 136.

Norwood village: Scott 334, Burke 129, Grant 18.

Havelock village: Scott 304, Burke 135, Grant 38.

North Monaghan: Scott 294, Burke 97, Grant 43.

Smith: Scott 971, Burke 387, Grant 154.

Ennismore: Scott 160, Burke 43, Grant 11.

Otonabee: Scott 713, Burke 431, Grant 115.

Dummer: Scott 349, Burke 154, Grant 46.

Harvey: Scott 275, Burke 88, Grant 23.

Chandos: Scott 130, Burke 82, Grant 9 (one poll not reported).

Douro: Burke 357, Scott 356, Grant 83.

Belmont-Methuen: Scott 301, Burke 111, Grant 28 (three polls not reported).

Asphodel: Scott 315, Burke 209, Grant 41.

Burleigh - Anstruther: Scott 219, Burke 116, Grant 23.

Galway-Cavendish: Scott 86, Burke 52, and Grant 6.

Never In Doubt

The election was never in doubt from the time the first poll was announced. It was phoned in to Returning Officer Douglas J. Lawrie at 7:09, by Mrs. Wm. Addyman who gave the results of the polling subdivision 8 (M-Z).

It gave Mr. Scott 63 votes, Mr. Burke 47 votes and Mr. Grant 16 votes.

In the first returns Mr. Scott more than doubled the total vote of his two opponents and the election was conceded 30 minutes after the pools closed at 7 pm. From there on its was just a matter of how much the Conservative majority would be.

When Mr. Scott takes his seat in the Legislature he will be representing Peterborough county for the fourth time. His first successful bid was in August 1943 when he defeated Alex Elliott, Liberal candidate 6,884 to 5,083. Bruce Johnston, CCF candidate, polled 4,763 votes.

Two years later he polled 12,398 votes, defeating W. W. Dawson, Liberal, (7,714), and Mr. Grant, CCF (4,225). In June 1948 he went back for his third term defeating Charles Elliott and John G. Morton with a substantial plurality.

Thanks Electors

Obviously tired after his long campaign, Mr. Scott thanked the electors of the county for their support as soon as he heard that his opponents had conceded the election.

He described their vote as one of confidence in "my leader, Les Frost, and myself." He said that he and the premier had worked together for the last eight years to enact good legislation, and to provide impartial and just administration of our laws.

"The majority forms the government and we all go along with them," said Mr. Burke, as he thanked his supporters shortly after 8 pm. He congratulated Mr. Scott and said he knew of nobody more entitled to the rank of "honorable."

Not Optimistic

Resignation to defeat characterized CCF campaign rooms before the poll returns started coming in.

The rooms were never full and a nucleus of the party workers stayed on through the evening. This group was augmented from time to time by supporters dropping in to check up on results. There were never more than 25 on hand at one time.

Interest shown in the returns was mainly based in checking gains and losses in their party as compared to the last election.

But the picture changed when a radio announcement told of party leader E. B. Jolliffe's defeat in his own riding. A decided gloom settled down on the workers which wasn't dispelled until candidate W. C. Grant announced that there would be a party meeting Monday night.

Not Giving Up

This announcement brought realization that there was still work to be done and would be done and was expressed in a statement Mr. Grant made to the Examiner.

"Naturally we are disappointed, but we're still here and will be here for a long, long time yet," he said.

"During the campaign, the number of our active workers increased. And these workers are determined to commence work immediately strengthening our organization and beginning a progressive educational campaign.

"We're out to win."

MORE ABOUT—

Heavy Vote

was such that it drew both CCF and Progressive Conservative fire. Charges were made that the paper and Mr. Thomson had made a "deal." These were denied.

For Premier Frost, 56-year-old Lindsay lawyer, this was his first campaign as party leader. He took over in 1949 the provincial mantle doffed by George Drew when the latter became national head of the party.

In winning his first election with a resounding majority he proved himself a better vote-getter than such political greats in other years as Sir Oliver Mowat, premier in 1896 and viewed as one of the Liberal party's greatest leaders, and Sir James Whitney, Conservative premier from 1905 to 1914.

Mr. Thomson's immediate plans were not disclosed. If he wishes to lead his party in the House, one of his seven-man band must resign to open up a seat for a by-election. Or Farquhar Oliver, who has been Liberal House leader and was re-elected Thursday in Grey South, could continue in that position.

Not As Pressing

The problem of a House leader for the CCF forces was not as pressing. It seemed likely that W. Grummett, re-elected in Cochrane South, would provide the needed leadership. The other CCF member is T. D. Thomas of Oshawa, victor over Mr. Thomson who ran a poor third in a four-candidate filed in Ontario riding.

Of particular interest to political historians was the setback of the Socialist CCF. Of the 17 seats in the Toronto area, one of the province's most densely-populated sections, all but one went to Progressive Conservative candidates.

The exception was Toronto St. Andrew where the Labor-Progressive (Communist) candidate, Joseph Salsberg, was re-elected. His majority was pared from almost 5,000 in 1948 to little more than 1,300 in 1951. In neighboring Toronto Bellwoods A. A. MacLeod, the Labor-Progressive leader, lost to a Progressive Conservative.

Not Sufficient

Labor support for the CCF forces in industrial ridings proved insufficient to stem the Progressive Conservative tide. In the Windsor area, the 22,000-man United Automobile Workers' Union (CIO-CCL) had been urged by its leaders to vote as a bloc for Labor's "political arm." The vote had been considered a test of a major union's power to deliver its vote to one party.

Mr. Jolliffe attributed his party's crushing defeat to "lack of a central issue" in the campaign. The CCF's percentage of the popular vote was cut from 27 per cent in 1948 to 19 per cent in 1951. It got only five per cent of the vote in 1937—and failed to elect a candidate—in its first serious bid for political power in Ontario.

In contrast, the Liberals' percentage incrgased from 29 in the last election, when it sent 13 candidates to the Legislature, to 31 Thursday — when it returned only seven men.

Veteran Candidates

Veterans of the Liberal party were its successful candidates Thursday. Harry Nixon was returned in Brant, the riding he has represented in the Legislature since 1919. Mr. Oliver was successful in Grey South, which first sent him to the House in 1926. W. L. Houck, of Niagara Falls, is back. Windsor's Mayor Arthur J. Reaume—a newcomer to the Legislature—turned out the CCF's Gordon B. Ellis in Essex North.

Indicative of the setback to the CCF was the loss of three seats in industrial Hamilton. All went to the Progressive Conservatives, one of whom is Art Child, well-known hockey goalie, who captured Hamilton-Wentworth.

Carried along in the government sweep was Premier Frost's entire cabinet. Seventeen of the 18 members were re-elected. The 18th was Education Minister W. J. Dunlop, who successfully sought election in Toronto Eglinton for the first time.

Highways Minister Doucett learned of his re-election in Larnark as he lay in hospital in Ottawa. The minister suffered a broken thigh and other severe injuries in an automobile accident Nov. 8. He will be away from his desk for a considerable time.

Note Trend Early

The trend to the Progressive Conservatives was apparent almost as soon as the polls closed at 7 pm EST. The re-election of the government was indicated at 8.27 pm in The Canadian Press trend analysis and from then on, it was clear that the result would be a landslide.

A jubilant Premier Frost accepted the verdict of the electorate with what he termed in a broadcast "a feeling of great humility." He appealed to all parties to "join together, regardless of how we may have voted, in order that we may as a united people face the challenges and complexities of tomorrow."

Still to be tabulated is the vote of Ontarians with the forces overseas or awaiting movement overseas. An estimated 5,000 were eligible—in Korea, with the 27th Brigade in Germany or 27th Brigade troops still in Canada and destined for Germany. The result is expected to be announced in about 10 days.

Police Squad Raids House, False Alarm

Seeking Convicts From Don Jail After "Foolish Talk"

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 23 — Eight carloads of provincial police — about 35 men in all — descended on this town late Thursday afternoon, believed to be seeking three men who fled Don jail in Toronto on November 4.

It is understood they were acting on an unconfirmed tip given them by a woman.

They surrounded a house on Candy Mountain, in the northwest part of the town, armed with rifles, shotguns and automatic weapons. After questioning the owner of the house, a man, they left.

Dug Up Garden

Neighbors said police dug up part of the garden adjoining the house, but police deny they did this. It had been rumored in Campbellford, after the police arrived, that they were also seeking the $4,000 stolen Tuesday from a bank in Toronto's west end.

While a dozen men surrounded the house, several cruisers were blocking roads leading out of the town.

Foolish Talk

Today, Sgt. Stanley Palmateer of Peterborough OPP headquarters, who led the raid, said that the tip came from "some foolish talk" police had heard second hand.

The three men who fled Don jail were Leonard Jackson, 29, Edwin Boyd, 37, and William R. Jackson, 25. It was thought that Boyd, described by police as a "master criminal," and Leonard Jackson were connected with the Toronto bank holdup.

Police have said that after Boyd's escape they expected a bank robbery.

'We've Won,' PC Fans Receive Good News Early

By JIM ENGLISH

"We've won!" A crowd of about 150 in the jammed Progressive Conservative headquarters on Water St. turned to look for Harold Scott when a woman shouted the news, news everyone had guessed at since the early polls were telephoned in. Mr. Scott, the Minister of Lands and Forests, wasn't a hard man to find. Dressed in his usual brown suit and tartan tie, he wore as well a broad, slightly tired smile on his face.

There wasn't very much cheering, but there was a lot of handclapping. The election had gone pretty much the way Conservatives had expected.

Crowd Gathers

As the returns had mounted in favor of Mr. Scott, the crowd in Conservative headquarters grew thicker. The cheers that greeted the earlier totals quietened into applause.

Only twice did the cheering break out again.

Once was when Mr. Scott's total (10,951) was more than double Liberal candidate Paddy Burke's (5,034).

The cheers came a second time when Mr. Burke came to Conservative headquarters to congratulate Mr. Scott. Gordon K. Fraser, Conservative MP for Peterborough West, led the cheering.

But before the election was conceded, some frantic work was done in the PC committee room.

Majority On First

The first poll—number 8 (M-Z)—came in at 7:10, 10 minutes after the balloting stopped. It gave Mr. Scot a majority he was not to relinquish for the rest of the night. Oddly enough, the other half of that poll (8, A-L) went to Paddy Burke.

Figures for poll 8 were: A-L, Burke 67, Grant 20, Scott 64; A-M—Burke 47, Grant 16, Scott 63.

First 20 polls into the PC rooms gave Harold Scott a majority of 561, and a lead over Mr. Burke of 867 votes. Figures were: Scott 1,760, Burke 893, Grant 306.

By 10.30 pm, 139 polls had reported to Conservative headquarters, Mr. Scott commanded the political scene in Peterborough county, and the Conservatives decided that was all. They broke camp and went their various ways to celebrate.

Workers

Shirtsleeved workers in the Conservative rooms were Gordon Fraser and PC Association president Bill Ovens. Mr. Fraser was marking down returns on a master sheet aided by Mrs. Cecil Wasson, who tabulated totals from time to time.

There were other workers, and they were all busy. To them, Mr. Scott paid tribute. He said: "To all those good friends who sacrificed their leisure and worked so hard in this campaign, anything I might say by way of thanks would be inadequate. Nellie (Mrs. Scott) and I appreciate very much your friendship and the way you have showed it during this campaign."

To the voters, Harold Scott had this to say:

"I want to thank the electors of Peterborough riding for the wonderful vote of confidence which they have given my leader, Les Frost, and myself.

"We have worked together for over eight years trying to enact good legislation and to provide impartial and just administration of our laws, to provide equal opportunities for education, to practice conservation in the administration of our natural resources and lastly to assure conditions in which there are freedom of speech and expression, freedom of worship, freedom of choice of employment and education, and freedom from neglect."

Of the opposing candidates, Mr. Scott said he could only say that it was a good clean fight, and "Bill Grant, Paddy Burke and I will continue to work together, as we have in the past."

Hospital Can Save $12,240 Each Year Survey Says; Will Not Wipe Out Deficit

With Average 62% Of Beds Occupied Hospital Loses $34,320 Annually Survey Does Not Include Some Departments

Savings amounting to $12,240 annually were proposed in a report based on a survey of two Civic hospital departments which was tabled at a joint council-hospital board-meeting Wednesday night. The proposed savings fall $22,080 short of the $34,320 yearly reduction in operating costs necessary for the hospital to break even when 62 per cent of the beds are occupied. This percentage was taken as a target to shoot at for bringing expenses in line with revenue because during the past nine months the average number of beds occupied was 62 per cent.

The survey report was made by a Montreal firm of management, business and industrial consultants on the housekeeping and dietary departments, stock control in supply rooms and pharmacy and organization and management control of all departments.

J. A. Makem, installation consultant of the company, made the four-week study between October 1 and 27. Mr. Makem was on hand at the meeting in the board room Wednesday night together with the company's senior consultant, Thomas Zatezalo, to explain the report and answer questions.

Mr. Zatezalo said "it is clear the major savings will be in the labor dollar. He said, "If the job were done in all departments," he believed ways could be found of economizing enough to make up the amount to balance the budget. "In the two departments already covered, we could only find a small percentage of the total recovery possible."

Get Good Service

"Patients who use this hospital are, getting service at a very reasonable cost," said Mr. Makem. "They are getting a lot for their money. I have no doubt of the unchallengeable personal integrity of those on the staff with whom I came in contact."

One recommendation, that $167 more revenue could be obtained from higher charges for drug and medicinal prescriptions, was criticized by T. T. Rodger, chairman of the board's finance committee.

The charges are a matter of hospital board policy, declared Mr. Rodger, and cannot be changed. "Patients suffer enough shock by having to pay more than they can afford. Why make it worse by making as big a profit as possible."

Quoting the report, Mr. Makem said: "We should be surprised if your loss of cash discounts does not exceed $2,000 per annum."

"I'm prepared to state we get 90 per cent of available cash discounts. There may be the odd one we don't get but I question if we could save anything like the money suggested," declared hospital board chairman J. H. Marshall.

Snacks Not Charged

Between meal snacks that patients are not being charged for would bring in an additional $208 per month, according to the report. Mr. Zatezalo said it should be determined "what service should be given patients." In his experiences with other institutions, he said it is usually found that "quite a few are not actually being charged."

The report recommended that the housekeeping staff be reduced by three which would save $430 per month.

In the dietary department, the report said, a new machine for cutting French fried potatoes would save enough time to reduce labor costs by $22.50 per week, plus the wages of one woman on the cafeteria staff for an overall saving of $215 each month.

Total monthly savings in the two departments covered amount to $1,020. (The $2,000 which the report said it thought was being lost in cash discounts was not included in this figure.)

The nursing department came in for some chary criticism from Mr. Makem. "The nursing department here is out of line with other institutions in that it is over 60 per cent of the total labor cost. It is usually 52 per cent."

"It is fine to be critical," said Mr. Rodger, but on the day the nursing department was surveyed, there were 213 patients in the hospital. A week later, there were 143. "Would anyone say a minimum staff for 143 patients would be adequate for 213? Insofar as nurses are concerned, the hospital board has to take the long view in the whole light of the information, not fragmentary information."

1st Phone Calls Told News At Liberal HQ

The telephone at the Liberal committee rooms brought an early forecast of the eventual results of the day's balloting in Peterborough.

The first string of twelve polls, as tabulated by committee workers, gave Scott, PC, 916, Burke, Lib., 534 and Grant, CCF, 221. The rest of the ringing story was merely corroboration of the early signs of a Scott victory by a steadily enlarging majority.

The Grits began their figures with the split poll No. 8: 57 to 64 for Scott and 47 to 63 for Burke, with Grant trailing with a low count. The Scott majority of 23 votes from that source did not look discouraging, but there was no balm in the following returns.

The second totals from the adding machine were: Scott 2103; Burke 1769 and Grant 712. Hope folded up at that stage, although the figure continued to be marked up as routine of the evening.

The next counting for 85 polls gave Scott more than his two opponents: Scott 6860, Burke 4374 and Grant 1654.

Thanks Everyone

Some time after 8 o'clock, Mr. Burke said: "I want to thank everybody throughout the riding who voted for me. I did the best I could in a short time, and I specially want to thank those who helped me in so many places in the city and in the county."

Mr. Burke said he hoped that there were not many people who did not use their franchise.

"I am sure that more people than ever are realizing the freedom we have in this country to go to the polls and vote as we wish. And, then when it is over we are just as good friends as ever. The majority forms the government, and we all go along with them.

"In regard to the re-election of Mr. Scott, I am going to say on the radio that I do not know any other man more entitled to the rank of Honorable. I congratulate him on his success because I realize more than ever that it is an honor to receive the co-operation and the confidence of the people."

It's A Habit

"I always vote Conservative," said an old codger to a cronie on George St. Thursday morning. They were trying to decide how the election was going to go and discussing their reasons for voting as they did. The outcome showed that there were quite a number who always vote Conservative—at least they did this time. There were more than 14,000 of them.

Hospital Damage Settlement Said Easy On City

Some criticism of the settlement by council with Pentecostal Assemblies for damage to the old Nicholls Hospital building has been noted in comments since the payment of some $1,600 was recently reported.

City Clerk Outram recalled today that the council had taken full precautions for the maintenance of the building in its vacancy.

Windows were barricaded, doors were barred, and other safety measures were taken in so far as the council was responsible. But, children broke into the building and caused considerable damage.

"They were brought into the Juvenile Court," Mr. Outram said, "because they were under age, and they were charged with having done malicious damage to the public property.

Fined Parents

The city council has no authority over Magistrate Philp. He imposed a fine of $25 on each parent involved through their children. The total paid into court was $350. The point is,—what else could the council have done. These children were legally juveniles. Their liability was through the court, not through the council.

"There was some damage caused by frost in the plumbing system. The building had been accepted as prepared for winter when it was turned over to the city by the Board of Governors of the hospital. But, as it transpired, all the pipes had not been drained before the building had come into the council's care.

"When the city discovered that damage, a plumber was called in, but there was water damage done. When the Pentecostal Assemblies took over, there was no use in the city undertaking the repairs. Besides, much of the work was done by Pentecostal members themselves, and without charge.

Minor Cost

"The feeling of the council is that the city got out of the liability with minor total cost."

Mr. Outram said the parents of the wrecking youngsters were just ordinary wage earners with families to support, and it was altogether likely that public sentiment would not have endorsed severe penalty of costs.

"Those are the facts," Mr. Outram said, "and they are recalled merely as a matter of public information."

Open Meeting To Be Held On Mental Clinic

An open meeting of citizens of the city and county will be held by the Peterborough Rotary club early in 1952.

This meeting will be held to discuss the need and possible ways of establishing a mental health clinic in Peterborough.

The plan to hold this meeting arose from a meeting Thursday night sponsored by the public relations committee of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society, at the society's offices. It was attended by representatives of various organizations and groups in the city.

The decision of this meeting was that a mental health clinic was definitely needed here. Once this decision was reached plans were made for further progress on the project.

S. J. Black, president of the Rotary club, was appointed as chairman of a committee set up to contact more organizations for their opinions and help.

The group will meet again January 9 before the open meeting. Chairman of Thursday night's meeting was W. B. Gordon.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

CONTROL OF PARKING

The parking of cars on Wolfe St., between Stewart and Reid streets; on Reid St., from Wolfe northerly, and on the central portion of the roadway in front of the CGE Co." has been referred for the question of control to the traffic committee by the city council.

LIGHT FOR LIBRARY

Fluorescent lighting fixtures at the old city hall are to be made available to the Public Library as recommended by the finance committee and approved by the council Wednesday. City Clerk Outram had reported that the Library board was considering new lighting for their building.

CLOSE STREET

City workers, paving the extra width added to Water St. between McDonnel and Murray Sts by laying of the new sidewalk for the city hall, had that section of Water St. Closed to traffic Thursday.

Local Citizens Attend Zionist Convention

The Jewish Welfare Council of Peterborough wil send delegates to the 31st national convention of the Zionist Organization of Canada to be held in Toronto in January.

From Peterborough attending will be Mr. and Mrs. Allan Moldaver, 433 Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Moldaver, 623 Walkerfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hollend, 767 George St. north.

Delegates from every province in Canada have already signified their intentions of attending the Toronto conference.

Convention speakers will be Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Jewish Agency, and Mrs. Shosharia Persitz, former member of the Israeli parliament.

Expert Praises New City Hall

Tribute to Peterborough and its city hall is expressed in a letter to city council, Oct. 31, from W. F. Orr, clerk of the works in the construction of the municipal building to the city council.

If the ego of this community is proof against becoming puffed up by a combination of accolade and econium, the letter of Mr. Orr may be quoted. During his engagement he made monthly reports to the council.

"Your new city hall is substantially completed in approximately one year and two months. Therefore, this is my final report and farewell.

"As your municipal departments function in the new building, it is unnecessary for me to go into detail on its construction. I can say, however, from long experience in the supervision of erection of all types and sizes of buildings, that you have one second to none in modern planning, and the materials and labor expended in its building have been the very best obtainable.

Fulfills Wishes

"I am sure you will find the facilities of this magnificent building fully in accord with your desires, and in every way fulfilling the wishes of the donor.

"Please accept my thanks and appreciation for the co-operation you have given, and for extending the hand of friendship as well as trust.

"In the course of my work I have sojourned in many places, but none extended a warmer friendliness than the people of Peterborough. I shall carry away and treasure these memories, and in play, as vacations permit, return among you to re-live these experiences that it has been my good fortune to possess."

Separate Board Expected Back

Unless a custom which has lasted since 1907 is broken, the Separate School board will continue on without an election again this year. The nomination meeting will be held tonight in the board room at St. Mary's convent.

The six members whose terms expire this year are: Fergus O'Connor (Clarady Ward), Victor Mattucci (South), R. S. Hull (North), Dr. J. R. Epping (West), W. H. Toal (Centre) and D. W. Hull (East).

It is expected that, as in other years, the six members will be elected by acclamation for another two-year term.

Canadian Runs Noted London Shirt-Makers

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON — (CP). — Vancouver-born Rowland Webb, who owns a controlling interest in one of London's oldest shirt-making firms, gets more deeply entrenched in British tradition all the time.

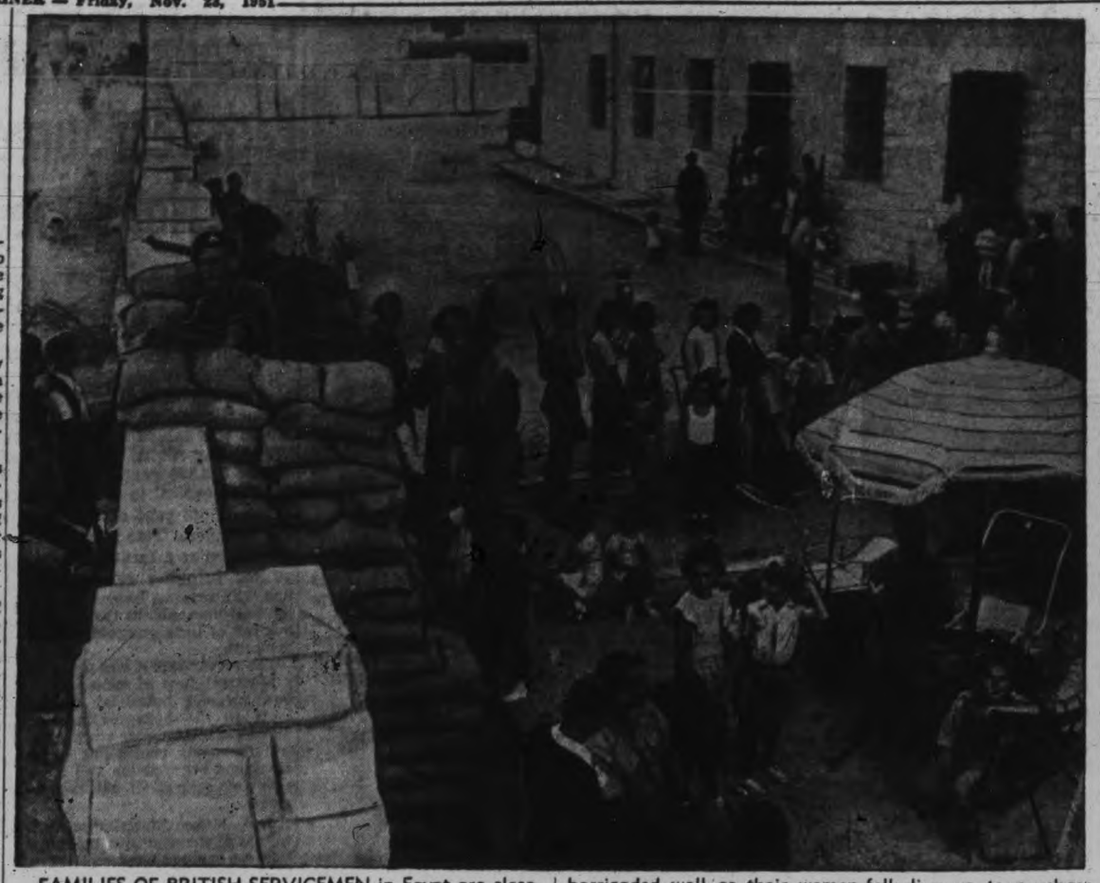
His firm has just opened new premises in London's Burlington Arcade, exclusive Mayfair centre patronized by kings for more than 100 years, and still a shopping haunt of the Royal Family.

Armies of toy soldiers, models of which have graced the nurseries of Princess Elizabeth, Princess Margaret and the young Duke of Kent, moved out to make way for the exclusive silks and poplins that go into the make-up of hand-tailored shirts.

Webb acquired the premises of a toy store that had been in Burlington Arcade's "Mecca of Dandies" for 130 years and was still run by descendants of the founder. Illness in the family and a shortage of experienced craftsmen resulted in the closing of a shop that was the second of its kind opened in London.

Go Back Long Way

The history and tradition of the shirt-making business can, however, go back even farther than that of the toy shop. Opened in Covent Garden in 1643, then the most coveted residential area in London, it catered to the gay blades of the 17th century and was famed for its lace neckcloths, silk stockings and white ruffles.



Now, under the expert guidance of Webb, a slim, dark, 35-year-old Canadian, hand-tailored shirts, often with hand-embroidered pocket initials, are sent to many parts of the world, including Canada and the United States. The firm, which at one time held the royal warrant of Edward VII, is still under royal patronage and during the Second World War made shirts for the Duchess of Kent, to be worn with her uniform during her naval service.

"Previous customers can ask for the repeat of a seven-year-old order and get it without delay," said Webb.

Almost Lives At Store

Webb, a bachelor, spends most of his time in the five-storey Bond Street store which, in old-London style, has stairs scarcely two feet wide and no elevator.

He first came to London with the RCAF in 1940, and returned here after demobilization to study textiles in Northern England. Later he spent some time as free-lance travelling agent for men's specialties firms. In 1947 he went into the shirt-making business and now has a five-roomed apartment in Mayfair where he holds open house for visiting Canadians. Twice a year he visits his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Webb, of Vancouver.

FAMILIES OF BRITISH SERVICEMEN in Egypt are closely guarded against terrorists 24 hours a day. Here British soldiers keep a sharp lookout from behind a sand-bagged barricaded wall as their women-folk line up to purchase food and supplies at a commissary store. Meanwhile their children play behind the barricades. These families are awaiting evacuation from the trouble zone.

Premier's Papers Depict Evolution Of Pioneer West

REGINA—(CP)—Walter Scott, Saskatchewan's first premier, was a meticulous preserver of his papers and records.

He kept not only his correspondence with political leaders in the early years of the century, but left a huge collection of photographs, pamphlets, maps, calling cards, and even a record of his golf scores.

Last month the Scott papers, including some 25,000 items of correspondence, were presented to the archives of Saskatchewan by Miss Dorothy L. Scott of Winnipeg.

Scott was instrumental in the creation of Saskatchewan and Alberta as provinces, and in 1905 headed Saskatchewan's first government. His papers throw light on a wide variety of subjects connected with the west's early political, social and economic development.

Scott's Saskatchewan career began in 1886 when he came to Regina at 19 to assist C. J. Atkinson in publishing the Regina Journal, a rival of N. F. Davin's Regina Leader.

Later he became associated with J. K. McInnis in publishing The Regina Standard. In 1894 he became publisher of the Moose Jaw Times and the next year succeeded Davin as editor of The Regina Leader.

The foundations of his political career were laid in his forthright editorials on western problems and aspirations, and in 1900 he was nominated — and elected — by the Liberal party in western Assiniboia. He defeated his rival, Davin.

In Federal House

He sat at Ottawa for five years, then returned west to head the Saskatchewan government for 11 years, until 1916. He died in 1938.

Scott's letters include correspondence with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other leaders of the era.

Provincial Archivist Lewis H. Thomas said the collection will be of immediate value to persons preparing studies of various phases of early provincial administration. It is also expected that in the future a biography of the premier, based on these papers, will be undertaken.

The correspondence contains material on the building of the Saskatchewan legislative building in Regina, the founding of the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon, immigration promotion, liquor guarantees, agricultural credit and election campaigns.

During recurrent ill health, Scott took many trips abroad and he used these absences to study administrative and economic developments in the countries he visited with a view to their adoption in Saskatchewan. In this way he contributed to the ferment of new ideas and political experiments which were a feature of Saskatchewan life prior to the First World War.

The papers now are being classified and indexed by the archives staff. The bulk of the collection will be preserved in the archives office at the University of Saskatchewan, but certain pictures and documents have been earmarked for permanent display as soon as historical museum facilities are available in Regina.

French Art Exhibit Shown In Montreal

MONTREAL—(CP) — France, long recognized in the fashion world, now has taken a bow in arts and handicrafts.

Some 3,000 objects d'art, including items ranging from jewellery and accessories to ceramics, tapestries, silverware and stained glass, are on exhibition here until Nov. 29.

The exhibition was officially opened by Jean Mouton, cultural attache to the French Embassy in Ottawa. The collection was prepared by the artisans committee of the Societe Du Salon de L'Imagerie and is under the direction of Louis Bonnard of New York.

Health Stamps Allow Holidays For Needy Child

AUCKLAND, NZ—(CP) — For several months in every year most New Zealanders voluntarily pay 50 per cent extra postage in order to give poor children a holiday at a health camp.

With the summer season now starting here, they buy health stamps which are on sale alongside normal stamps, costing half the regular price. The receipts from the health stamps go to maintain a chain of camps for children at beaches and holiday resorts throughout the country.

This year's target from the health stamp campaign is $350,000. The samps are issued by the government and are on sale at all post offices. The design is different each year and the attractive appearance of the stamps has made them popular with philatelists throughout the world.

Some of the early issues in the years after the system was begun 22 years ago now are very valuable. A recent one was the first stamp bearing portraits of Princess Elizabeth with her son. This year's stamps show the yacht "Health" with a smiling boy at the helm against a typical New Zealand coastal scene.

Six of the camps are maintained all the year round, while others operate in the summer months. Children from poor homes and those run down in health are selected for holidays of several weeks at the camps. Some have schools attached, so that the children do not miss lessons during the school year.

The stamps come on sale at the beginning of November and remain available until the year's issue is sold. Many districts show great enthusiasm in filling their quota and some towns often buy up the whole local supply in a few days.

Liberal Turn Will Come Thomson Not Discouraged

OSHAWA, Nov. 23 (CP)—Liberal Leader Walter Thomson said Thursday night "there will always be another day" for his party, which failed to unseat the Progressive Conservative government in the Ontario general election.

Mr. Thomson, speaking on local radio station CKLB, also had congratulations for T. D. Thomas, successful CCF candidate in Ontario riding.

"We're the opposition," said the leader of the party which replaced the CCF as official opposition, "and I'm still leader of the Liberal party.

"Sure I'm still smiling, but there will always be another day."

Congratulating Mr. Thomas, he said: "I started friends and we end up friends. The fortunes of battle are the fortunes of battle. Mr. Thomas is to be congratulated and I am sure he will keep on doing good for the riding."

Too Early To Tell

Asked if he would stand for federal election in his riding, Mr. Thomson said it was too early for comment. Mr. Thomson represented the riding in the federal House when chosen party leader, and resigned after the Ontario election was called.

Mr. Thomson, tired from his hard-working campaign that actually started with a succession of speeches after he was chosen leader last year, had a nap Thursday morning and again Thursday evening at his farm home near Pickering, north of here.

His family and newspaper reporters sat in the Thomson living room in early evening listening to broadcast returns of the election.

Mr. Thomson awoke at 8:45 pm and came into the living room to listen to the radio with them. Later he went to Oshawa to make his post-election statement by radio.

Not Discouraged

The Liberal leader extended Premier Frost "my congratulations and good wishes" in the radio address.

"There will yet be a new day . . . I feel we can go forward in the knowledge that this Liberal party will be a factor in Ontario politics. I have given all my waking hours to this effort. I have worked as hard as I could. I am not discouraged but I cannot say I am not disappointed . . .

"We will work together with Premier Frost for the good of Ontario. However, I have not agreed with the leader of the Progressive Conservatives in the past and their victory does not necessarily mean I will in the future.

"I have always been taught that though I lose today I may win tomorrow—victory and defeat are both transitory . . .

"We are now the official opposition and nothing could be more concrete as a springboard for the next election . . . .

"I have no apologies to make; the fight is still on, the fight will continue. We look exentually to victory."

Getting Accustomed

MONTREAL (CP)—After some confusion at the start, pedestrians now are getting familiar with the new "walk" and "wait" traffic lights at a busy Westmount intersection. To an eight-year-old boy pushing the button a constable explained the "walk" sign appears only every third time.

Part-Time Citizen

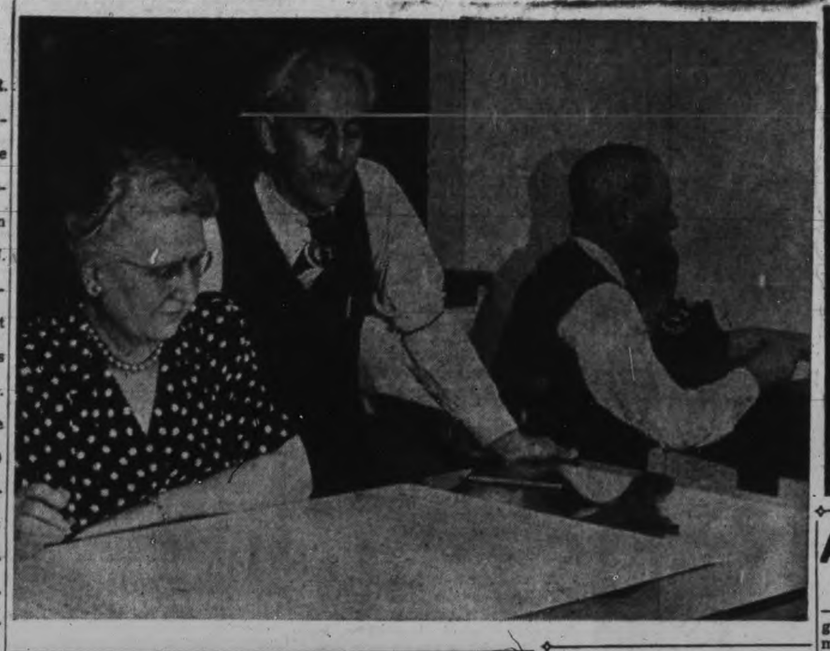
MONTREAL (CP)— Police testified that an accused burglar here reversed the usual procedure, posing as an honest citizen by night and raiding apartments in the daytime. Frank Biro pleaded guilty to 12 burglaries and was remanded for sentence.

38 New Faces In Legislature

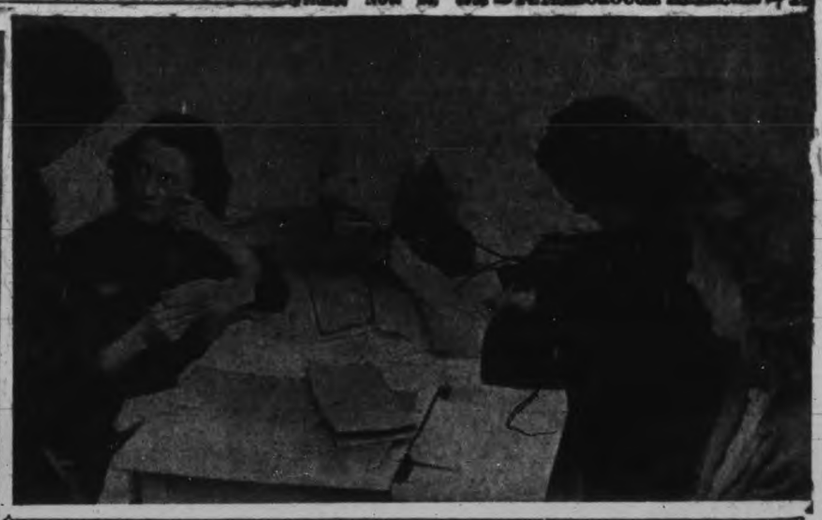
TORONTO, Nov. 23—(CP). — There will be 38 new faces in the Ontario Legislature following Thursday's Progressive Conservative victory—35 of them members of the winning party.

The Liberals elected two new members, while one Liberal-Labor candidate new to the Ontario House also was elected.

Several of the "new members" are no strangers to provincial politics. W. J. Stewart, Progressive Conservative winner in Toronto Parkdale, is a former Speaker of the Ontario House. Kelso Roberts, elected in Toronto St. Patrick, also has been a Progressive Conservative member. Geo. Wardrope, new Progressive Conservative member for Port Arthur, has long been active in politics at the Lakehead.



First Term



For Arthur J. Reaume, Liberal for Essex North, it will be his first term in the Legislature. But he has been Mayor of Windsor for several years. S. F. Leavine, Progressive Conservative for Waterloo North, is Mayor of Waterloo. New members William Beech of York South, Elmer Brandon of York West and Ellis Morningstar of Welland, all Progressive Conservatives, are reeves of their own municipalities.

Two of the freshman Progressive Conservative legislators are sons of prominent men in provincial politics. From Sault Ste. Marie comes Harry Lyons, son of the late James Lyons, former Minister of Lands and Forests. W. M. Nickle, new Kingston member, is a son of W. F. Nickle, former Attorney-General.

Sport's newest representative in the Legislature is Art Child, Progressive Conservative from Wentworth and goalie for Hamilton Tigers of the Senior Ontario Hockey Association.

Alex Kay Guest Speaker At Marmora H & S

MARMORA, Nov. 23 — (ENS) —Alex Kay of Peterborough was guest speaker at the monthly open meeting of Marmora Home and School Association held in Marmora Public School on Wednesday.

Mr. Kay mentioned as a prelude to his talk that there are 298 different kinds of birds He touched first upon the robins which are protected birds, birds which wear glasses at times and doctor their own children. Then he spoke of the woodpecker which place a storm door at the entrance to their home as a winter precaution of the crows which are first cousins to the birds of paradise.

There are only seven kinds of birds which may permissibly be killed. The owls and hawks were eulogised by the speaker as insect killers as well as the yellow hammer which successfully attacks the ant colony with its strategy. He deviated once from the course of his talk to say that without a compass, there were eleven sign boards in the woods, through the use of which no one who discovered their import should be lost. He lamented the fact that the quail had entirely disappeared from Ontario, the bird which specifically went after potato bugs.

He concluded with reference to the preacher bird which attracts various kinds of other birds to its attention and they eventually fly away before his discourse is finished. He said he would be pleased at some time to go on a hike here with scholars as he had in several other districts. Birds lead one to think of their Creater, God, who has so ordained that we cannot live without them.

Introduced by the Rev. J. E. Glover, the speaker was thanked by Russell Wells.

Mrs. R. Frost, president, was in the chair and she thanked Principal R. E. Prentice and older boys of the school for having planted the tulips before the frost came.

Mrs. Vaughan Glover played two violin numbers with Mrs. A. F. Fraser accompanying as pianist. The attendance of parents and grandparents was taken by Mr. Prentice. A Royal Family Contest was staged by Mrs. Effie Manchester of the school staff in which the audience was paired for competition and won by Mrs. DeClair and Miss Cole.

Drew Hails Win As Tribute To Good Gov't

OTTAWA, Nov. 23 (CP) — George Drew, national Progressive Conservative leader, Thursday night hailed the party's victory in the Ontario election as a tribute to good government.

The leader of the official opposition in the House of Commons heard the returns at Carleton county headquarters. He issued the following statement when the result was evident:

"This magnificent victory is a well-deserved tribute to Leslie Frost's good government, his splendid leadership, and to the outstanding qualifications of the candidates who supported him in every part of Ontario."

Expresses Regret

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader in the House of Commons, Thursday expressed his personal regret at the defeat of E. B. Jolliffe, the party's leader in the Ontario elections.

"He carried on a magnificent campaign," Mr. Coldwell said.

Of the results in general Mr. Coldwell said: "Evidently the people of Ontario are satisfied with the government. They returned it was an increased majority.

"The election caught us somewhat unawares. But, the people have spoken and we abide by their decision."

No Comment

A spokesman in the office of Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday night the federal Liberal leader would not comment on the results of the Ontario elections.

Women Lose Out In Election

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP)—The only woman member of the last Ontario legislature and six other women who contested seats in Thursday's Ontario general election all were defeated.

Not a woman was returned as Agnes Macphail, first woman member of the Canadian House of Commons and only one of her sex in the last legislature, was defeated with three other Socialists, two Independents and one Liberal.

Miss Macphail, 61, first elected to the Ontario House in 1948, lost to a Progressive Conservative, Hollis E. Beckett, in York East, Toronto suburban riding. She was a member of the Commons from 1921 to 1940.

The other CCF women defeated were Mrs. H. K. Cartwright in Kingston; Mrs. Anne Vowles, Middlesex South; and Mrs. Bessie Mitchell, Muskoka-Ontario.

Mrs. Marcella Brown, Sarnia newspaperwoman and a Liberal, lost in Lambton West; Miss Ann B. Mayer, Independent Progressive Conservative, in Prescott; and Mrs. Evelyn Bateman, Oshawa alderman, in Ontario riding.

CCF Leader Jolliffe Sorry So Few Turned Out At Polls

ROCKWOOD, Ont., Nov. 23 — (CP). — E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF Leader who was defeated in Thursday's Ontario election with most of his followers, expressed confidence Thursday night that the people of Ontario eventually will "put a Labor government into office."

The most disturbing feature of the election has been the small number of people who voted.

"If the people are prepared to lay down thir lives for democracy, they should be prepared to vote for it," he said in an address to campaign workers.

He said the timing of the election might have been advantageous to the Frost government. "It was difficult in terms of presentation to the voters of the issues at stake."

Defeated in York South riding, he said a request may be made for a recount.

Mr. Jolliffe said that when he joined the British Socialist Party 20 years ago he was determined to help bring about the building of a similar party in Canada. He expected many years of preparatory work but as it turned out, much more rapid progress had been made than he anticipated.

"We of the CCF have laid the foundation of a democratic Socialist movement in Canada, and as surely as the day follows the night the people of Ontario will put a Labor government into office."

It was "a matter of regret for thinking people of all parties" that the government was chosen by such a small proportion of the electorate.

Later, in a CBC network broadcast, Mr. Jolliffe thanked those who had voted CCF in the election, thanked his workers and supporters in the election campaign, and paid tribute to the newspapers of Ontario for a "full and accurate coverage of all parties."

Newfoundland Conservatives Fight For Strong Opposition

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 23 — Newfoundland's Progressive Conservative party, surprised by Premier Smallwood's snap election call for Monday, have fought mainly on an appeal to the electors to return a strong opposition.

The party has not issued a formal opposition statement but the appeal for a strong force in the oppostion benches has been prominent throughout their campaign.

George Drew, national leader of the party, reiterated the appeal on Thursday night in a recorded radio broadcast.

Mr. Drew said followers of both the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties should be interested in seeing a strong oppostion.

Balance Important.

'Even though you may believe that the present government is going to be returned,' he said, "I suggest that it is in the best interest of all the people of Newfoundland that many of the excellent candidates of the Conservative party be returned to build up a strong alternative to the government in the Newfoundland legislature. The preservation of that balance between government and opposition lies at the root of all liberties."

Premier Smallwood's Liberals, four of whose candidates already have been elected by acclamation to the 28-seat house, have fought the campaign mainly on an appeal for endorsation of the government's industrial development program.

Under this program the government backs dollar-for-dollar approved foreign firms wishing to establish in the province.

Other Issues

Other issues however have crept into the campaign.

One developed around Lothar Sennewald, a German optical scientist who was refused financial assistance to establish a plant in the province.

The Progressive Conservatives have arranged for him to come here to address a meeting Saturday and talk about what he has termed "surprising manipulations" behind all of the province's new industries.

He is due today if weather conditions permit.

Monday's voting actually will be only for 23 seats.

Voting Deferred

Besides the acclamations, voting has been deferred in Labrador because weather conditions made it difficult to distribute election material.

Liberals are contesting all 23 seats and the Progressive Conservatives have candidates in all but two. Six Independents also are in the field, two of them in one riding against a Liberal.

Voting will be from 8 am NST (7:30 am AST) until 8 pm NST. In Newfoundland's 1949 provincial election, her first as a Canadian province, Liberals captured 22 seats, the Progressive Conservatives five and an Independent one.

At dissolution the standing was: Liberals 20, Progressive Conservatives five, Independents two and one seat was vacant.

2 Attempts Made Bribe Soccer Players

GLASGOW, Nov. 23 — (AP)— Two more attempts to bribe Scottish soccer players have been reported by the Scottish Football Association.

The St. Mirren club in division "A" of the Scottish Football League told the Association on Thursday that one of its players, centre half Willie Telfer, was offered £200 to throw last Saturday's match against Partick Thistle. Goalkeeper Johnny Lynch was also approached but the amount of money was not mentioned, the club reported.

Full back Tommy Brown of Aidrieonians, another Scottish League team, said last Saturday he had been offered £100 to help lose a match.

All three players reported the bribe attempts to their managers before the matches.

The Scottish Football Association has opened an investigation.

Dunlop Gets Biggest Vote Majority

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP)—W. J. Dunlop, only recently named minister of education by Premier Frost, rolled up the biggest majority in Thursday's Ontario election in his first contest for provincial office.

Mr. Dunlop, one of the first members of Premier Frost's cabinet to be returned Thursday night, led his nearest opponent in Toronto Eglinton by 14,729 votes.

Next biggest majority to that won by the former University of Toronto director of extension and publicity was given Premier Frost—9,501 in Victoria.

Third in the province was Highways Minister Doucett, who followed the last two weeks of the campaign from an Ottawa hospital bed. Mr. Doucett, who suffered a broken hip in a highway crash nomination day, had a margin of 9,060 in Lanark.

Right on his heels was Hollis Beckett—another candidate running for the first time—who had a margin of 9,058 over Agnes Macphail, veteran CCF stalwart, in York East.

In Big Bracket

Ray Connel, who won Hamilton Wentworth for the Progressive Conservatives, was another first time candidate in the big-majority bracket. He had a margin of 5,795. Among other Progressive Conservative leaders with majorities over the 5,000 mark were: Agriculture Minister Kennedy, 7,032; Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar, 7,556; W. J. Griesinger, minister of planning and development, 6,868; Attorney-General Porter, 5,663; Lands Minister Scott, 6,334; Labor Minister Daley, 5,749; and William Murdoch, the party's chief whip, 5,260.

Elmer Brandon, winner in York West with 7,603; Alexander Mackenzie, who took York North with 7,095; and Donald H. Morrow, Carleton's winner with 5,093 were other Progressive Conservatives returned by wide margins.

Tightest contest was in Russell, where J. Danuel Nault, Progressive Conservative, had a margin of only 27 votes over Liberal Raoul Landriault.

Another narrow battle was in Kenora, where Albert Wren, Liberal-Labor, was only 88 votes ahead of Progressive Conservative J. V. Fregeau when counting closed for the night.

Another constituency which went down to the wire was the heavily populated riding of York South, where CCF leader Jolliffe bowed to Progressive Conservative William Beech by 616 votes. S. F. Leavine, Progressive Conservative, won Waterloo North by an even 200.

John W. Foote Sweeps Durham Riding

BOWMANVILLE, Nov. 23 — Polling 7,187 of a possible 18,586 votes, John W. Foote, VC. Minister of Reform Institutions was swept back into Durham riding on the avalanche that gave the Progressive Conservative party 79 of the 90 seats in the Ontario legislature.

Increasing his 1948 majority by 1,223 votes the Reform Institutes minister easily outdistanced the Liberal candidate George Walton Newcastle, and CCF, candidate Spencer Cheshire, Cavan.

Walton polled 4,955 votes and Cheshire, 1,682.

A record 74.3 per cent vote was recorded in Durham county.

The Conservative trend was seen early in the evening when the returns from Bowmanville gave the successful candidate a 413 majority over his Liberal opposition.

In every municipality but two-Darlington township and Newcastle — Foote's majority increased over the 1948 election.

Municipal and township totals are as follows: Cartwright, PC 454, Lib. 147, CCF 24; Manvers—PC 680, Lib. 210, CCF 59; Cavan—PC 638, Lib. 221, CCF 26; Millbrook—PC 310, Lib. 73, CCF 28; Clarke—PC 790, Lib. 631, CCF 78; Hope—PC 580, Lib. 539, CCF 92; Darlington — PC 659, Lib. 947, CCF 43; Newcastle—PC 161, Lib. 222, CCF 33; Bowmanville —PC 1,372, Lib. 959, CCF 417; Port Hope—PC 1,343, Lib. 906, CCF 442.

Korea Fighting Saving Canada

VANCOUVER, Nov. 23 (CP).—The people of Canada are not fully aware of what the fighting in Korea means to their own future security, the Rev. Norman D. Kennedy, Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said Thursday night.

"It is our own security as much as a case of United Nations ideals," he said in commenting on his tour of the war zone.

Mr. Kennedy arrived from Japan aboard a plane which carried 22 Canadian soldiers, the eighth plane to bring Canadian fighting men home for paratroop training.

Also aboard the aircraft was the Rev. E. G. B. Foote of the Royal Canadian Navy, Protestant chaplain of the Fleet.

Mr. Kennedy, who left Canada a month ago, described the morale of Canadians in Korea as "wonderfully good." Adding that the rotation plan had given the men a big boost.

Coal Exports Cut

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Nov. 23 (AP).—The international Ruhr authority said Thursday night West Germany's coal exports to her West European neighbors will be cut by 500,000 tons during the six months ending next March. The seven-country authority decided that the Bonn Republic must export 6,000,000 tons during the last quarter of this year and 5,900,000 tons in the first quarter of 1952.

Ontario Voters Deal Roughly With Leaders

TORONTO, Nov. 23 — CP) — Ontario voters dealt roughly with party leaders in Thursday's provincial election.

Premier Frost won re-election in Victoria riding to go back into the House as leader of a 79-member Progressive Conservative group. But the Liberal, CCF and Labor-Progressive (Communist) party heads bowed out of the picture.

Walter Thomson, chosen Liberal leader a year ago, went down in Ontario riding in his first bid to get into the provincial legislature. He won the same constituency in the 1949 federal election.

The seven-member Liberal group includes two former party leaders. One is Farquhar Oliver of Grey South, house leader last session after his resignation as the provincial head of the party. The other is Harry Nixon of Brant, who has been a member of the legislature since 1919.

Others Go Down

Mr. Jolliffe's personal defeat in York South was the second of his political career. He won the seat in 1943, lost it in 1945 and came back in 1948. W. J. Grummett of Cochrane South, one of the two C.C.F. members of the new legislature, served as House leader in the 1945-48 period.

A. A. MacLeod, the Labor-Progressive leader, lost out in Toronto Bellwoods where he ran third in a four-way race. He had held the seat since 1943. That leaves his former legislature mate, J. B. Salsberg of Toronto St. Andrew, as the only Communist member of the House.

Speaker Urges Stronger Legion At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 23 — (ENS)—The Silver Cross Mothers, those who have lost sons in or as a result of battle, sat in an honored spot at the head table Wednesday evening, when Campbellford Branch 103, Canadian Legion, held their annual banquet.

The newly-renovated Legion hall was packed for the occasion, and the diners were catered to by the ladies' auxiliary, a recently formed group who looked after the catering duties in fine style. Veterans of the First and Second World Wars were well represented at the banquet and enjoyed a fowl supper.

President Alex. MacDonald conducted the evening, and called on Comrade Ken Hazell, who proposed a toast to the King. Comrade Morley Horseman gave the toast to the Silver Cross Mothers. He paid sincere and moving tribute to these ladies whose sons had died in the cause of freedom. Mrs. Ernest Abernethy graciously replied on behalf of the mothers.

With comedian Fred Palliser as MC, supported by genial George Nicholls at the piano, entertainment and witty banter which caused many a laugh was provided.

President Alex. MacDonald called upon Zone Commander "Scottie" Broughton to introduce the guest speaker and the theme turned to a more serious note. The zone commander, prior to calling upon the distinguished guest of the evening, District Commander Jack Burnett, mayor of Cobourg, referred to "One Army, Still Living But Dead" and of the obligation to the dependents of those who had paid the supreme sacrifice, and to those who could not be self-supporting, owing to permanent disabilities suffered during the war.

District "F" Commander Jack Burnett was brief and to the point in his message to the comrades of Campbellford Legion. As district commander, he stated, his job was to criticize. "But I have no criticism of this branch; your co-operation has been beyond reproach." He complimented the branch on their recent formation of a ladies' auxiliary, and also for the invitation extended the Silver Cross Mothers to be present at the head table as guests for the annual event.

Speaking more generally, he stressed the need for a larger number of members at the district rally next summer. With about 56 branches in the district, his ambition was to see a parade of some 2,000 Legionnaires assembled for the next rally.

"All the legislation for veterans and their dependents passed by our governments has been the result of the existence and activities of the Canadian Legion. We must keep the Legion strong in numbers. Therefore, for our own well-being, and in order to have power in numbers which cannot be ignored in government circles, we must keep up our membership." He assured his listeners that he was confident that the Legion would never wrongfully use its power.

President Alex. MacDonald, on behalf of his fellow comrades, expressed the sincere thanks of all to Mr. Burnett.

George Nicholls presided at the piano for a sing-song conducted by Comrades Otto Sarginson and Ed. White.

Thomas A. Smith moved a vote of thanks to the Ladies' Auxiliary for their catering, the event, and Mrs. Ken Hazell replied on behalf of the Auxiliary.

ENTHUSIASTIC SUPPORTERS of Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, congratulate him on winning Northumberland riding; after results were announced in Conservative committee rooms in Campbellford Thursday night. Mr.. Goodfellow won at the polls in Campbellford and also in Seymour Township by a majority of more than two to one.—Bill Reid Photo.

Voting Sidelights

By The Canadian Press

Agriculture Minister Kennedy, who was premier for six months, succeeding George Drew, was returned in his Peel riding, First elected to the Legislature in 1919, this was his eighth successful election.

A blizzard swept through Algoma-Manitoulin riding, east of Sault Ste. Marie, hampering both late voters and election workers trying to send in returns from remote areas.

Campbell Calder, Liberal member of the last Legislature for London and a candidate for the Liberal leadership a year ago, went down to defeat by John P. Robarts, Progressive Conservative.

Art Child, Progressive Conservative candidate for Wentworth and a famed Hamilton Tigers hockey goaltender, was playing a tie game at one point in the returns. With 35 of 173 polls reported, he and J. L. Easton, CCF candidate, each had 2,075 votes. Child withstood the scoring efforts of the CCF however, and won the riding from Mr. Easton, former member.

One of the most prominent residents of Ottawa East stayed away from the polls Thursday —Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent. While he occupies the official residence of the Prime Minister on Sussex St. in Ottawa, the Prime Minister is a resident of Quebec City where he maintains his permanent private home. His office reported the Prime Minister did not consider himself a voting resident of Ottawa.

Blizzards swept across Sudbury riding in the evening, delaying returns from outlying areas. It was milder, but just as stormy, in Haldimand-Norfolk riding where heavy rain was reported across the Southern Ontario district.

The highly-regarded speaker of the Legislature, the Rev. M. C. Davies, was re-elected in Windsor-Walkerville. An Anglican clergyman, he was deputy director of RCAF chaplain services during the Second World War and was first elected in 1945. He was appointed speaker in 1948.

Here's one for the election books. Aurele Chartrand, Liberal retained his Ottawa East sea tin the Ontario Legislature by polling exactly as many votes as his two rivals. He had 10,593 against 8,368 for Henri St. Jacques, Progressive Conservative, and 2,225 for Henry Robert, CCF.

Toronto St. Andrew re-elected Labor-Progressive (Communist) candidate J. B. Salsberg; he was one of two Communist members in the last Legislature, and was one of six candidates put up by his party.

Farquhar Oliver, 47, leader of the Liberal party from 1947-50 and House Liberal leader in the last two sessions, was returned in Grey South. He was first elected to the Legislature in 1926 and was public works and welfare minister from 1941-43.

In Lindsay, Premier Frost's wife, who would rather have her husband at home than campaigning, told reporters: "Next time, we'll let someone else do the running." The Premier replied: "Every election she says the same thing."

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Trying Out New Dishes Can Be Exciting Adventure

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the "guest" season about to begin here's a tip for him who will be spending the holiday with friends—keep your food fancies to yourself.

The guest who gets the most repeat invitations usually is one who eats everything put before him—and behaves as if it were ambrosia to his palate.

Unless a serious condition makes it necessary, leave your diet chart at home. When faced with a strange food don't turn up your nose and say you don't want any. Try it. Who knows—it may become your favorite dish.

Experience taught one woman the truth of this. Not long ago while dining with friends conversation turned to food and milady proceeded to discuss her favorite dishes, particularly noting how much she disliked anything with curry in it. She just couldn't eat anything with curry, she said.

The woman continued to eat every bit of a delicious chicken salad set before her. Several times she told her friends how much she was enjoying it.

You're right. It was curried chicken.

Food Flights

Food connoisseurs say it's an exciting adventure to discover new tastes. A British food authority says that if there are more good cooks in France than in England, it is solely because there are more persons who take an "intelligent" interest in what they eat and drink, whose taste is more highly trained, and whose critical appreciation is more articulate.

Probably the same could be said about Canada. Who knows—maybe if more persons began seeking new tastes, Canada might be able to boast more all-Canadian dishes.

Incidentally, they might find their food bills dropping. For instance, there are a lot of foods, particularly meats such as sweetbreads, which have been kept at moderate prices because of lack of demand.

Fish, by the way, is one food that is both plentiful and fairly reasonable in price. Yet Canadians have to be coaxed to buy it. Home economists of the Federal Department of Fisheries are telling housewives how to serve fish, its nutritive values, the non-waste factor which makes fish a quality budget item.

The Department also is trying to get Canadian restaurants and hotels to increase their use of fish and shell-fish. Experts have recommended that the restaurant and hotel trade should feature at least four varieties of fish daily on their menus. These should be fresh or frozen sea fish; fresh and frozen fresh-water fish; smoked fish; shellfish.

Health Hint

The liquids from canned or home-cooked vegetables contain a valuable amount of vitamins and minerals that should not be wasted. Health Department officials say these add flavor and richness to gravies, stews, soups and many meat dishes.

Royal Preference For Velvet Starts New Style In London

LONDON (CP)—For smart girls who follow the Royal trend in fashions, the fabric of the moment is velvet.

Not only did Princess Elizabeth's Canadian wardrobe include velvet outfits, but back home the Queen and Princess Margaret were showing marked favor for the same fabric, mostly for day wear.

When Princess Margaret visited the Canadian Red Cross hospital at Taplow this month, she wore matching velvet coat and hat. The coat had princess lines, high-buttoned bodice and roll collar. At the wedding of the Marquess of Blandford, she chose ruby-red velvet coat with waist-deep lapels and matching bonnet trimmed with sequins.

At the same wedding, the Queen chose an edge-to-edge coat with cuffed front, its three-quarter sleeves trimmed with deep, muff-shaped mink cuffs. Her matching hat with arched brim had a peacock's tail trimming in feathers, giving a softly-waving cloud effect.

With several of her velvet outfits, Princess Margaret has favored close-fitting high-crowned helmet hats with feather trimmings. A sapphire blue velvet coat was combined with close-fitting helmet hat having a large feathered butterfly winging up the left side.

At the recent wedding of Robin Plunket, brother of Lord Plunket, one of Margaret's escorts, the Princess wore a velvet coat with matching tier-crowned bonnet highlighted by winged feather mount.

Smart Christmas Togs

This Royal emphasis on velvet has had a marked effect on smart women choosing Christmas outfits. For those who can't afford the beautiful street velvets that stand up to all kinds of weather and are the favorite Royal choice, there are warm woollens with interesting velvet insets.

A smart outfit for a winter tramp is a loose, swinging swagger coat in honey gold, grey or sage green with big cuffs and cape collar in black velvet. Combine this with black suede gloves bag and shoes and tiny velvet cap with feathers or pom-poms and you are ready for any big date.

Little light wool dresses at modest prices with interesting buttoning, neckline and cuffs are effectively contrasted by inserts of velvet emphasising the curve of the cross-over neckline, the height of the collar or the chic panelling of hidden pleats in the side skirts.

For the richer client there are dresses such as the lovely black velvet frock by Paquin with its great bell skirt and exquisitely simple lines. Fit for a princess with its tight, long sleeves and high mandarin neckline, the dress has only one touch of color. The neck is outlined in white pique and white edging slots the glamorous, pointed sleeves.

Informal Program Marks 6 Years Of Soroptimism

Sixth anniversary of the Soroptimist Club of Peterborough was celebrated at a dinner meeting Thursday evening in the Empress dining room. Decorations and table favors, made by Mrs. Alma Belleghem, were in the gold and blue club colors. President Miss Alice Curtis presided.

An informal program, completely within the membership, was arranged for this occasion by Mrs. Isabel Hughson. Members are admitted to the club under a classification system, which they must be able to declare at any time, but each was asked to describe her field of practical work so that the others might know its scope.

Miss Mignon Mayneord entertained pleasingly with whistling solos, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Mildred Hubbell.

The only December meeting will be a Christmas party at which the Golden Mile Club is entertained.

All Organizations St. John's Take Part In Bazaar Tea

Women's organizations of St. John's Anglican Church on Thursday topped the record of a series of mammoth church bazaars in the city with an attendance of more than 600. The Parish Hall auditorium was crowded from 2:30 through to five o'clock as people shopped at 15 different tables, buying out completely the Christmas cake, candy and home cooking and pretty thoroughly depleting the Christmas decorations, bazaar and fancy work tables.

Tea rooms downstairs were filled to capacity all during the afternoon and kept servers very busy. But in the kitchen there was chaos for a minute about 5 o'clock when sandwiches were discovered run out. Tired workers who had been making sandwiches all day set to work again and soon there was ample on hand for late comers.

Tea tables were charming with centrepieces of feathery white 'mums, silvered branches and everygreen with tall silver candalabrae and white tapers at each side, and the windows and mantel were decorated with evergreen branches and Christmas colors.

A tall Christmas tree made festive the bazaar room, standing high at centre front, and near it the GA had displayed their silver tree table decorations and window and door wreaths of evergreen tied with red ribbon.

Hostesses in the bazaar room were Mrs. G. H. Moore, Mrs. Webber Turner, Miss Mary Medd Mrs. F. C. Marshall, Mrs. J. Edwards, Mrs. Clysdale, Mrs. H. A. Craig, Mrs. E. C. Brown and Miss Agnes Stout.

The Church Women's Association had three tables, one for the candy for which they are famous, convened by Miss Maud Rush, home cooking convened by Mrs. Selby Rickard, and knitted goods, novelties and felt Christmas stockings that were truly a work of art by Mrs. G. Hodgson who was co-convener with Mrs. R. B. Arnold.

Anglican Women's Club had two tables featuring aprons, quilts, knitted things and fancy items. Mrs. G. Walton was convener of their display.

Babies' and small children's knitted sets and clothing were sold by the Young Mother's Group and they also had a bran tub filled with small parcels on which visitors were invited to "take a chance."

The superior Christmas cake that is made up each year for the bazaar by Miss Margaret English and Mrs. W. M. Cruthers was sold out even before it was made.

Evening Branch of the WA also had three tables, bazaar, white elephants and home cooking. Mrs. B. Ottewell convened them. Afternoon Branch had a home cooking table, bazaar goods and woollens with Mrs. B. Wardle, Mrs. T. Mills, Mrs. W. Dyer and Mrs. R. Lawless the conveners.

An innovation this year was a puppet show put on by the Girls' Auxiliary, which has become increasingly active recently. Shows began as soon as the puppeteers could arrive from school and they attracted adults and youngsters alike. Public announcement in the hall was made by Doris Milne and inside the audience was greeted by MC Carol Caldwell, who introduced each of the actors. Their play was titled "Serenade" and Joan Smith operated Pierrot; Lois Moore had Columbine, the sweetheart he sought; Patricia Gunn had the bad-tempered old man; Josie Hendren, the bad-tempered old woman; Norma Valois the Indian and Beulah Nicholls the soldier, who were inhabitants of the windows serenaded. Phyllis Willshaw operated the lighting and Donna Milne was stage director.

A check room was a very convenient addition to the arrangements this year.

Tea room hostesses receiving at the door were Mrs. W. Stevenson, Miss Marjorie Hatton, Mrs. W. M. Cruthers, Miss M. English, Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell and Mrs. J. D. Collins.

Members of all organization in the church lent their assistance in the serving. Among them were Miss Jean Ackerman, Miss Beverly Martin, Mrs. Herbert Young, Mrs. H. I. Bradburn, Miss Joan Bradburn, Mrs. W. B. Brown, Mrs. George Wesley, Mrs. J. H. Storey, Mrs. S. Zakos, Mrs. A. H. Heideman, Mrs. Ralph Honey, Mrs. Max Swanston, Mrs. G. Norris, Miss Gwyneth Blackwell, Miss Ann Arnold, Miss Margaret Stevepson, Miss Susan Simmers, Miss Beverly Brooks, Miss Beverly Martyn, Miss Margaret Martyn, Miss Lola Jane Buckland, Miss Meredith Morgan, Miss Gaynel Morgan, Miss Zetta Jameson and Miss Sheila Young.

Ladies replenishing the tea pots cream and sugar were Mrs. Claire Stuart, Mrs. E. P. Roper, Mrs. Russell Morgan, Mrs. R. R. Faryon, Mrs. H. T. Cranford, Mrs. Donald Hill, Mrs. Max Comstock, Mrs. George Rishor. Those replenishing the plates were Mrs. F. L. Buckland, Mrs. R. F. Knott, Mrs. Roy Hutchinson, Mrs. L. Yeotes, Mrs. A. Gibson, Mrs. Philip Turner, Mrs. Jack Comstock and Miss A. Heideman.

General convener of the event was Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell. Mrs. F. E. Hooper was general convener.

Miss M. McCulloch Heads New Executive SGCA

Annual meeting and election of officers of the Study Group on Civic Affairs took place Thursday evening following the regular meeting and observer's monthly reports.

Miss Margaret McCulloch was elected chairman, succeeding Mrs. W. E. Fanning. Her vice chairman will be Mrs. T. J. Carley and Mrs. F. W. Williams is the new secretary-treasurer. The executive committee includes Miss M. McIntosoh, convener of observers, Miss M. Lees and Mrs. J. E. Watters. The archivist is to be appointed by the new executive.

Chairman's report by Mrs. Fanning stressed that the prime object of the group is education for members on matters of municipal government to better assess the work of civic administration and vote intelligently. She advised members to refrain from taking part in controversial issues, but rather to insist on a careful presentation of all the facts, in order to support principles in best interests of all citizens.

She also pointed out that the group is non-partisan and does not sponsor candidates—neither does it limit the members in their rights as individual citizens who may gain experience within the Group. Mrs. Fanning instanced the forthcoming candidates meeting as the best medium for showing impartially in getting good city government by providing for intelligent voting.

The candidates' meeting will be held this coming Tuesday, November 27th in the new city hall.

Presenting the annual secretary's report, Miss C. McCarthy touched on highlights of the year when members assisted Jaycees in the "get out to vote campaign" in collections for the Mayor's Fire Fund, climaxed by acting as guides at open house in the new city hall on invitation from City Council.

The abolition of an antiquated routine of the council, known as "musical chairs without music" was attributed to the candid reports of astonished observers from the Group who attended meetings in 1950.

Miss Lees presented the report of observers, said 19 council and 12 board of education meetings had been reported. The volume and variety of council business was noted, especially the following: completion and opening of new city hall and the visit of the Mayor of Peterborough, England, sale of old Civic Hospital buildings; debentures issued for schools and new building for Utilitides Commission; acceptance of gift of objets d'art from Miss Katherine Wallis; removal of outdoor market to George St. S. and new parking lot on old market square; establishment of civic defence organization; local improvements to streets, drains, sewers, etc.; increased salaries to civic employees.

Activities of the Board of Education were concerned largely with accommodation; not only was the new collegiate commenced, but additions are either under way or planned for five public schools, she said. Salaries to teachers were increased on basis of equal pay for equal work and in spite of this large program, it was pointed out that the educational costs have increased only 67 per cent in the past 20 years as compared to 350 to 650 per cent in other departments.

A teacher-trustee committee has been set up; courses of study in grades 7, 8, 9 and 10 revised in accordance with the new curriculum; guards appointed to protect small school children at busy intersections; the Summer Theatre problems finally solved and arrangements practically completed for 1952 season.

To the monthly meeting, Miss H. Gerrard and Mrs. R. B. McWilliams reported as observers for council meetings and Miss M. Lees for the Board of Education meeting.

Forward-Marching Flags Starts Kiwanis On 31st Year

Though Kiwanis is generally known as a business men's club doing service work for underprivileged boys and girls, there is one night each year when the accent is on the Kiwani-Queens—their wives. This night is also charter night so that with the reaffirmation of their principles of loyalty and integrity in the club they reiterate the same to the ladies who enjoy their affection.

Thirtieth anniversary of the Peterborough Club was marked at the dinner dance Thursday evening, in the Empress Kawartha Room. Organization took place November 2, 1921, just seven years after the first club was organized in the US. This has been one of the most active in the district as evidenced by the "club rating" awards pinned to the banner and an award for 1951 service work was presented to president Gordon Hancock by the lieutenant governor for this year, Mr. Mel Osborne of East York.

A speaker whom both the Queens and Kiwanians enjoyed thoroughly was Mr. Ken Greenaway of Montreal, past governor of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district. He combined humor with a serious message so expertly that it was a joy to listen throughout the address.

Mr. Greenaway announced his subject was "Flags" but he spoke not of the Union Jack or the Stars and Stripes which flanked the club banner.

The flags he asked Kiwanians to hold high are: Flag of Opportunity; Flag of Love; and Flag of Gratitude.

"Society has slipped from these flags," he said. "Be like a general whose flag-bearer had gotten far ahead of his regiment—You bring society forward to the flag."

Striving to rise above environment and grasping every opportunity for service is how Kiwanians may march under the flag of oportunity, Mr. Greenaway pointed out. Climbing to the levels of potential life, to where you are the best and the noblest is exemplification of the flag of love, he said. "Give of yourself with such abandon that petty worries and disloyalities are discarded. Love of the service work in Kiwanis is what really keeps you in it."

Gratitude for a bountiful store of food, more than enough of the necessities of life, under un-oppressed government, were asked under the beacon principle of Kiwanis "Give primacy to the spiritual."

"More people believe in the power of right than in the power of might" the speaker submitted. "The strongest part of any man's religion is that which he holds in common with others—the principles of Christianity with the Cross of Christ at the centre of all."

Introduction of the speaker was made by Mr. D. J. Fitzgerald, and he was thanked by Mr. Wm. Richardson. A bouquet of roses was presented to Mrs. Greenaway by Mr. Gordon Miller.

Past presidents have the pleasant duty of arranging the anniversary dinner and they and their wives were among head table guests. Present were chairman Al Plaskett and Mrs. Plaskett, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McKone, Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis, Mr. Miller, Mr. Dick Raine, Mr. Vince McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Saunders.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by Mr. Saunders and Mrs. Charles Hurst made a competent reply.

Draw prizes were given the ladies, winners being, Mrs. D. J. Fitzgerald, who was also thanked for her services as pianist, Mrs. E. C. McKee, Mrs. Cliff Cadd, Mrs. Clarence Mann, Mrs. George Cheetle, Mrs. Ralph Standish. There was also a gift for each lady—a handkerchief box with a lace-edged hanky in it.

Entertainment featured two comic pantomine artists. Afterward there was dancing to orchestra music and several more prizes were given for spot dances.

Guests from Oshawa, Lindsay, East York, Dunbarton and Cobourg clubs joined in the party.

Ask Penalty To Fit Crime In Cases Of Sex Offenses

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—Sex offenders were subjects of a resolution at the opening sessions on Thursday of the annual meeting of Provincial Council of Women in Toronto. It was pointed out in the resolution, sponsored by the Kingston Council, that sex offences are on the increase and that short prison terms do not correct what appears to be a psychiatric condition. The Minister of Justice was urged to take immediate steps so that convicted offenders be kept in corrective institutions until they can be certified as safe citizens.

Discussion indicated there is lack of relationship between the seriousness of the crime and the sentences imposed by some magistrates, also that "it is past time for resolutions on this subject." After Dr. Edna Guest stated that "this has now become very much a medical matter," it was decided to turn the resolution over to the chairmen of both laws and mental hygiene committees, to be directed to the right department, for action.

Resolution sponsored by Toronto Local Council to petition the provincial government to have coloring used in the manufacture of margarine stirred up discussion before being passed.

Present project of the Provincial Council is the Thrift Campaign, and another project, youth training, will be placed before the various councils for definite action during the coming season.

Many important resolutions have gone forward to governments resulting in legislation important to women, chairman Mrs. Charles Heming of Ancaster reminded. Included were the new equal pay for equal work law; anti-discrimination legislation and amendment to the jury act permitting women to serve. Other resolutions dealt with increased grants to libraries; breath tests for drivers involved in accidents; provision of educational facilities for blind children incapable of receiving instruction at the Ontario School, and the rewording of legislation in regard to Sunday sports. Council has also asked for a divorce division of the Supreme Court of Ontario to ensure prompt action for contending parties.

People complain about the price of butter, forgetting that prices of other commodities have increased far more since 1913, said Mrs. George Weir, Burford, presenting the Federation of Agriculture report. She also compared wages of the farm labor (30 cents a day with board in 1913), with what they are today. "We would like to see a little closer relationship between consumer and producer," she said.

New national president Mrs. Allan Turner Bone of Montreal, on her first appearance at a provincial annual, spoke briefly on National Council work. A brief is being prepared to submit to the parliamental committee with regard to resale price maintenance, practices.

"We are in favor of free enterprise—and we do not think this kind of control by a manufacturer through retailer to consumer is free enterprise," she said. "We want the legislation promised in the speech from the Throne put into effect."

It was decided to hold the provincial annual meeting in the spring, instead of fall, in an effort to increase attendance of delegates.

Leading Editor Of Women's Magazine Quits

TORONTO, Nov. 23 (CP) — Byrne Hope Sanders, for many years editor of Chatelaine magazine, will quit at the end of the year to go into partnership with her brother, Wilfrid, in the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion.

Early in 1942 Miss Sanders was loaned by Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company to the Dominion government as director of the consumer section of the prices board. After the war she returned to her job with Chatelaine.

Princess Margaret Excites Staff In Dior Workroom

PARIS, Nov. 23 (AP)—Princess Margaret spent two hours Thursday appraising the creations of Paris fashion designer Christian Dior.

The 21-year-old Princess caused great excitement when she arrived, accompanied by her lady-in-waiting, Lady Jean Rankin.

Giggling black-frocked midinettes, the young Paris seamstresses, leaned out of windows and lined the stairways.

Margaret, who was the belle of last night's British Hertford Hospital Charity Ball, looked fresh and in high spirits.

She was dressed in a burgundy red velvet dress and matching hat and carried a ruby and diamond clip on one lapel. She wore a double strand of pearls around her neck.

Margaret's keenest interest was

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Two Religions Cannot Mate Without Some Concessions

DEAR MISS DIX: About six months ago I met a girl with whom I have fallen in love. I haven't seen her too often, as she lives quite a distance from me, but we have maintained a regular correspondence. I have asked her to marry me, but we are of different religions. She will not change her religion, and I don't care to change mine, either. I have suggested that we marry and live our own lives as far as religion is concerned.

L.A.R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is a fallacy to assume, as you do, that religion can be shunted into the background of marriage and remain there, completely ignored. People of different faiths cannot be married at all without one of them making a concession—not a compromise! The ceremony must be performed in one creed or the other—one party must give way! One family will be hurt, one church will frown upon the marriage! These are facts that cannot be hidden, cannot be overlooked. A couple contemplating mixed marriage should consult with clergymen of both faiths involved; they will be frankly shown the obstacles to be overcome, the problems to be encountered. They will be warned of the difficulties ahead, and should heed the warnings!

The solution definitely will not be to disregard the admonitions and proceed on the always dangerous, always fallacious theory that "we can live our own lives!"

Religion Basic To Family

Religion is—or should be— an inherent factor in everyone's background. It should be the very foundation of a new family. Youngsters should be taught their prayers as soon as they can talk; they should be taken into church and Sunday school at an early age; they should be inculcated with the truths of faith before they learn their ABC's.

A heated family argument as to what prayers, what church, what faith can destroy the harmony of a home almost before it is established. All these problems should be settled before two people of different worships marry. They are not to be lightly discarded in the beginning, for they will sooner or later have to be faced.

You have not known your girl friend very long and having seen her so seldom, you cannot even be sure of your mutual love. You are there're beset with room for doubt. Consider all your problems, talk them over with your clergyman and with hers. Don't marry at all until, and unless, agreements can be made covering all points that will occur in your future.

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 18 and engaged to be married. Is it proper for the boy to give the girl money for her wedding outfit? It has been done in my home town several times, and is now considered a custom.

PATRICIA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: While rare occasions may occur in which a wealthy young lad gives his less well-to-do fiancee money for a wedding outfit, it certainly is not customary and is against the best rules of etiquette. I have no heard of any community where the custom is an established and accepted practice.

A bride's outfit should be only as elaborate as she can afford with due consideration for her financial situation or that of her parents. To exceed your means in this respect is ostentatious as well as foolish. Simple clothes adorn a bride just as charmingly as do elaborate garments.

Buy what you yourself can afford, and avoid the temptation to be luxurious.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Please advise me what to do with a lazy sister. She is a year and a half older than I, and refuses to do anything to help clean the house. She is inconsiderate and laughs when I ask for help. I am very tired of cleaning our bedroom as she does not take care of her clothes, although she has more than anyone in the family. My mother will not help me.

M. L. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your mother is making a big mistake in letting her lazy daughter get away with too much. The girl is being spoiled and mother will one day rue her error.

Every young girl should be at least responsible for the care of her own clothes and room. To permit her to neglect this duty is to pave the way for real trouble when the girl marries. She has all the makings of a careless, indifferent housekeeper—and that could be the ruination of any marriage she is luck enough to make.

Mom better get busy with sister and teach her some household skills.

FUNNY BUSINESS —By Hershberger

"It not only pops up the toast, but holds it for you so you have both hands for your paper!"

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Recommend 1,500 Calories For Good Reducing Diet

QUESTION: Would you kindly send me through your column, recipes for small cakes or cookies, preferably the drop-from-a-spoon type—Any recipes you could send along this line would be greatly appreciated and if you have any recipe for cookies (or small cakes) with dates in centre and graham cracker or biscuits (rolled out) and the dates rolled in same I would very much appreciate having same. I certainly have benefitted very much from your column and it is the first thing I turn to each evening. I have found your column most helpful.

Mrs. G.O'S.

ANSWER: I think you wrote to me under another nom de plume. Are you not Mrs. Gordon C? I have answered your letters and my most recent answer you will find was in the column for Nov. 10. I gave you a recipe for Graham Cracker Roll and Mandarins. If these are not what you are looking for kindly let me know. I think you will like the Christmas Cookie recipes that I am putting in the column this year.

QUESTION: I read your column and enjoy it every day. I would appreciate having you send me a chart.

Today I am embarking on a diet in an effort to lose the twenty-seven pounds that I gained after the birth of my second baby. Could you please tell me how many calories a day I should have? I am twenty-seven years old. I do all of my own housework and have two small sons to look after (in addition to my husband of course). Thank you very much...for the column R.S.M.

ANSWER: To get your reducing diet under way count up the number of calories you have been eating. Be sure you make this as high as it actually is—count the nibbles you take when you are preparing dinner. It will be between 2,300 and 2,800 calories most likely. Cut this down to 1,500 calories per day. BUT a mother who has to run after two little ones must be sure she has all of the protective foods—indeed anyone should. So be sure you have your daily egg, 1 pint of skim milk, fruit, preferably fresh, for dessert at all three meals, 1 green salad per day, 2 cooked vegetables not potatoes or rice or spaghetti. Your cooked vegetables should include yellow vegetables 4 times per week. Eat plenty of lean meat—at least 4 ounces per day. Eat no bread that is not whole wheat. The ideal and most painless way to cut down is to not eat sugar, butter margarine or cream; eat plenty of lean meat or fish or fowl; never eat any dessert but unsweetened fresh fruit. This latter suggestion is a life -saver for you can eat anyone of these: oranges, grapefruit, imported grapes, bananas, and apples whenever you are so hungry you fear you will break your diet.

Here is a sample day's reducing diet for moderately active woman:

BREAKFAST: One whole orange (not juice); 1 large poached egg on whole wheat toast slice unbuttered; 2 cups cafe au lait (one-half strong coffee and one-half hot skim milk).

LUNCH: Six ounces consomme, sandwich of 2 slices whole wheat bread spread with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise and filled with ⅛ inch thick slice of lean meat, and leaf of lettuce; 8-ounce glass skim milk, bunch of 18 grapes.

DINNER: Six-ounce glass tomato juice, two lean ¾-inch veal chops (or lamb), 1 small baked potato and jacket (no butter), 6-ounces quick-cooked spinach, tomato and lettuce salad (no mayonnaise), one-half grapefruit (no sugar), clear coffee.

Write to me if you need more help with this.

What's Right?

Your children make a habit of throwing paper, such as candy bar wrappings, out of the car windows.

WRONG: Let them continue doing so.

RIGHT: Teach them not to throw waste paper on the roads, but to crumple it up and wait until they can get rid of it by putting it into a trash can or waste paper basket.
